Nobody Likes TV Image

Louisville Courier-Journal

Recently the chiefs of polite were in convention here, and they had a chance to sit in a bit the way the chief in Fearless Freedie's always shown taking pay-offs and bribes from underworld characters and kicking poor little ragpicker gangs when he tries to jail the wrong doers.

And we don't blame them. We get sick of seeing newsmen on TV who are equal parts of sex fiend, alcoholic and liar. For years we knew say that Perry Mason should be shot and doctors have a field day. Then Station did Doc Ben Casey. You can also get some pretty bitter laughter from Defendant Kelly by mentioning the glamorous doings of the televised versions of her craft. And if you ask a real sure enough advertising man if his life is as hectic and gay as the Madison Avenue on the tube he is likely to run you up the flagpole.

No one thinks his trade gets as even shabby, and it isn't easy to understand why. Is it because we're bitter when television shows our dull profession as more glamorous than we ever could with more dignity? Or do we just think better of ourselves than do others? We've been meaning to ask a psychiatrist friend of ours about that, but after what we've seen of psychiatrists on TV, we don't trust them.

Ottawa Offbeat
Press and Commons Entente Is Replaced by Hostility

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — More and more, if you listen to what the CBC likes to call its "Public Affairs Men," read some of the little and supposedly cultured magazines and follow such columnists as Cosnickling, Frederickton and Kingston, you'll find that they, against all better instincts, its long traditions and certainly its own desires, the press has been making political news.

Something has happened to the easy, almost automatically good relational between the press and Parliament.

The long period of what amounted to something approaching a mutually affectionate tolerance — certainly a sympathetic understanding — has come to what seems a final end.

It had stretched back for years, through the regimes of Prime Ministers Louis St Laurent and Mackenzie King. And to hear the surviving veteran old-timers of the Parliamentary Press Gallery tell it, dated even further back into the Thirties and Twenties.

Now it is finished, and the only atmosphere and pleasant understanding have been replaced by suspicion and hostility.

SUFFER IN SILENCE

By ancient custom, Members of Parliament, down the years, have been treated as if each and every one were protected by a thick layer of elephant hide, or better still, armor plate.

And they were supposed to remain resolutely oblivious to it all.

Now, not so suddenly — but gradually over the course of the last eight years — there has been a switch, and the new generation of Parliamentarians is in no mood to continue this one-sided game.

They have turned sharply critical of their critics and have been returning the editorial and reportorial fire whenever they get a platform which, for the working politician, is whenever they find two or more people willing to listen to them.

The Liberal Government, backed by an overwhelming majority, suddenly was exposed to a hot and heavy barrage of criticism for which it was psychologically unprepared. The bewilded Government, unable to believe that the criticism was the result of its own error, complacency and arrogance, never recovered from the shock. And many individual Liberals, feeling on the Federal scene, firmly believe that the press coverage of the Pipeline was at least partly responsible for their twin election disasters of '57 and '58.

TORIES, TOO

After Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's relatively short political "honeymoon" with the Press, the Tories, too, detected what they called a "news conspiracy" to destroy them.

They publicly blamed what they called the "one-sided hostility" of the Press for their 1962 set-back and their 1963 defeat. Mr. Diefenbaker got to the point in the '63 campaign, where he made his pitch, or it seemed, as much against the Press as against the Liberals.

In opposition, the Conservatives have continued and even intensified to the extreme where, first before Christmas, Mr. Diefenbaker limited invitations to a party to only three reporters, the three among nearly 150 whom his associates said he could "trust."

Now the clock has gone full circle for the Parliamentary Press with the Liberals, after Prime Minister Pearson's "honeymoon" of more than a year with the political reporters, charging a "news conspiracy."

As the Conservatives previously blamed the Press for the Diefenbaker Liberals, the Liberals now are condemning reporters for the Government with what can only be described as ministerial indignation.

The Press is being plastered for "digging all this up," as its Liberal critics like to phrase it.

The Cabinet is in trouble, the Government itself suffers one humiliation after another, and even Parliament finds itself in collective national disgrace with public opinion polls finding it heavily for its thoroughly bad show. But the real blame, to hear both Liberals and Conservatives tell it, lies with the Press for "putting it all in the paper."

Perhaps with both political parties on its back, the Press hasn't been doing all that badly.

Sir Anthony Eden resigned as Britain's Prime Minister eight years ago today—in 1957 — after a run that two years in office. Ill health was given as the reason at the time for his decision to step down, but his action was generally ascribed to the reaction to Britain's role in the Suez invasion of the previous winter when with French support, British attempted to prevent Egypt gaining complete control of the Suez Canal. Sir Anthony Eden, who followed the Conservative Party rule of Sir Winston Churchill, was replaced by Harold Macmillan as Prime Minister.

New Vessels Automatic

Winnipeg Tribune

The new president of the CPR made an interesting speech on automation in Toronto the other day. Among other things he mentioned that the CPR has ordered two 60,000-ton diesel tankers from shipbuilders in Japan. These tankers would be automated from stem to stern.

The engines are designed to operate for 10,000 hours without overhaul and the only thing the engineers will have to do at sea will be to keep an eye on a series of colored lights which indicate trouble ahead. Lubrication and complete mixing will be automatic. The speed of the engines will be controlled directly from a console on the bridge which will enable the officer in charge to maintain the speed required and to weather conditions.

The automation will control the pumps capable of loading 65,000 tons of crude oil in twelve hours in accordance with a prearranged pattern. The size of the crew will be half that required on ordinary tankers of this tonnage.

It is hard to imagine old sea dogs punching buttons on a console and watching colored lights. But possibly the days of world ships and men are headed into.

ALBERT COLLEGE
(A Story of a Church School)

To Albert College! Stand!
We'll sing her songs of praise.
A college, Home and Friend she's been
To all throughout her days.
—Harold Kitney.

We continue with the question-and-answer interview with Dr. W. E. L. Smith based on his book "Albert College, 1857 - 1957":

Q. — Did the great depression of the 30's have much affect on Albert College?

A. — It was a grim time, certainly. By 1930 the membership was reduced to 53. Salaries were cut. Fees lowered. In the winter of 1932-33 the economic plight of the country was distressing, and the future completely obscure. In the spring of 1933 there were only 40 students, and most of these were getting discounts or student work. The faculty had a strong suspicion that the Principal (Dr. Bishop) was taking far less than 50 percent of his own salary and he was the only one who had a family.

Q. — Was the next year any better?

A. — The outlook for 1933-34 was dark indeed. Taxes were left in arrears. Salaries and trade accounts fell behind. Students left. The bank required that the loan be paid.

Q. — And was it?

A. — Yes — the securities of the endowment fund were sold. That deal was just money lost. It was the faith and zeal, the labor and sacrifice of many men and women who through the years had believed in the school and were devoted to its cause.

(We interrupt here because of the word "endowment fund." The words bring to mind Dr. Wilder Penfield's statement: "First and last: the most certain guarantee of freedom and independence to any university is endowment.")

Q. — Surely that would seem an all time low for Albert?

A. — It was. By 1935 there were only 34 students and six by day. Local credit of the school was exhausted. There were rumors that the buildings would be sold for a hospital. And then the tide began to turn — slowly but surely.

Q. — In what way?

A. — At this time the Rev. Bert Howard bravely took up the leadership of the distressed school. His salary of $1,200 was what had been paid to junior teachers starting in 1926. But one factor strengthened him.

Q. — What was that?

A. — The presence of four teachers who continued steadfastly through the lean years and went on with him to the end of his term of office: Miss Jessie Tuite, Dr. Tom McMullen, Mr. Bert Simpson and Mr. Taylor Franklin.

LOYAL STAFF

Yes, their loyalty helped maintain an atmosphere of confidence and achievement. For strict economy played a large part. The Principal became a plumber and carpenter and repair man. The caretaking staff consisted of Jan Genela and work students. In summer they kept the roads, lawns and garden in order. The latter contributed substantially to the college kitchen. Mrs. Howard planned meals and supervised the kitchen, whilst meant better food and more contented students. She had in preserving and pickling hundreds of quarts every season. She also took over the responsibilities of housemother for the juniors and nurse for all.

Mrs. McMullen and Mrs. Franklin came in to teach in the junior school. Mrs. Simpson took over the nursing. While the Principal himself was continually on his travels in the interest of the school, looking up prospective students, explaining the school's work to presbyteries, and soliciting help. Then too, small but important changes took place in Albert College.

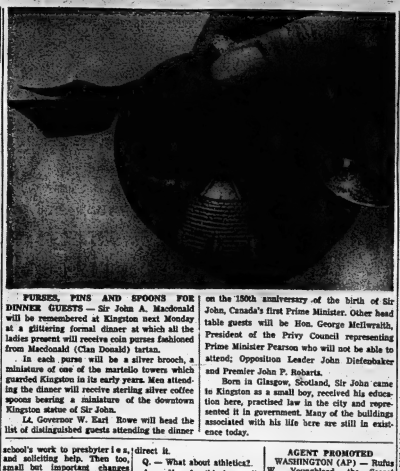
Q. — What were they?

A. — In the spring Dr. Bishop and Dr. McMullen had interviewed the Principal of Queen's University and various heads of departments there who approved of their proposal that the college offer second year Arts work. That fall lectures were begun in Latin, French, English, Philosophy, History and Economics. Grades IX and X were merged to provide time table space.

Q. — Were there other changes?

A. — You remember the commercial department had been dropped? Now steps were taken to start one again. In September 1935 Mr. Cyril Blaine came to direct it.

Q. — What about athletics?



A. — Yes, for this is quite important. The school was to have a professionally qualified coach in the person of Mr. N. A. Beach ("Pete") who came from the University of Western Ontario and London Y.M.C.A.

Q. — Why were the enlarged academic and athletic programs important to the school?

A. — Because this made it possible to attract more students to the college.

Q. — What about the girls?

A. — Ah, last but certainly not least, the girls came back! The reduced domestic staff had meant more vacant rooms in the service wing. Thirdly two or three girls took up their quarters there. And Miss Tuite was brought up from town to be the Dean of Women.

PURSES, PINS AND SPOONS FOR DINNER GUESTS — Sir John A. Macdonald will be remembered at Kingston next Monday at a glittering formal dinner at which all the ladies present will receive coin purses fashioned from Macdonald (Clan Donald) tartan.

In each purse will be a silver brooch, a miniature of one of the martello towers which guarded Kingston in its early years. Men attending the dinner will receive sterling silver coffee spoons bearing a miniature of the downtown Kingston statue of Sir John.

Lt. Governor W. Earl Rowe will head the list of distinguished guests attending the dinner on the 150th anniversary of the birth of Sir John, Canada's first Prime Minister. Other head table guests will be Hon. George McIlraith, President of the Privy Council representing Prime Minister Pearson who will not be able to attend; Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and Premier John P. Robarts.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, Sir John came to Kingston as a small boy, received his education here, practised law in the city and represented it in government. Many of the buildings associated with his life here are still in existence today.

Two Women Injured in Traffic Mishap

Picton (Staff) - - Two Picton district women are in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital following a two-car accident on Scoharie Road west of the drive-in theatre last evening.

In hospital with back injury and cuts is Mrs. Kenneth Wood, of Athlonville; and Beatrice Lindle, R.R. 1 Bloomfield with chest injury. Both women were alone in their cars at the time of the accident. The almost head-on mishap occurred opposite the Lindle home. There was bad visibility with heavy rain and some fog at the time of the accident about 6.10 p.m.

The injured were taken to hospital by Bond's Ambulance. Attending physicians were Dr. Sally Platt and Dr. Leroy Hall.

Property damage amounted to about $200.

LOSE CHIP

WINNIPEG (CP)—Auxiliary Bishop Andrea Cimichella of Montreal said Thursday the people of Quebec are quickly losing the chip on their shoulder regarding the rest of Canada, ushering in a new period of understanding and harmony. The bishop said in an interview there now is a general atmosphere of increasing good will among French Canadians.

Financial Problems Are Threatening This Marriage

DEAR DORIS — My wife and I are both married for the second time. We continually have trouble over financing. I make $80. weekly as a plumber. I pay rent $50. monthly, alimony $60. monthly; bank loan $54. monthly.

I give my wife $30. per week for food only; I pay all other expenses. She thinks $30. a week for two persons is not enough.

The situation in our marriage (of six months) is so bad that it may break up any time and I would like to save it. I would like to see a social worker in this line, interviewing both of us. — FIFTY AND FRANTIC.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR FRANTIC — Thirty a week for food should be ample. Three things occur to me: (1) Your wife unconsciously resents the alimony, which goes to another woman; (2) She has been accustomed to spending as she pleases, without thought of budgeting; or (3) She rankles under being told what she can have and no more. All three may contribute to your present turmoil.

Social case workers have heaps of experience at helping couples like you to make ends meet. Half the battle is in facing the figures together, and each having a say. The resources for counselling where you are is The Children's Aid Society, 62 Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

DEAR DORIS — I am nearly 18. My mother always opens my letters, reads them, seals them up again. I really don't want to hurt her, but can you help me? — MAD.

DEAR MAD — Mom may not know it, but what she is doing is not only dishonest but insulting to you. Has she reason to feel you break some of the rules behind her back? Ask her about this. Point out that you could take a box at the post office.

Reader's Saturday Column

By MARY MOORE

LETTER:

Winter seems to have arrived in earnest, and when I want to truly delight my family I make this steamed bread pudding (below) because the happy sound of the pudding bowl "bump-bumping" in the big pot, and the tangy smell of the lemon sauce seems such a nice welcome to those who come home hungry and chilly. When I make it for lunch, as I am today, only my husband and small son come home and they will eat the whole pudding between them (or try to), eating no "tirsters" at all. I know they should have some protein and other beneficial things at the meal, but they protest that if I insist on that, they haven't room to do justice to the pudding, so once in a while I let them go to it!

Margaret R. A.

¼ teaspoon salt,
½ teaspoon baking soda,
½ cup light brown sugar (well-packed),
1 teaspoon nutmeg,
1 teaspoon cinnamon,
½ cup light raisins,
½ cup currants,
½ cup mixed peel,
2 eggs, beaten,
1 cup finely chopped suet (or ½ cup cooking oil),
½ teaspoon lemon extract,

Mix dry ingredients and fruit. Add beaten eggs, extract and milk (or oil) and milk. Mix well. Pour into greased 5 or 6-cup mould. Cover tightly by tying down with foil. Steam steadily for 3 hours if made with oil; or 4 hours if made with suet. Serve hot with Lemon Sauce: In top of double boiler mix together ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt and when well blended stir in 1 cup hot water. Place over boiling water and stir until thick. Remove from heat and add 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind and 1½ tablespoons lemon juice. Note: If desired, this sauce may be made in heavy saucepan, if you do not care to use double boiler.

Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary Installs New Officers

Thursday evening members of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary met at the Kiwanis Centre for their first meeting of the new year and the installation of officers and directors for 1965.

President Mrs. Robert Brain welcomed the members and wished them all a happy new year.

Yearly reports were read by secretary Mrs. H. Thomson; treasurer, Mrs. D. Hickson, who gave a good financial report. Mrs. Brain gave her yearly report and said how much she had enjoyed her year as president and thanked the members for the good co-operation she had received from them all year.

BUSY YEAR

During the past year the Kiwanis ladies have assisted at several blood banks for the Red Cross, assisted the Cancer Society, dressed dolls to assist the men's Kiwanis Christmas toy project, have provided lunch once a month for the White Cane Club when they meet at the Kiwanis Centre, and provided a Christmas party and gave gifts to the members of the White Cane Club in December.

The president's roses were received the following members: Mrs. Harry Trepanier, Mrs. W. Cook, Mrs. John Dennis, Mrs. F. Burton, Mrs. Charles Mott, Mrs. M. Moffatt, Mrs. H. Thomson, Mrs. Don Hickson, Mrs. Murray Coles, and Mrs. N. Edwards.

Mrs. John Denton presented the outgoing president with a gift and voiced everyone's enjoyment in working with Mrs. Brain this past year.

NEW OFFICERS

The following officers and directors were installed by Mrs. N. Edwards, honorary president, Mrs. Charles Hyde and Mrs. J. Logan:

President, Mrs. Don Hickson; vice-president, Mrs. Robt. Freeston; treasurer, Mrs. Murray Coles; secretary, Mrs. Howard Thomson; directors, Mrs. Chas. Mott, Mrs. G. Pringle, Mrs. W. M. Moffatt and Mrs. R. Lambers.

President Mrs. Hickson took the chair and thanked the members for the honor bestowed upon her.

Mrs. K. Macdonald will continue to look after the refreshments for the White Cane Club, assisted by Mrs. Charles Mott.

The marathon bridge under the direction of Mrs. Charles Mott, assisted by Mrs. Harry Trepanier, which began on January 6th, is going smoothly.

A birthday cake was presented to Mrs. George Lee, complete with candles with best wishes from all the members. Mrs. Lee's birthday was last March.

With the close of the meeting Court Whist was enjoyed by all and refreshments were served by the new slate of officers and directors.

"This is the last time we spend a week end with the Webers!"

New Order Takes Same Vows as Nuns

OTTAWA (CP) — Although they don't wear nuns' habits and are called "Miss" instead of "Sister," 24 Ottawa women in a Canadian religious order have taken the same vows as nuns entering a convent.

But at night they retire to their two Ottawa residences and take part in the same spiritual exercises and contemplation that occupy the hours of cloistered nuns.

The order, now with 1,500 members in Canada and 15 other countries, is based on the idea that women can be missionaries while working side by side with lay people in the community.

"We go where other nuns cannot," says Lucille L'Heureux, Ontario district director. "We used to wear grey skirts and navy blue blazers but when the order was officially accepted by Rome we were asked to stop wearing the uniforms. It makes our work so much easier if we can mingle with others at our jobs."

Miss L'Heureux, 31, is chief of personnel in the registrar's office at the University of Ottawa. Four other members of the order are on the staff of the university.

A member since 1958, Miss L'Heureux looks upon the order as the ideal solution for any young woman seeking expanded religious activity, yet reluctant to exchange the lay world for life in a convent.

Women enter the order on a probationary basis and wait 2½ years before they are allowed to take their final vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. The vows are renewed every year.

Girls Take Firm Hold Of Finances

NEW YORK (CP)—The horror story of the week—from a male standpoint—comes from Lester Rand, director of the Youth Research Institute of New York.

He says a study his institute recently completed suggests that the rising generation in the United States is falling under the total and uncompromising domination of its female members.

"The long and short of it is that today's teen-aged girls are telling their boy friends what to do," Rand said here Friday.

"The American husband of the future gives every indication of becoming completely housebroken."

SWITCHED TO LAW

There was a boy who wanted to be an accountant. His girl friend said she could never imagine herself being the wife of an accountant. He switched to law school. Then she got engaged to somebody else.

Another kid decided he was going to Tufts University in Medford, Mass. His girl friend decided he was going to Boston College. He is going to Boston College.

Rand said the broad conclusion of the study is that "teen-aged boys in America are so insecure, such suckers for female flattery, and so sure their girl friends can manage their money better than they can, that it's frightening."

It seemed evident that the female of the species, starting early to lay a solid foundation for marriage, was taking firm control of the exchequer.

India's Great Planned City Lasting Monument to Prince

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

JAIPUR, India — When the youthful Jai Singh assumed the throne of Amber in 1699, the tyrannical Aurungzeb, ruling Moghul in Delhi, took a fancy to him and renamed him Sawai Jai Singh. Sawai means one-and-a-quarter times, and Aurungzeb — from whom largesse was sparing — considered him a that much more of a man than his father.

Sawai Jai Singh was indeed a man of parts. Before his reign ended in 1743, he had achieved an unsurpassed reputation as prince, soldier, astronomer, mathematician, lawyer and historian Jaipur, the rose pink capital of Sawai Jai Singh, is his lasting monument, and there are few more worthy memorials in the world.

Sawai Jai Singh was India's first city planner, and the new illinear layout of the old city would do credit to many a modern redevelopment program. Its broad sunny streets are lined their lacy stone screens in tones with the old-rose-colored walls of pink ranging from ashes of roses and Pacific sunsets to cream of tomato soup. The city's crowning statement is the curved facade of the Palace of Winds, a fanciful pile of arches, turrets, moghul cupolas and Persian balconies that is Jaipur's most famous landmark.

MORE FASCINATING

What goes on in the streets below is apt to be even more fascinating. The traffic includes caravans of camels, in from the desert with vegetables and building sand. At the stalls and bazaars color - swathed ladies alight from three-wheel bicycle rickshaws and bargain for bangles and beads, or browse in the central flower market which ogilds the roseate lily of Jaipur with blooms of yellow and apricot. There are piles of Kashmiri carpets and rolls of sari silk, gleaming brassware, bouse-hold goods, semi-precious stones and strange brilliant fruits and grains. In the afternoon sun, everything is suffused with tints of red, a visual symphony in rose.

Within the sandstone (also red) walls and seven gates surrounding the old city, stands one of the most princely of India's city palaces. Its frescoed walls surround a complex of regal courts, pavilions and reception halls, fountains and formal gardens. Great brass doors and teak doors are inlaid with ivory and gold, ceilings hung with emerald and sapphire chandeliers. The red-walled apartment enclaves have latticed windows, carpeted floors, marble pillars and delicately painted murals. In a reception hall stand two solid silver urns filled with Ganges water laboriously carried here by devoted subjects.

NO ONE REALLY KNOWS

To this day no one really knows how rich the rich maharajahs of India were, and still may be, for much of their wealth is in heirloom jewelry. The current Maharaja of Jaipur has a necklace of 120 emeralds, each one said to be worth $50,000. He is depicted — along with his "racebears and sundry other items of fascination — in the City Palace's incomparable museum. Among his forebears, incidentally, was the seven-foot-tall, four-foot-wide, 500-lb. third maharajah, whose pearl - and emeral-encrusted robe, big as a tent is on display. Also shown is a length of royal muslin so fine that 40 yards of it can pass through a wedding ring.

The coronation hall also is a museum today. In it are quaint miniature paintings of idyllic court scenes, miniature sanskrit scrolls requiring a magnifying glass to read (what must they have required to write?) even some exquisite paper-doll dollies which were the specialty of one innocent maharajah. There are representations of Jesus and Mary, an Indian version of an Annunciation, strutting elephant and prints of elephant fighting, a sport which persisted in India until 1935.

Over the entrance of an armory just across over to a display of Oriental weapons, "Welcome" is spelled out in daggers. Inside so are the words of India, the monogram of the maharajahs, and a portrait of the Hindu God-dess of arms. Other toys include a royal scimitar weighing 11 lbs., a saw-toothed sword, powder horns made of elephant tusks, and scissor-daggers whose handles are inlaid with precious stones.

MASSIVE PALACE

Outside of town, along roads cut through solid rock and lined with the remains of noble palaces (all built with the aid of elephant and camel labor), lies the massive Amber Palace whence came Sawai Jai Singh to Jaipur to build his new capital.

The palace sits on a commanding eminence surrounded by great walls. The usual tourist taxi is a painted and caparisoned elephant. The visitor rides in a bowdah, rocking and rolling up the cobbled path to the accompaniment of a beggar's tune, enjoying the same lordly view of the domain once reserved for the maharajah only.

Main attraction of the palace compound is the Sheesh Mahal, a hall inlaid with diamond-like glass chips and decorated with floral carpets in alabaster-like marble pillars. The ceiling of the private audience hall is shaped like an elephant's back, and there is a bedroom where candles once reflected like stars in the bold glass of the ceilings and walls.

In the assembly pavilion, elephant capitals of pillars glow like mother-of-pearl. Below, the gardens bloom in spring in the patterns of Persian carpets.

In Jaipur, Sawai Jai Singh's great achievement was the largest of several astronomical observatories he established throughout northern India. Its abstract playground-like structures — bowls, wings, towers and platforms — by this day measure precisely declinations of the sun and moon, the movement of the stars, and the time of day to the second in every part of the world.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Minor Hockey Week in Canada starts Saturday, January 22.

And before long the Golden Voice of the Moppets of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Minor Division, belonging to Jack Christie, will be echoing the news from the housetops from the rocky ribs of Newfoundland to the sunny vales of Victoria.

Some 175,000 puck-chasing youngsters will flit an oar. Some 12,000 dedicated men will go to their task with renewed vigor.

These men along with the CAHA and provincial organizations feel that money and effort spent on minor hockey is a sound investment. And it will be now of a better investment in the month of the nation then minor sport in general and hockey in particular.

In Ontario, the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, the greatest organization of its kind in the world, in conjunction with the Ontario Hockey Association is sponsoring the movement.

Its purpose is to focus public attention on the physical and mental benefits of the sport for young Canadians. By drawing public attention to the fact, minor hockey officials hope to develop more support for the valuable work being done by hundreds of coaches, managers, referees and other officials across the country.

Minor hockey develops an understanding and spirit of good sportsmanship. It teaches the value of clean living and thinking, team-work and co-operation. Boys learn that respect for the rules and authority are necessary and desirable to succeed in life. Minor hockey teaches good citizenship.

Hockey is Canada's national winter sport. It extends beyond the perimeter of athletics because it has become an institution. It is a heritage handed down to Canadian youngsters by proud forebears who have written glorious pages in the golden book of the game.

And dedicated men see to it that the heritage is maintained. By hard work and other effort, money raised with their own finances, they are seeking to fit and Young Canada will get the proper recommendation and groundwork that not only prepares them for the minor game of its ahead, but perhaps in some cases qualifies a career.

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says that the chances of a boy reaching the NHL is roughly one in a 1,000.

Be that as it may. I believe Young Canada is not so much interested in reaching professional status as he is in playing the game purely for the love and sport of it.

A lot will go on to the higher brackets, such as junior "A" ranks. Senior hockey may be "smoking in the grave" by the time the present crop of youngsters reaches the age. Others will reach the coveted NHL circle.

Handling a group of blade-shod and stick-armed spirited youngsters is no sinecure. It takes time, patience and medical effort. And so long as Canada has men blessed with these traits, minor hockey will never die. It will go on as long as Young Canada wants to play the game.

It is to these men that Young Canada Hockey Week is partly dedicated. They come from all walks of life, from city, town, village and hamlet. They have one thing in common, a love of boys and hockey.

This part of Eastern Ontario is blessed with many such men. Under the guidance and supervision of such Ontario Minor Hockey Association executives as Douglas Patterson of Stirling and Albert Watkis of Peterborough, minor hockey has mushroomed into a growth not dreamed of twenty years ago. And their work goes on.

In this city under the aegis of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association some 1,400 youngsters are enjoying organized hockey. In the district from Peterborough on the west to Kingston and Gananoque on the east, north to Bancroft and south to Picton, over 4,000 puck-minded boys are being taught rules, regulations and sportsmanship.

As the late President John Kennedy of the United States, said: "All of us must consider our own responsibilities for the physical vigor of our children. We do not want our children to become a generation of spectators. Rather we want them to be a participant in the vigorous life."

RMC Man Joins Emery Bobsled Team

Off To Switzerland

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—How would you like to speed down an ice - coated chute at speeds of up to 90 miles an hour—especially if most of your downhill heroics have been confined to the type children do on weekends?

That's the situation facing 23-year-old Jerry Presley of Royal Military College when he joins Canada's team for the world bobsled championships later this month.

Canada, with driver Vic Emery of Montreal leading his 1964 four - man Olympic gold medal - winning crew in defence of their world title, will send a team of eight to Switzerland. The Canadians will have a pair of two - man teams for the Jan. 23-24 events and two four-man sleds for the Jan. 30-31 competition.

"I'm just a novice," Presley said in an interview, "and most of my bobsledding has been confined to the kind children do."

One exception was four or five years ago when he took a fling at it at Lake Placid, N.Y. He liked it but hasn't been on a sled since.

"I just happened to get in a discussion last March with Vic Emery when he was a guest at RMC," Presley said. "I told him I was interested and if he ever had an opening on his team to let me know."

Emery must have been impressed. Nine months later, RMC officials told the Montreal bobsledder that the way had been cleared for Presley to join the team at St. Moritz. "I didn't know a thing about it," Presley said. "But I certainly felt very good about it."

Presley will compete in the four - man competition but it is doubtful if he will be on Emery's sled which has Doug Anakin of Montreal as second man, Dr. John Emery of Toronto as third and Peter Kirby, St. Jovite, Que., as brakeman. This is the crew that won the Olympic gold medal.

"I'll be the second or third man on a sled," Presley said. "The two experienced men are the one who steers and the brakeman. My job will be just to fit in."

"When you're going at such a speed and a runner on the sled breaks, you're in difficulty. You're also in difficulty if the sled bounces off the run and into the trees. But you don't think about it."

Presley, born in Arnprior, is a graduate of Royal Roads College in Victoria, B.C., and came to RMC in September, 1963. He is taking a course in electrical engineering.

How interested is he in getting a $5, Maritet?

"I'm paying $300 of my own to help me get there," he said. He makes $60 a week.

Hawks, Wings Meet Twice

Toe Tells Why Canadiens Still On Top

By TED BLACKMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Take away Jean Beliveau, Bernie Geoffrion and Gilles Tremblay and Montreal Canadiens are left without the team's highest-scoring line last season.

That's exactly what has happened to the defending National Hockey League champions and yet, as the Habs enter the second half of the 70-game schedule, they are three points in front of the league and two points ahead of their pace last year.

Geoffrion, now retired, Tremblay, out for the season with a broken leg, and Beliveau, sidelined with a twisted knee, contributed a total of 154 points to Montreal's cause in 1963-64. Their loss has amounted to a shortage of supplies in the ammunition depot.

But, according to coach Toe Blake, first place again has become Montreal property, not because of a tightening up by the team's blueskinning defensive corps and the sketchy but improved play of several players.

"Charlie Hodge's goaltending has been outstanding and that's the backbone of our club," says the coach.

HODGE TOP GOALIE

Sophomore Jacques Laperriere has been the standout, says Blake, and "is at his best when the chips are down."

"J. C. Tremblay has been pretty consistent and Terry Harper has played a lot of big games. During the last month Jean-Guy Talbot has improved after a poor start. And how do you like that Ted Harris?"

Blake believes he has the best squad of defencemen in the league.

"Some of the other clubs may have two or three fellows who are better than ours but I don't think any of them have five defencemen they can count on."

Another reason for Montreal's success is the vastly-improved play of Ralph Backstrom and Claude Provost. Backstrom, who suffered through an eight-goal 1963-64 season, has 13 goals to date and Provost (15-17—32 last year) is the team leader currently with 18 goals and 21 assists.

FIRST SECOND HALF

The Canadiens enter the second half of the schedule tonight when they host to New York Rangers. Boston Bruins visit Toronto, Detroit Red Wings Chicago Black Hawks meet the Red Wings at Detroit in the first afternoon game this season.

On Sunday, Detroit visits Chicago and Montreal goes to New York. A scheduled Montreal-at-Boston game was postponed to Feb. 11 because an ice show has taken over Boston Gardens.

The Bruins will be playing without Ed Westfall, injured recently in a car accident. Boston's casualty list includes Dean Prentice, Bob Leiter, Ron Schock, Ab McDonald and Orland Kurtenbach.

Absent from the Leafs are Ron Ellis, Bob Pulford and Dave Keon. Toronto suffered another blow Friday night when Bob Pulford, 32, was taken under emergency conditions, was sidelined by acute tonsilitis.

Minor Hockey Results

Action in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night was confined to the tyke and novice divisions. Five games were played in all.

TYKE

Leafs and Canadiens battled to a 2-2 tie. R. Culkin and P. Crawford scored a goal each for the Leafs. Tim Barbour and Michael MacDonald potted the Canadiens' markers.

Rangers shaded the Hawks in a 1-0 cliff-hanger. R. Marsh triggered the game's lone goal to give Rangers the nod.

Wings whitewashed the Bruins 5-0. J. Rose and Claude Landry fired two goals each with Howie Meens notching the other one.

NOVICE

Bruins defeated the Canadiens 4-1, sparked by the two-goal effort of John Schwager. Terry Hilborn had the other Bruin goals. Bradley Christopher scored for the Canadiens.

Teepees edged the Wings in a 4-3 squeaker. D. Cole, Bill Coughlin, John Wyndham and Howes tallied the winners' goals, in that order. For the Wings, goal-getters were Jack Hilborn, David Sullivan and Terry Collins.

Win Over Picton

BCI Cagers Sweep Trio

By DAVID TEMPLER

In Bay of Quinte COSSA basketball yesterday, BCI's powerful senior collegians won 72-53, the juniors triumphed 70-35, and the bantams edged out an 18-17 decision over Picton.

The senior game was dominated by the dazzling accuracy of Ron Walsh who hit for 20 points, getting 12 in the third quarter. This rough, hard-fought game resulted in a total of 58 fouls shots being awarded. A decisive factor was BCI's average of 50% on free throws against PECI's average of 30%.

The scoring for BCI was: Walsh (20), Hall (13), Swan (8), Perks (7), Anderson (7), MacCormack (3), and Dean and Gardiner with one each.

The scoring for Picton was: Hoard (16), Darvis (10), Arnwine (13), Murphy (10), and Smith and Frederick with three each.

In the junior game the fast-breaking Collegians outscored PECI in every quarter. Ray Bourns scored 19 on the break play. Tom Lorris played well under the offensive boards and picked up 11 points. Jim McCreary set the plays and drove for ten himself. Thibeaux got seven and Sheridan, playing well defensively, got six.

Thomson got six, Loynes and Mclain four apiece and Swan and McFarlane got two.

Flyers Alone On Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers defeated Montreal Junior Canadiens 4-2 Friday night to take over undisputed possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Flyers, undefeated in 11 games with nine wins and two losses, thus dislodged the idle Toronto Marlboros, who have occupied the top spot or been tied for it for months.

The win in Niagara Falls, giving the Flyers 47 points, also cut short a Junior Hab unbeate streak of seven games.

In Kitchener the sixth-place Kitchener Rangers dumped fourth-place Oshawa Generals 4-3.

Kitchener got two goals from Tommy Miller and the others from Bob Jones, Peter Brannan, John Beverley and Sandy Fitzpatrick. Bill Little, Bobby Orr and Bill White scored for Oshawa.

Montreal lost the services of starting netminder Fernand Richard when he smashed his knee in the third minute of play while trying to stop Sanderson's first goal. He was replaced by Edward Oulmet.

'Encourages Violence'

Director Raps NHL Style

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bill Farquharson, a recreation director, said Friday the NHL style of hockey encourages violence and the Public Utilities Commission recreation department here is considering changing its adult leagues to international rules.

"We are very concerned about the rough play that the present rules allow, and which our type of play seems to encourage rather than the skillful manipulation of the puck," he said.

"The department is toying with the idea of suggesting international rules to get away from the violence. (Our) hockey is for fun and if someone gets hurt he can lose several days' work."

The director said play at all levels seems to be dominated by NHL rule policy. He characterized Canadian hockey as "a little sick."

Winter Works Plays Fairy Godmother

Vancouver now has a Cinderella story.

For years Mr. and Mrs. Albert Galt devoted their lives to raising 35 orphaned boys.

Through those years they were rewarded with happiness as they saw the children grow to maturity, but the monetary rewards were small and their home on Price St. in Burnaby began to show the wear of time.

Like most couples the Galts had their dream home — sitting somewhere up in the clouds — but it certainly seemed that it would never become a reality.

But miracles do happen and sometimes caring about others is rewarded.

In 1958 Mrs. Galt was selected as B.C.'s Centennial Mother of the year.

And this year their dream will come true.

The Vancouver Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Vancouver Winter Employment Campaigns Special Events committee have combined to renovate the 50-year-old Galt house into a stylish French-provincial home.

By doing so, the two groups hope to show how a face-lifting and interior renovation can make a Cinderella story come true, and thus help solve the winter work problem by creating jobs during the slack winter season.

A prime example of the neat workmanship possible during the winter is displayed on this split-level, brown brick home located on Selina Drive. Contractor: Maurice Rollins Construction Ltd.

Construction Round-Up

By DOUG SEIP

DUNDAS ST. CLINIC

Tatham's foreman H. Lewis hopes to have cedar panelling on the front of the Dundas St. Clinic by the end of next week. The building is now completely enclosed, the first floor poured, glass in, and the tar and gravel roof on. Dr. H. F. Williamson will own the clinic.

L.C.B.O.

February 1 is the opening date for the new LCBO store. In the north-west corner, where the "in" and "out" doors are, workmen are cementing grey, green-tinted Italian marble to the outside columns and inside sills. Around the outside of the doors glazed brown tiles, two inches by six, are being attached. Inside, opposite the doors, will be a wine display. The behind-the-counter liquor shelves, now installed, contain approximately 500 bins to hold the various sizes and brands of spirits.

ARGOSY

Tweed's Construction masons will have the side walls of the Argosy warehouse at roof level by the end of next week, if the weather holds.

AMODEO'S

The prestressed concrete slabs for the first floor of Amodeo's on North Front are in place. Masons are cementing block on the back and side walls.

SMITH GARAGE

Smith Transport is using its new garage, located on the end of Adams St. Early next week the last of inside work will be done. Workmen are completing small chores such as putting on door handles.

STRADWICK'S

Stradwick's have moved into their new location on North Front and are open for business. Piles of stock were strewn over the multi-colored tile floor Wednesday, and by Friday the last of their materials will have been brought from the old location. All told, the new store has 4,130 square feet of floor space)

PUBLIC WORKS BLDG.

Masons laid the back wall of the Public Works building at roof level Wednesday, and will have the north wall at that height Friday. Work on the south wall will start next week and the red brick facing for the front is being cemented now. Tatham's, the builders, are still waiting on the concrete slabs for the mezzanine floor.

CHARLES LAMBERT

Framing on the top floor of Lambert's Moira St. double triplex will be done by Friday. The centre firewall, made of concrete blocks, is already built. On the two Wallbridge St. double triplexes, Roy S. James Ltd., masons, have to finish the work by next week. Framing on these buildings should take another two weeks from this Friday.

DIXIE LEE

Foreman Bill Lucas hopes to have the north end of the Dixie Lee Cut-up Chicken building ready by the end of next week, and the entire inside of the building ready for occupancy in about three weeks. The roof is shingled and the blocks laid. A polyethelene tarpaling covers the entire front of the building so that the mortar between the red brick facing will dry white, and not dark.

HEXA PLANT

Workmen are installing the wiring and nailing wallboard to the inside walls at Union Carbide's Hexa plant. Foreman Lou Smith says they are still waiting on electrical apparatus.

WILLIAM ST. CLINIC

Dr. Stock's William St. Clinic is rising fast. The wooden side walls are up, framing for the inside partitions is in, basement glass has been placed, and the wooden roof base is on.

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

The Ontario Intelligencer building is now completely enclosed. Glass is in on the front, east and west walls. Inside masons are constructing block partition walls. In the basement the heating boiler for the hot water system is in. By Monday it is hoped to have it running and heat the building for the workers. The boiler works on either gas or oil. For now, gas will be the fuel.

Y.M.C.A.

Gyproc is being nailed to the main floor framing, the wiring is being installed, and the heating is on at the old YMCA building, scheduled to become Belleville's new police quarters.

YEAR END FIGURES

In 1964, a total of 431 building permits were issued for Belleville. Of these, 173 were for single dwellings and 100 were for multiple dwellings. Total value of permits was $4,894,255. Value of the dwelling permits was $2,588,970.

Melrose

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffrey spent New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Milligan spent New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. Sherry Demille.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bates, Belleville, were New Year's eve guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Weese.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren and boys visited Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lloyd, Wellington, on Sunday on the occasion of Mr. Lloyd's birthday.

Sympathy is extended to the families and relatives bereaved by the passing of Mr. Ernest Pascoe and Mrs. Peter Murphy, whose funerals were held from the Bush Funeral Home.

Church services on the Shannonville circuit were taken by the Hi-C group on Sunday.

Miss Barbara Weese returned to Guelph on Sunday to continue her studies at the university.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Howard recently entertained relatives from Belleville and Bancroft.

Melrose school re-opened on Monday of this week with Mrs. C. McCracken of Napanee, as teacher.

Why Wait For Spring ?

Housing authorities, architects, and building companies all agree that a home built in winter will be inferior only if you use a poorly qualified contractor, who would probably botch the job in summer.

Bad weather and a late start can chalk up additional costs on your house, but offsetting this are better tradesmen available — workers keep on their best men during the winter—and materials often are easier to obtain. Wait till spring, and you will find that construction wage rates and freight charges on material — due to the increased demands—probably will rise. Also, land costs ordinarily increase each year.

Find Advertising Really Pays When Tied to Winter Program

In 1963 Canadian government officials interviewed construction dealers across Canada who, aware of the possibilities the winter works program offered, began to advertise during the winter months.

The results showed that 64 percent of the advertisers had an increase in sales volume from one to 200 percent. The average increase was 17 percent.

Although a portion of the increase is attributable to advertising during winter by firms which had never bothered to before, a large share of the increase can be credited to the incentive money bonuses supplied by the government.

The number of local applications for houses under the government program — 82 in the 1963-64 season and 84 as of January 5, 1965 — appears to back this up.

A decrease in sales was reported by 18 percent of the advertisers, possibly due to increased advertising on the part of the competitors — and 30 percent found no change.

HOUSING A PROBLEM

WARSAW (AP) — Polish leader Wladyslaw Gomulka told the Polish Socialist Youth Congress: "A large majority of young couples cannot count on getting free flats . . . and should think several years before marriage about getting an apartment. The way is through housing co-operatives." It costs an initial capital investment of $400 to $800 to join.

Jobless Statistics Show Benefits of Winter Works Programs in This District

Canada's nation-wide winter works program last year greatly reduced the number of unemployed and benefited the Belleville area as a whole, National Employment statistics indicate.

In 1963 at the end of December the number of unemployed in the Belleville district totalled 1,822 compared to 1, 586 on December 31, 1964.

This decrease occurred despite the closing of both International Precision Casting and Bancroft uranium mines in 1964.

Carpentry, one of the major trades hit by winter conditions, listed 51 unemployed tradesmen at the end of December 1964 — a 17 percent decrease over 1963 at that time — compared to 73 at the peak in January, 1963, and 140 at the peak in 1962.

Electricians and other trades show similar drops.

MUNICIPAL PROGRAM

When the municipal winter works incentive program was instituted five years ago 647 communities participated for a total expenditure of $102,258.

Over the 1963-64 winter season 2,758 municipalities participated for a total expenditure of $277,579,000.

Under the municipal program the federal government will pay 50 percent of on-site payroll costs and the Ontario Government another 25 percent, any provincial or municipal project meeting the winter works program regulations.

The projects acceptable to the federal government to date are road, street, sidewalk, or bridge work, water, sewage and drainage facilities, parks and park playgrounds, and buildings.

Approved construction of new buildings the government will pay a maximum of $100,000 on any one structure.

Exempt from the winter works program is labor on schools or school grounds, hospital property, subways, and buildings to house privately-owned businesses or industries.

To meet the regulations the project must commence on or shortly after November 1 and be completed by April 30.

PROJECTS HERE

In Belleville this year two sewage projects fall under the winter works program: the storm sewer on Palmer Road reaching from Dundas St. to 300 feet north and scheduled to eventually reach Bridge St., and the storm sewer on Harriet St. extending from Coleman St. to Boswell St.

The two projects require 20 unskilled laborers who would not otherwise be engaged, and will use them for approximately 300 working days.

At Bancroft, 30 unskilled laborers are employed on road-work, and will be there approximately 1,000 working days.

Belleville's old YMCA renovation falls under the program and will employ 15 skilled and unskilled workers for 1,350 working days.

The City Yards on Wallbridge Road, now under construction, and a part of the winter works program, employs 50 men and will require approximately 3,300 working days to build.

In Tyendinaga eight men are employed for 100 days and at Marmora ten men will work a total of 2,200 days to install water mains.

HOUSE PROGRAM

Two years ago the government instituted the winter house building incentive program.

Under this program $500 is paid by the government to the owner-builder or the first purchaser of a winter-built home if the major part of the construction is completed between November 15 and March 31.

Should the contractor not be able to sell the winter - built home within a one year period, he receives the $500 that would have gone to the first buyer.

To be eligible for this grant the house must be either a single dwelling or a housing structure containing not more than four living units.

If an apartment house were constructed containing four units the buyer would receive a $2,000 cheque — $500 for each unit.

Under certain conditions, row housing containing more than four dwellings units may also be eligible for the incentive payment.

Before November 15 the foundation and sub-flooring can be built, allowing basement work in extremely cold weather to be avoided.

On or before March 31 the building must be completed except for outside painting, landscaping, walks and driveways.

STANDARDS SET

All single dwellings must have four or more rooms in addition to a bathroom and provide acceptable heating and sanitary facilities, adequate space for cooking, living, eating and sleeping.

To qualify for the winter works house building program, an application form available at the Belleville Employment Service office or Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation location has to be filled out and forwarded to the government.

An official of Central Mortgage and Housing must inspect the dwelling before construction has gone beyond the first floor joist stage, including subfloor, or its equivalent.

In 1963, 82 applications to build houses under the winter works program in the Belleville area were received. As of January 5, 1965, 84 applications have been received.

Builders still encounter problems by building in winter, but technical developments in the past few years have greatly aided winter construction.

Frozen ground can be broken by steel pronged rippers pulled by heavy machinery; chemicals in the water prevent cement from freezing quickly; polyethelene covering holds warmth inside the building and allows work to continue.

INSULTS A CRIME

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP)—Justice Minister James Skinner has introduced a bill making it a crime to insult the president—Dr. Kenneth Kaunda—the national flag or the national anthem. It would also punish utterance of hatred, ridicule or contempt relating to race, tribe or place of origin. Mr. Skinner is the only white man in the Zambian cabinet.

A Lift for Living
Man Can Do His 'Inside Chores' When Winter Has Arrived

By REV. HAROLD R. KOHN

Foul weather has frequently been the nursemaid of arts and skills. "Bad" weather forces people to withdraw for awhile from the outer world and casts them upon their inner resources.

In the American and Canadian yesteryears when bleak, snow-blown, icy January and February arrived, and winter lay stiff upon the windowpanes, and the rutted roads and paths were slippery with sparkling quartz-like ice, and heavy snow stilled the wagon and made travelling difficult for horse and sled, then the farmers tended to their "inside chores." When they felt trapped by winter's wizardry of winds and cold our farming forefathers made adventures of their inconveniences.

In January and February the farmer went to his shop or forge barn where he made some tools and repaired others, so that when spring came he was ready for the garden and the fields. The forge fire blazed hot and high as the fashioned plowshares, axeblade, hoe blades and shovels. In colonial days, landowners even made their own nails. During those early times nearly every farmer was his own blacksmith, and most of such work was done on stormy days when "outside work" was impossible.

Winter was also a time for making furniture, matching the seasoned woods in such a way that each kind of wood would work against the other, hard wood matched against springy wood, so that each tightened the other and the furniture could not fall apart. The homecraft of furniture - making was largely developed during uncomfortable winter weather.

Farm women used wintry days for candle making, spinning and scouring pots and pans. Stormy days were just right for quiltmaking, too.

WELL ILLUSTRATED

Our pioneering forebears well illustrated faith's victory over difficulties. They believed that when life was less than ideal, and they could not do everything they liked, there were still worthwhile things that could be done, even on the worst days. They converted ungromising days into hours of creativity. They explored and exploited their harsh days by getting "straight up" and even ahead in the "inside chore" department of living.

Spiritually speaking, bad weather is a good time to do the inside chores. Basically, stormy days do one of two things to us and sometimes both: they reveal what is already in us, and, by God's grace, they transform us into something better than we are. In early Canada, on wintry days, doubtlessly some farmers went busily to work performing inside tasks while others insisted on doing outside work or nothing. On bad days the latter loafed. Thus storms revealed the character of the farmers, separating the beneficiors from the bums. Then again, every time a creative farmer was forced into his forge-barn or wood-working shop by inclement weather he gained more practice making tools and furniture. So stormy days sharpened a man's skills and improved the products of his mind and hands. Turbulent times reveal what we already are and change us for the better, if we will have it so.

Joseph is sold by his brothers into Egypt. Once a great man's son and now a slave — what an opportunity for sulking self-pity! But Joseph, who seems to have been something of a spoiled braggart, goes to work on his inside chores, examining his attitudes, tidying up his soul until his stay in Egypt makes him prime-minister and the savior of his starving family who came to that land for help.

Alexander Pope once called his deformed body "a bundle of distempers" and described his life as a long disease. Yet, he so applied himself to creative thought and writing that his works have been enjoyed throughout the world and used as examples of polished style in literature.

Immanuel Kant stands in the front ranks of the philosophers of all time, but it is believed that throughout his adult years he was never entirely free from pain. Much of his reflection was the result of deliberately withdrawing his attention from his ailments and concentrating on philosophical thought.

ADDED MEANING

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's beautiful translation of Dante has more meaning for us if we know that Longfellow's wife accidentally set her dress on fire, and the poet failed in his frenzied attempt to quench the flames, and after the died of burns Longfellow attempted to comfort his broken spirit and occupy his wounded mind by translating Dante's work from the Italian.

Such souls as these have used wintry weather as a time for doing inside chores. They have made the most of unwanted situations.

Wild weather provides the occasion for straightening up the inner man; for reordering and polishing one's thinking and style of life; for discovering spiritual and moral weaknesses and taking steps to repair them. A stormy time offers opportunity to improve our aim in life; to reassess and raise our purposes. Grief has shown many a man that he has taken for granted the presence and the love of those near him, and he has highly resolved never to do so again. Failure, disappointment, discouragement, sorrow and loneliness have proven to many how foolhardy it is for man to lean upon man's strength alone, when we can rely upon the dependable power and goodness of the Eternal God, our Father. Thus untimely becomes the soul's opportunity.

Do you suppose that God allows some wintry blasts of troubles to enter our days because only then will we give attention to the inside chores?

Dock Workers Plan to Strike Midnight Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — A new strike by 60,000 dock workers in ports from Maine to Texas at midnight Sunday appeared almost certain today in the wake of a contract rejection voted by longshoremen here.

The uneasy peace was shattered along the waterfronts of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts in a surprising development Friday night.

Thomas W. Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), said he was a "little disappointed" by the New York vote of 8,334 to 7,792 to reject a four-year contract recommended by union leaders. The margin of defeat was 562 votes.

Retraining for Unemployed Is Well Received in Area

Program Five, designed to retrain the unemployed and available through the National Employment Service, has been well received in Belleville.

In the fall of 1964 over 130 workers attended the evening classes held at Quinte Secondary School, as compared to 125 in 1963.

In 1963 a government survey of Program Five graduates across Canada proved that 80 percent obtained work in the line they had been trained for.

Courses are offered in clerical work, accounting, secretarial practices, electronics, welding, machine shop, drafting, other technical trades, and grades seven to 12.

The student may take as many upgrading courses — designed to raise his educational standing from grades seven to 12 — as are necessary to reach a certain goal or become eligible for a skill course, but can only select one skill course.

RECEIVE ALLOWANCES

While attending school the trainee receives a government allowance and all books and equipment are paid for.

To be eligible, the worker, male or female, must be over 18 years of age, registered as unemployed with the National Employment Service, and out of school for one year.

The trainee may be an individual who has no special skill and wishes to develop his abilities, or one whose skills are no longer required due to industrial changes. He may wish to take refresher courses on new methods, or enter entirely new lines of work.

Should he be a seasonal employee, he may wish to learn a skill that will keep him employed during the layoff period.

Training is given in regular academic or vocational schools and special training centres. If the student must leave his home town, one round trip fare is paid by the government.

Pilot

Lake, about 12 miles west of Grand Rapids.

He said Gibson tried to get back to where he could see the tree line, but his left wing hit the ground, and the plane rolled up in a ball.

BROKE IN

Greg Lamb one of Jack's brothers, said Gibson apparently walked and crawled up the side of a dike about 60 feet high to get to the spillway shack and broke a window in the door to get in.

He said he circled and saw a man "flying waving his hand." He landed and found Wark in the snow "covered with the canvas engine cover . . . it saved his life." Snider was from.

Ann Landers

Warped Personality Needs Plenty of Punishment

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter has been going with a boy for two years. He is 20. She is 23.

ANN LANDERS

When Celeste met Jack he was in the service. He spent weekends at our house whenever he could get a pass. After he was discharged he presented us with the fix. Grown Celeste to work in her car entertained himself all day (said he couldn't find a job), then picked her up at work.

Jack ate every meal at our home until I got sick of seeing his face and ordered him, in my daughter's presence, to pack his clothes and leave. He told Celeste she had to choose between him and her family. When she chose her family he slapped her face and left.

Three weeks later Celeste made a trip to Jack's home town to see him. Last week she went again. This morning she told us she is going to marry him. I know Celeste is using her savings to pay his debts and they will be flat broke.

Why would a lovely girl do this to herself? I need your help. — A VIRGINIA MOTHER.

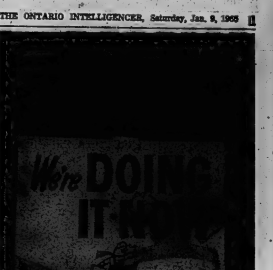
DEAR MOTHER — The lovely girl has a warped personality which demands punishment. Such sick chicks invariably select someone who will furnish them with plenty.

You can do nothing but stand by. After Jack knocks her block off a few times she may come home. If she does, don't say "I told you so." Urge her instead to get professional help or she'll probably marry another character who will treat her the same way.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I just read the letter in your column from the idiot who said "Money is king. It can buy you all the friends in the world. Without it you're a dead duck."

I wish there was some way I could make the kid understand how wrong he is. I was born with a platinum spoon in my mouth. When I was 15 I had my own car. (No driver's license, but that didn't make any difference to my parents. They were determined that I was going to be popular). Every morning there were five or six kids on the porch, waiting for a ride. I used to buy the gang sodas, cokes, malts, hamburgs, take them to the movies and ball games.



One day my English teacher took me aside and told me I was a bright boy but I had a few stupid ideas. She suggested I stop playing Santa Claus and see what happened. She was right. When I quit shelling out and hauling kids around it was like I developed some loathesome disease. Nobody came near me.

Today I have few friends, but they are devoted and genuine. I wouldn't trade one of them for 100 of the others. — SMARTER NOW.

DEAR NOW — A wise man once said, "The way to make friends is to treat people well. The way to lose friends is to treat them often."

Individuals who Knock themselves out entertaining, gifting, and catering to people feel inadequate. They are using the bankroll to solidify friendships — and it never works.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

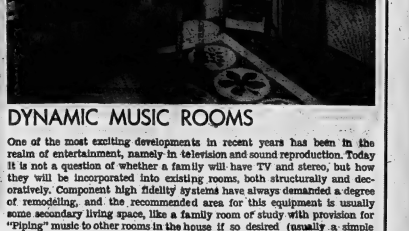
ROLLINS CAN SAVE YOU MONEY NOW . . .



Now, for the next few weeks Rollins Lumber can offer you substantial savings on one of those remodeling projects you've been thinking about.

Perhaps you can make good use of that wasted attic space (as illustrated below) or, afford yourself the pleasure of the increasingly popular dynamic "Music Room", Or similar remodeling projects.

ATTICS

Plywood in the attic performs a three-fold job of combining utility, attractiveness, and economy. For additional living and play space for children, that unused attic can be walled, ceilinged, and supplied with built-ins — all with versatile plywood. It's tough, too, and paints beautifully.

DYNAMIC MUSIC ROOMS

One of the most exciting developments in recent years has been in the realm of entertainment, namely in television and sound reproduction. Today it is not a question of whether a family will have TV and stereo, but how they will be incorporated into existing rooms, both structurally and decoratively. Equally high fidelity systems have always demanded a degree of remodeling, and the recommended area for this equipment is usually some secondary living space, like a family room or study with provision for "Piping" music to other rooms in the house if so desired (usually a simple matter for your electrician if he is brought in at the planning stage). The only basic requirement in planning a music room is that for preferred listening to stereo records or broadcasts, speakers should be placed six to eight feet apart at a height somewhat above the floor and with space to the listening area not obstructed. Other than that, it is merely a matter of housing the record player, tuners and amplifier — all compact units — for convenient manipulation. Today the trend is toward built-ins and Rollins Home Improvement Division have the ideas that will best suit your particular home.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

Geoffrion Sets the Pace

Pros Should Use Heads—Wear Helmets

NEW YORK (AP) — Professional hockey won't be using its head until it orders all players to wear helmets, insists Bernie Geoffrion.

Geoffrion, former National Hockey League player, is the coach of Quebec Aces, whose 15 players recently started to wear head protectors.

The Aces, currently leading the Eastern Division of the American League, are the first team in more than three decades to make helmets mandatory. Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens, Pit Martin of Detroit Red Wings and Rod Kelly and Billy Harris of Toronto Maple Leafs, all forwards, wear helmets regularly in the National League.

"Every guy on our team has been wearing a helmet for the last two weeks," Geoffrion said. "It is a very good thing and if I was starting over again as a player again I would be the first to wear one."

The Aces' move was prompted by head injuries to two defencemen, Jim Morrison and John Mannas. Morrison also had been seriously hurt, suffering a fractured skull that is expected to sideline him for two months.

'WELL WORTH IT'

"After these injuries a few of the other guys came to me and said they would like to start wearing helmets," Geoffrion said. "Then the whole lineup started playing with them and I was very happy. They take a while to get used to but they're well worth it.

"At first the fans were surprised when they saw me coming out on the ice with the helmet. But so far most of the comments I have heard are very favorable."

Geoffrion also pointed out that Doug Harvey, the 40-year-old Quebec defenceman and a longtime defending star with Montreal of the NHL, was among the first to wear a helmet in practice sessions.

Most of the hockey helmets on the market are made of plastic and cost between $5 and $6.

"I never had a bad head injury myself," said Geoffrion, "but I remember when Harvey opened to Lou Fontinato." The latter's career was cut short when he smashed ice - first into the boards at the Montreal Forum two years ago, suffering a broken leg.

"Louie's injury might have been less serious if he had been wearing a helmet," Geoffrion said in a telephone interview from Quebec City. "I also remember other head injuries that Paul Meger, Gordie Hows and Bronco Horvath had.

"The Maple Leafs were the last pro team to wear helmets on regular basis. They were afraid to do so in the early 1930s after a head injury almost caused the death of Ace Bailey, a Leaf forward.

OLD ONES TOO HEAVY

"In those days," recalled King Clancy, former Toronto defenceman and currently assistant general manager, "the helmets were the football-type, big and heavy. Most of the time when they'd get hit they'd turn down over my eyes and I couldn't see what was going on. Today they're much lighter and much improved. They are lighter and air gets through so you don't perspire as much.

Terry Reardon, general manager of Baltimore Clippers of the Eastern League, says those who endorse the head protectors. "I saw the Quebec team play recently and although it was a little strange seeing every player wearing a helmet, it is a good thing. I think it'll be made mandatory pretty soon."

"I'd like to have what he spends on pots and pans."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: You are doing 60 on a straight stretch of highway. A left front tire blows out. How would you react?

ANSWER: Don't step on the brakes. Get a firm grip on the steering wheel. Keep the wheels straight. Keep your foot on the gas, but ease up. When you have slowed down, step on the brakes lightly. Get well off the road to change the tire.

QUESTION: You're on the highway doing about 50. You come to a cross road. A car shoots out in front of you from the right. You don't have time to stop. How would you react?

QUESTION: You are on your side of a two-lane highway, going fast. A car comes at you, straddling the white line. You swerve to the right. Your right front wheel runs off the pavement on to the soft, low shoulder. How would you react?

ANSWER: Don't try to jump back on to the pavement. Ease up on the gas. Get a firm grip on the steering wheel. Straddle the edge of the road. Have just the brakes several times. When you're slowed down, get back on the road. Don't turn back too sharply; you might cross over to the other lane or swing sideways and roll over.

QUESTION: It's dusk. You're doing 45 on a road you've never driven before. Your headlights are on, you come to a sharp curve. How would you react?

ANSWER: Start to use the brakes several times. As you round the curve, step lightly on the gas. If your car starts to get out of control on the curve, keep your right foot lightly on the gas pedal, use your left foot on the brakes.

QUESTION: You're just about to pass a car on a two-lane highway. You suddenly come to an intersection. The car you were about to pass turns left in front of you. There aren't any other cars close to you. How would you react?

ANSWER: Stay in your lane. Step on the brakes. Ease up on the brakes a little. Swerve to the right, around the car.

COLD ENGINE STARTER TIPS

Cars With Automatic Chokes:

Flymouth, Chrysler, Dodge: Depress accelerator; hold for 10 seconds; let up slowly, and turn on ignition. To avoid killing the engine, don't pump accelerator when engine starts. If engine catches and dies, pump accelerator twice, and turn on ignition. Don't repeat more than three times, to avoid flooding.

Fontiac, Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac: Depress accelerator slowly; release slowly; remove foot, and turn on ignition. Don't accelerate. Let engine run on own momentum.

Ford, Mercury, Lincoln: Depress accelerator; let up slowly; move foot, and turn on ignition. Keep foot off accelerator until engine has run for 30 seconds.

Studebaker, Rambler: Depress accelerator and let it up again. Remove foot and turn on ignition. To avoid killing motor when it starts, don't pump accelerator.

For Cars With Hand Choke: Pull choke all the way out. Turn on ignition. When engine starts, push choke button in one-third to avoid flooding. After running a few minutes, adjust choke for smooth running.

HOW TO START:

If you are parked in deep snow, turn your steering wheel a few times to clear a space. Then make sure your front wheels are straight ahead. Now easy does it. Start very gently (in second, if you have manual gears, in "Drive" if you have automatic). Pull away slowly. Otherwise, your wheels will spin, burning the snow to ice. If you have to rock out, follow your car manual for method.

HOW TO GO:

Watch traffic and pull away only when smoothly. Never do anything suddenly. And go easy on the gas. As soon as traffic permits, let engine warm up. Gas and brakes to get the feel of the road surface conditions.

KEEP CALM:

A light touch is the secret. Light on the steering wheel, and light on the gas.

HILLS:

If your judgment tells you that you can't take the hill without downshifting, start in lower gear and keep it there. And keep moving. If you have to stop on the hill, chances are that you won't be able to get enough traction to move.

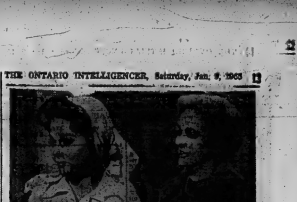
Player Badly Hurt

Monties, Austrians Brawl

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP-AP)—A brawl between the Olympic Montagnards and an Austrian team was brought to an abrupt end in the 11th minute Friday night — sending one player to hospital and leaving several others as well as a referee nursing minor injuries. Each side blamed the other for the fisticuffs.

The Innsbrucker Eislaufverein (IEV) Austrian team, which had a 1-0 lead, demanded that the Canadians be punished and the Montagnards protested the interruption of the match which was declared a draw.

"It's true we were a hard team, but that's how ice hockey is played in Canada," said Montagnard coach John Wilson.



Rudolf Weiser, IEV president, said he had asked the Austrian Ice Hockey Federation to inform the International Ice Hockey Union at Friday's doubleheader and request action against the Canadians.

PLAYER HURT

Andre Despard, 24, of Ottawa, playing with the Austrian team, was taken to hospital with a brain concussion and stomach injuries. He also lost several teeth.

As well as Despard, who used to play for Montagnards, there are two other Canadians on the Austrian team.

The IEV coach is Larry Regan, a native of North Bay, Ont., who turned professional from the Shawinigan Falls Cataracts with Ottawa of the Quebec Senior Hockey League in the 1951-52 season. He played with Toronto of the International Hockey League for some years after being called up late in his career. The other Canadian is Larry Baker.

AT THE BELLE — Bringing together two great award-winning actresses Susan Hayward and Bette Davis are the stars of "Where Love Has Gone", from "The Carpetbaggers" author. The Technicolor film is continuing Tonight, Monday and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. The supporting cast of stature and eminence includes Michael Connors and Joey Heatherton.

Aces Tie Stars 5-5

KINGSTON (CP) — Dick Cherry, a former Boston Bruins player, paced Kingston Aces to a 5-5 exhibition game tie with Syracuse, N.Y., Friday night.

Cherry, who retired to teach school here this year, joined Kingston of the Ottawa - St. Lawrence Senior League for the night to score two goals and two assists.

THE FABULOUS HONEY BEE.

Just a little bee, but naturalists tell us that this bee is an amazing creature. It organizes a city, building ten-thousand cells for honey, twelve-thousand cells for larvae, plus a private section for the mother queen. This little bee observes rising temperatures, so that when the wax is in danger of melting and the honey should be lost, it organizes the swarm into squads, puts sentinels at the entrances to the hive, glues the feet down, and then, with flying wings, creates a system of ventilation to cool the honey, that makes an electric fan look fawdry.

Why should we question the guidance of God? When our Creator could make a tiny bee to perform such wonders, is it unthinkable that He would make provision for the guidance of His masterpiece of all creation, man? Jesus said, "Ye shall receive power (ability) after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." When men learn to live in harmony with the indwelling Holy Spirit, they automatically find divine ability to cope with the varied demands an pressures of life.

Balcer, Friends Likely To Leave Conservatives

At Least 4 Quebec MP's Planning to Bolt Party

QUEBEC (CP)—At least four Quebec Progressive Conservatives were named Sunday as involved in a move to bolt the party and return to the House of Commons Feb. 16 as independents.

Remi Paul (PC — Berthier - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) said the four would make a statement in the Commons today to "explain why we feel like leaving the party."

He named the others as Leon Balcer, MP for Trois-Rivieres, Paul Martineau, member for Pontiac-Temiscamingue and Gerard Girouard, MP for Labelle.

They and six other Quebec Conservatives have been invited to a caucus in Montreal Thursday for discussions before a statement is released in Ottawa.

Mr. Paul said he didn't know if all the Quebec members would attend the Montreal meeting. It was understood that some were against the idea of leaving the party.

The dissidents in Ottawa party leader Diefenbaker called at a press conference he had "heard America" of the Quebec MPs plans to break away and become independents.

Mr. Balcer has threatened for several weeks now to bolt the party in a growing disagreement with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker over the flag debate and Canada-France relations in Parliament of the constitution-amending formula.

Mr. Paul came to the verge Sunday of saying he would definitely sit as an independent when the Commons session resumes next month. Asked about this in a telephone interview from his home at Louiseville, Que., he replied:

"Probably you are right."

Mr. Paul criticized both Conservative leadership and progress in explaining his position.

"You have to have a program. We have nothing now. You can't build a party this way.

"I believe in Canadian unity and I'm not going to a man who would destroy national unity."

Had he any man in mind in particular? No . . . "any man."

At an Ottawa press conference Sept. 21, Mr. Balcer, the party's Quebec leader, and Mr. Martineau said they were considering quitting Conservative members. The matter had been discussed and would be further discussed at the Quebec group before a final decision.

Economic Goals Are Set

OTTAWA (CP)—Strong, well-planned expansionary policies to send Canada booming efficiently into the 1970s were urged today in the first report by the new and authoritative Economic Council of Canada.

The 80,000-word report, Canada's first venture in advisory-board economic planning, said bluntly that the country has fallen well short of its economic potential in recent years.

—A 50-per-cent increase in total real output from 1963 to 1970, with a gain of more than 20 per cent in real per-capita income. This would mean an economic growth rate of 5.5 per cent a year, or 3.4 per cent in per-capita terms.

—Unemployment equal to three per cent of the labor force by 1970, a "feasible if realistic medium-term goal. It now is about five per cent. This would mean 1,250,000 new jobs in seven years. Thus, employment would have to increase faster as that period as it did in the 1956-63 period.

—Productivity gains of 2.4 per cent a year for each employed person between 1963 and 1970. This would compare with gains of one per cent a year from 1956 to 1963 and 2.6 per cent for this century.

The report is not binding on either government or industry. However, it is expected to set the tone of general economic policy in Canada for years to come. The council will update its outlook every year.

The council conceded that it has set extremely difficult, exacting tasks for everyone—not only governments — in striking these economic targets. It added:

"Failure to attain the basic economic objectives set forth in this report would bring heavy costs in terms of unemployment and lagging gains in living standards, or in terms of inflation or economic distortions.

"Success, on the other hand, would bring great benefits. The increase in total output to 1970 would be greater than the rate of the last seven years. The improvement in average personal income would be even larger."

FORCE TO EXPAND

Key to the council's report was the unprecedented growth in the Canadian labor force.

Hard force—all those working and seeking work—would grow faster in the 1960s in Canada than in any other industrially-advanced country in the Western world. It would grow 30-per-

END OF THE ROAD — The Southern Trans-Provincial highway across British Columbia is blocked by a massive slide which looms like a mountain across the road. The road was cut Saturday when some 15,000,000 cubic yards of mud, rocks and snow slid down from a mountain near Hope, B.C., 110 miles east of Vancouver. Four persons were believed to be dead after the slide appeared to be about 1½ miles long and up to 600 feet deep in places.

Ignore Warning Given By Trucker Who Fled

By DENNIS ORCHARD

HOPE, B.C. (CP)—Gravity's awesome tug took away a Vancouver businessman, put a face of rubble on a beautiful valley, and killed four persons.

Rescuers recovered two bodies Sunday. The other victims may be found today.

It will take many weeks to restore the highway for public use, and no one yet knows the route it must follow.

The site is 110 miles east of Vancouver and 300 miles across the Rocky Mountains from the 1903 slide that wiped out the village of Frank, Alta., killing 66 persons.

An entire side of the unnamed 4,000-foot mountain broke away the highway. An estimated 500 feet deep and between a half and 1¼ miles long, the crumbling wall plunged into the valley, carried 1,000 feet up the other side, and washed back down.

GAVE WARNING SIGNALS

It gave warning signals. Boulders and trees fell over the highway at about 4:45 a.m. Saturday, pinning a westbound camper trailer. Of the injury in three occupants, Bernie Lloyd Beck, 27, of Penticton, B.C., Mary Kalmakoff, 21, of Shoreacres, B.C., and Dennis George Arilth, 21, of Penticton.

Behind them, trucker Norman Stephanishin, 43, a father of eight children from Kamloops, B.C., stopped his oil tanker. Behind Stephanishin, Thomas Starchuk, 39, parked his truck-load of hay.

"But they were determined to get that car free," he said later in an interview.

"I could hear it rumbling up there, and I knew the rest was to come. . . . I don't think they quite realized what I was talking about. . . ."

TURNS BUS BACK

Stephanishin finally retreated to the Hope bus depot, driving 10 to 12 persons and persuaded the driver to turn around, they drove back to inform police.

Stephanishin stopped another bus and caught a ride back to the slide with a truck driver, concerned about the four persons he had left behind.

"We drove on a bit and we hit this slide. It was all rock and there was something odd—different," he said.

"Everything looked black I couldn't understand what had happened — and then I said:

New Strike Spreading In Viet Nam

From Reuters-AP

SAIGON (CP) — Students shouting anti-government slogans marched through the streets of Hue in central Viet Nam today at the outset of a 48-hour-general strike there.

The strike showed signs of spreading through five provinces bordering on Laos and Communist North Viet Nam. The strike-call, issued Sunday night, went out to five provinces.

Schools and most stores were closed in Hue and in Danang on the coast, site of a large U.S. air force base, where some 200 students staged an anti-government rally.

Meanwhile, the entire Vietnamese marine corps moved toward embattled Binh Gia to hold the area from the Communist Viet Cong.

Four marine corps battalions totalling 2,500 men began the transfer by helicopter and road to the Roman Catholic refugee settlement 60 miles east of Saigon where the government forces this month suffered their worst defeat of the war.

U.S. military sources said the marines plan to remain in the area indefinitely in an effort to pacify two largely unpopulated provinces that were free of Communist infiltration until two months ago.

"The Viet Cong have won another victory at Binh Gia. They are tying up the whole marine corps, and preventing it from doing useful work elsewhere," one American said.

However, other advisers said the marine deployment would prevent the Communists taking over the provinces to close "the ring of steel" around Saigon. Others said it would boost morale after the government defeat at Binh Gia.

Macdonald's Home Town Scene of Sumptuous Dinner

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada today honors the 150th birthday anniversary of its first father, Sir John A. Macdonald with a sumptuous banquet and commemorative announcements in the fields of education, architecture and superhighways.

The sumptuous dinner in Kingston, Macdonald's adoptive town and parliamentary constituency, is to be everything the old man himself would have enjoyed—good food, good wines, music, laughter, and political barbs.

Coupled with it were these announcements:

—The trans-provincial High-way 401 from the Quebec border to Windsor is expected to be named the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway on its completion, commemorating Macdonald and his chief Quebec lieutenant Sir Georges - Etienne Cartier.

—The face of the old city hall, in which Macdonald served as an alderman and which was built with the expectation it would house the Parliament of Canada—but never did—will be restored with $100,000 contributed by the federal government. Macdonald's home, Bellevue, also is being restored as a historic site.

—An exchange professorship is being arranged between Queen's University, Kingston, and the University of Glasgow, and biographies of Macdonald are to be offered as prizes to the top two students in the seven Ontario high school years.

The banquet is to be attended by Lieutenant - Governor Earl Rowe and Premier John Robarts of Ontario, Privy Council President Guy Favreau representing Prime Minister Pearson, and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

The main speaker of the evening is Dr. Donald Creighton, University of Toronto professor of history and author of a two-volume biography of Macdonald.

The Toronto guests will travel to Kingston by special train. The officials will be driven in a horse - drawn baroque which Macdonald used in the 1878 election campaign, an election he lost.

Wreaths will be placed at Macdonald's grave during the afternoon. He died in Ottawa in 1891 while prime minister.

Meetings in Kingston also, the fashion of Kingston's being the capital of Canada, will give away souvenirs at the banquet — purses in the clan Donald tartan and clasping brooches for the ladies, and silver coffee spoons bearing a replica of the Macdonald statue in Kingston for the men.

Guests will go to dinner with the skirl of the bagpipes. Rev. M. V. Putnam, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where Sir John A. worshipped, will say grace.

Other head table guests scheduled to speak include Provincial Secretary Bona Arsenault of Ontario, Mayor R. A. Fray of Kingston, and Georges Gauthier, associate commissioner of Centennial Commission which sparked the banquet idea and is contributing $2,500 to the event. The city is hosting it, and the Ontario government picking up the rest of the tab.

Macdonald was born in Glasgow on Jan. 11, 1815, and his parents emigrated to Canada when he was five. He studied law and established a practice in Kingston, and was elected an alderman in 1843.

The following year he was elected member for Kingston in Parliament and three years later appointed receiver-general in the cabinet, rapidly becoming the leader of Upper Canada Conservatives, working with the Lower Canada "bleus" of the day. Of his government, the late Stephen Leacock, an historian

Dief Plans to Stay On

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—A blossoming revolt among Quebec Conservatives hasn't shaken Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's intentions to remain at the party helm and to lead his party into the next election.

The 69-year-old Progressive Conservative leader, rested and in apparent good health after a Caribbean vacation, made it plain Sunday night he's staying on and that the next move is up to the Quebec insurgents.

About reports that he'll retire, he said:

"When an announcement is made in that connection, I will announce it and I have no intention of making such an announcement. I also have no intention of living up to the hopes of some people."

About the reported intention of Quebec Leader Leon Balcer, a former Diefenbaker cabinet minister, and three Quebec MPs to sit as independents:

"I make no observation on that. I have heard nothing of the kind. Speculative stories appear to be the order of the day."

DOESN'T KNOW OF IT

He avowed no knowledge of the reported intention of Mr. Balcer and the other nine Conservative MPs from Quebec to meet this week to discuss their position.

Would he invite Mr. Balcer to confer with him on the subject?

"I made my position very clear before I went away and I have nothing to add."

Before he and Mrs. Diefen-

Princess Margaret Ready to Risk Other Trips Despite Disturbances

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret, back with her children today after a turbulent Irish holiday, says she'll gladly risk more trips to visit her in-laws there.

"My husband's family are here," she told reporters at Dublin airport, "and we will always be coming back. We've had a wonderful time."

Thousands of Irish braved an icy Irish country to give the princess and her husband, Lord Snowdon, a warm send-off before had to close up through a cheering crowd for the couple.

With the princess safely off the ground from Dublin airport, the Irish police released 19 men taken into protective custody during her visit.

Ten others remained in Limerick jail awaiting trial on charges of unlawful assembly. Police said they are members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which staged a series of anti-British demonstrations during the week the princess was in Ireland.

IRA men felled trees across the royal route from Dublin to Lord Snowdon's mother. On Thursday the royal couple moved to Abbeyleix House to visit Snowdon's sister, and the IRA shortly ripped an electric transformer three miles away, plunging the neighborhood into darkness. The transformer explosion also broke windows at Abbeyleix House.

Elizabeth heard a bit of a boom," said the Princess Sunday and laughed.

Margaret and Snowdon travelled home on a regularly scheduled airliner but a compartment was partitioned off for them. Other passengers' baggage was checked minutely and security men screened all maintenance men who serviced the plane.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Little significant change is expected in the weather picture over Ontario today and Tuesday. Temperature variations will be much the same as for the last couple of days as a series of very weak disturbances move rapidly eastward through the Great Lakes area. Light snow or snowflurries will persist mainly in central Ontario but flurries will also occur over the southern regions.

Diefenbaker Thinks Liberals Intend to Hold Early Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — A tanned and apparently rested John Diefenbaker returned to the Canadian political climate Sunday night and quickly read the political thermometer as forecasting a general election.

On an early election, Mr. Diefenbaker said he thought the government is "in view of Finance Minister Gordon's announcement in Toronto, has an election in mind."

"Everything indicates that the desire to cut taxes, having increased them by $300,000,000 a year, would appear to be the preview to an election, especially coupled with the fact the government has done some things it would like to forget when it was easie. thing to have an election."

He wanted a "full and complete" investigation into the immigration department. There had been "sufficient smoke to indicate a most careful examination should be made, especially of applications for landed immigrant status."

He noted the current investigation by Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick, of immigration procedures but said this wasn't sufficient.

Ontario Govt. Honors Sir John A. By 4 Educational Field Projects

TORONTO (CP) — The 150th anniversary of the birth of Sir John A. Macdonald was commemorated by the Ontario government today with the announcement of four projects in the educational field related to Macdonald.

The province will establish a Sir John A. Macdonald fellowship in Canadian history with a total value of $6,000 spread over three years. Macdonald scholarship will be awarded in Ontario each year.

Education Minister William Davis, who made the announcement, said honors history graduates with high academic records will qualify for the award. The fellowship will assist graduate students at the masters and doctors degree level.

Glasgow, Scotland, the city of Sir John A. Macdonald's birth, and Kingston, his adoptive home in Canada, are to be linked via a one-year Sir John A. Macdonald exchange professorship between Glasgow University and Queen's University.

Mr. Davis said a special grant will be made to Queen's for this purpose. A similar exchange professorship will be set up between the University of Edinburgh and the University of Toronto in the name of Mackenzie Bowell.

The 150th anniversary of the birth of Brown in Edinburgh is also being celebrated in 1965. Macdonald a Father of Confederation, Brown founded the Toronto Globe in 1844. He died in 1880.

A third project announced by Mr. Davis is the presentation of a comprehensive collection of Canadiana, numbering several hundred volumes in French and English, to the Universities of Glasgow and Edinburgh.

Mr. Davis said a committee of university librarian . . . together together the books, plus a selection of microfilm of unpublished and rare material, for presentation later this year. The collection would cover all phases of Canadian life and development during the last century.

As the final project to mark the sesqui - centennial of sir John, the department of education will award a two-volume biography of Macdonald each year to a Grade 13 graduating student in each of Ontario's 400 high schools.

The biography is by Professor Donald A. Creighton of the University of Toronto.

Mr. Davis said the award will go to students who have shown special interest in history. Local principals and their teaching staffs will select the winners.

Invaders Are Trying To Get Out

By TONY ESCODA

KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—The remnants of the latest Indonesian invaders of Malaysia were believed trying to get back home as security forces continued to search for them on the beaches of the southern mainland.

Four fishing boats were reported stolen at the seaside town of Pontian Kechil in Johore State, near the spot where 96 men landed Friday. Eleven were still at large.

Thirteen of the invaders, including a major who led them, have been captured. Indonesian guerrillas have been landing on the Malaysian mainland in small groups since last August.

Britain's 300-man 2nd Parachute Battalion, flown in Singapore from England last week, started jungle training at ULU Tiram camp on the Malaysian mainland.

The Royal Navy and RAF in the area also have been reinforced in recent weeks.

MAKES APPEAL

Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman spoke a new appeal for U.S. help. He said in an interview:

"If the Americans want to help us, now is the time. It is useless to give help when it is already late."

Malaysia has rejected a U.S. defense loan because it considered the terms too harsh. They called for repayment of the loan over seven years at five-per-cent interest.

Indonesia's chief delegate to the United Nations, Dr. Palar, returned to Jakarta to report to his government. Antara, the Indonesian news agency, said he conferred Sunday night with Foreign Minister Subandrio and thought a settlement of the "attitude and policy" follower by Palar's delegation.

Indonesian President Sukarno announced last Thursday that his country was pulling out of the UN because Malaysia was seated on th UN Security Council. UN officials do not consider the withdrawal official because no written notice of withdrawal has been filed with them.

Surprised Resident Finds Missing $1,000 Bill in Wallet After Reading Ad

The missing $1,000 bill given out in change by mistake has been returned.

The sequence of events started early Friday afternoon when a customer came into the store and purchased four major appliances. The total was just under $1,000 and the customer pulled out a $1,000 bill and paid for them.

The bill went into the cashier's till until it was convenient to put it into the vault.

GIVEN IN CHANGE

But a short time later another customer came in, made a small purchase, and paid for it with a $20 bill. The cashier gave him his change and mistakenly handed out the $1,000 bill thinking it was a $10 bill.

Saturday a newspaper advertisement was read and spot announcements went out over the air as Chown's appealed for the return of the $1,000 bill.

GIVEN GENEROUS REWARD

Saturday evening Mr. T.F. Wrenshall family, 19 Montgomery Blvd. were eating supper when they heard the radio announcement.

Mr. Wrenshall remarked to his wife that he had been in the shopping plaza hardware store on Friday.

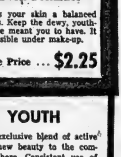
Mr. Wrenshall went to another room to check his wallet and called back that he had the bill.



They called Chown's immediately and were presented with a generous reward for their honesty.

Close to 300 persons, turned out Saturday evening for the official opening of the new Rawdon township municipal garage and firehall.

Remove Embryo Of Twin Sister From Woman

MOSCOW (CP)—A 55-year-old Russian woman is recovering about the Tara operation at the Yaroslavl medical institute after the removal of an embryo from her twin sister — from her chest cavity.

The newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda, reported the 90-minute operation took place towards the end of 1964 after the woman had suffered severe pain in the last year. An x-ray revealed the embryo.

Astounded doctors saw the embryo, which had lodged within her throughout her life, near the heart.

The operation was performed by Dr. Prov Mikhailov, a specialist in the removal of babies from wax injured soldiers.

Natalya K., was reported recovering and soon scheduled to leave hospital.

Mayor Givens Outlines Plans For Opening

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's new city hall will be opened to the sound of gunfire, symphony music and the thud of hockey players bodychecking each other, Mayor Philip Givens gets his way.

Mayor Givens said in an interview Sunday morning—while skating with Federal Trade Minister Sharp and his wife on an open-air rink in front of the new city hall—that plans are still at the talking stage.

"But what I have in mind is a week of special presentations showcasing a different facet of the city's life each night."

For the opening itself, the mayor said he would like skyrockets fired from the towers of the new building and a few do joke—a salute in which each member of a firing party fires a spill second later than the man next to him —by members of the Queen's Own Rifles.

Immediately in the curved towers of the city hall, Mayor Givens said what he has in mind is the city fathers party standing in a line on top of the towers.

HAS TWO TOWERS

The multi - million - dollar building has two concave towers facing each other, 27 stories high and the other 30 stories.

The outer shell of the building has been completed and workmen are busy now putting the finishing touches to the interior.

"We've also been talking about the possibility of the federal government issuing a special commemorative stamp to mark the opening," Mayor Givens said. "It isn't every day Toronto opens a city hall."

The mayor said the opening will be held in September but the date has not been decided.

"I'm hopi'g it will be cold enough to get ice here at the new city hall rink so we could have a hockey game between Toronto Maple Leafs and Toronto Argonauts," he added.

Khanh Wins Diplomatic Victory Over States and Emerges as Strong Man

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the Vietnamese armed forces, won a diplomatic victory over the United States Saturday and emerged once again as the strong man of South Viet Nam.

A communique signed jointly by Khanh, chief of state Phan Khac Suu and Premier Tran Van Huong reported to turn all power over to the civilian government—a point for which the United States had pressed.

It also provided for the release of all political prisoners—about 14, counting four members of the defunct high national council—held in the military purge of Dec. 30. This had been another American demand.

But the United States initially had called for two other important points.

The embassy here wanted the generals to back-track on the dissolution of the high national council, South Viet Nam's provisional legislature.

More important, the United States wanted guarantees that the military would not step in again, overturning more successive civilian governments.

Neither of these conditions was met in the communique.

'MUCH TO BE DESIRED'

An embassy spokesman grumbled that the communique left much to be desired but seemed to be the basis for a Vietnamese government with which the United States could deal. The diplomatic language this meant the United States would lift its implied threat of a few more weeks to cut aid to Viet Nam.

The communique did not specifically reassert civilian authority over the armed forces but merely said that the Aug. 27 communique by Khanh which first turned power over to the civilian government was still in effect.

Two days after Khanh purged, he issued another order of the day saying his junta's actions were "proof of the determined forces of good faith: they have respected their Aug. 27 pledge to turn power over to a civilian government."

In the same order of the day, Khanh in effect told the Americans that if they didn't like what he had done they could pull out. Yet Viet Cong made its own way.

The further reference Saturday to the Aug. 27 communique obviously was not what the Americans had had in mind. Clearly was the high national council permanently dissolved, but Khanh and his council were left with no legal basis to rule the nation other than with American agreement.

Both Huong and Suu were appointed to their posts by the high council. The council, not Khanh dissolved, and their sole authority for governing resulted from the high national council.

MUST MAKE NEW START

Viet Nam faces a new phase of political crisis as an entire start is made to crank up some kind of government. There is nothing to be gained from leaving for seats on the new legislature, whatever form it takes, remaining in the country and even rioting of the past year.

On paper, the crisis was over. In reality, the crisis had merely gone from one stage to another.

Quietly Some of Strength Taken From Cigarette Mart

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW YORK (AP)—The cigarette smoker has had a year to think it over. Mostly, he is still thinking.

But quietly, some of the strength has been sapped from the U.S. cigarette market.

Many smokers still smoke—but with the conviction that what they are doing is wrong and risky.

It has been a year and a day since the U.S. surgeon-general's select committee of scientists published its findings on the effects of life, prime causes of cancer, and keys to a death chest of diseases.

In 1964, U.S. smokers lit up some 15,000,000,000 fewer cigarettes than they did in 1963—much of the decrease coming in the seven days after the surgeon-general's report.

There has been a shift in stock earnings among major cigarette firms, perhaps dictated by worried smokers reaching for new charcoal filter brands.

ORDERED WARNINGS

The federal trade commission ordered that effective Jan. 1965, cigarette advertisements and packages must carry danger labels, warning that cigarettes are hazardous to health. But it postponed its deadline to next July 1 after congressmen asked for a delay.

There were new attempts at public education. The cigarette companies pooled their own advertising code bureau in New York with the stated duty of seeing that cigarette ads do not appeal to youngsters. Violators may be fined up to $100,000.

Generally most agree that adults should have the choice to smoke or not to smoke, but some below the age of consent should be protected from undue advertising influences.

At year's end the U.S. Tobacco Institute, representing major firms, saw the situation as unchanged, admitted that the industry faced another challenging year. There is still a need for more research, the institute said, stating that six major tobacco firms have given $15,000,000 to the American Medical Association for a research program.

Despite everything, United States smokers still spent some $7,000,000,000 on cigarettes in 1964—less than $200,000,000 short of the 1963 figure.

They smoked some 494,000,000,000 cigarettes in 1964—some 320 packs a year for every smoker.

Two Youths Held on Open Murder Charge

TORONTO (CP)—Two youths were arrested Saturday night and held on an open murder charge after the body of a 34-year-old man was found in a suburban North York area.

The body of Aiden Francis MacDonald of Toronto was found lodged beside a log in Black Creek by two teen-aged boys. An autopsy showed death was due to drowning.

Robert Michael Black and William Alexander Leitch, both 18 and both of Toronto, are being held by police. They will appear in magistrate's court today.

The degree of the charge — capital or non-capital — will be decided after consultation with a Crown attorney, police said.

Detectives identified the man aid from a paper in a discarded wallet found after a search of the creek's banks. From a matchbox, they traced him to a downtown hotel where he had been seen drinking Friday night with two other men.

Police traced his movements to the west end, where they said he was approached near an apartment not far from the creek.

Black was arrested at his home and Leitch was picked up on a street near his home.

Around the Tee

A rink skipped by Murray Johnson will fight it out with a rink headed by Mac White for the right to represent the Quinte Curling Club in the British Consols which will be played in Trenton on January 19th.

Last evening Murray Johnson assured himself a place in the final games with a 10-8 win over Ben Corke and is undefeated in the playdowns. Mac White has lost one game and will have to beat Johnson twice in succession to cop the honors.

For the first six ends in the game last night the rinks traded ends till the sixth when Johnson scored a three but Corke came back with a two in the eighth. Johnson scored another three in the ninth and stole one in the tenth and that was the contest as Corke conceded.

The date of the next game has not been decided but will be played when ice time is available. A large-sized gallery watched the game.

The Bay of Quinte bonspiel started out three years ago with a basic entry of 64 rinks but so popular has the event become in the district and outside that this year more entries are being accepted and at the present time there are 66 rinks entered and it is expected 70 rinks will be in play when the final entry list is closed. This was disclosed at a meeting of the general committee held at Trenton on Wednesday night. Those present from the Quinte Club were Ken Pinder, chairman, Ron Benn, Charlie Cowley and Claude D. Tice. The final meeting, before the spiel scheduled for January 27-31, will be on January 20th. The Corby and Elliott trophies will be played for at the Quinte Club on Saturday, January 30th, the LaPaim trophy at the RCAF Station club on the same evening, the O'Keefe at Trenton club at the same time and the rest of the contests at the Trenton club on Sunday night. The Pepsi-Cola, Quinte Transport, the Bata Shoe and the B.A. Quinte Shield will be played for at this time.

There will be a banquet for the curlers on Thursday night with entertainment and on Sunday evening the women will be invited to join their husbands with no extra charge this year. The formal opening of the spiel will be held at the Quinte Curling Club on Wednesday night and it is possible if the entry is large enough there will be games played at the other two rinks. It all adds up to a top spiel and a most enjoyable social week for the district curlers.

The Quinte Curling Club is locking the door against the women's section of the club, the school boys and junior curlers on Saturday next. It is the occasion of the Sportsmen's Bonspiel, and it is a day when the men curlers have the club all to themselves. The festivities start on Friday night when three draws at five, seven and nine o'clock will be played. Snacks will be provided, including hamburgers, and other delicacies all prepared by the men folk.

On Saturday a full course turkey dinner will be served to which several guests have been invited. In the meantime the boys will be playing for the Steve Flintoff trophy, the spiel having been sponsored by this member of the club. It is the highlight event of the season and the committee is making every effort to make this one the best ever.

BEER CASES SPILLED over Highway 401 shoulder two miles east of Belleville today when brewery-tractor trailer careened across median, hit snowplow and jackknifed. Driver Fred Edmonds, Don Mills, was taken to hospital complaining of possible hip injuries. Damage was estimated in thousands.

The first spiel for the new Carling trophy was held at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday with ten rinks competing, five from the district and five as unqualified success due to the splendid work of Goldie Livingston and his energetic committee with Archie Roe as drawmaster and umpire. Part of the success was also due to the splendid darks provided by the Women's Section of the club.

A rink of Bill Henderson, Al McCullam, Ron Benn with Mac White at the helm breezed through the three games without a loss and all games by big scores to capture the trophy and accompanying prizes presented by Al Hardy of the company. In second place with three wins was a rink of Bruce Parliament, Ray Swansburg, Doug Ashley with Dr. F. J. McCorquodale directing the traffic.

Hazen Stairs and a rink of Bill Fraser, Stan Hart and Ernie Sutton as vice won the two-game high score and incidentally the only dropped their losing game by a couple of shots, while a rink of F. Dan C. Cox, Belleville; C. McCorquodale, Belleville; Pat Houston, Belleville; E. Wilkinson, Belleville; Dr. Campbell, Stirling; Jamieson, Belleville; Dr. Sinclair, Toronto; J. Wamboldt, Marmora; M. Nursing Homes Criticized Ontario's nursing homes are under fire. At the same time they face new regulations which will probably both assist and bedevil them.

Hon. Louis Cecile, Ontario Minister of Welfare has announced that the province will pay an increased share of the cost of providing nursing care for welfare cases. But the homes will also come under a new set of regulations. Municipalities which wish to receive grants for the care of welfare patients must embody these regulations in their by-laws governing nursing homes.

Meanwhile tighter licencing laws and more severe penalties for infringment are urged by Burrell D. Morris of the Associated Nursing Homes of Ontario.

He charges that many nursing homes pad bills, falsify payroll lists and feed scraps from other patients' plates to blind people.

Insofar as these charges are true, stern action by the authorities is needed.

Still, we suspect there is another side to the picture. Many people in nursing homes have little money. Some of them are proud and want to pay their own bills, but if they are to do so then charges must be small. The operators of homes have to make a living. If the remuneration they receive is small, then they have to parsimonious. Mr. Morris says some homes "make profits up to 40 per cent." This sounds fantastic. But, perhaps, the operator of a small nursing home, with little or no outside help, might make 40 per cent profit, above out-of-pocket expenses, and still receive no more than enough to pay himself or herself a moderate wage.

Uniform licensing requirements are almost certain to increase the average cost of operating nursing homes. This means that charges to patients will have to be increased. We do not see how this can be avoided. When regulations were lax, this enabled many people to provide service at a low cost. Some unscrupulous people, however, were bound to take advantage of this state of affairs. Tightening regulations can hardly be avoided.

This does raise the question, though, whether the provision for nursing care is a proper function for private enterprise. Private hospitals were once common. We have long since come to depend mainly on public hospitals. Is not the situation with respect to nursing homes becoming similar? Once it becomes necessary for governments to regulate so strictly any service to the public that there remains little room for private decisions, it is often about to turn the whole operation over to a publicly-controlled body.

The Unpredictable Malays

The daring bombing of a Liberian vessel in Singapore Harbor illustrates the type of war which might reasonably be expected to develop in the dispute between Indonesia and Malaysia.

This raid, by two daring men in a boat, is typical of guerrilla tactics, such as have been made familiar to us in the West by the activities of the Viet Cong in South Viet-Nam.

The surprising thing, though, is there is no certainty that the Indonesian war, if it spreads, will follow this pattern.

True, the Indonesians have guerrillas active in Malaysian territory, not only on the island of Borneo but also on the Malay Peninsula, part of the continental mainland. However, there has as yet been no suggestion these guerrillas have received any co-operation from the Indonesian Navy.

If this is found it is amazing, because there are both ideological and racial ties between the invaders and the invaded.

Malaysia is the product of an uneasy truce between the native Malays and Chinese immigrants, many of the latter both influential and wealthy. The Malays are of the same racial stock as the people inhabiting many of the myriad islands which make up Indonesia.

Add to this the fact that for years after the conclusion of the Second Great War the British fought a see-saw war against communist guerrillas and one would suppose one had all the ingredients for the creation of a Malaysian "fifth column." So far, though, it does not seem to have developed.

Lovers of literature may find themselves turning to the pages of Joseph Conrad in search for an explanation of the reaction of these proud, indolent, loyal, treacherous, resourceful and devious people.

It is people, almost more than the journey, that makes a travel book. And included amongst the people must be the author himself —for it is the author's approach, his mood, his personality that sets the stamp on the book.—Walter Hammond Innes.

Soap and Water Answer To Most Odor Problems

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a nurse and I have excessive body odors over which I have no control.

I bathe once and sometimes twice a day. We are in comfortable circumstances and I have adequate changes of clothing and sufficient dry cleaning. I have used medicated soaps and deodorants of all kinds without success.

The odor is not perspiration but a sort of stale, musky one which permeates all my clothing after a few wearings, even my hair.

Is there a physical reason for this? — E. W.

Soap and water is the answer to this problem in most cases, but in someone who takes the pains that you do, and the trouble persists, it is time to look for some of the less common answers.

French perspiration from the sweat glands is odorless. But there is another type of gland (called the apocrine) which generates a milky, odorous fluid. Their degree of activity varies quite markedly in some individuals.

There have been cases in which these glands have located chiefly in the armpits, have been removed. It is a relatively simple procedure, but should be discussed with a dermatologist or plastic surgeon.

Naturally taking such action should not be done unless the trouble has been reliably traced to these glands.

Another source of odor is from micro-organisms which flourish on the skin and in the moisture of perspiration. The odor is from these multiplying organisms, not from the perspiration. Where one takes as much trouble as you do with hygiene, this is not a likely cause, however.

Finally, a musty odor can be due to a skin disorder called tinea versicolor, a common and mild infection of the skin. To rule this out (or to correct it if it is present), consult a dermatologist. He may even find some other skin condition of which you are unaware.

G. S.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband tells me I have been reading too much Rachel Carson lately but we have regularly sprayed fruit trees in our garden with a pesticide containing malathion. We have two pet chickens that were permitted to roam the garden. They eat bugs, roots and sometimes grass around the trees. Is it possible for the spray to be washed off the trees onto things consumed by the birds, and passed on into the eggs?

If I am being too cautious, I should appreciate knowing if at the eggs are piling up and so is my husband's temper. — N. G. S.

She got listeners by overstating the case. Perhaps she was justified in that sense. But she also frightened a lot of people who thought that "what might happen" is the same as "what is happening." Your chickens are evidently healthy, so eat the eggs. Wash fruit from your trees — but that's routine anyway. Stop worrying about the eggs, and get your husband's temper back to normal.

Dear Dr. Molner: When a man has three dark hair spots in his head but is otherwise blood, could he have had two fathers? This is an important question for me. — M. L. S.

No. It is physiologically impossible. Once an ovum has been fertilized it rejects any further sperm. True, it can develop twins, but that is a different matter. A seed planted in the ground can sprout only once — even though some plants may have more than one stalk. There is your answer. You can stop worrying now.

Act Canadian Is His Advice

St. Catharines Standard

Learning to be a Canadian is a lifelong task, but one filled with interest and delight, according to Mitchell Sharp, minister of trade and commerce, in a recent address before the Canadian Club of Montreal. It is an address in which Mr. Sharp ventured the opinion that the citizens of no other country spend so much time in self-examination. We love introspection, he stated, we delight in parading our self-doubts and our confusion not only before ourselves but before the world.

One reason for this self-consciousness, he suggested, is that we are trying to explain ourselves by standards drawn from outside. We are trying to explain why we are not like Americans, or Englishmen, or Frenchmen because what we should do is to be ourselves, for it is our difference from other which make us what we are.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 11th, 1945

After upsetting a tanker and throwing out the occupants, a horse was killed at the intersection of Wallbridge and the Victoria Avenue on Sunday afternoon when it ran away and crashed into an automobile. It is believed that the animal broke its neck on the pavement after running at top speed into the side of the moving vehicle. The horse and buggy were damaged by two ladies accompanied by a small boy, to enjoy a brisk afternoon's ride. At the corner of William and Forin Streets the cutter upset when it struck a deep snowbank. The three occupants were thrown out without sustaining injuries.

The Men's Club in connection with John Street United Church recently elected the following officers: pres. Douglas Reeves. vice-pres. Wilbert Christie; sec. treas. Hedley James.

Miss Bessie Salkeld has returned home from Kingston, where she spent the holidays with friends.

At a recent meeting of the Catholic Women's League, held in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy, the business part of the meeting was followed by a play entitled "Lost Christmas," which was well presented by the pupils of the junior fourth class.

At a recent meeting of the members of the Women's Missionary Society, John Street United Church, the following officers were elected: Pres. Mrs. Harry Hill; vice-pres. Mrs. Robert Hall, Mrs. Archibald Mrs. Denike; treas. Mrs. Fyne; sec. Mrs. Chambers; pianist, Mrs. M. Hill.

Jan. 11th, 1925

The members of the Belleville Radio Club held a night meeting at the Board of Trade of Commerce last night, commencing at eleven o'clock. Carl Redd of the Radio Shop presided over the meeting a five-tube Neutrodyne receiving set and gave many interesting and instructive talk on Neutrodyne sets. He tuned in stations loudly and clearly and although it was late one thing poorly, expensively, and at his own dilatory convenience.

This is progress, I suppose. At least, we can think that the socialization has given us the glories of modern living, that the precise division of labor permits society to reach an ever-increasing level of abundance.

An ever-increasing level of frustration, too. I spent the holidays some years ago with the friends who had just moved from Manhattan to a sprawling house in Connecticut, where the children "had room to grow up in." The children grew up fine, but the parents rapidly became depleted, in substance and in spirit.

They required, at regular intervals, the services of five different plumbers, none of whom would have anything to do with the other. There was a plumber for the water pump, for the chlorinator, for the septic tank, and for the sump pump. There was also the regular plumber, who repaired only the ordinary plumbing fixtures, more or less.

In addition, they were (and are) continually beholden to the hours and schedules of the roof and ceiling man, the electric, wiring man, the man who cleans the burner, the man who cleans the chimney, the gardener, the pruner, the plowman and the asslins man.

None of these essential functions can be performed by any but an accredited specialist in the field: the man who handles the sump pump performs a delicate operation on one of the water pumps and the septic tank, while the pruner will not prune in winter, nor will the man who cleans the burner clean the chimney.

Last summer, one of my boys accidentally broke a small pane in a window off the front porch. The handy man was sick, and so I made a few calls. But the carpenter couldn't do it, the electrician had no time for such a small job, and the spray kept leaking through the cardboard I had taped to the window until the handy man recovered a week later.

Now he is gone for good, or for bad. Like the whooping crane, he is fast disappearing from the national scene; a generation from now, perhaps, men may be on exhibit, stuffed, in the museums. "Homo handiensis," the identifying card will inform the children, "once prevalent in the country, now extinct, a companion piece to the Auk and the Dodo. Last seen puttying a window in Northern Wisconsin, circa 1964."

How to Train Parents

New York Times

Instructions for teen-agers:

1. Always leave the shoes in the centre of the livingroom floor where the parents will be certain to notice them. Let the parents call you three times to come pick up the shoes before you hear them. Then say, "were you calling me?"

2. After a few months the parents will pick up the shoes themselves, reasoning that this is easier than shouting your name four times. Once the parent is conditioned to picking up the shoes without making a scene, he will naturally take on other housekeeping chores connected with your presence and cease harassing you to pick up skirts left under your bed, soda pop bottles left in the shower stall, bicycle chains left on the refrigerator, etc.

3. Use the record player at all times while in the house. Acquire no more than six records and play them at peak volume, starting immediately after entering the house and leaving the shoes in the living room.

In a short while the parents will stop saying, "No!" when you ask permission to go out. In dealing with unusually obdurate parents, have three or four friends drop by and bring their records just before the hour when the parents normally sit down to watch Lawrence Welk or to read "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

3. Arrange to have 15 or 20 friends telephone you at five-minute intervals at all times

Strictly Personal
Handy Man Is Vanishing Species

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The handy man who for many years has taken care of a half-dozen houses in the country, including ours, up and quit this winter. He bought a farm and will have no more time for old jobs and caretaking.

There aren't any others to be found around in this era of specialization. The old - fashioned handy man is a vanishing species; the fellow who did everything pretty well has been replaced by the expert who does one thing poorly, expensively, and at his own dilatory convenience.

This is progress, I suppose. At least, we can think that the specialization has given us the glories of modern living, that the precise division of labor permits society to reach an ever-increasing level of abundance.

An ever-increasing level of frustration, too. I spent the holidays some years ago with the friends who had just moved from Manhattan to a sprawling house in Connecticut, where the children "had room to grow up in." while you are out of the house. The parents will eventually tire of answering the phone and come to realize that the phone belongs to you. Thereafter they will be apologetic about asking to use the phone when you are using it to play your record collection to your best friend.

4. When ordered to bathe, always take the best towels. Do not bathe too thoroughly, but merely wet the body enough to produce muddy rivulets in its creases. Use the best towels to remove the streaks. Then splash water over the bathroom floor and mop it with the towels. Throw the towels under your bed. In due time, the parents will become less insistent about forcing you to bathe when you would prefer to listen to the top forty.

5. Never hide the cigarettes in the kind of places parents use to hide things. You will know from experience what places these are.

6. When using the parents' car, never practice a racing getaway until you are two blocks from the house.

7. After using a parent's article of hosiery, remove it and leave it in the dog's or the cat's favorite sleeping place. This will ensure you a fashionable wardrobe turnover to keep you in the style forefront of your group.

8. Invent another set of parents. Attribute them to Joe or Angela. When the parents are intolerable, tell them things such as, "Angela's parents are letting her stay out until midnight," and "Gosh, Joe's parents don't care if he has a beer once in a while."

In all cases, the invented set of parents must be shown to have the teen-age spirit. At dinner, for example, it is effective to say, "Gee, Angela's parents listen to the Beatles all day long!" Being compared with Angela's parents will eventually make other parents feel very old and broken in spirit.

In this condition, it is a small task to reduce them to complete surrender.

Lawyer MP's Face Problem

Toronto Star

Paul Martin's connection with the Immigration Appeal Board case raises a question of proper conduct not only for him, but for all lawyers in Parliament.

The external affairs minister admits that he wrote a legal opinion contained in 1960 in Confrio (Nono) Misaudo's fight to avoid deportation to Italy. Misaudo was paid a normal fee (reportedly $500).

At the time Mr. Martin was a private MP and a practising lawyer. He was unaware of Misaudo's record of two murder convictions, armed robbery and "double life sentence" in Italy, where the man is still, as a serious labor law violation in the United States, Mr. Martin repudiated his association with the case in September, 1963, when Maclean's magazine article identifying Misaudo as a Mafia operative.

What Mr. Martin did here was not at all unusual, even though it is unlikely that he had such embarrassingly unusual client. It is routine for Members of Parliament and Senators to make representations to the Immigration Department on behalf of constituent, and if they are lawyers they may charge fees for legal advice or for arguing cases before the Immigration Appeal Board.

What's dubious about it is the fact that the client's case will be in purchasing political influence as well as legal learning. Millions of us in the Windsor lawyer who pressed his case on Mr. Martin were certainly aware that he was an eminent politician who had been a cabinet minister and could be a big help if the Liberal party regained power. They may have thought that the same association with an application would carry special weight with the Immigration Department.

A lawyer-MP who accepts a fee in that situation may have to pursue it and may be charged no more than is due his legal services, but he may not have been hired for his real or imagined influence with civil servants or as a result of complete relationship to him.

This is unhealthy: it can create at least the appearance of a conflict between the MP's public duty and his private financial interest.

MPs are now paid $18,000 a year and Senators $15,000. It shouldn't be necessary for the lawyers among them to represent their clients before the government or government agencies, and it may lead to improprieties.

Loses Suit Over TV Show

Detroit Free Press

In France, a lawyer named Francois Bousgarites sued the government television network because, he said, one of its broadcasts had thrown him into a state of "nervous trauma." He had seen the broadcast while dining in a cafe.

The complaint, lacking some fun with history, showed Napoleon and his marshals looking for Waterloo in full uniform except for cycling tights—whichever—because it was cold since they were going to Water-loo on bicycles.

A Toulouse court threw out M. Bousgarites' suit on the ground that since he was neither a relative of the plaintiff nor the owner of the cafe's television set he had no justifiable interest—whether or not his patriotism was offended.

Before anybody gets this down as highly Gallic drollery, he might review the grounds on which good men and true have taken Aux and the Dodo. Last seen puttying a window in Northern Wisconsin, circa 1964."

BCI's Winter Wonderland Huge Success

Saturday, January 9th, dawned crisp and clear much to everyone's relief. The day began at ten with a volleyball game between the Senior Boys and Girls. The girls were just too much for the boys that early in the morning and defeated them easily.

At eleven the teachers challenged the students to broomball games and after much clashing and bashing came out on top.

Throughout the morning classes were working diligently to remodel their rain-damaged sculptures.

There was much excitement and laughter at the main door when the girls and lady teachers demonstrated their skill with hammer and nail for the coveted golden spikes. The most accurate for the Senior Girls were Vitha Connor, Diane Ford and Carry Premsler. Janice Hogan, Janet Post and Margaret Sinclair took the Junior award with Miss Murphy and Miss Trenthick coming out ahead for the teachers.

A committee of three, Mayor Ellis, Mr. Wishart and Mr. Orr awarded the prizes for the snow sculptures. First prize went to the Dinosaur made by 9B and 9E, second to the tug-boat by 13A and third to 12B for a Statue of John Lewis.

Throughout the day an Arts and Crafts Display was on view in the gymns. The handwork of both teachers and students could be seen.

MAIN FEATURE

The Boys' and Men Teachers' baking contest was a main feature. Participation was good and, prizes were awarded to Howard Pulver, Angus Sinclair and John Mueller—Seniors, Andrew Clark, Bob Sterling and Eric Lane—Junior, with Mr. Shaver and Mr. Bates winning in the Teachers' Division. The cakes were auctioned off to the excited audience by Bob Ridley and Brian Burley.

The afternoon was completed by skating on the bay. The ice was good and despite frequent tumbles everyone enjoyed themselves.

The day came to a perfect end with a dance in the school gymnasium. The decorations added that special atmosphere and the band really outdid themselves.

Winter Wonderland, despite the weatherman's attempt to dampen our spirits, was a real success. Congratulations to the students who worked so hard to make this day the success it was.

Trains Collide, 5 Die in Flames

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — A Baltimore and Ohio freight train and an Erie-Lackawanna freight collided head-on early today at a track crossover in Sterling, killing five crew members in a mass of flames.

The fuel tanks on the diesel engines of both trains exploded, igniting fuel oil. Firemen from 10 departments battled 150-foot-high flames for more than an hour before bringing them under control.

Quebec Legion Accepts New Canadian Flag

MONTREAL (CP)—Enthusiastic applause greeted Canada's new maple leaf flag Saturday night when it was paraded before a meeting of a west-end branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Members of the Remembrance Branch (Quebec No. 75) said theirs was the first branch to officially accept the new flag. Many legion members across Canada had been outspoken in favor of retaining the Red Ensign.

The Maple Leaf flag was paraded into the hall by a color party, preceded by two Black Watch pipers and a drummer. It was presented to new president, Frank Caldwell, by outgoing president M. C. (Eddy) O'Toole at the annual ceremony for the installation of officers.

Mr. O'Toole asked the 240 members attending to give the flag "respect and reverence." He said its acceptance places the Remembrance Branch "in the forefront of legion affairs."

Separate Coin Collections Taken in City, Deseronto

Two separate coin collections with a total value of up to $1,500 have been stolen within hours at Belleville and Deseronto.

Police are pondering the possibility of a link between both thefts.

It may be significant that only the collections were taken while other valuable items, including ready cash, were left undisturbed.

Scene of the first break-in was the Hobby Shop on Belleville's Front Street, where collections estimated nearly $1,000 in value, were taken from a showcase, early Saturday.

Police said nothing else was taken from the store. A sum of ready cash was ignored by the thief.

At Deseronto some time later, easily-disposable items such as transistor radios, a rifle and shotgun were overlooked when a break-in was staged at the home of Skyler Smith.

Missing is a collection of U.S., European and Canadian coins, collected by Mr. Smith since World War I and valued by him at about $500.

However, there was one slight difference to the Belleville break-in.

Also missing from the Smith home were a package of candles and a bottle of imported port wine.

Polly Walker Wails "Where's the Whiskey?"

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You may know something about love but you don't know anything about parrots. When you said in your column recently that parrots imitate sounds and have no idea what they are saying, you revealed your ignorance.

Our parrot is a Panama Redhead. She is about 45 years old. We call her Polly Walker. Polly came to the U.S.A. with the last boat load of soldiers in 1918, through the Panama Canal. She belonged to our neighbors. When they moved out of town they gave Polly to us and she is like a member of the family.

ANN LANDERS

Four years after the neighbors left Polly came with us they came back to visit. When Polly saw them walk through the door she said, "Hello, Bobbie. Where's the whiskey?"

We had a party that night for many years and Polly knew which party got how many rings. She'd shriek, "Get it, Mrs. Harrison" or "Get it, Mother Platt."

Polly calls all our children by name and she is especially amused by my sister-in-law. When my sister-in-law comes over Polly laughs so loudly I have to cover her cage with a sheet so she'll shut up.

Just to let you know I am not imagining this, Ann, I am enclosing two of Polly's feathers. Aren't they beautiful? — MRS. E.W.

DEAR MRS. E.W. — Thanks for a delightful letter and for those two beautiful feathers. I am wearing them in my hair today and this office is up for grabs.

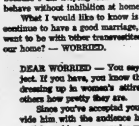
DEAR ANN LANDERS — We've been married 18 months and expect our first baby soon. I am writing about my husband who is a transvestite, which means he enjoys dressing in women's clothes, using make-up, a wig, jewelry and other feminine frills.

He does this only when we are alone and swears nobody knows about it but me.

My husband is a loving, considerate person, a good provider and he wants a family. Our sex life is satisfactory. Nobody would guess in a million years that this masculine appearing man enjoys dressing in women's clothes.

I've researched the subject of transvestitism in the public library and found surprisingly little information. I did learn, however, that transvestites are not active homosexuals. They desire only to dress like women and apparently, the compulsion is seldom overcome.

I don't mind when he does this so long as he keeps it private, which he has promised to do. In fact, I feel closer to him because I am helping him with his problem by allowing him to behave without inhibition at home rather than behind my back.



What I would like to know is this: Do you believe we can continue to have a good marriage, or will my husband eventually want to be with other transvestites and perhaps break up our our home? — WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED — You say you have researched the subject. If you have, you know that transvestites not only enjoy dressing up in women's attire but they also enjoy showing others how pretty they are.

Since you've accepted your husband's deviation and provide him with the audience he needs there's a good chance he'll keep his dress parades within the home walls.

Under the conditions you describe, your marriage could be a lasting one. I hope, however, you will urge your husband to seek professional help. While the chances are slim, he just might be straightened around.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WINTER WORKS PROGRAM

Dear Susanna: I read with interest your column on decorating driftwood. We have just started working on some cedar and would appreciate any advice on sanding and finishing it. We would like a finish that brings out the grain and is also a preservative. — Mrs. R. M. Godfrey

Look lively all you land lubbers who dragged home tree roots and gnarled limbs from the beach last summer. What better time than a winter's evening to polish up your treasure.

Since it must be well dried out by now, we are all set to go. Make sure that it is thoroughly cleaned by brushing off all the sand and scaly outer surfaces with a fine steel brush, steel wool, or even a vegetable brush depending on the texture of the wood. For splintered parts fine sand paper should be used.

For a rich, natural, lustrous finish the following simple hand rubbing process is lovely: Soak a ball of wool or cotton in white shellac and wrap it in a thickness of muslin. Rub it vigorously over the surface. When dry, rub with steel wool. Repeat the whole process twice more.

Another interesting method for achieving a soft smooth finish that brings out the grain, is to apply a coating of shoe polish — light, dark or tan, whatever happens to be your preference. First clean the wood as directed above, but instead of shellac, coat it with polish. Let dry. Polish with a soft cloth and repeat until you achieve the desired effect.

Cleaning is always the first step, but after that it's up to you. You can even take the slaggard's way out and do nothing more than apply a coat of varnish, — or just spray your driftwood with gold or silver paint if you have a festive use for it. TIMELY TIP

Dear Susanna: A little idea for poached egg in a hurry especially if you are just cooking for one.

Butter a fell cup (the size the meat pies come in) add egg and seasoning. Place in a shallow pan of boiling water, cover.

Within minutes your breakfast is ready and no messy pan to clean, as foil cup is disposable — or of course it can be washed and used again many times. — Mrs. D. S. McKee

Pink Mink Ultimate in Status Symbols

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

It's this year's ultimate in status symbols, the Mink Breeders Association told the fashion world Friday on the closing day of the New York couture group's week-long program of fashion previews.

A mad fad for mink toothbrushes, eyelashes, beer can openers and aprons has tended in recent years to reduce the traditional luxury pelt to a too-common denominator. The industry made a big bid for more snob appeal last year with green mink.

The skin of a single green mink—not dyed but born that way—cost several hundred dollars each on the auction block. A full length coat of them amounted to nearly $20,000.

The pink mink will not go to market until next month. But since only one in four generations has the recessive gene for the blushing hue and only one in 256 are true to color in the first crop, they are expected to bring prices many times higher than their green cousins.

Red Legs and White Sox used to be baseball talk, and Crazy Legs was football. But for game woman with good gams these have suddenly become descriptions of their spring hosiery wardrobes.

The first model appearing on the runway Friday wore one bright red stocking and one in rosy pink. Models that followed paired bright navy diamond patterns with smoky grey or snowy white with tan.

Actually, the hosts, Berkshire Mills, don't expect women to mix these bold hues, although one representative thinks the contrasts might make an interesting trend. Another fashion authority considers the idea practical, since a run in one stocking does not ruin a pair.

Actually, the intention of the mills-mates was to show twice as many of the bold off-beat colors and avant-garde patterns calculated to make the current crop of leg art look tame.

An Illusion Of Nudeness Is Whole Scheme

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The lingerie modelled for fashion writers Sunday was the kind that Eve might have worn beautifully under her fig leaf.

Manikins wore them under flat-net jump suits by Robert Sloan and sheer black diaphanous dresses by Tiger Morse, looking blushingly bare under all.

Unmentionables are mentionables this year, a Warner Company commentator said during the program to show reporters here for the American Designer series of spring previews what kind of underlying support the new styles will get.

An illusion of nudeness is the whole scheme. The patch of flesh-colored fabric, called the body stocking, stretches miraculously around the architecture of a woman. Burlesque queens use this fashion idea to keep from being hauled into jail.

The second skins were not intended to correct any figure faults. For these tougher jobs there were other underpinnings in floral prints and pastel colors attractive enough to be seen.

Among the new petticoats were some with split skirts to be worn with culottes; extra short ones for above-the-knee hemlines; and some designed to fit seam for seam over bras so that tell-tale lines do not show through clingy garments.

Models in oversized feather dusters swept across the bear-skin rug in designer Arnold Scaasi's crowded apartment. There was still another part of the program of spring style previews, called the American designer series, arranged by Eleanor Lambert.

In a collection that would delight a hunisman, Scaasi used the feathers of guinea hens to cover from waist to ankle a pair of the wide-legged at-home pajamas which a model wore with black suede belt and an organza shirt.

Robert Streng Inc. and Kimberley Knits demonstrated that it is possible to be chic with an income considerably less than $15,000. That is the amount which the industry estimates is accessible to American women who buy couture clothes.

The news in knits as Kimberley Knits told it: Wide, panel or trouser-seamed skirts, skinny, hip-length jackets, long tunics, a clearly-defined waistline or a dropped one, curved seaming, a short, short one-piece dresser.

Sauced Tongue Can Be Good

By MARY MOORE

There are many Canadian-born cooks who are prejudiced against the use of organ meats. These include liver, kidney, heart, chicken giblets, sweetbreads, tripe and tongue — most of them extra high in vitamins.

All of these mustn't meats, except calves' liver and sweetbreads are in the low price brackets. I receive letters asking for economical recipes and often wonder if my enquirers make the optimum use of organ meats.

I was gratified during the winter season of '62-'63 when readers thanked me when I gave the recipes for Sherried Giblets, Jellied Veal Tongues, Curried Giblets and Sweet and Sour Gizzards — the latter from a reader.

I hope today's offering of Beef Tongue with Fruited Sauce, which I recommend highly, will be enjoyed by many of you. Give it a fair try.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

One 3½-lb. beef (ox) tongue (See per lb.), preferably pickled but fresh may be used, 1 bay leaf, 6 whole peppercorns, 1 whole garlic clove, sliced.

Sauce: 2 tablespoons butter, 6 teaspoons flour, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon curry powder, 1 cup broth in which tongue was cooked, ¼ cup Sultana raisins, ¼ cup chopped tart apple.

Barely cover tongue with hot water, adding bay leaf, pepper berries and sliced garlic, bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer covered, for 3½ hours until very tender, turning tongue over at half-time. Remove from broth to preheated platter, peel off skin and trim off any rough ends at base and keep warm. Tongue should rest on one side.

Make Sauce by blending together the butter and flour and adding the sugar, mustard and curry. When mixed, stir in the broth until thick. Add raisins and apple and cook over simmering heat for 5 minutes, stirring frequently.

When tongue is sliced along side (not crosswise) spoon hot fruited sauce over each serving or pass it. My family thought this sauce at its hot pickled tongue was a great discovery. I think the venturesome cooks will try it, but would like to persuade the timid cooks to try it too.

NOTE:

I served the above pickled boiled tongue with carrots and green cabbage wedges. Fifteen minutes before tongue was taken from broth to be skinned I dropped the carrots into the broth to cook. When I removed the tongue I added narrow wedges of cabbage attached by centre core, to quick-cook while I skinned the tongue. A colorful meal.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL BERNARD RIVERS

Rivers — Callahan

St. Charles Borromeo Church, Read, was the scene of a lovely wedding recently when Rev. Father Hamilton united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony Mary Elizabeth Ann Callahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Callahan of Read, to Michael Bernard Rivers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Rivers of Oakville.

The altar was decorated with vases of poinsettias and mums, with white ribbons decorating the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white velvet, fashioned in princess lines, with scoop neckline and long, pointed sleeves. Her floor-length veil was held by a dainty velvet crown. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Marjorie Brennan was maid of honor. Other attendants of the bride were Mrs. John Pierce, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Douglas Vance and Miss Mary Callahan, cousins of the bride, who were similarly attired in street-length dresses of red velvet and three-quarter length sleeves, scooped necklines outlined with white fluffy fur. Their headdresses were bows of matching red velvet. They carried white velvet muffs, decorated with poinsettias.

Mr. Anthony Rivers acted as best man for his brother. Attendants of the bridegroom were also Mr. Frank Callahan, Mr. Tom Callahan, brothers of the bride, and Mr. John Pierce, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Roy Rivers, brother of the bridegroom and Charles Callahan, brother of the bride, carried out the duties of ushers.

At the reception, later that afternoon, the bride's mother received the many guests in a gold wool suit with brown accessories, assisted by the mother of the bridegroom, dressed in a blue suit with beige accessories. Both wore corsages of mums.

Mr. Dennis Nolan and his orchestra, friends of the happy couple, rendered music for the dancing pleasure of the guests.

Out-of-town guests were from Detroit, London, St. Catharines, Smiths Falls, Oakville, Toronto, Kingston, Napanee, Tweed and Madoc.

For their honeymoon trip through the Eastern United States the bride chose a pink wool suit with pink and black accessories and a corsage of pink and white roses.

The couple will take up residence in Burlington, where the bride will continue her nursing career at Joseph Brant Hospital and the bridegroom at Ford Motor Company, Oakville.

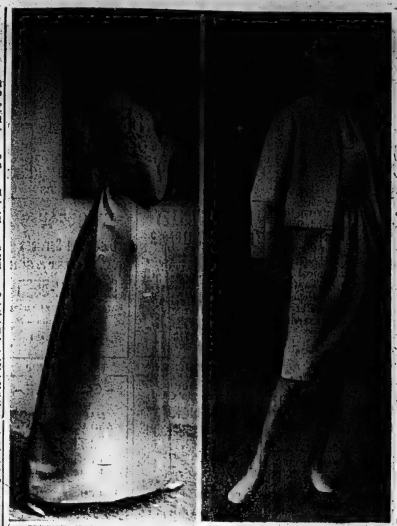
Church Groups

ST. COLUMBA PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN



The first meeting of the new year of St. Columba Presbyterian Women was held recently in the church auditorium.

The president, Mrs. M Stotesbury was in charge and welcomed everyone after which Mrs. A. Dunsmore led in the devotions. This was followed by the mission study given by Mrs. J. Burke.

For the program the ladies heard a tape recording of a talk given by Dr. McMillan who was the speaker during the recent week of prayer held in Belleville. Dr. McMillan based his talk on the various changes in the world today as compared to a generation ago. A most interesting discussion period followed dealing with the topic.

One of the items discussed during the business session was the forthcoming Valentine Coffee party which is to be held in February.

After the closing of the meeting by Mrs. K.D. Taylor, refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. J. Dallas and enjoyed by everyone.

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — When women wear the pants in the family, men should laugh, believes designer John Weitz.

They will, too, if their wives wear the pool-side pants he prescribed at Sunday's fashion press show.

Yellow cowboy suits with chaps of giant red desert flowers, a scaffold jump suit, lunar-fringe pants and a bodice made modest by a single bow were some of the costumes created to get grins if not guffaws.

Weitz, who is the husband of actress Susan Kohner, heartily approved the ancient sport of poking fun at ladies' wardrobes.

"A man may roar 'good gawd what's that,' but he is secretly amused at his wife's verve," said Weitz.

His pool - side pants are fringed, ruffled, and puffy with posies. Bare midriff and stretch pants that cling to the strategic spots are bold but not bad.

"Some pants for women are cut so that they look wonderful while she stands, but are awful when she sits down," said Weitz. "Other pants are great at right angles but not vertically.

FINDS THE SECRET?

But Weitz found the secret of good cut in the suits worn by men on scaffolds. These he makes for ladies are brilliant colors worn with fancy shirts that men on scaffolds would never wear.

Romance was the theme of the spring collection by Luis Esteves and there were more heart-shaped necklines than on valentines. Bias-cut dresses that were seamed on the midriff in sunburst fashion skimmed lightly across feminine figures. There were fluffy, back-tiered skirts, trumpet-flared ones and many cut as a perfect circle which fell in folds from defined waistlines.

Undecided whether fashion needs a hemline change, Esteves compromised with a semi-demi-longeur skirt line for evening that is above the knee in front and drops to the ankle in back.

Making women kiss - proof seemed to be the idea of milliner Lilly Dache, who wrapped pretty faces to their throats in tulle.

Successful Living

Step-Daughter Shows Ignorance by Behavior

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I too am a stepmother, and find it hard to take the treatment my husband's daughter hands out. She is 16.

When she brings her friends in she introduces them to her Dad, then she points to me and says "This is Dottie." Then snickers. Should I have to take this? Her father says nothing.

I detest it and wonder if the next time it happens I should speak up and say that I prefer to be introduced as "Mrs. B." Or should I let her go on hurting my feelings? She is very cheeky. — DOTTIE.

* * *

DEAR DOTTIE — Your stepdaughter outrages all the rules — doubtless because she knows no better. For one thing, etiquette says you introduce a younger person to an older; for another, the first name business sounds just plain rude.

Try the friendly approach: have a confidential talk with this girl who is now dependent on you for mothering. Explain that she presents her friend to you: "Mother, this is Jane Brown." Then turns to Jane to say: "This is my stepmother." That the snicker makes it look as if she doesn't know how to act.

DEAR DORIS — My sister-in-law will be celebrating her 25th wedding anniversary and she was wondering if it would be proper for her to wear a long gown for this occasion, as there will be around 200 guests. — HOPING TO HELP.

* * *

DEAR HOPING — A long dinner gown would be lovely; not too bare, but graceful, and floor length. This is suitable for a reception either afternoon or evening, and quite popular this year. So are separate long skirts and "toppers."

* * *

DEAR DORIS — One mother was telling you about other children teasing her little girl about being adopted. One day her daughter said to the children: "When your mother got you she had no choice; when my mother got me she had a choice."

Thought maybe if you passed this on to the lady who wrote in it might help her and her daughter. If some of the paren who talk in front of their children would try to help the po children instead of condemning them they would be better off.— INTERESTED.

* * *

DEAR INTERESTED — I agree. Adults who indulge i such small talk can't possibly realize what they do to t little pitchers who hang on their every word!

Confidential to MERLIN — Make the first move? No. He find out your name if he wants to.

Temperature Extremes Cause Woes

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

Beware of engine temperature extremes. They can do more damage than the most careless driving habits. When the engine is rarely run long enough or far enough to heat up well, there's trouble ahead. Water and other by-products of combustion are not burned off and oil sludge slowly begins to develop. This is a mixture of engine oil, water, carbon, dirt and other contaminants. It can clog oil passages, valves, rings, etc. It can make your car perform as if it were constantly struggling through a sea of muck. Sludge is particularly a threat in winter, thus frequet oil changes are needed to minimize it.

In warmer months, when the engine is constantly running the oil oxidation can occur and a varnish - like substance may be formed on engine hot spots. To minimize this condition, use only good quality engine oil and change it regularly, and make sure the cooling system is always in top working shape.

From N. R.: "At 50 m.p.h. or more, the front wheels of my '62 sedan seem to bounce and vibrate. Could this be due to either shock absorbers or front end misalignment?"

Include unbalanced wheels and you have a complete list of suspects.

H. B. asks: Through the lower left corner of my windshield the view is blurred and distorted. The area involved is only about four square inches. Can anything be done about this?"

Obviously, the glass is defective at this spot and windshield replacement is the only remedy.

G. A. writes: "After the fuel pump delivers raw gas to the carburetor, where it mixes with air, what force sends it to the cylinders?"

The fuel mixture is then drawn into the cylinders via suction developed by the pistons.

From F. C.: "Could weak oil pressure be responsible for a persistent knock which has been diagnosed by two different mechanics as a "bearing knock"?"

Low oil pressure, insufficient oil, extremely thin or poor grade oil, or oil which is badly diluted can be at fault.

Malaysia Has Small Hope Of Aid From United Nations

By CARMAN CUNNING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Malaysia has small hope of aid from the United Nations in the event of Indonesian attack, in the view of many UN diplomats.

They believe Russia would veto any attempt by the Security Council to set up a peace force.

A smaller group of dissenters, however, thinks there still is an outside chance the Soviet Union would permit formation of a force.

A smaller group of dissenters, however, thinks there still is an outside chance the Soviet Union would permit formation of a force—depending on the circumstances of the attack.

They apparently base the hope on belief that Russia will try to prevent any closer relations between China and Indonesia, now that the latter has quit the UN.

ASSEMBLY POWERLESS

Representatives of both points of view agree there is no chance that the General Assembly would set up a force in the event of a Soviet veto.

Soviet resistance to assembly peace-keeping powers is at the heart of the constitutional struggle that has nearly immobilized the UN this year. The thought of an assembly venture in the peace-keeping field at this point makes diplomats shudder.

Some observers suggest that President Sukarno probably took note of these facts of life before quitting the UN and stepping up his "confrontation" talks against Malaysia and their British allies.

Some diplomats also question the potential effectiveness of a UN presence, which presumably would patrol the long jungle border between Indonesia an Malaysia on the island of Borneo.

At the least, however, the force would represent a reproof from much of the Communist and non-aligned world against Sukarno tactics.

WILL ASK HELP

Malaysia has not yet asked for UN assistance, although it said Thursday it will do so "immediately" if "more intensive" Indonesian attacks are launched.

This thinking coincides with that of some Western military experts at the UN, who point out that Indonesia is highly vulnerable to retaliatory air attacks by British planes on her harbors, airfields and other installations.

They think that Sukarno will hold back from a major invasion, unless assured of the strongest Chinese support.

There is little hard information, but much speculation to the effect that the two countries may join North Korea and North Viet Nam—and possibly Cambodia—in an organization rivalling the UN and bypassing nearly 1,000,000,000 Asians out of the UN family.

Lions Club Hears Talk About Cancer

BANCROFT — Jack Lambert, field representative of the Ontario division of the Canadian Cancer Society, outlined a history of the society, the National Cancer Institute, and the Ontario Treatment and Research Foundation at this week's Lions Club dinner meeting.

He explained the work of the Cancer Institute, describing some of the experiments carried out. It is reported, he said, that $11,000 per year is spent on the purchase of animals for research purposes.

Mr. Lambert described some of the functions of the Treatment and Research Foundation and also defined the uses of research funds raised in annual financial campaigns.

60,000 Dockers Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—The 60,000 - member Longshoremen's Union went on strike in ports from Maine to Texas at 12:01 a.m. EST today.

Objections among rank-and file union members in New York to a clause in a proposed new contract providing for a gradual reduction in work gangs because of automation apparently triggered the strike.

The walkout is, in effect, a resumption of the one-day walkout last Oct. 1 when the work contract expired. At that time, President Johnson invoked the Taft-Hartley Act and a federal court injunction sent the men back to work during an 80-day cooling-off period. The government's injunction power now is exhausted.

The White House gave no indication of any presidential action on the new strike.

Extra longshoremen were employed in New York and several other ports at weekend overtime rates to speed passenger and cargo ships to sea before the strike deadline. More than 40 ships left the port of New York Sunday.

SHIPS STRANDED

Scores of ships were stranded in various ports, however.

The strike is limited primarily from the action of port of New York members of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) in rejecting the proposed contract with the New York Shipping Association. Agreements reached between the ILA and the association, which represents 175 shipping and stevedoring companies, traditionally set the pattern for contracts in other ports.

Union President Thomas W. Gleason said he was "shocked" by the contract rejection in the port of New York in a union membership vote last Friday. He had called the contract the best in the 32-year history of the union.

Associates of Gleason said the union is "divided" and would call meetings of all the union's locals here today or Tuesday to try to "sell" the contract and get another vote on it.

The shipping industry here asked Sunday that Johnson and Congress put pressure on the union to submit the dispute to compulsory arbitration.

as well as a humorist, wrote: "It could be done, has done but for the skill of the leader, Mr. John A. Macdonald of Kingston, who could carry two factions at a time as easily as a circus rider goes round on two horses. He did it by having no principle—or rather by being content with one, the allegiance of a contented people under the British Crown."

OBTAINING AGREEMENT

In 1864 he secured agreement in principle of representatives of the Maritime provinces to a federal union of all British North America. In 1867, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario joined in Confederation and, knighted, he became the first prime minister of Canada.

Kingston had been named in 1841 the capital of the United Provinces of Lower and Upper Canada — Canada East and Canada West, now Quebec and Ontario —when plans were started for the massive city hall, regarded as the finest municipal building in Canada in the 19th century. But by the time it was completed, the capital was moved to Montreal.

Originally it had four 27-foot limestone columns supporting a 63-foot wide canopy on its face. This became unsafe and was torn down in 1958 with the intention of re-erecting it. The hope, however, was converted to crushed gravel for road repairs.

Bellevue — which Macdonald facetiously called Pekoe Pagoda after the calling of its original builder, a retired grocer—was bought by the federal government last year. Work is to begin in April on restoring it.

cent faster than in the United States.

In prospect for the 1965-70 period was an annual rate of increase of 2.8 per cent, one-third higher than the average 1960-65 rate. This would bring 1,000,000 persons into the labor force between 1965 and 1970, most of them young, well-trained people.

The goal of three-per-cent unemployment therefore would require "vigorous and skilled fiscal and monetary policies."

"An appropriate combination of strong expansionary policies is therefore required to generate adequate levels of demand both at home and in export markets in support of rapidly expanding employment."

FOR TAX CUTS?

Does that mean income tax cuts?

The council didn't answer directly, though its report suggested obliquely that it means just that.

One council projection said that by 1970 all levels of government in the country are "siphoning off by taxes" about $2,000,000,000 more than they spend on the national accounts basis—that is, including both budgetary and other spending.

"In other words, this would be a measure of the degree to which aggregate demand would be reduced by the operations of the government sector."

Such a situation — and the council emphasized that it is not a forecast—raised important questions for government policies.

The council said it favors a level of taxes and spending that would be roughly in balance if the economy were operating at its potential output.

baker left Dec. 23, Mr. Diefenbaker had said his door is always open to Mr. Balcer, who had just announced he planned to consider during the parliamentary recess whether to bolt the party and sit as an independent.

Mr. Diefenbaker made it plain that he anticipates a general election this year although he has refused to be pinned down by saying at one point he doesn't think the government would welcome one.

SEES ELECTION SIGNS

Nevertheless, he professed to see all signs pointing toward an election. There would be his fifth as party leader.

His leadership, which saw the Conservatives emerge from 22 years in the political wilderness in 1957, has been the subject of intense speculation since his government was replaced by a minority Liberal administration in April, 1963.

In the final days of his government, two cabinet ministers resigned. One of them, Douglas Harkness, MP for Calgary North and former defence and agriculture minister, has called for his resignation publicly.

Now Mr. Balcer, who became his chief lieutenant only a year ago, has cupped growing disenchantment with the leadership and performance in parliament by threatening to quit for the time being.

Mr. Balcer, a member of Quebec Conservative MPs and a few Conservative members from other provinces publicly criticized the opposition tactics of stretching out the bitter battle over a Canadian flag at the last session.

IS IN DOUBT

Whether departure of Mr. Balcer and some Quebec MPs would precipitate a leadership contest remains in doubt.

Supporters of Mr. Diefenbaker within the party contend that there are no leadership convention unless the leader resigns or dies.

But Hugh MacQuarrie, MP for Queen's and a member of the Progressive Conservative Association's constitution committee, says "I find nothing in the constitution to support any such contention."

Mr. MacQuarrie argues that the leadership is entirely in the hands of the national association.

It is wrong, no association meeting has yet been scheduled for this year. The constitution requires annual meetings except in election years. Thus the executive was left to make the decision at the holding over this year when it becomes clear whether an election is certain.

As for Mr. Diefenbaker, he apparently hasn't wavered since April 23, 1963, when he commented to reporters as he vacated the prime minister's East Block office:

"I give them (the Liberals) two years."

Reeve Hughes was authorized to arrange for a Dog Catcher and to establish a Dog Pound in a suitable building. It was not claimed after 48 hours detention must be destroyed. Council felt that adequate warning had been given concerning dogs running at large and a by-law to dramatize the U.S. Negro's fight for equality. Balmy Florida City Has a Bloody History

By BEN FUNK

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) Four hundred years ago, this Florida city was born in the blazing fires of New World conquest and violence.

Hundreds of Frenchmen died in a vain effort to prevent the birth of the oldest city in the U.S. on the sandy shores of Matanzas Bay. Spain sacrificed generations of her own men to keep it alive.

In the centuries since, St. Augustine has been ravaged by cannon, sword, musket, Indian spear and arrow, famine and pieces perhaps more than any other settlement on the continent.

In 1963, the city where U.S. colonial history began boldly lays the groundwork for a year-long celebration of its 400th birthday.

HOLDS ITS BREATH

Religious processions, Mardi Gras pageantry, drama and music will mark the celebration of St. Augustine's birth. But breath in hope that the plans will be carried through in peace.

But an undercurrent of uneasiness pulses through the narrow streets. For all the wrongs of the city were not inflicted in the time of colonial struggle.

The murder in Selma, Ala., of Martin Luther King chose this world-famous site as the stage for a "long, hot summer" of demonstrations to dramatize the U.S. Negro's fight for equality. King brought his non-violent march to Selma, the streets and met with violence from white segregationists refusing to break old racial traditions.

A city that once echoed the roar of cannon and the cries of invading buccaneers now heard the snarls of police dogs and the smashing of windows, and the crack of gunfire in the night as snipers fought to turn back the Negro challenge.

Four Meet

Those poor people down there have had it."

Rescuers flown in by helicopter Saturday and Sunday said the slide must have caught the car and two trucks as it returned from the opposite side of the valley.

FIND SCATTERED PIECES

Wheels, tanks, hay and pieces of metals were scattered high up the side of the mountain as much as 150 feet above the road bed.

A tracking dog led men to a spot above the twisted cab of the hay truck, containing the bodies of Starchuk and Beck. Beck had apparently got in with Starchuk when his car would not restart.

The latest pulled away eight feet of rock, freeing Beck's body just before noon Sunday and Starchuk's body at 1 p.m.

During the afternoon the dog repeatedly led searchers to two spots nearby and the digging for the bodies of the woman and Artitt was concentrated in that area when darkness fell Sunday.

But B.C.'s highways minister, P. G. Gaglardi, said the other victims may have been in their car, which could be "packed against the side of the valley."

SLIDE EMPTIES LAKE

A lake the size of four city blocks that lay in the path of the slide was gone when rescuers gushing with heavy mud down the valley to splash mountains along the way in big brown streaks.

Engineers still fear a large fill at the top of the mountain may come down. As the men work at its base Sunday, they could see that it was a shower of dust from minor falls of loose rock.

Ivan Wilkins, dasgin and planning engineer with the B.C. department of highways, said the slide was started by rock at the top of the mountain.

He said it has taken some months to design a new road, which will go over the rubble covering the highway.

Various estimates placed the height of rock over the road at from 100 to 450 feet. Two bulldozers pawed ineffectively at the wall Sunday, and engineers said they expected a week's expectation that a path for heavy equipment could be cleared across the slide within 48 hours.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tossing around $400,000 in salary and bonus, plus, to a professional football rookie for three years' work caused a lot of eyebrow raising in the mouled ranks but the big boys don't suffer too much along Pension Boulevard if they survive five years of the bruising game.

Professional football pastures are lush with that lettuce that banks like, the harvest, like pro hockey, depending on length of service in the tank ranks.

Melvin Dunlap explains the pension fund in the current edition of the TV Guide. All a player has to do, he says, is live to the age of 65—and trust that Wall Street doesn't lay an egg.

The program now working, Dunlap points out, calls for the minimum payment to a five-year man (beginning at 65) of $427 a month. For a ten-year man the loot inflates to $456. To the 15-year man the cheque amounts to $821.

Trustees of the fund invest the money in stocks and bonds—at least 60 percent—the rest in insurance annuities. Market climbs could swell the $427 amount to $800, and so on.

Also included for each player is a $20,000 life insurance policy, another $20,000 policy covering accidental death and a group health plan that even rewards the holder $150 in maternity benefits, providing he is married.

And the gimmick, Dunlap says, from which most of the cash comes to provide the Sunday heroes with their "senior citizen" cash is television.

The wherewithall for the scheme is gathered by part of the overall income from the Championship Game enriched annually by television: from the Playoff Game in Bowl in Los Angeles and the College All-Star game in Chicago. The pot was also fattened by $151,000 from the sale of trading cards.

Coaches of the teams winning the divisional championships in the league qualify automatically each season as handlers of the pro bowl squads. Each coach receives $1,000.

Originally each man on the winning team of the Pro Bowl Game received a fee of $600, while $500 went to each loser. To stimulate the boys further the pay was later boosted to $800 for the winner and $600 for each loser. Yesterday, however, the winning team picked up $1,000 each, while $700 went to each loser.

The Pro Bowl Game became an annual TV event when Nielsen picked the contest as a five-year basis for the annual sum of $25,000. In 1962 the price climbed to $55,000, then to $60,000 the following year. It is now receiving $150,000 a year and in 1966 the price is expected to jump to $160,000.

But weatherwise the Pro Bowl Game has basked in the smiles of the weather-bloks. It rains in Los Angeles, of course, but it has yet to affect a Pro Bowl classic.

According to the Nielsen ratings an estimated 11,680,000 were tuned in to the Pro Bowl Game last year. Yesterday it was estimated some 15,000,000 saw the game over old square face, not to mention the 60,000 that saw it "live."

The increase is said due to the increasing popularity of professional football—and the lack of top flight television shows at the hour (4 p.m.)

Hawks Take Over Top ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Hull Scores 34, 35

Shuffled Leafs Crowd Leaders; Win 2

By TED BLACKMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Billy Hicke couldn't buy a goal for Montreal Canadiens during the first half of the season, but Saturday night he scored three times on Forum ice.

Hicke, however, no longer plays for the Canadiens and his three goals gave New York Rangers a 6-5 victory and dropped his former employers out of first place in the National Hockey League.

Chicago Black Hawks took advantage of Hicke's revenge and swept two weekend games from Detroit Red Wings, 7-4 in Detroit Saturday and 3-2 at home Sunday night, to move one point ahead of the Habs in the standings.

In the other two weekend contests, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Boston Bruins 2-1 at home Saturday night and trounced the Bruins 5-2 in New York. The Leafs, playing without three regulars, moved past Detroit into third place.

Hicke, traded to New York two weeks ago for Dick Duff, snapped a season-long scoring drought and a 5-5 tie at 14:34 of the final period with his third goal of the night. He had been demoted to the minors before the trade.

"I had a feeling I'd score a goal or two tonight," he said. "You know something — I might have had five, I hit the post twice."

TIED IT TWICE

His third goal spoiled two fine comebacks by the Canadiens. Down 3-0 and 5-3, the Habs rallied twice to tie the game.

Hicke, Bob Nevin and Vic Hadfield scored for the Rangers in the first period but the Habs stormed back on second-period markers by Bob Rousson, John Ferguson and Ralph Backstrom.

Hicke shot New York ahead early in the third and Phil Goyette padded the lead. The Habs tied it again on goals by Backstrom and Claude Larose.

The Hawks took full advantage of Montreal's second straight loss, dumping the Wings 7-4 on Bobby Hull's 34th and 35th goals of the season and then edging Detroit 3-2 on two goals by defencemen Pierre Pilote and crisp netminding by Glenn Hall.

Pilote's two markers and Dennis Hull's sixth of the season shot the Hawks into a 2-0 first-period lead but the Wings rallied on power-play goals by Ron Murphy and Gordie Howe in the middle frame.

OUTSHOT HAWKS

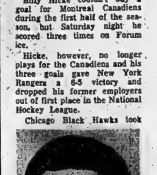
In the finale, Detroit outshot the Hawks 8-4 and had two man-power advantages but couldn't beat Hall, making his first appearance in six games. Eddie Joyal did put the puck in the net, but referee John Ashley called the whistle had blown.

Bill Gadsby protested so strongly he drew a 10-minute misconduct and a game misconduct, which cost $75 in automatic fines.

Detroit led briefly Saturday on a goal by Parker MacDonald but Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull quickly sent the Hawks ahead and they never trailed. Hull's 35th goal was added insurance.

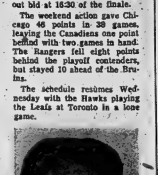
Dennis Hull, Doug Jarrett, Pilote and Kenny Wharram also scored for the Hawks. Joyal, Paul Henderson and Murphy provided Detroit's other goals.

While the Wings suffered their second home-and-home double loss to Chicago this season, the supposedly weakened Leafs stretched their unbeaten streak to five games and climbed into third place, one point ahead of Detroit and five back of the Hawks.



Defenceman Tim Horton converted to a forward under Toronto's injury inspired emergency conditions, scored twice and Bobby Pulford added a pair as the Leafs blanked the Rangers. Johnny Bower recorded his first shutout this season, stopping 27 shots.

PLANTE BESIEGED



Frank Mahovlich and Ron Stewart also scored as a besieged Jacques Plante faced 44 shots. Mahovlich also assisted on three goals.

A makeshift line of Red Kelly, Jim Pappin and Peter Stemkowski carried the Leafs to victory Saturday night.

Kelly broke a scoreless tie late in the second period and Pappin sent the Leafs ahead 2-0 early in the third with his seventh of the season, Stemkowski, assisting on both tallies. Ab McDonald ruined Bower's shutout bid at 16:30 of the finish.

The second action gave Chicago 46 points in 39 games, leaving the Canadiens one point behind with two games in hand. The Rangers fell eight points behind the playoff contenders, but stayed 10 ahead of the Bruins.

The schedule resumes Wednesday with the Hawks playing the Leafs at Toronto in a lone game.

Trenton Minors Win Easily Over Toronto

In the midget tilt, Trenton held leads of 5-1 and 8-3 by periods before doubling their production in the final twenty minutes. They outshot Neil McNeil 26-16.

Angus McPaul and Rick Munro sparked the attack with two goals apiece. Adding a goal each were John McDonald, Dan Creighton, Dan Dixon, Don McDonald, Pete Walling and Jim Stanbridge.

Al Ferguson got Trenton away to a quick scoring start in the opening of the first period after just 33 seconds. Ferguson completed the hat trick with a goal in each of the next two frames. Andy Teeple contributed two goals and the others were scored by Barry Turner and Chuck Howard.

Coloured goalies and Whitby midgets will supply opposition for Trenton in next Sunday's double-header.

Czech Coach Says Ontario Seniors Next To Russians

By PAUL SUFRIN

TORONTO (CP)—Gord Simpson, coach of Canada's national hockey team, says his team is finally coming together, but he would be a lot happier if he could get the players to train under one roof.

Simpson discussed the problem following Canada's 3-2 win over Czechoslovakia in an exhibition hockey game Sunday.

"Some of the guys were a little tired out there today," he said. "Dineen, Broderick and Jean-Paul MacKenzie just finished playing games the night before last with their home teams. They didn't have to play again on a different team.

"If we could only get them practising under one roof at the University of Manitoba, it would certainly help our performance as a national team."

Simpson thought his team played one of its best games Sunday against the Czechs. The Canadians now have beaten the Czechs twice, tied once and lost once.

Asked about the accurate but all-too-frequent passing of his team, Simpson said: "Our guys have overpassed a little today, but we wanted to suck a man out of position to get a clear shot at the net."

"That's what killed us in Colorado against the Czechs," he said. "We weren't covering in front of the net then. Today he wasn't getting those shots away."

Vladimir Bouzek, coach of the Czechoslovakian team, said the senior hockey they played Friday in London, Ont., was rough when it came to checking. He has no complaint with the Canadian checking Sunday and set a standard he would be better than he implied Friday.

Following the game with the Ontario Hockey Association Senior All-Stars, Bouzek said the All-Stars were the best his team had played outside of the Russians. The seniors won the game 5-3.

On Sunday's performance, Bouzek said he would have to place the Canadians ahead of the senior team.

Vancouver Replacement For Dallas

SEATTLE (AP)—The Pacific Coast League baseball returns to Vancouver to retain their 12 team, two-division setup.

Vancouver was accepted as a replacement for Dallas, which dropped out after last season. Vancouver had been squeezed out of the league in 1962 in favor of Hawaii.

A schedule of 148 games, 10 fewer than last year, was approved.

The western division will include Vancouver, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Portland and Hawaii. The eastern division will be made up of San Diego, Indianapolis, Oklahoma City, Arkansas, Denver and Salt Lake City.

Negro Players Quit AFL All-Stars

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The American Football League has called off its all-star game — scheduled this Saturday — after Negro players complained of discrimination and walked out.

AFL commissioner Joe Foss said in Chicago he would have a statement today on the prospects of playing the game in another city.

Even before the game was officially cancelled Sunday night the 21 Negroes here for the game dropped their bags and left.

"We're not wanted here so we're leaving," said halfback Clem Daniels of Oakland Raiders.

"We all encountered similar problems Saturday night. We were refused cab service and admittance to French Quarter clubs.

Foss, in a statement issued here, said "since all players are members of the official league family, the league must abide by their (the Negro players') decision not to play."

David Dixon, head of the group sponsoring the all-star game, worked frantically to get the Negroes to change their minds. He arranged for the players to have access to all of the better-class establishments —restaurants and night clubs in the French Quarter.

He said they met Sunday to compare notes on their treatment in New Orleans and then voted on the walkout.

"The heat wasn't unusual, mouse," he said. "Some of the boys wanted to stay and play. But the majority ruled. We felt we couldn't perform 100 per cent under the circumstances."

Chadwick Stars For Buffalo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After completing 15 full seasons in professional hockey, Ed Chadwick seems to have found his niche.

The Fargus, Ont., native made the National Hockey League in 1950, but after two full seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs, Johnny Bower took away his goaltending job in 1958.

After two seasons with Rochester Americans — the Leafs' American Hockey League farm club — Chadwick went to Boston in a trade for Don Simmons.

Chadwick went to Buffalo from Hershey at the beginning of this season and to date the Bisons have the second - best goals - against average in the AHL.

The 31-year-old Chadwick also has the most shutouts in the league this season.

REGISTERS FOURTH

He registered his fourth Sunday night as the Bisons blanked the second-place Division leading Quebec Aces 6-0

Saturday Quebec defeated Cleveland Barons 4-3, Hershey Bears edged Baltimore Clippers 3-2, Rochester Americans defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 3-2 and Springfield Indians edged the Bisons 3-2.

Peewees Tie, Lose Against Ottawa Team

Belleville Rollins' peewees tied one game and lost another by a single goal in exhibition games against the highly-rated Alta-Vista team in Ottawa over the weekend.

Rollins blew a 3-0 lead but gained a tie in Ottawa Saturday. Alta-Vista officials said that the game was the first in 25 games that their team has not won.

Alta-Vista edged Rollins 3-2 in Arnprior Sunday afternoon.

Belleville' held leads of 2-0 and 3-1 by periods before selling for the tie Saturday. Scoring for Rollins was Bill Buchanan, Terry Meagher, Mario Venutti and Austin Wilson. Terry Meagher got two assists, Buchanan, Brian Cousins, Denis Cone and Rick Meagher one each.

Bill Goodman got the first and last goals for Ottawa. Norm Brazeau and Dave Payman also scored.

On Sunday, Ottawa led 2-0 and 3-1 by periods. Terry Meagher scored both Rollins' goals with Rick Meagher helping on one.

The games were cleanly-played and well-officiated and Belleville fans praised the treatment received by the Rollins' players. They were housed and fed at homes of the Ottawa players.

Final Game of Tour
Nationals Win Over Czechs 3-2

By IAN MacLAINE

TORONTO (CP) — Czechoslovakia's coach, Prof. Vladimir Bouzek, had second thoughts about the calibre of Canada's national hockey team Sunday as the Canadians won 3-2 in the final game of the Czechs' North American tour.

The visitors completed their schedule with three wins, four losses and a tie. Their record with the Canadian national team stood at two losses, a win and one tie.

The Czechs were trimmed by an Ontario senior all-star aggregation last week at London, Ont., and Bouzek said the pickup team was better than the national team.

But following the bruising, hard-hitting affair Sunday, Bouzek admitted Canada didn't have such a bad national representative.

Although the Czechs appeared to have the edge in skating and stickhandling, Canadians were persistent enough to force the Czech offence off balance throughout most of the game.

A crowd of 7,523 displayed slight disfavor for the Canadian team's effort, particularly in the second period when the Czechs put on their best offensive display.

Although the Czech team penetrated the Canadian defence, putting the puck behind goalie Ken Broderick proved more difficult. Their two goals by Vaclav Nedomansky and Stanislav Pryl were both well-earned and gave the Czechs a 2-1 lead.

Kepak's came on a power play with Bill Johnson sitting out a penalty to the Canadian team for having too many men on the ice. He raised the shot over Broderick's sprawled body during a scramble.

About four minutes later, with the Czech's still applying the pressure, Pryl picked up a stray pass near the blue line, took two strides toward the Canadian net, then fired a blazing backhander into the upper-right-hand corner.

Al Johnson equalized with the Czechs a man short midway through the third period after Gary Aldcorn, then Gary Dinsmore, scored the first Canadian goal, had point-blank shots that forced Czech goalie Vlcek Dzurilla to make sparkling saves.

Aldcorn set up Bourbonnais' winning marker with a perfect passout from behind the net. Bourbonnais' wrist shot then scraped between Dzurilla's pads and the goalpost.

Win Rousing 34-14 Battle
West Whips East In Pro Bowl

The Western All-Stars, spearheaded by Frank Tarkenton, Johnny Unitas, Terry Barr and Gino Marchetti, turned the game into a rout before 60,888 fans at the Memorial Coliseum. They scored in every quarter while holding fast against the Eastern offence's big guns—Frank Ryan, Sonny Jurgensen, Jim Brown and Paul Warfield.

Tarkenton, the little scrambler from Minnesota Vikings, and Detroit Lions' fleet flanker, were voted the game's outstanding players.

Barr set two of the West's touchdowns with acrobatic catches of Tarkenton passes.

Marchetti, appearing in his 10th Pro Bowl—a record he shares with retired Leo Nomellini—says he's definitely quitting the game. He came back last season on the plea of Baltimore Colt coach Don Shula, but Shula said he won't ask any more.

The East attack was hard hit by quarterback injuries. Ryan, blitzed by Merlin Olsen and Marchetti, left the action with a shoulder separation early in the third period. Jurgensen, with a sore throwing shoulder, took over but couldn't generate any offensive fire except for a scoring toss to Jim Brown late in the game.

The victory was revenge—but not sweet enough — for West Coach Sid Gillman, whose Baltimore Colts were humiliated 27-0 by Don Collier - coached Cleveland Browns in the NFL's title game.

"It's a satisfying victory but I'd trade it for a National Football League title," Shula said.

Junior A's To Play Nationals

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League will reassemble their all-star junior team for a special game here Jan. 17 to play against Canada's national team.

The all-stars, from the Canadiens' junior system in Montreal, Regina and Peterborough, Ont., lost 3-2 to the Czech national team here last Sunday.

Sam Pollock, Canadiens' general manager, said the personnel make - up of all - stars against the Czechs was so encouraging he felt "this fine group of talent should be brought together once again."

Riteways Lose To Napanee

Belleville's OMHA novice entry, the Riteways, dropped a 4-0 decision in Napanee on Saturday.

Napanee scored two goals in the first frame and added another pair in the third.

Jerry Hinchey sparked the Napanee attack, getting a hat trick. Riteway ship with two goals. Dave Wilson and Dale Plumely.

The others were scored by J. Follet, Plumely and Wartman got assists.

The winners drew all of the game's penalties.

Belleville A.C.T. and Picton were scheduled to play an OMHA juvenile game here Sunday afternoon but no score was turned in for the contest.

Mills Wins Indoor Mile

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Now that Billy Mills is an acknowledged winner, it seems to make little difference what distance he travels. The marine lieutenant from Kansas came from relative obscurity in Tokyo last October to become the first American to win the Olympic 10,000-metre race.

Saturday night, against a stellar field, Mills went from wire to wire and captured his first indoor mile in 4:06.1 at the San Francisco invitational indoor track meet at the Cow Palace.

Mills had to kick to stay in front of Great Britain's Alan Simpson, third and fourth were two sub-four minute milers, Cay Weisiger and Archie San Romani.

Monties Win Two Games In Germany

MUNICH (CP-AP)—The touring Ottawa Montagnards rolled to two convincing victories over the West German hockey champions, K. V. Fussen, during the weekend. The Canadians trimmed 8-0 here Sunday in a penalty - filled game after beating the Germans 6-5 in the town of Fussen Saturday.

The Canadians came into their series against K. V. Fussen with reputations as hard-rough players after a widely-published brawl Friday night which caused suspension after 11 minutes e f Ottawa's game with Innsbrucker Eislaufverein team in Innsbruck, Austria.

Another brawl occurred Sunday, which resulted in defenceman Ian Anderson of the Montagnards being thrown out of the game. The trouble erupted in the first period when Leonard Wahl of the German team and William Crawford, Ottawa-ed Canadian forward, got into a slugging match. Both members of both teams swarmed on the ice.

When police brought the shoving and pushing to a end, Anderson was out of the contest, accused by referee Ernst Kraisa of misconduct. Wahl a five-minute sentence. Crawford escaped penalty.

HAD ESCORT

Police escorted both teams off the ice for a cooling - off period. The remainder of the game was played in comparative peace.

The Montagnards served 19 minutes in penalties, the Germans 18 minutes.

The Saturday game at Fussen was played in cordial contrast, with 3,000 fans turning out, many of them lured by reports of the Innsbrucker fracas, in which several players were injured.

"Ici CJBC" Protest Evaporates

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—Now that a curtain - raising public uproar has died away, Canada's Ontario has achieved downright equanimity over the fact that the CBC has one more English-language radio station and its first French outlet in the neighborhood.

An outstanding exception is Ralph Cowan, Liberal MP for York-Humber and diligent sharpshooter at the CBC, who is waging a rearguard - court action to have the dial turned back to last Oct. 1. That's when CJBC here switched from English to French.

Among less - legalistic listeners, issues of more fundamental concern have been such as where to find a favorite program (it may have been moved to sister CBC station CBL or shuffled off to FM or dropped), whether the French on "Ici CJBC" is overly burdened with patois and why the BBC news from London was given a new time slot.

Concern over some shrinkage of employment among English-speaking talent is still being felt, too, by the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists. However, the loss seems a bit one-sided.

FEWER COMPLAINTS

From the dial-twisting public, the original minor flood of complaint to the CBC had died down on a recent week to one tiglozened objection to the language switchover and 13 unfavorable comments on English-language programming. In the week, the CBC got 37 letters—all in French — favoring the change.

If the current reaction indicates the public is bearing up with fortitude, there was considerable outraged screaming earlier. Sample comments in English program changes:

"Corn" . . . "shocked, disappointed and angry" . . . "indescribably indigestible" (of a breakfast program, . . . "atrocious" . . . "verbal diarrhea" . . . "produced for morons" . . . "poorest of programming" . . . "left me stunned" . . . "we were certainly led down the garden path."

A despairing cry from Mount Forest, Ont.: "I have tried this week to listen to CBL. It's almost hopeless!"

Much of the consternation among English listenery stemmed from the fact that some of the breeziest programs on CJBC, which had been a local CBC operation, were dumped on CBL, a network station with a higher longhair quotient. For instance, CBL fans suddenly found their morning eye-opener consisting of light music instead of classical, which had been unloaded on the limited audience of CBL-FM.

BUDGET IS SMALL

Some of the transferred CJBC programs were shortened, which provoked their fans. Some went on different times. The CJBC time section was moved to 7 p.m., which aroused an initial torrent of protest but seems to have brought most listeners. Elsewhere, the CBC says, CBL's ratings have gone up, probably in the fairly competitive early-morning periods.

Meanwhile, over at "Ici CJBC" the operation has been started off with a small budget, small office, studio facilities not up to par with the English counterpart and a small staff.

Two French announcers — one man and one woman — handle master-of-ceremonies chores on four programs each and spread themselves around other spots with the help of tapes. One producer is Jacks-of-all-programs. Two technicians handle the audio chores.

For the time being, this consists largely of keeping CJBC plugged into the French network, which provides the great bulk of the 116½ hours of programs a week. Jean Charbonneau, a young TV - radio producer who was installed as CJBC manager, says it's important that more programs be originated here but his plans depend on the budget.

MAY FEED NETWORK

"I think it's important to keep in mind," he says, "that the French station in southern Ontario is the witness of the French aspect of Canada, and about the only witness in this area where the English population is so heavily concentrated. If only for this reason, its existence is necessary.

"Also, I think it can bring to the French network a better idea of what is going on in those English communities."

So far, it hasn't been making any regular contributions to the network, though its first was scheduled for late January. CJBC was to join stations in Moncton, N.B., Quebec, Chicoutimi, Que., Ottawa and Winnipeg in a rotation of originating a recorded musical program called Sur Quatre Routes. (On Four Wheels).

Mr. Charbonneau says he wants to dig up CJBC's own news here, interpret life in Toronto for French Canada and develop local talent. (CJBC's own programs now are standard disk jockey and chit-chat types.) But he can't even afford a French reporter yet.

How the fare is going over with the prospective audience is a question somewhat clouded in murk. There are supposed to be 87,000 persons with French as their mother tongue and another 100,000 with a working knowledge of the language in the listening area, but taking their pulse necessarily presents a tough problem.

DICTION CRITICIZED

An appraisal by Antony Ferry in The Star says that after early weeks of "patois programming, seasoned with serious music, Gallic warieties, nationalistic tinged talk shows, farm reports and a welter of old-fashioned soap operas, 'Ici CJBC' manages to offer most things to some people, in such reasonably listenable doses that the most hardened Francophobe could hardly find any serious exception in the take-over."

However, he adds that a bewildering range of diction and pronunciation — "a spring point, particularly for listeners wanting to learn French" — there is too much "joual"—sloppy French—and the more popular programs employ a kind of French which is hard to decipher, let alone imitate."

Jack Craw, supervisor of English radio programming here, defends CJBC's language. There's good French on radio programs where it's in character, he points out. "The French control of our programs where good French is supposed to be spoken is as good as anywhere."

Meanwhile, MP - CBC critic Ralph Cowan does not consider out anywhere in Ontario and he's still looking for a court injunction ordering CJBC off the air. He started the action last September, invoking the British North America Act and claim that the use of French by a federal agency is illegal outside of Parliament, Quebec and the courts.

SPRING DATE IN COURT

Despite the fact the CBC seems to have pulled a fait accompli since then, his lawyer is going ahead with a voluminous legal submission bringing in not only the BNA Act but other constitutional legislation. The case is raising a fundamental legal question that has never been brought up before, and its outcome could conceivably affect the future of the broadcaster other CBC French outlets in Ontario, not to mention those in other provinces. It is expected to be heard in the Ontario Supreme Court next spring.

With the dawning years its future, CJBC continues as something of an orphan. At the moment, CBC executives are quite sure, even, where it fits into the corporate chain of command, or where it will settle when the CBC's current organization shuffling is complete. Its personnel, according to reports, get frosty treatment from English co-workers in the establishment.

No commercials are being solicited for it; it just carries network commercials. The setup is frankly experimental, and Mr. Craine says the whole thing next year will be given over to shakedown, with an eye on audience reaction.

After that, he says, "a lot of things will change, if that is needed."

Robert Vaughn Enjoys Trip To Moscow in Vacation

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Robert Vaughn, the super-sleuthing man from U.N.C.L.E., has returned from the Moscow spree. His report: A friendly reception, though not from the Russian bellos.

The actor went to the Soviet Union during the year - end holidays for a visit that grew out of a chance meeting on a movie set with Russian highjumper Valery Brumel.

"Last year M-G-M gave a lunch for the Russian track team that was here for a dual meet with the U.S., Vaughn related.

"When they visited the sets, the only actor Brumel recognized was me — because The Magnificent Seven was one of the few United States films that has appeared in Russia.

"He embraced me and presented me with one of his medals. He said I should come to Moscow and see it as it should be seen — with him as guide."

Vaughn decided to use his year - end vacation from The Man from U.N.C.L.E. for the Moscow trip. It turned out he was so busy with commitments that he didn't see Brumel until the last of his five days there.

AT THE BELLE — Wednesday — Margaret Leahy as Vera Lynn Conroy in the main lead in "Always Another Dawn", a British film currently in Technicolor, which opening Wednesday at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Suddenly TV Preoccupied With Second World War

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It may be that it is because 20 years has passed, or it may be coincidence, but suddenly television seems preoccupied with the Second World War.

There was the recent NBC special on the Battle of the Bulge and the one on the dropping of the first atomic bomb. And ABC, after waiting three years, launched its FDR series Friday night.

There is a vast photographic record of Franklin D. Roosevelt's public life. Many persons remember him and can remember, and the series, to judge from the first show, has been meticulously researched and assembled.

Another historical series, NBC's Sunday evening Profiles in Courage, has lofty motives but, unfortunately, the dramas are not the most stimulating shows to watch.

This was particularly true last week when it was based on an incident in the career of the late senator Robert A. Taft, a Republican contemporary.

The point of the story was to demonstrate Taft's political courage in his attitude about the Nazi war crime trials. The problem was making the audience believe that Lee Tracy, a good actor, was a man many of us remember in the flesh.

It fared better, however than Sunday night's episode, based around Anne Hutchinson. She had the courage of her religious convictions in 17th century New England. The show was largely wasted on the eastern audience — we missed almost half the program while the final moments of the East-West football game were played and never did catch up with the plot.

AT THE BELLE — Cream or Lemon? Susan Hayward stars in "Where Love Has Gone" starting Today and and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre. Along with Miss Hayward, the cast includes Bette Davis, Michael Connors and Joey Heatherton.

Recommended tonight:

The Man from U.N.C.L.E., NBC, 8-9 EST—new night and time for the James Bondish adventure series; The Capitol, Chronicle of Freedom, NBC, 10-11 — special program filmed in Washington.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Susan Hayward, Bette Davis, Michael Connors, Joey Heatherton, in "Where Love Has Gone", Technicolor, Technischope, 2.10 - 7.00 - 9.10.

AT THE PARK — "Ask Any Girl", starring David Niven and Shirley MacLaine at 1.20. "The Mating Game", starring Debbie Reynolds at 3.30. One complete show. All in color.

Joe Namath Star Of Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Joe Namath gave another outstanding passing performance Saturday as the South beat the North battled to a 7-7 tie in the annual Senior Bowl football game.

Namath, Alabama's star quarterback who signed a professional football contract with New York Jets last week for an estimated $400,000, completed 22 of 38 pass attempts for 248 yards and his team's only touchdown.

The North took a 7-0 lead in the second quarter when Indiana's Fritz Baker sneaked the ball over from the one. This was the North's only big offensive drive of the game.

With 10:23 left in the third quarter, Namath hit Bob Hayes, Olympic gold medal winner and the world's fastest human, with a 35-yard touchdown pass.

Bulletins from Birdland

By WINIFRED K. WILSON
WINTER VISITORS

Twenty or more tiny, brown-streaked birds wearing little red caps tipped over their foreheads were hanging upside down or clinging precariously to some small weeds at the side of the snowy road. They were redpolls which had evidently been obliged by civilization in order to survive. When there are no more insects in their home in the far north and alder and birch seeds have come to an end there, redpolls arrive on the outskirts of our cities with a great twittering. They are very talkative, even when performing acrobatic feats.

The teeming insect life of the tundra supplies snow buntings with food all summer. Plant life though not scarce, is stunted, so that even a light snowfall is apt to bury seeds on which these buntings live in winter. Then they are obliged to fly south, and are sometimes found on our farmers' fields in flocks varying from twenty a dozen or more, gathering up the seeds from any leftover grain or weeds. These are pale, sparrow-sized birds that look quite white when they fly.

An influx of snowy owls is something that happens only every four or five years, and is due to a poor supply of lemmings in their northern haunts in the tundra. Then they make for dump and garbage piles or any other spot where mice and rats can be found to take the place of their favorite lemmings. These are very large, white or nearly white birds with glassy, golden eyes.

One winter day a city dweller heard a thud on the window, and found a good sized hawk lying stunned on the sill. It was much bigger than a crow, dark blue-grey on upper parts, light underneath, with a long tail barred across at intervals with black. The wings were broad and rounded, there was a white stripe over the eye, and it had a black cap. The S.P.C.A. when called in to a goshawk. These fine birds breed in northern wooded regions of Canada and the mid-arctic leave home only when food conditions demand it. Then they visit settled Canada and the U.S. Although their diet up north is almost exclusively lemmings, here they catch ground birds, such as grouse and small animals, and carry a decoy meal.

The Northern shrike is another bird of prey oblige to travel south in hollow years or weedy years. We know of its presence when we find our hawthorn bush decorated with mice which it has caught and hung on the thorns.

Dave West Makes Big Comeback

TORONTO (CP)—Dave West, 23 year-old Toronto athlete, in danger of never walking again after breaking his back has made one of the biggest come backs of the past year in sports.

West was injured Sept. 7 at a football practice with University of Toronto Blues and landed in hospital. He soon learned that his hip had been dislocated and there was a possibility he might never walk again. There was 30-per-cent chance of paralyses.

However, West was determined to show the doctors they were wrong. He spent 15 days in the hospital and another three weeks on crutches. Then he walked with a limp. His intensive training has been a miracle circumference than the good one.

The young athlete started working out and before long he was playing basketball. The basketball Blues have played three exhibition games this season and West has scored 80 points.

He still has a bone chip floating in his hip but says he feels the pain for three or four hours after a game, but he says he has learned to live with it and is playing his play.

My teammates tell me I'm slower than I was," he says, "but I don't notice it."

His ambition is to become the highest scorer in the history of the Senior Intercollegiate Basketball League this year. He averaged 26.5 points a game last season and has a career total of 697 points to his 281 scored by record - holder Gene Rizak, a former star with University of Western Ontario Mustangs and McMaster University Marauders.

TATUM BREAKS LEG

HOUSTON (AP) — Goose Tatum suffered a broken leg in the closing minutes of an exhibition game Saturday night. It is his first serious injury in 25 years of professional basketball. He had scored 30 points to lead Harlem Road Kings to an 87-58 victory over New York Olympians.

Unveil Plaque To Macdonald In Glasgow

GLASGOW (CP) — Canadian High Commissioner Paul Martin Chevrier said today he hopes and prays that all Canadians will live up to the fine human ideals exemplified by Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister.

Chevrier spoke at the unveiling of a church plaque dedicated to Macdonald in the Glasgow parish where he was born 150 years ago.

Praising Macdonald as the foremost of statesmen who founded Confederation, Chevrier said Confederation was "a remarkable accomplishment of political statesmanship" between English - speaking and French-speaking Canadians.

Canadians were never searching for new compromises and for renewed national purpose. In this search, said Chevrier, Macdonald proved that all Canadians will remain true to the national ideals and noble traditions which Canada's first prime minister exemplified by word and deed."

Kingstonians Hold Prelude To Ceremonies

KINGSTON (CP) — The anniversary of Sir John A. Macdonald's birth has often gone by unnoticed, even in this city where he began his political career.

But this year is different. More than 1,000 Kingston residents took part in celebrations Sunday on the eve of the anniversary. Liberal and Conservative politicians will take part in ceremonies today marking the 150th anniversary of the birth of Canada's first prime minister.

Kingston citizens were dancing in the street Sunday and sang songs around a huge fire in city park. The bronze statue of Sir John looked down on the frolickers, estimated by a reporter to number up to 1,700 during the evening.

Sunday's event started with a parade around the park by costumed local — area antique cars, a drum-and-bugle band and tartan - clad majorettes. Within minutes every inn, hotel and Boyer of the Canadian Staff College chipped away at a 300-pound block of ice to create a likeness of Sir John.

Many of the men in the crowd sported beards in imitation of Sir John's day. These were grown for a contest to take place during the winter carnival which starts Jan. 24.

Sgt. Boyer's sculpture will stand outside the Kashtan Hotel today as dignitaries from all parts of Canada gather to pay the Father of Confederation.

Squeeze Play On Pension Plan Starts Tuesday

By DON BANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — A parliamentary squeeze play on the Canada Pension Plan begins here Tuesday with a gruelling schedule of mid-recess sittings by the joint Commons-Senate committee.

Twenty-four morning, afternoon and night sittings are to be crammed into 10 days in an ambitious effort to hear witnesses, study the 600 clauses in the complex pension bill and make a report to the two houses by Feb. 16 when the session reopens.

The Liberal majority on the committee, with the backing of two New Democrats, is struggling to finish the massive task as soon as possible so the plan can be enacted well before the summer to allow administrative machinery to be built before the scheme begins Jan. 1 next.

Prime Minister Pearson has given the pension bill — third version—top priority for passage before the current session, already a record 214 sitting days old, is prorogued. Also on the pre-prorogation list is the new labor code and the so-called "opting out" legislation.

WOULD ENACT THREE

The plan now is to have all three measures enacted, prorogue the session, then open a new session the next day with a throne speech full of new government proposals. Soon after would come Finance Minister Gordon's budget, considered likely to contain tax cuts.

Hence the widespread speculation about an early election, either called by the government or forced by the Opposition over contentious legislation or demands for so-called government "housecleaning" arising from the Dorion judicial inquiry.

The pension issue itself is further complicated by Ontario's position. Premier Robarts has said that while no decision has yet been reached, his province is considering whether to follow Quebec's lead and set up its own publicly - operated retirement pension plan.

A key provision in the federal legislation is that it applies in all provinces starting next Jan. 1 except where a province is operating a "comparable" system. Federal officials interpret this to mean a provincial plan charging identical contributions and paying the same benefits, covering the same group of people.

Even after hearing all witnesses, the committee still will face the gigantic task of fighting the battle of details. Both the Conservatives and New Democrats have hinted at amendments even the government may propose some.

Among the 28 witnesses to appear are some of the most outspoken critics of the federal plan.

ARE REMANDED

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Three Smiths Falls, Ont., men were remanded until Jan. 22 for appearance in court at Gananoque when they came before magistrate P. E. D. Baker of Kingston Friday on fraud charges involving $6,000. Test-Tube Babies Not Far Off Says Doctor

ST. PETER, Minn. (AP)—The day of test-tube embryos is not far off, says a Johns Hopkins University geneticist.

Dr. H. Bentley Glass Saturday urged creation of a group of leaders in science, medicine, religion, philosophy and other fields to consider questions that will arise when scientists grow embryos in test tubes.

Glass, here for a Gustavus Adolphus College symposium on man's future, gave his views in an interview with Victor Cohn of the Minneapolis Tribune.

He said biologists are getting closer to successful laboratory culture of reproductive cells and the next logical step will be to produce a human embryo.

"NO ONE KNOWS'

"No one knows how far it could be developed in the laboratory," Glass said, "but I believe it would never become a normal human being unless implanted into a human mother.

"I believe this too will be done, that laboratory - grown embryos will be implanted into women who want to be mothers. It will make artificial insemination unnecessary."

"The question is, are they ethical?" he asked. "Would it be murder to dispose of such embryos or fetuses when an experiment is done?"

THE LARGEST EGG IN THE WORLD can now be seen at the Dunsedoot Lobbocha Museum in West Germany where it belongs to the city's natural science collection. The valuable original of the more than 10 inch high huge egg will not be on display but an excellent plastic replica. Up until now such eggs that were laid by prehistoric birds millions of years ago were only found on the island of Madagascar. These finds are naturally extremely rare and accordingly valuable. A Berlin collection happened to purchase this original quite by chance. The egg was considered a trick and was nearly thrown away. The Berlin collector at first believed that it was merely the replica of a prehistoric egg. When it turned out that he had purchased a real prehistoric egg, he immediately began to purchase this original quite by chance. The egg was found in a tent of 14 pints, which corresponds to seven ostrich eggs or 183 hen's eggs. The humming bird egg placed next to the giant egg makes the huge dimensions of the prehistoric bird's egg appear even greater.

'There Came a Man' Will Be Film on Pope John

SOTTO IL MONTE, Italy (AP)—Here in this small north Italian mountain village where Pope John XXIII was born, an Italian movie director working with a crowd-tough-guy Rod Steiger is trying to capture on film the essence of the late pope who stirred the heart of the world with his kindness.

For Rod Steiger the role in a movie about Pope John is a radical departure from most of the parts he's been in.

The format of the color film, directed by Ermanno Olmi, is a radical departure, too. It is a semi-documentary with few professional actors. No attempt is being made to make Steiger resemble Pope John. Olmi thought this would have been poor taste.

Instead, Steiger will act as a commentator, speaking directly to the audience from the screen as he traces the life and work of Pope John. From time to time he will step into the action of the picture to represent John in different stages of his life, wearing a cassock but without any further attempt at physical resemblance.

The title of the film is E Venne un Uomo—There Came a Man. It is taken from the New Testament Gospel of St. John, which says: "There came a man, one sent from God, whose name was John." (John 1:6).

SEVERAL LOCATIONS

Shots will be made on location here and in Venice, Istanbul, Sofia, Paris—places where Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli served as Vatican diplomat or pastor before becoming Pope John—and in Rome itself.

Steiger has starred in other Italian movies. But like most foreign actors working in the Italian cinema he will speak in his own language in the Pope John film and the Italian voice will be dubbed in.

"I accepted the role with great enthusiasm," Steiger said. "I feel I can faithfully interpret his character."

"When I was asked to make this movie, my first impulse was to refuse," he said.

It sounded terribly irreverent to me. But after reading Pope John's own Diary of a Soul and others of his works, my hesitations vanished. I even became convinced that this movie had to be done sooner or later."

Diary of a Soul consists of writings by Pope John, largely from his diary and letters. It was published after his death by his secretary, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Loris Capovilla.

Opposition Claims Govt. Laying Groundwork for New Charges of Obstruction

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Some of the last week's crystal-ball forecasting about the probable length of the resumed parliamentary session has made certain opposition MPs suspicious that the government is laying the groundwork for renewed charges of obstruction against the Progressive Conservatives.

Considerable surprise greeted the statement of Privy Council President George Mcilraith, government leader in the Commons, that he expects the session to conclude shortly after it resumes Feb. 16. Parliament then would immediately embark on a brand new session.

Veteran Conservative M.P.'s like Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River) and Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) say they can't see MPs being rushed into giving approval in a matter of a few days or a week or two to the important pieces of legislation planned for the new session.

And another important item, rules changes, comes up for consideration before anything like under the current Commons rules. It would take almost unanimous agreement to set the rules changes recommendations aside.

Mr. Baldwin says Mr. Mcilraith's expectations are based more with an eye to possible obstruction charges against the Conservatives than with a serious hope of disposing of important items quickly.

CALLED INSURANCE

They represented a sort of insurance that if the minority government wanted to call an election, it was in danger of being forced out by the combined opposition, obstruction would be a ready-made excuse.

He and Mr. Lambert noted that Mr. Mcilraith coupled his forecast of a quick winding up of the current session with a statement that there won't be an election this year.

They see this as a political manoeuvre indicative of the minority governments to work themselves into a position to blame the opposition for an election.

Perhaps the Conservatives should be prepared in detecting such signs. It was on a charge of obstruction that John Diefenbaker asked the Governor-General to dissolve Parliament for the March, 1958, general election.

That time he was accusing the Liberal opposition of blocking Parliament's work and was in command of a minority government just as the Liberals are today.

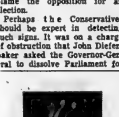
USE AN OLD PLOY

The opposition ploy, when faced by public statements such as that of Mr. Mcilraith, is to agree there's no reason for the Commons to take too long on the legislation. However the opposition usually adds ominously that it won't be a rubber stamp.

Even without such a rider in the present circumstances, the two main legislative items—the Canada Pension Plan and the national labor code—are important.

The pension plan is both voluminous and complicated. It still faces detailed examination by the Commons. This could take several days.

The government is understood to be preparing a number of amendments to the labor code to meet objections to minimum hour and wage provisions voiced by truckers and grain elevator companies. The bill and these amendments probably will spark some debate in the Commons.



But one of the first tasks will be the rule changes. Debate on them takes precedence over all other matters.

Because the changes recommended involve fundamental alterations in the way which Parliament does its work, a lengthy debate is possible.

Biggest Fleet Of Royal Navy Guards Malaysia

Britain's Best Carrier Joins 70 Other Ships

The aircraft carrier Eagle, Britain's most formidable warship, arrived Monday to join the Far East fleet of more than 70 ships. It includes the carrier Victorious, the commando ship Bulwark, guided missile destroyers and frigates.

Defence preparations were being rushed ashore. The current goal is about 9,000 troops in North Borneo, where Indonesia shares a 900-mile jungle border with Malaysia. The troops are to include 500 hardfighting Nepalese Gurkhas being flown from Hong Kong, beginning Wednesday.

Helicopters are to shuttle half the Gurkha battalion to the border as soon as it arrives in Borneo. The rest will move up by truck and on foot.

Any major Indonesian thrust is expected on Borneo, where intelligence sources reported a heavy build-up along the border.

The fleet serves as a safeguard against a major invasion of Singapore or the Malaysian mainland.

"If they come across the water in any force, they'll be sitting ducks," said a Malaysian officer.

But he pointed out that small guerrilla groups can, and do, slip across the Strait of Malacca.

British Army Minister Fred Mulley toured the defence lines in Borneo and assured Malaysian officials of Britain's full support.

Gen. Sir James Cassels, scheduled to take over shortly as Britain's chief of the general staff, is arriving today for a week's tour.

Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley said in London: "It would be fatal to peace in the Far East if we permitted small nations to be crushed at the point of the gun."

Indonesia's President Sukarno has vowed to crush Malaysia, considering that the federation is a British scheme to keep a colonialist hold on the area.

Indonesian guerrillas have been landing in small numbers on the Malaysian mainland since August. Security forces are still hunting 11 guerrillas who landed Friday in a party of 26. The others were captured.

In line with its announced withdrawal from the United Nations and its specialized agencies, Indonesia boycotted a session in New York Monday of the UN special fund's 24-nation governing council. But no attempt was made to replace the Indonesian second vice-president of the council.

31 Poker Players Wounded

GARDENA, Calif. (AP)—Revealed fire by a berserk gunman today wounded at least 31 persons at one poker parlor, and possibly several more at two other establishments nearby, police reported.

Within one hour after the shootings, officers had booked on suspicion of attempted murder a 70-year-old man who they said came at them with two revolver blazing.

They said they captured Louis Koullapis of Gardena by startling him with a shot fired into the ground, then rushing him and wrestling him to the ground.

Police said his car matched the description of the one which drove by the Rainbow Club at the time a flurry of shotgun and pistol fire began toppling patrons from their seats at poker tables.

Police said three of the persons were critically injured.

Officers said the wounded were taken to hospitals in the neighborhood—a Los Angeles suburb and the only one in which the playing of draw poker is legalized.

COUNT BULLET HOLES

Police counted at least 16 bullet holes in the floor-to-ceiling window which faces on South Vermont Street and provides a full view of the playinside.

Witnesses said the gunman apparently pulled up to the curb outside the Rainbow Club, then fired a volley of shots through the window, switching weapons from time to time.

One special officer at the Rainbow Club said the patrons —as many as 200 of them—were so astounded when the shooting started that they didn't move.

Dave Whitmore, 28, a special officer at the Rainbow Club, ran out to the sidewalk during the gunfire and was wounded, police said.

Witnesses said the gunman then drove on along the street, firing one shot into the Monterey Club next door and one at the Horseshoe Club several blocks away.

U.S. Firms Are Trying to Block Free Trade Pact on Autos, Parts

WASHINGTON (CP)—A double-barrelled threat against expanding imports of Canadian auto parts was signalled today by American competitors.

Legal action is being taken today in federal district court here to force the United States treasury department to impose higher duties on Canadian imports, said an American industry statement. This is aimed at a system of Canadian tariff incentives inaugurated in November, 1962.

The statement also warned of intent to oppose through Congress an alternative Canadian-U.S. agreement now close to being signed. Negotiations started after American industry concern was expressed

Macdonald-Cartier Freeway Name Given 401 by Robarts

KINGSTON (CP) — Ontario's tribute to Sir John A. Macdonald begins at the border of Quebec. It is a four-lane stretch of concrete and pavement that runs for almost 550 miles southwesterly to Windsor.

It is the greatest thoroughfare in Canada—a super highway that henceforth will be known as the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, even if highway engineers consider the name a little too unwieldly for signs along its route.

The Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, formerly highway 401, was given its name by Premier Robarts Monday night at a dinner marking the 150th birthday of Sir John A., architect of Canadian Confederation and Canada's first prime minister.

Mr. Robarts said he was appending to Macdonald's name that of Cartier—Sir George Etienne Cartier—because he too was a Father of Confederation.

"whose 160th birth date last Sept. 6 had gone by almost unnoticed.

Describing Cartier as a great son of French Canada, Mr. Robarts said the 150th anniversary of his birth "did not receive the attention that it merited and we are going to make amends."

Ontario was particularly anxious on the birthday of Macdonald, said Mr. Robarts, that "something should be done to further symbolize for this and future generations of Canadians that the foundations of this beloved land of ours were laid by the people of English and French Canada."

Members Named To Boards

OTTAWA (CP)—All appointments to the 10 provincial redistribution commissions that are charged with revamping the federal electoral map have been decided and only a few formalities remain before the massive job begins.

Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton, as a matter of courtesy, is writing this week to the five party leaders to inform them of his 20 choices—two for each four-man commission.

Commission chairmen, chosen by the provincial chief justices from their colleagues on the bench, have also been selected.

Diefenbaker Says Praises Sung At Kingston Banquet Would Confuse Old Chief

McIlraith and Lesage's Spokesman Join in Lauding Old Tory Leader

By JAMES NELSON

KINGSTON (CP) — Is Canada ready to break through its political sound barrier to non-partisan praise of Sir John A. Macdonald, its first prime minister?

George McIlraith, president of the Privy Council, representing Prime Minister Pearson at a banquet Monday night honoring Macdonald's 150th birthday anniversary, said it's time it was done.

And Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the praises which the Liberal cabinet minister of today poured on the Conservative leader of yesteryear would make it difficult for Macdonald to recognize himself.

Kingston and its historical society which organized the birthday celebration did themselves proud in honoring the city's most memorable resident—the young Scot who moved here and became an alderman at the age of 28. In 1844 he became an MP and for 47 years he was the foremost figure in Canada.

Lieutenant - Governor Earl Rowe of Ontario, Conservative Premier John Robarts of Ontario and Quebec Provincial Secretary Bona Arsenault, a Liberal, joined in praise of Macdonald as the true father of his country whose memory needs strengthening in today's trials.

SHOW NO BIAS

The crowd, drawn largely from Kingston and eastern Ontario communities, applauded the speakers generously and apparently without political bias.

Professor Donald Creighton of the University of Toronto, author of a two-volume work on Macdonald, wound up the marathon speech-making near midnight with an assertion that only Macdonald's strength of will and optimism carried Confederation through its trials nearly 100 years ago.

Touching on the historian's controversy over who made the greatest contribution to the Canadian union, Prof. Creighton said Macdonald's arch political foe, George Brown, had made a heroic and magnanimous contribution in joining the pro-Confederation coalition.

But Brown's purposes were sectional and at most provincial in scope, while Macdonald's were national, Prof. Creighton said.

The banquet was held in the LaSalle Hotel ballroom under a banner "You'll never die, John A."—a remark made by a Tory supporter at one of Macdonald's last political rallies in 1891 was the theme of the evening.

But Mr. Arsenault picked up

Disallow Name In Bribe

MONTREAL (CP) — RCMP Constable Gilles Poissant testified at the Dorion inquiry today that he heard about a bribe offer on or about July 3, 11 days before an alleged bribe offer to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne.

The 29-year-old constable said the bribe offer concerned someone other than Mr. Lamontagne, who has sworn he was offered $20,000 July 14 to agree to release on bail Lucien Rivard, wanted in the United States on narcotics-smuggling charges.

Constable Poissant said this first bribe offer also concerned the Rivard case.

He also testified that he knew about a bribe offer to Mr. Lamontagne on or about July 20 and that this matter had been discussed freely among members of the RCMP Montreal narcotics squad.

RCMP counsel Norman Mathews pleaded that Constable Poissant not be obliged to give details about the bribe offer he had heard about around July 3.

'A DEATH SENTENCE'

Mr. Mathews said that if names were revealed "it would impose a death sentence" on a certain person.

From previous statements by Mr. Mathews, it was believed that the RCMP counsel was referring to Constable Poissant's informer concerning an initial bribe offer.

Mr. Mathews said he was not referring to a Crown prosecutor, said.

Earlier there had been RCMP testimony that Mr. Lamontagne, a Crown prosecutor in narcotics cases, had feared he might end up on "the bottom of the river."

Chief Justice Dorion ruled out questions concerning the source

Old People Neglected Is Claim

TORONTO (CP)—A University of Toronto medical professor accused the Ontario health and welfare department Monday of passing the medical care of old people.

Dr. Cope Schwerger, assistant professor in the school of hygiene, told the provincial legislature's select committee on aging he had heard a "leak" is the effect that the proposed provincial medical care program may give free medical care to everyone in Ontario who doesn't earn enough to pay income tax.

"If this is so, I'm going to be awfully happy for our old people," he said. "A study showed that in 1961, 85 per cent of our old people didn't pay income tax."

Insurance Firms Hit Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Life Insurance Office Association said today the Canada Pension Plan is inherently unstable.

Instead of implementing the plan, said the association in a brief to the joint Senate-Commons committee on the Canada Pension Plan, the government should extend the old age security program by lowering the qualifying age and increasing benefits.

The association is formed by 102 Canadian, United States, British and other European companies who have in force 95 per cent of the life insurance business in Canada. The pension plans administered by member companies cover about one-quarter of the Canadians in all private plans.

Course Charted by Economic Council Studded With Elusive Targets

OTTAWA (CP)—A challenging and complex economic course, studded with elusive targets, has been charted by the Economic Council of Canada in hopes of sending the country into the 1970s on a crest of prosperity.

The course, by the council's own admission, is going to be extremely difficult to follow.

About 1,500,000 new jobs must be created between 1965 and 1970; there must be a 30-per-cent increase in total real output, along with a 38-per-cent increase in real per capita income; the employment rate should be 97 per cent; there should be productivity gains of 2.4 per cent a year for each employed person, compared with one per cent from 1956 to 1963.

"The magnitude of this challenge is indicated by the fact that we need to achieve, in these seven years, approximately the same increase in total employment that occurred over the previous 14 years," said the first report of the 28-member advisory council.

The council, 18 months old, is headed by John J. Deutsch, a Saskatchewan - born economist who is a former assistant deputy minister of finance and vice - principal of Queen's University.

Calling for strong, well-planned expansionary policies, the report said a large sustained growth in total effective demand is imperative if high employment is to be maintained.

"An appropriate combination of strong expansionary policies is therefore required to generate adequate levels of demand both at home and in export markets in support of rapidly expanding employment."

Mr. Deutsch declined to say at a press conference whether this was really advocating cuts in income taxes. "It's not the job of the council to strive budgets," he said. "We lay down a kind of broad principle and a basic course of action."

But he said the fiscal system should be designed in such a way that it will not inhibit growth.

Many of the challenges were laid at the feet of the government. Greatly expanded exports, particularly those in secondary manufacturing industries, were advocated along with a lessening of trade barriers, more export credits, and stronger policies in fiscal, monetary and the labor market fields.

Policies must be "stronger than now," said Mr. Deutsch.

The council also called for a "reasonable degree of price and cost stability" in the years ahead.

"We are well aware of the fact that we are setting for the Canadian economy the task, over the balance of this decade, of maintaining as good a performance concerning price and cost stability under prosperous conditions, as that which was actually achieved over the last decade under conditions of relatively high unemployment and relatively slow growth."

One of the most striking findings of the council was that about 1,500,000 new jobs must be created by 1970 to absorb the post-war baby boom and maintain the "realistic objective" of 97 per cent employment.

"Canada is moving towards one of the highest rates of labor force expansion in its entire history." An expected increase of 2.8 per cent in the 1965-70 period would be one-third higher than the average increase in the previous five-year period.

Workers in the 20-24 age group are expected to increase by 33 per cent in the next five years, and by 57 per cent in the 1960-70 period. The 10-year increase of 270,000 compares with an increase of only 25,000 in this age group during the 1950s.

There will also be a dramatic increase in the number of working women. From a total of 1,500,000 in 1960, the female work force is predicted to rise to 2,500,000 by 1970. This will account for almost one-third of the entire labor force.

Not only these new workers but existing unemployed persons must be absorbed into the work stream, says the council. And Mr. Deutsch said most of the new jobs must come from secondary industry.

Employment in Canada's primary industries — agriculture, forestry, fishing and mining—is expected to decline by about 100,000 between 1963 and 1970. Most of the decrease would be in agriculture.

The 80,000 word report represents Canada's first venture in advisory-board economic planning. In laying out its proposed course for the country for the next five years, it said Canada has fallen far short of its potential in recent years.

Mr. Deutsch told the press conference this was due to several factors. Demand for Canadian raw materials fell off sharply, there was a slowdown in investment, the overall rate of the Canadian dollar "inappropriate" and Canada's best customer, the United States, was experiencing a slowdown.

In setting an objective of 97 per-cent employment — this would mean an average unemployment rate of three per cent of the labor force — council said this was not necessarily the ultimate goal, but it did represent a "realistic" objective. Mr. Deutsch said if economy exceeded the prescribed course, the unemployment average might be durably shaved.

He said the council places great emphasis on the role of foreign markets for Canada's manufactured goods and we are to get the kind of dynamic expansion needed, we must put new emphasis on manufactured goods. It looked towards a 12-per-cent annual increase in the export of such goods.

Kiwanis Sheltered Workshop Found '64 Profitable Year

The Kiwanis Sheltered Workshop found 1964 a profitable year, and increased their permanent staff from three to six.

Purpose of the workshop is to allow its handicapped workers to be independent and self-supporting, rather than draw funds from public organizations.

Most work consists of light assembly, packaging, soldering and brazing projects, and repair work on materials local companies have returned from their customers.

In 1964 the worshop serviced eight local companies and a number of private organizations. Manager Alexander Fedirka explained their organization will consider all types of work and is always on the lookout for new projects.

Owned by the workshop is a plastic sealing machine capable of handling widths up to 14 inches. The open ends of the bag are placed on a reduced counter, and a heated bar clamps down, melting the open ends for seals.

An adjustable spring making machine allows the workshop to roll springs to any given size.

SUPPLIED BY CLUB

Solder rings are melted onto printed circuit boards by passing the boards under an electrical circuit which emits heat and welds the solder to the board.

Since the premises, light and heat are supplied by the Kiwanis Club—the workshop is located on the main floor of their building—overhead is low and workshop rates are reasonable.

When Kiwanian Neil Davidson was transferred from Montreal to Belleville, he suggested a similar program be started here.

The proposal was accepted and by November 1963 the Belleville workshop was opened.

Part of the workshop's program is to locate outside employment for workers who show they are capable of industrial work, and to aid the workers to further their education.

Canadians face "difficult and exacting tasks" to achieve in seven years high employment, productivity gains coupled with price stability and reasonable international payments situation.

Unemployment by 1970 at three per cent of labor force —against the present five per cent — proposed as realistic medium-term target.

1,500,000 new jobs needed by 1970 to match growth in labor force, increasing at highest rate in Western world.

Fifty - per - cent increase in total real output by 1970 over 1963 urged as prime Canadian target.

Failure to attain the report's basic economic objectives "would bring heavy costs in terms of unemployment and slow gains in living standards." Success "would bring great benefits."

Government tax policy should be framed to promote growth of demand in economy and with an eye on competitive position of Canadian producers.

"Responsible restraint in both wage demands and business pricing policies" needed if economic objectives are to be achieved."

New emphasis needed in Canadian commercial policy aimed at improving the country's world trading position.

Steps urged to remove institutional trade barriers, which "may inhibit large exports" by foreign-owned Canadian firms.

Need to tune Canada's economic policy to long - term, rather than short - term, factors.

Federal capital works planning five years in advance to enhance orderly and consistent decisions in government and business.

Agreement among federal and provincial governments to consult on current economic conditions, as a guide to fiscal policies, a development of "potentially great importance."

Greater resources urged for bureau of statistics to provide information needed for long-term and regional economic analysis.

Successful attainment of basic economic and social objectives the most effective "war on poverty."

Consideration needed for retraining gaps in social welfare programs, particularly medical care, with special attention to needs of the aged and the poor."

Future change and growth likely to be curtailed if deflation and negative approaches prevail among government, business and labor.

Prompt improvement in labor market policy seen as urgent need.

Experts Lean to Theory Earthquake Caused Slide

HOPE, B.C. (CP)—Highways Minister P. A. Gagiardi says he "concludes" an earthquake caused a gigantic slide that killed four persons near here Saturday.

The minister made further inspections in a helicopter Monday of the cracked mountain and debris filled valley 110 miles east of Vancouver.

He said the same giant ice stood on top of the mountain and split it with an axe like you would split a block of wood," he said in an interview.

"There is absolutely no reason, other than a quake, for a slide to take place in this area."

DETECT TREMORS

Two small tremors were detected on their recording equipment, one at 3:58 a.m. and the other at 6:38 a.m. PST.

The slide rumbled through the half-mile-wide valley 10 miles east of here between 4:45 a.m. and 6:30 a.m.

Mr. Gagiardi estimated that 15,000,000 cubic yards of debris filled the valley. He said that is equivalent to about 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 tons of rock, earth and timber.

Searchers were to climb back atop the slide today to continue digging for still missing Dennis Artis, 23, and Mary Kaliszuk, 21, both of Hockerton.

Autopsies were performed on two bodies pulled from the rubble near the east side of the 1½-mile-long slide that covered the southern transcontinental highway to a depth of up to 400 feet.

WAS CRUSHED

They showed that Thomas Starchuk, 39, of Aldergrove, B.C., was crushed when he was buried from the cab of his hay truck and that Bernie Lloyd Beck, 27, of Penticton, B.C., suffocated.

The body still to be uncovered were believed to have climbed into the cab of a tank truck that was stalled in preliminary slide.

Mr. Gagiardi said "my feeling is there was a tremor that split the mountain and sent those tons of material downthe first slide."

He believed that took the underdeveloped from that the mountain and pressure of millions of tons of rock built up to a critical point and then the mountain cracked from peak to foot.

Motor Vehicle Production Up 5.9 pc in 1964

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of motor vehicles in Canada in 1964 rose 5.9 per cent to 670,582 units from 633,351 in 1963, the bureau of statistics said today.

The gain took place despite a sharp drop in output in December and large declines in November, October and July. Declines in "the last quarter were accompanied by a shortage of imported parts from strike-bound United States automobile plants.

Output of all vehicles in December dropped 21 per cent to 47,990 units from 60,504 a year previous.

Passenger car production in December fell 31.8 per cent to 40,844 units from 59,905 a year previous and commercial vehicle output dropped 25.6 per cent to 7,146 units from 9,599.

However, passenger car production rose 4.9 per cent in the year to 580,292 units from 534,-031 and commercial vehicle output advanced 11 per cent to 110,190 units from 99,-248.

Survives Fall From Golden Gate Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 16-year-old high school student has survived a fall from the Golden Gate Bridge into San Francisco Bay, only the second known to have lived after the 220-foot drop.

The boy, identified as Tom Tawzer of nearby Livermore, Calif., was reported recovering today in hospital from a broken collarbone and three or four broken ribs.

The coast guard said Tawzer was treading water when they rescued him Monday. Doctors said they were amazed at the boy's good condition.

Bridge authorities list 778 known to have died in suicide leaps from the structure.

CLIMBS RAIL

Witnesses told patrolmen Tawzer climbed to the top of a bridge rail and went feet first into the bay.

Below the bridge an outbound freighter, Golden Bear, was headed directly toward the floundering boy. Police lighted a flare gun to attract the attention of the freighter, which veered and missed the boy by 10 feet. The coast guard rescue boat then reached him, only eight minutes after he hit the water.

"I was walking on the bridge," the boy was quoted. "The next thing I remember I was in the water."

The only other person who survived a leap from the bridge was Cornelia Van Ierland, she plunged into the bay on Sept. 3, 1941, when she was 22 years old.

Employment in Canada's Prime Industries Will Decline 100,000 by 1970

City Clerk Guest Speaker At Rotary Club

City clerk, Adam Stalker addressed the regular meeting of the Rotary Club of Belleville at the Hotel Quinte on Monday.

Mr. Stalker chose as his subject, "Duties Of A Municipal Clerk".

Clerk Stalker said that when municipal responsibilities and problems multiply, the duties of a clerk increase accordingly. He said that in order to achieve a genuine standing, a municipal clerk needs to sense the importance of his position, to take pride in his work and to see himself as part of a large and constructive community endeavor.

Mr. Stalker said that the position of a clerk is governed by very complex control. The clerk is a "statutory officer" whose duties are laid down in some detail in the statutes and whose actions are further circumscribed by the statutory requirements relating to the performance of particular municipal functions.

The speaker stated that every council is required by law to appoint a clerk and fix his salary, and in calling for applications for the position, the council is prohibited from requiring applicants to state the salary expected and from giving the appointment to the lowest tenderer.

The speaker added that if the clerk desires to perform the duties of his office with credit to himself and profit to his municipality, he must make himself familiar with the statutory requirements and the local by-laws.

More

CAN GIVE OATHS

In addition, Mr. Stalker said, the clerk by virtue of his office, qualified to administer an oath or take any declaration in the county or district in which the municipality is situated, including oaths or declarations relating to the business of the municipality.

During the past decade, Mr. Stalker continued, intensive study of personal problems, has revealed that most attractive quality of an executive, is his ability "to get along with people". A municipal clerk is no exception. The cultivation of the trait is a worthwhile project for any municipal officer.

In closing Mr. Stalker said that the pleasure of seeing a well-informed, aggressive council grappling intelligently with municipal problems is ample compensation to any conscientious, municipal employee. One might say, "if you like your work, it isn't."

Mr. Stalker has held the office of city clerk in Belleville for the past five years.

ASKS SUPPORT

Also present at Monday's meeting was Cecil Huiser of the National Bank, Eastern vice office in Belleville. The purpose of Mr. Huiser's visit to the club was to encourage all members to support the winter works "Why Wait For Spring-Do It Now" campaign.

Mr. Huiser said if members did not need work done at their own homes, perhaps they could encourage others to take advantage of the services and item available. "By doing this" he said, "ou may be helping a friend or neighbor obtain work who might otherwise be unemployed throughout the winter months."

OTTAWA (CP)—Employment in Canada's primary industries —agriculture, forestry, fishing and mining— is expected to decline by about 100,000 between 1963 and 1970, the Economic Council of Canada forecast today in its first report. Most of the decrease would be in agriculture.

With the Canadian economy moving towards its full potential output by 1970, the proportion of primary industries will keep pace, the report said.

"The indicated annual rate of growth for these industries is approximately three per cent, in comparison with a potential increase of 5.5 per cent for the economy as a whole."

The advisory council suggested that government assistance to primary industries has slowed their adjustment processes.

"Though government subsidies to ease adjustment burdens and maintain incomes in the face of unfavorable prices have not, on the whole, been a major feature of government policy in Canada, nevertheless such policies may, and in some cases have, delayed down adjustment processes."

"Long-term solutions to the adjustment problems in primary industries are best served by measures to expand markets, by policies which lead to more adequate educational and training facilities and by facilitating the movement from declining to expanding economic activities." MUST CONTINUE

It said such programs as income maintenance and price stability should not conflict with long-term objectives.

The council says there are indications that a substantial growth for agriculture products of two to three per cent a year until 1970, which is a high level of output and employment in the rest of the economy, agriculture employment is estimated to decrease by close to 100,000 from 641,000 in 1963 to about 540,000 in 1970.) This two-per-cent rate of decline would be less than the nearly four-per-cent rate since 1945.

Most of the employment decline would occur outside the Prairie provinces where the proportion of agriculture production is expected to rise.

Many of Canada's 400,000 farms, "particularly in eastern Canada, are too small to make efficient use of capital or labor without amalgamation with other farms, and some of them will have to be abandoned or used for non - agriculture purposes."

In forestry, the council says there are indications the industry will increase its output by one-third between 1963 and 1970. The employment force of four per cent would be double the growth rate since the war, and a large part of the growth would come from British Columbia.

FEW CHANGES IN EAST

In fishing in Manitoba, a relatively high degree of mechanization had been attained some time ago, but most of the work force is employed on a year-round basis. But in Eastern Canada until very recently there was little change in the methods used nor for centuries the introduction of the chain saw in the early 1950s."

However, the east appeared to be on the threshold of "substantial changes."

There would be some decline in forestry employment, most of it in Eastern Canada.

It was "reasonable to expect" that the Canadian fishing industry would increase its output by about three per cent a year, compared with two per cent since the war.

On the east coast the number of persons employed in the industry is high compared with output. "These problems tend to be perpetuated by the particular measures employed to support incomes, including the unemployment insurance system that applies to fishermen."

The mining industry is expected to increase output at an annual rate of five per cent, in line with over - all economic growth, but with increased output per worker no significant increase in the labor force is expected.

In general, says the report, the primary industries will not provide an outlet for the rapidly expanding labor force.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN for 1965 Belleville Public School Board. William VanTassel, Dr. J. Russell Scott, board chairman; Nelson McKibbon, G. H. Trill, and past chairman F. P. Clarke.

P. S. Trustees Vote Against Accepting Salary Payments; Elect Dr. R. Scott Chairman

Members of the Belleville Public School Board will not take advantage of provisions of the Schools Administration Act which allows payment of up to $60 per month for school trustees.

At the inaugural meeting of the board last night members by resolution decided against paying themselves salaries this year. Accordingly the amount of $10,800 for trustee salaries will not be placed in the public school supporters' tax bill this year.

Dr. J. Russell Scott, board member for the past 11 years, was named chairman for 1965. He succeeds F. P. Clarke, who served as chairman last year.

In his inaugural address, Dr. Scott stressed to board members that public school business in Belleville was now "big business."

Total expenditures last year amounted to $1,282,482 with a total staff of 252 people, with a gross payroll of $870,760. The value of school property is in excess of $5,000,000.

"Belleville may well be proud of the high standard of its public schools," stated the new board chairman, "and with the continued co-operation of the trustees, I shall try to maintain this high standard.

REMINDED OF FUNCTIONS

Dr. Scott reminded members that the function of trustees is to be policy makers — not administrative.

He said that board policies of previous years had proven sound and should be continued.

These policies included increased provision of facilities for the handicapped pupil and continuing membership and activities in the organization.

The board chairman said that in past years the sites and building committee had saved local taxpayers thousands of dollars in the purchase of undeveloped land for future school sites. These sites had been well chosen as to location, site and elevation.

BOUGHT FOR USE

"School sites are bought for future use and not for resale. The school board is not in the land speculation business," Dr. Scott said.

Continued co-operation with the secondary school board can save taxpayers dollars and would help education.

An example of this was the fact that consideration may be given by the public school board to the use of certain classrooms in the public school by high school classes until the fourth new high school is completed.

Dr. Scott was the unanimous choice of board members, for chairman and was presented with the gavel by member William VanTassel, former chairman, and the only remaining trustees who sat on the first public school board in 1952. Rev. Hary M. David of Bridge Street, United Church, announced the invocation.

School board members this year completing the second year of two-year terms are James Ritchie, W. A. VanTassel, Dr. J. Russell Scott, G. Hutchinson, M. Lovelace, Mrs. Hazel Pugh and J. N. McKibbon.

Elected by acclamation for 1965-66 were George Rutledge, G. H. Trill, Gerald Joyce, F. P. Clarke, L. A. Langabeer, Walter T. Elliott and H. Bronson.

Woxman said while net profit was down by per cent, total unit sales increased 8.3 per cent from the record established in 1963.

SHOW SLIGHT DROP

Average weekly wages in manufacturing in October declined to $84.46 from $84.78 in September, the bureau of statistics said Monday. The work week decreased to 41.6 hours from 41.7 while average hourly earnings were unchanged at $2.03. Weekly wages in October, 1963, averaged $80.93, the work week 41.4 hours and hourly earnings $1.96.

DROPS CHARGES

MEADVILLE, Miss. (AP)— The state dropped charges Monday against four white men accused of murdering two Negroes whose bodies were found in an offshoot of the Mississippi River last summer. James Seale, 29, and Charles Edwards, 31, were charged in the deaths of Charles Eddie Moore, 19, and Henry Herzekiah Dee, 19. Sources said the charges were dropped with the way open for further action because investigation revealed more persons may have been involved.

Medicare Plan Not Expected In Full by '70

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada expressed doubt today that any government - sponsored medicare plan for the country would be in full swing by 1970.

The advisory body, in its first report to the government, made no allowance for a national health insurance program in its projections to 1970 of government expenditures on health services.

It said there has been no formal statement of policy by the federal government regarding the major, long-run developments in publicly sponsored health insurance which were envisaged in the report last June of the royal commission on health services.

"Even if it were decided to proceed with the scheme, the problems involved in designing and implementing an appropriate program are such as to raise doubts whether significantly increased government outlays would develop by 1970."

MUST CONSIDER GAPS

Despite the extensive array of private and public social welfare payments and services now available, it was important to consider remaining gaps — for example, in medical care.

Clearly, most interest in this field centred on:

—Care for the aged whose needs are greatest.

—Care for the poor whose resources are inadequate.

—More effective rehabilitation services for both the physically and socially handicapped.

The council stated no preference for the type of medical care scheme, public or private. It said only:

"We are well aware that there are many complex questions involved in considering what combination of public and private means may be appropriate to the administration or financing of such advances in social welfare."

Maitre D' of Hotel Quinte Honored on Retirement

For the past 30 years, John Hegan of Belleville has been employed as a maitre d'. And for those same 30 years he has been employed by the same establishment — the Hotel Quinte.

On Friday night Mr. Hegan, better known as John, resigned from this position and was honored at a party by his fellow workers at the home of Mrs. Helen Reid.

Mr. Hegan came to Canada in 1923. He took up employment with the American Optical Company here where he worked for 17 years later taking up employment at the Officers' Mess at the RCAF Station, Trenton, holding his position there for seven years.

Mr. Hegan then came to work at the Hotel Quinte where he held charge over the Tropicana Room, the Pinnacle Room and the Prince Edward Suite.

The surprise party for Mr. Hegan was given by 40 of his co-workers and friends who presented him with a gold-framed wrist watch, cufflinks and matching gold candle sconces.

He is a member of Christ Church in Belleville. Mr. Hegan married former Margaret Lanier in 1926. The Hegan's have one son, Gerald, who is also married and resides in Edmonton, Alberta.

Mr. Hegan will be greatly missed by all his friends and customers in the city. Hegan says he is going to miss greeting the scores of people with whom he came in contact each day.

Mr. and Mrs. Hegan reside at The Belleville Club on Bridge Street.

Insurance

Among the criticisms:

—The plan would provide nothing for today's aged. Canadians not employed and those with low earnings would receive nothing.

—Benefits would rise with earnings and thus provide the most for those least in need.

—It would provide the largest bonuses to those with the highest pensionable earnings.

—The plan would push costs forward from one generation to another.

—Pressures to use the fund to fill gaps in private insurance coverage would certainly develop, and if they succeeded the fund would be shot to pieces by a tax increase.

—With integration of the old age security and private pension plans would be straightforward, the Insurance Bureau of Canada Pension Plan and many private plans would be complicated.

—The indexing benefits would be an admission that inflation does not exist.

—The addition of the plan to the old age security program would result in nearly one-half the population having little incentive to supplement their savings privately. This would be a large scale surrender of individual initiative and responsibility.

The brief said the proposed plan cannot be considered universal when some 2,000,000 Canadians fail to qualify because they are unemployed earn, too little, are in "excepted unemployment," do not receive cash remunerations or are now aged, widowed or disabled.

"The fundamental aim of a compulsory social security measure should be to provide protection for persons who specifically need help or everyone in a population group where need is widespread."

Copy Canadian Methods

The industrial town of Luton in England will erect a hundred Canadian-style timber frame houses. (In Britain, municipal councils supply much of the housing needs of the community.)

The Canadian Government has launched a program to boost timber framing in Britain, to increase the market for Canadian timber. The Luton project is interpreted as one of the first signs that this program is making a practical impact on British builders and local authorities.

The Luton Council adopted the method because houses can be built faster by the Canadian method than can traditional brick-and-mortar homes. The cost, however, will be higher, by 300 to 200 pounds sterling, than the cost for the average council-built home, 2,000 pounds. This means that the Canadian-style homes will cost from $6,900 to $8,400, and that the brick-and-mortar homes cost only $6,000, which seems extraordinarily low by Canadian standards. We must remember, though, that labor costs form a large proportion of the total expenditure on a house, and these costs are lower in Britain. The prices quoted probably do not include land costs. We hope, for the sake of Canada's reputation, that the Canadian-style homes are roomy and sound enough to create a good impression.

Plate Issue Is Slow

Hon. Irwin Haskett, Ontario Minister of Transport, says that absolutely no extension past Feb. 28 will be granted motorists for the purchase of 1965 auto licence plates.

Mr. Haskett says that motorists are proving tardy in obtaining the new plates. By the end of December, plates had been sold to bought for only 200,000 of the province's 1,700,000 cars. What with Christmas and its demands on pocketbook and time, we are surprised that so many acquired their plates before the New Year.

If the rate of issue is slower than usual, this may be because motorists are aware that this year only a few of them will have to go through the process of obtaining new driver's licences during the same period in which the plates will be sold. On might reasonably expect that this would speed up the issue of plates, but here a warning seems advisable. Motor licence offices may anticipate the same development and may decide to reduce staffs from those employed in the past years.

Better pick up those plates soon.

Sayings of the Famous

We do not know how many of our readers habitually peruse the short items at the bottom of this column. Those who do may have found, as we have, that some of them, particularly those quoting observations by famous men, are both disturbing anti rewarding. (We take no credit for the quotes, since these items are "scalped" from other publications.)

One thing which has struck us on reading words uttered or written decades or even centuries ago is the evidence they provide that there is little new under the sun. Time and again we have found some thought of ours, which we believed if not original was at least unusual, echoed in these sayings.

The other day, for instance, we came across this quotation from Samuel Johnson: "It is better to suffer wrong, than to do it, and happier to be sometimes cheated than not to trust."

The value of an observation such as this is not purely academic; it can be a guide to actions in situations which arise in everyday life.

Firm Proud of Record

Last year Clarendon Stamping (Birmingham) Co. Ltd., exported nearly one million brass bedstead knobs, most of them to West Africa, where they are status symbols.

This represented 85 per cent of the firm's total production. J. C. Mountford, the managing director of the British firm, takes a great deal of pride in that fact. It was, he says, no mean achievement for a small firm with only thirty employees to export such a high percentage of production.

We know one way Mr. Mountford can vastly improve the firm's record in 1965. All he has to do is to transfer the plant to Belleville and we can practically guarantee a higher percentage of exports.

If he can sell 150,000 brass bedstead knobs in Canada, we will start peddling ice cubes to Eskimos!

Passion is universal humanity. Without it religion, history, romance and art would be useless.—Balzac.

Getting Deep Tan Mostly Just a Cosmetic Fad

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about sun tan pills? All I have heard is that they aren't too satisfactory. Is this because of side effects? Can a redhead with no tanning pigment accept for a few freckles actually get a tan? A lot of us lily-whites would like to know more about these pills. — J. M.

I can't give you much encouragement, frankly. Development of the pills was a scientific achievement worthy of respect, but th. practical applications are a different matter — just as the discovery of Hertz waves was a scientific achievement but it was years before radio communication became a reality and a great deal longer before we could turn a switch and get music.

From the practical standpoint here's the picture: These pills must be taken under a physician's direction, and for a fairly long time, for them to maintain any change in the pigmentation of the skin. In addition there are toxic effects if the dosage is not strictly right, or if the patient happens to lack tolerance for the medication. Nausea, dizziness, and sometimes nervous effects.

I do not mean to pooh-pooh the medication, because it can, under these rigid conditions, make possible a certain amount of tanning for people who have exceptionally fair skins and otherwise just burn.

But it is a difficult and demanding process, and the amount of exposure to the sun that is kept within relatively small limits. It is not a question of taking a pill and then being able to stay out in the sun like some of the walrus-hide sunworshippers we see.

Redheads get a deep, dark tan, is in most cases, a cosmetic fad. It's a way of saying "I can afford a trip to Florida in the winter," or "Look at how much time I've spent lying on the beach this summer!"

Let this querulous remark not be taken amiss by people who like the outdoors and have skins which acquire a smooth tan. And let it not be resented by the hardworking people who build our roads, work our farms, play golf, plant gardens, or mow lawns for us. I have no word of criticism for them — spurred by being busy outdoors.

Anyway, for the redheads with fair skin, or the brunettes who burns easily, or (my sympathy to them) the very - whites with albino skin who get the miseries from a few minutes in the sun, my advice is to use the various lotions which filter out some of the "burning" rays and in addition accept the facts of your sensitivity to sun. Do your sunning gradually, and avoid a serious burn.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister was very sick when she first got pregnant, and to top it off her husband painted the apartment when she was three months along. The smell was so strong it lasted almost a week. Will this color affect her baby in any way? — Mrs. W.

I see no reason why it will harm the baby. Strong odors can be upsetting to anyone who is ill, or to pregnant women, and I can't say that her husband picked the most tactful time to do that painting.

(Note to Mrs. L. H.: Wetting the bed is one thing, not being able to wait during a five-mile ride to the shopping centre is another. Rather than considering this a "bed-wetting problem" I suggest that you arrange to have the child examined by a specialist. There may be a kidney or a bladder condition that should be corrected, instead of merely trying to 'train' the child.

Humane War Hard to Wage

New York Times

"Humane warfare" — the goal of the military chemists and toxicologists — appears to be a contradiction in terms.

As defined by the Army, "humane warfare" is the utilization of agents that would incapacitate an enemy temporarily but would not kill him or permanently injure him. This is a dream as old as man, and the Army deserves full support in its continuing attempts to turn dream into reality and to develop effective defenses against chemical and biological agents.

But it is a dream that is not going to be realized quickly — if ever. Unfortunately, the chemical agents that are most effective on the battlefield and can be most easily disseminated — among others, the nerve gases called in the United States the G-agents Tabun, Sarin and Soman—are lethal or can cause blindness or permanent incapacity.

The so-called psychochemicals on the other hand, which propertly used would cause only temporary incapacity or mental disorientation, give tremendous promise in the laboratory, but are most difficult to use on the battlefield. It is easy by the use of these agents to make a cat afraid of a mouse in a cage; but chemically and militarily the problem presents an altogether different order of magnitude if the objective is to neutralize an entire Army, and if dissemination must be in the open air over wide areas. This problem has not been solved.

A third group, the biological agents, are in many though not all cases a two-edged sword. An epidemic can sweep one's own nation as well as the enemy's. The problems of dissemination and of control are not easily resolved and the psychological and political disadvantages of "germ warfare" are major.

This does not mean that the Army's experiments should not be continued. They should be expanded and strengthened. The peaceful by-products of this research are tremendous. Hodgkin's disease, a new understanding of the mechanisms of epidemics and of the diagnosis and treatment of various diseases — are well worth the cost.

Chemical and biological agents — repulsive though they may be — are, like nuclear weapons, here to stay and an understanding of them and of the defenses that can be erected against them are essential to the nation's security. "Humane warfare" is not for us, but the attempt to achieve it is worthwhile.

Farm Safety

Charlottetown Guardian

Farm safety, particularly the safety of children on the farm, is getting more and more attention all across Canada. This is as it should be. It has been estimated that at least one child dies each month through hitching rides or driving a tractor on a public road. The child may be smart, but his parents are not.

Ottawa Offbeat
Prime Minister to Return To That Kitchen on the Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Back to Parliament Hill and what has been called "The Kitchen" of top Federal responsibility, from Palm Beach this morning, flies Prime Minister Pearson.

And although it's deepest winter here on The Hill, he's certain to find it hotter in the front of the Capital than ever it was for him in sunny Florida.

That's what he — and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, now returned from the Caribbean — did in getting out of what both men must have found to be this political pressure cooker.

That the Prime Minister was feeling the heat was almost painfully evident at his recent press conference.

Almost wistfully he wished for a happy, serene and peaceful New Year, then, as an aside, added that although it was infinitely desirable, it was impossibly unobtainable.

And, peering through a small forest of microphones at the 100 or so Parliamentary correspondents facing him in the front rows backed by a batter of television cameras, he recalled what surely, for him, had been a happier day.

EASY OLD DAYS

Strange how things changed, even the style of press conferences, he mused, almost to himself.

Now so many faces and so many of them new, and, to him, not particularly well known.

Now so many microphones and cameras. Radio tapes and short hand stenographers recording every word.

Gone were the easy old days when Louis St. Laurent was Prime Minister and he Minister for External Affairs.

Weekly, in those days, he would summon the Parliamentary reporters to the East Block conference room, and around the big green baize oval table, leisurely chew over the state of the world for a relaxed hour or so.

In front of him he would have a sheet of clippings from The New York Times Foreign service — External Affairs staffers, 'even to this day, put great stock in the good, grey Times — and around him would be ringed a score of familiar reportorial faces.

Now, all these years later, at this last press conference, he looked for looking for these same old and understanding faces, finding only a few, a Pearson comment still around, lost, almost, in the ever-growing mob of newer reportorial journalists on The Hill.

"I do not see you as often as I used to in the old days in the East Block office," he said with the Secretary of State for External Affairs," he said with a genuine tone of regret.

HARD NEW DAYS

"Back in those times it seemed such a simple matter to gather around and talk about the state of the world, didn't it?" he asked, and most of his listeners gaped, hardly knowing what he was talking about.

Then came the chuckle that the Prime Minister was finding "the best" in his particular "kitchen" of national responsibility something of an ordeal.

"It seems now that the state of the world is sometimes easier to talk about than the state of things here in Ottawa."

He was simply saying that running the world—as much as Canada ever could—was easier an administrative snap in those easy old days of pleasant External Affairs memories, compared to running the nation in these hard new times of unpleasant Prime Ministerial difficulties.

And it was so true.

Back then, the Canadian External Affairs Minister could scarcely be held personally responsible for anything or everything going wrong in the world. Today, the Prime Minister, he had to shoulder the blame for the many things Federal going wrong in the country.

The Prime Minister was quite frank to disclose that he had cancelled the brief vacation holiday planned for nearby Harrington Lake in the Gatineau Hills in favor of two weeks in Florida. He had switched simply because Harrington, as he put it, was "too close to Ottawa," and politically it would be a lot cooler in the Florida than in the Gatineau snows.

Astonishing

Fort William Times-Journal

An authority on education who hails from California thinks teachers should talk less and encourage pupils to talk more. That will astonish thousands who remember being "kept in" for talking.

Strictly Personal
Industry Tries To Rectify Shabby Past

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the first columns I wrote, nearly 20 years ago, was a lampoon of those ads which "represent that cigarette smoking is essential to social prominence, distinction, success or sexual attraction."

The above phrase in quotations is taken from the new advertising code of the cigarette manufacturers, just put into effect, and governing hundreds of millions of dollars worth of advertising.

When I wrote that column, I suggested that the cigarette industry was perpetrating a fraud on the public, and especially on the impressionable young. Now, two full decades later, the industry has decided to stop this kind of advertising.

Meanwhile, how many millions of youngsters have been seduced into the smoking habit by the constant reiteration that it was essential to social prominence and distinction, success or sexual attraction? And by the endorsements of athletes and movie stars? And by all the rest of that nonsensical panoply of enticements?

Those who fear "big government" and the encroachments of Federal control can't get out about "self-policing" by industries themselves. Nobody could be against that. But self-policing that takes 20 years to grow a set of teeth does not have a lot to recommend it.

Big government expands only in a vacuum. It tends to fill space that is not occupied. If the cities and counties and states had been able and willing to cope with the social and economic problems of the Great Depression, the Federal government would not have had to move in.

If socialized medicine comes to America, it will be because the American Medical Association can offer no more constructive beneficial program for millions of people who cannot afford a catrophic illness in the family.

If such agencies as the Federal Communications Commission, the Food and Drug Administration, and others, increase their control over private business, it will be because private business has been so unwilling to perform profits that long - term values are ignored.

There is a natural tendency in all government to measure as much power as it can get, and as it will be allowed. The way to stop this tendency is not to shout "Hands off!", but to do the work and voluntary effort that will later be done under official dictum. Business had learned to anticipate public needs and welfare.

The cigarette industry is late, but it is at least trying to rectify its shabby past. The successful road to state control is lack of self-control, for an industry as well as for an individual.

Courtesy Rewarding

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

One of the least expensive and most rewarding of all the intricacies of human conduct is the simple art of expressing thanks.

It can be shown vocally in writing or by gestures. It costs little and it sometimes has a value beyond price.

The Ontario Safety League urges motorists to acknowledge road courtesies with a smile, a wave or an inclination of the head.

No doubt many motorists, when they think of it, do just that. Certainly there are many opportunities on the road to extend courtesies and receive them.

Building Fourth High School First Project of Board, Ray Rowe New Chairman

Preparation of plans and a construction start on a fourth high school will be Bay of Quinte's business agenda this year for the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

This was stated last night by Raymond Rowe, of Frankford, 1963 board chairman, following his election at the inaugural meeting of the board. Mr. Rowe, a member of the board since Frankford came into the area in 1961, succeeds Gerald Wishart who remains as vice-chairman.

Discussion on plans for the new high school which will have a student accommodation for over 1200, took up most of the time at last night's inaugural meeting which saw four new members welcomed to the board.

28 CLASSROOMS

The new high school to be built in West Belleville in the West Bridge Street - Palmer Road area, will have a total of 28 classrooms, seven shops, three standard size gymnasiums, a cafeteria and auditorium with a seating capacity of 800.

A Federal grant of 75 percent will apply on the vocational section of the new school, while Department of Education grants will be applicable on the academic sections of the building.

Mr. W. Barnett of Barnett and Reider, architects for the new school building, attended the meeting and following a lengthy discussion was authorized to proceed with final plans and drawings.

NO SUBDIVISION

Radically New and Better Labor Market Policy Is Needed Says Council Report

OTTAWA (CP)—The urgent need for a radically new and better labor market policy in Canada was heavily underlined today in the report of the Economic Council of Canada.

Its chief recommendations:

1. The government must be prepared to pay the cost to move workers to new jobs in new areas, if necessary. The alternative was a big bill for unemployment relief — really nothing much more than "public subsidization of unproductive labor."

2. Urgently needed is greater "occupational mobility" and improved education, training and re-training of both new entrants to the labor force and those already holding down jobs.

3. A major improvement must be made in the operations of the National Employment Service. It could no longer be neglected if the formidable labor problems ahead for Canada are to become manageable.

These would be politically delicate decisions for any government.

The council, an advisory body said in part:

"There is perhaps no problem of greater complexity for labor market authorities than that of facilitating industrial and geographical mobility."

There are a lot of social problems. Others had acted.

SHOULD ASSIST MOVING

But much could be done to overcome the financial obstacle, in cases where workers, by themselves couldn't afford to move. The employment service should have the means to provide "adequate financial assistance."

Already, the NES has authority to pay half the costs of these moves when an employer in a province agrees to pay the other half. The council implied that this authority should be used.

"The objection that the financial cost of an adequate program is one which society cannot afford is not economically valid," said the report.

"On the contrary, there is eventually a net economic return to society from such an investment.

"An unproductive worker and his family suffering from prolonged unemployment in a depressed industry or locality must be supported.

"In cold economic terms, this is nothing more than public subsidization of unproductive labor. This is a cost which the economy cannot afford."

Some programs already were operating. But they were not being used sufficiently.

"Just making training programs available was not enough. Those most in need of training often were the most uninformed about their plight; often they had no understanding of their need for training to get a job.

River Valley Women's Institute Bases Topic on Health

Mrs. Vernon Harry was hostess on Thursday for the regular meeting of River Valley Women's Institutes. There were 19 members and one visitor in attendance and four pre school children.

The first vice-president Mrs. Glenn Bush presided and conducted the opening exercises. Mrs. Ernest Carr read the various items of correspondence which included thank-you notes. She also distributed the recipe books prepared by the nutrition section of the home economics service extension branch of the Department of Agriculture. Mrs. J.R. Donohoe gave a full financial report. Mrs. Norman Rosebush was transferred from Havelock W.I. with the necessary fee money.

This makes six life members and 32 annual members to date.

The various conveners gave their reports and Mrs. Jack Bush told how to soften butter with a hot bowl. Mrs. Vernon Harry gave a synopsis of the six courses held at the rural community night school with a registration of 93 people. Mrs. Roy Irvin gave a message re the Christmas display at the Hastings County Museum, Belleville. Mrs. Percy McMullen told the group that next week they would receive an invitation to attend the 20th anniversary of Pine Grove Institute to be held in February.

DISTRIBUTES DIARIES

As a Friendship Link secretary Mrs. McMullen has distributed the individual golden Jubilee diaries from Abbott Leigh W.I. She read a letter of thanks for the parcel of net scrubbers received on December 19 in England. This year the W.I. movement in England is celebrating its 50th anniversary and are paying special tribute to their organizer the late Mrs. Alfred Watt of Canada who pioneered this work in 1915. A special challenge is planned when golden goblets will be used to gather extra pennies in order to play a worthwhile part in a rapidly changing countryside, and the world at large. The display included an illustrated booklet by the Sunblest Bakery in England.

Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. Roy Irvin were tendered a vote of thanks for their supervision of the Girls Club. On Saturday they will complete the work when the girls will exhibit salads at the Achievement Day in Moira Secondary School.

More

These same ladies will be in charge of the new 4-H project which is to begin in February. The Institute will cater at Dr. Hickson-Sales Barns at Hoards on Monday evening. The various groups will be in charge of the euchre parties at the school. The citizenship and education group has arranged the card parties to be held in the near future.

WILL PAY VISIT

Mrs. Jack Bush will be hostess for the February meeting and the president of Hastings West district, Mrs. Gerald Harrington, will pay her official visit.

Mrs. Roy Tucker collected the Pennies for Friendship and in her ACWW report she quoted items written by Mrs. W. H. Cullen of Australia who is a deputy president. She reported that over 5000 pounds from the recent Freedom from Hunger Campaign was sent to India for a village pilot project. The plans involved 18 villages and in three years all the women will be literate and will also have been taught nutrition, hygiene, child care, first aid, sewing and other necessary projects. Recently Sir Roger Menzies, Prime Minister of Australia, urged that ACWW strive to give ideas, funds, devotion and hard work and thus ensure that there will be worthwhile tomorrow's for all citizens throughout the world.

The program based health, was arranged by Mrs. J. Bush and Mrs. J. R. Donohoe. Mrs. Gerald Brooks read a New Year's poem. An exhibit of articles used in olden times and modern to heat a bed show ed old fashioned irons, stoves, wood catalogues, hot water bottles and various gadgets used in years gone by. The modern equipment centred around electric heating pads and blankets.

TALK ON HEALTH

Mrs. Jack Bush gave a most interesting talk on the subject of health which is the greatest of all human blessings. She quoted articles from current magazines which were most informative. Some of the special items centred around detecting pre school deafness, the value of exercises and the problem of the dope addict. Mrs. Bush said that old medicines should be discarded as chemical changes occur when they are kept over from one illness to another. Her closing thought gave two vivid pictures of the family use of leisure time" and stressed that a happy arrangement is beneficial to health. She gave two illustrations depicting families who were overlooking. The group had a happy day together, while the other found many worries along the way. Her message brought out a wealth of up-to-date ideas on the subject of health.

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe conducted a contest on familiar nursery rhymes and the visitor Mrs. Arthur Pycar of Carmel was presented with a small prize as she had the most correct answers.

The hostess and lunch committee served light refreshments and Mrs. E. Carr voiced thanks to all who had assisted in any way to make the afternoon a success.

TUESDAY (Guests)

Dinner Menu

JANUARY MARMALADE

2 medium oranges, 2 medium grapefruits, 1 lemon, 8 cups sugar, 10 cups water.

With a sharp-pointed knife score the skins into eighths lengthwise of all the fruits. (If the point of your knife cuts deep into the juice cells this is fine for it facilitates a future step — paring off inner skin). Carefully peel off the 8 "petals" of skin. With the tip of a spoon scrape off, and reserve in a bowl, the inner white pith down to the tol cells. Add 2 cups of the required water to the pith and let soak. This is your natural pectin to conserve it carefully. Sharpen your paring knife, pile a few pieces of skin on top of one another and cut all into fine crosswise strips — 1-16" wide. (This is the longest step so sit down to do this shredding.) Put shredded rinds into large flat - bottomed kettle, add the sugar and remaining 8 cups water. With your sharp knife pare the membrane away from the peeled fruits and add this white skin to the pith. Cut fruit sections from membrane. Add fruit sections to pot; add all remaining centre membrane and seeds to soaked pith. Put strainer over pot containing rinds, fruit sections, water and sugar, line it with double cheesecloth or cotton cloth, tip soaked pith and membrane into it, let water drain through, tie cloth with long piece of string to form a bag, lift out strainer, remove strainer and lower bag of pith into pot. Turn on heat and boil gently until fruit is tender — about 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Turn up heat and boil more rapidly until it reaches 222 deg. Fahr. or test 1 table-

DOUBTFUL ADDITION

MONTREAL (CP)—Food producers put color additives in food products because they think the housewife wants it that way, said Dr. Barry Commoner, professor of plant physiology at the University of Washington. Here for a conference, Dr. Commoner said there is no need to use these synthetics and "in fact there is some doubt that the dye used is absolutely free from risk."

Golden Age of Dutch Painters Shown

At Corby Public Library last evening the third in a series of art appreciation groups met for an evening of illustrated slides and discourse on the Golden Age of Dutch painting conducted by Mrs. L. Andrews, assisted by Miss Olive Delaney.

Mrs. Andrews announced that Mr. Paul Bennett, an advisor at the Art Institute is bringing ten original Canadian paintings to Belleville on February 23 and will show them at the library, where he wants to "count heads" of those who attend for a report which will ultimately reach Canada Council."

Dutch painters of the 17th century were undoubtedly influenced by the Italian method of using light. The Renaissance was over and they had entered the baroque period. Holland was colonizing new countries and the wider outlook of the Dutch people was expressed in wide expanses of sky, with the interest in landscape often on the horizon.

There were many artists of this period, and Mrs. Andrews chose 15 to show out of more than 40.

Town scapes and city scapes included the city of Delft with its glowing light. The interior of homes was done in a feast of color, and a picture of civic guards in vibrant shades showed their joy of life.

SPIRITUAL QUALITY

Rembrandt is probably the best known of this period. After ten years of prosperity he started to have reverses. He became a collector and bought expensive homes. After his wife's death his paintings showed a more spiritual quality. A self-portrait of him as a young man showed his resoluteness of purpose.

The slides vibrated with color in some of the masterpieces, the golden light strongly expressed in clothes and facial features.

Record Player Presented To School by Argyll Chapter

A letter of thanks for a baby gift was read, also several letters and verbal thanks for welfare gifts.

A carry bag for the chapter's colors has been purchased. Mrs. R. G. Birkenshaw, educational secretary reported on the Christmas party for the adopted school at Consecon. A record player and records were presented to the school and refreshments served.

A spirit lamp and test tubes have also been given.

Eighty calendars have been distributed to all schools and a motion made to order one hundred next year.

The regent, Mrs. E. F. Smith, presented Queen's photograph to the new Sir Mackenzie Bowell school.

Mrs. A. Duffy reported six baskets were distributed at a cost of $120 to needy families at Christmas time. She asked for donations of pocket novels for troops in Germany. Good used clothing for overseas has been requested from headquarters, also personal property and nursery bags.

BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

The hospitality convener announced plans for the Winter Fantasy dance to be held in the armories January 30th.

Mrs. Refausse read a most interesting and informative article on Sir John A. Macdonald, whose 150th birthday is being celebrated.

A motion was given by the regent of the concert under the auspices of the St. Julien Chapter, IODE, January 30th. It was also stated that with prior arrangements members of the IODE could use the IODE House in Montreal for overnight guests.

The treasurer reminded members that fees are due in February. Mrs. Hartt distributed dance tickets to the members for sale.

An executive meeting will be held Jan. 26th at the home of Mrs. Birkenshaw.

Mrs. H. Kokesh, convener of nominations, presented the report of the meeting with installation to take place in February.

Beachwear Introduced By Gernreich

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudi Gernreich of topless bathing suit fame Monday introduced new beachwear which surprisingly retires within the "bands" of modesty.

Like a censor's black pencil, two bands—sharply two inches wide—stretch across the area left bare on the suit so controversial last summer.

These patches of fabric critics said could result in a plaid body tan. Accessories for the suit are celluloid sun visors in space-age shapes which cast greenish, purplish or bluish light on the face. Legs are hidden under shiny vinyl surf-casting boots worn hip high, possibly to protect from shark bite, surely not to swim in.

The avant garde California designer has created sweater suits with so much top to them they tickle the chin.

Denim transparent, so-called no-bra bras, which Gernreich designed for support under backless, sideless and nearly frontless dresses, his own spring collection of dresses, suits and loungewear the male mannequin as thoroughly as mummies.

Even sooty with brown and black mascara, faces pale, hair jet black and very short, chests minimum and bodies angular, Gernreich models were a startling picture in short shirts over chalk white leg tights with striped, calf-length socks.

Ann Landers

Teen-Agers Should Not Overmatch Themselves

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I doubt that you will print my letter but I want to have my say, anyway.

Recently the mother of a high school senior wrote to say the boy didn't have much money to spend so he asked his girl over several evenings a week to watch TV. His mother told him he could have the girl over only if he invited another couple since no one else was going to be home.

ANN LANDERS

You told the mother "Absolutely no dice," and added, "What good do you think another couple will do?"

I get the feeling you don't trust teen-agers. We aren't all sex fiends, you know. Chew on this one for a while, Ann Landers, and give American teens credit for something. — SENIOR BOY.

DEAR BOY — You can't tell me much about American teen-agers that I don't know.

Because I was one myself. And I raised one. And I have talked to about a half-million teen-agers from the platform of hundreds of high schools from Seattle to White Plains. I've been reading letters from you teen-agers for almost ten years — intimate, straight from the shoulder letters about problems many of you are unable to discuss with your parents.

I love you kids and I don't want to see you louse yourselves up. I'm not against you. I'm for you. And this is why I keep belting on the same old string. I've heard from too many decent, lovely, intelligent teens who somehow got off the track and wound up in trouble. And they weren't sex fiends, either — just uninformed.

This is why I tell you kids not to overmatch yourselves. Don't be so sure you can keep those biological urges under control. And two kids alone in a house — kids who are strongly attracted to each other — are asking for instant trouble.

Nature has rigged things in favor of perpetuating the human race. Nature doesn't care if you're out of high school, or if you can provide financially for a family, or if you care enough about each other to want to spend your lives together. Chew on this for a while, Senior Boy.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please settle something, once and for all. Is it right or wrong to correct a person who makes a grammatical error or mispronounces a word?

Last night I corrected a friend who said she was finding it difficult to be orientated to a certain situation. I said, "You mean oriented, don't you?" She replied tolly, "Never mind what I said. You know what I mean, don't you?" She then gave me the dirtiest look I ever saw.

I have always felt correcting a person was an act of friendship but maybe I am wrong. If I ever made such a mistake I'd certainly appreciate it if someone corrected me.

Would it be best to allow these mistakes to go "unnoticed" in the interest of smoother human relations? — THIRD EAR.

DEAR EAR — It really depends on where and how you offer your corrections. Most people resent being corrected in the presence of others.

Unless you can offer the criticism privately, and in a truly constructive and non-condescending manner, it is best to allow the mistakes to go "unnoticed."

Mr. and Mrs. David Frederick Richard Fisher

Fisher – Thompson

A lovely winter wedding was solemnized at a candlelight ceremony at Bridge Street United Church chapel, Belleville, recently, when Brenda Grace Thomson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomson, R.R. 1, Matawatchan, Ontario, was united in marriage to David Frederick Richard Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Fisher, Belleville.

Rev. H. M. Davis officiated at the ceremony.

The bride entered the church on her father's arm to the music of Westminster Abbey rendered by Mr. Alec Gordon. She wore a simple floor-length gown of peau de reine with shoulder length veil and carried a white fur muff adorned with a cluster of red feathered carnations and trailing ivy.

Miss Judi Watson of Belleville, was maid of honor and wore a forest green dress of peau de soie, designed on similar lines to the bride's gown. She carried a white bunny fur muff decorated with Christmas holly and red berries.

Mr. Murray Finn of Orillia was best man and Mr. Rodney Turner of Belleville ushered.

The bride's table was decorated with a three tiered wedding cake, pink and white baby 'mums and pink candelabras.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Fisher will reside in Peterborough.

Susanna's Family Fare

STICKY BUSINESS

Dear Susanna: Having trouble with snow sticking to your shovel whenever you clean the walk? It won't, if you take my advice.

Bring the shovel indoors until it is room temperature. Lay down some newspapers, and holding the shovel upright by the handle, pour a line of liquid floor wax along the top of the shovel. Allow it to run down right across, and if it doesn't reach the bottom you may have to repeat the application part way down.

Coat the other side with wax in the same way. Allow it to dry for about half an hour until it is good and hard. Now go out and tackle that snow and see who wins! — Guy Watson

Dear Susanna: What are the odds on the snow! — SUSANNA OOPS!

Dear Susanna: I was so accustomed to spilling water all the way from the sink to the fridge after filling the ice cube trays, that it never occurred to me there was any other way. (My husband insists on really big ice cubes, so the H2O just gaily dripped over everything.)

Last night, however, I learned a whole new technique from one of our guests who was out in the kitchen helping me.

He (wouldn't you know he's a bachelor) partially filled the tray from the tap to within about a half inch from the top. He then carried it to the refrigerator, but before he completely inserted it in the freezer compartment, he left one end extended and proceeded to finish filling the tray to the brim with a pitcher of water. He says he sometimed uses a plastic squeeze bottle instead. — Jenny

Successful Living

Flying Is Easy Mode of Travel

DEAR DORIS — I am terrified about a trip I plan to take in the spring. It is to the Old Country. I wouldn't mind if it were only me, but my husband is urging me to take my tiny baby, who will then be only five months old.

My mother wants me to bring him, too, and this may be her last chance to see him. What do you think? Are there any special precautions I should take, since I am thinking of flying. — DILEMMA.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DILEMMA — Calm your fears. The trip is short, by air; your baby will travel free and be treated like a prince.

Let the airline know ahead that you are travelling with a baby and the stewardess will help you; might even provide a stroller for that waiting time at the airport before boarding.

The stewardess will board you ahead of time and help you onto the plane. You will have a choice of seats. She will warm your baby's bottle (formula having been made and placed in it at home, by you); and she will heat any other food that he is to have, on your request.

Special note: If you pop a bottle of water into your baby's mouth at takeoff and landing it will help his ears adjust to the change in pressure. Adults know when to swallow or yawn, but babies don't.

Happy tripping.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I read your answer to "Motel Clerk." You stated that she should say "May I help you?", as part of her greeting to a guest. I am currently taking a two-year course in Hotel, Motel and Restaurant Management and we have been taught never to use this phrase in dealing with a guest.

The most important opening is a cheerful smile and, as you suggested, "Good Morning" (or afternoon); then leave it up to the guest. Of course, a clerk will have to ask questions to obtain pertinent information (the number in the party, etc.).

DEAR HOSTESS — I stand corrected. If the guest didn't think she could help him he wouldn't be standing there. And the greeting ("Good Morning") plus smile, is better than "What d'ya want?"

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am 16. One girl turned my best friend against me. Before I knew it, no one would even talk with me unless I started the conversation first. I knew they laughed at me, but I pretended not to notice.

Lord knows how I have tried to make friends but after a year I have to give up. I can't see where I am so bad. I come from a respectable family and was taught good conduct.

I hope you don't suggest a leaflet on making friends, as I've tried everything. — WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED — Everything? All the leaflets? All the ideas of grown-ups who have been through the same things and care enough about you and others like you to put their suggestions down on paper? Then why read me?

If you are still reading: (1) Stop making one girl a scapegoat for your friendlessness; (2) Forget completely about your own troubles and do one kind, thoughtful act a day for a month. It appears to you to be even less fortunate than you (maybe even two!); (3) Learn a new game, read a new book, brush up on what's going on around you, in other words, work towards acting your own attractive style without leaning too hard on others.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I did as you suggested about writing my brother and explaining why I could not attend the wedding. Thank you for solving my problem and a Happy New Year to you.

May I just add here I too feel as a reader does about The New Curriculum. Been a member of the United Church for 38 years. After 60 years of believing all the beautiful stories in the Bible it's a little late to change. — MRS. D.D.

DEAR MRS. D. D. — You're welcome. Why not write in for Dr. Oxterbridge's letter about The New Curriculum, The Church, and Science, (Enclose 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope).

He explains how the Bible is still believable and beautiful. We should never reach a point in our lives when we say: "There now! I know everything. I'll stop reading and thinking for myself."

Red China Might Refuse Seat in UN

By ROBERT LIU

Is Peking hinting she will refuse to join the United Nations even if the invitation comes on Communist China's terms?

There are indications Peking still has its eyes on UN membership but may raise new demands to increase its prestige among the African and Asian nations.

The Chinese may call for amendments to the 20-year-old UN charter to benefit the African and Asian countries admitted to the world organization since 1945.

In a government statement Sunday, the Chinese declared the UN needs to be "thoroughly remolded." Peking claimed the organization has become a tool of the United States.

But Peking did not suggest how the UN should be changed. WORD ATTACK CAREFULLY

In their attacks on the UN, the Chinese Reds were careful not to offend the new African and Asian nations who are prime targets in Peking's Communist drive.

The Chinese statement said "it is fully understandable that newly independent Asian and African countries have placed hopes in the United Nations." But it added that "blind faith in the United Nations must be liquidated."

Communist China has repeatedly claimed the UN needs better than 50 members. She has said she will join only on her terms.

She wants Nationalist China ousted. Both Nationalist and Communist China have rejected a "two Chinas" or "one China one Formosa" compromise, because both agree Formosa is part of China.

Should Peking join the UN, it could be expected to demand that the U.S. 7th Fleet be withdrawn from the Formosa Strait, which protects Formosa from the mainland, and that all U.S. forces be removed from the island.

Canada-Wide Driving Licence Is Advocated

GALT (CP)—Adoption of a Canada - wide driver's licence was urged Monday by a director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

Keith MacDonald also suggested uniform traffic codes and highway signs for all provinces.

"At the present time there are 11 driver's licence issuing authorities with 11 different qualifications standards in Canada," Mr. MacDonald told the Galt Kiwanis Club.

"At present you can obtain a continental driver's licence qualifying you to drive anywhere in western Europe."

Driving from one province into another in Canada is "a 9 to 5 to 9 nightmare," Mr. MacDonald said.

"In Ontario you can turn right on a red light, but anywhere else in Canada it will cost you $10.

"In Alberta the pedestrian is king; all motorists must stop to let him cross. In other provinces you'd think there was a bounty on people, the way some drivers disregard even the very limited rights of pedestrians."

SIGNS CONFUSE

Adding to the confusion, Mr. MacDonald said, is the "great variety of traffic signs."

UP IN SMOKE

More than $6,000,000 pounds of tobacco was used in South Africa in 1964 and another 2,000,000 pounds was used for snuff netting the government $85,160,000 in excise taxes.

Ottawa's Fact Collector

STOREHOUSE OF INFORMATION — Oscar Kemp, 60, senior quality surveyor in the federal works department's building construction branch, is a storehouse of information on federal buildings. He knows the exact location and history of every statue on Parliament Hill and can dig up similar background for any statue that the works department had a hand in. Mr. Kemp celebrated his 25th anniversary with the government Dec. 1. (CP Photo)

The Importance of Being Oscar!

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP) — When the royal commission on government organization came looking for facts in the federal works department two years ago their researchers were repeatedly told: "Ask Oscar."

The fact-finders quickly discerned the many files they had been checking when they discovered just about everything they needed all neatly stored in the head of one man.

Oscar Kemp, a quiet, soft-spoken man, is the senior quality surveyor in the department's building construction branch. He celebrated his 60th birthday Nov. 29 and his 25th anniversary in the government — almost all of it in the construction branch—Dec. 1.

Try him on some simple question, such as how many government buildings are there in Canada? Or how many civil servants do they accommodate? Oscar knows. Busy architects and planners steer clear of the filing cabinets when he's around.

He knows the exact location and history of every statue on Parliament Hill and can quickly dig up similar background for any statue in Canada that the works department had a hand in.

HAS BLUE BLOOD

The road to the retentive memory began near Montreal, Que., some 45 miles east of Ottawa, where Mr. Kemp was born. His father was of Scottish ancestry and his mother a French - Canadian who traced her origins back to French nobility.

He graduated from the University of Ottawa with a bachelor of commerce degree, then took postgraduate work at the University of Montreal for three years. In 1939 he joined the building construction branch.

"From the beginning everything that was asked in the Commons about building construction was spanned on my desk," he recalls. Things haven't changed.

In his spare time he combs through old files to bring his notes up to date. These notes now form a compilation of a fantastic quantity of facts on Canada's federal construction work.

"The first contract was awarded in 1851, that's 16 years before Confederation, for what everyone called the Inland Revenue Building in Toronto," says Oscar. He adds: "It cost $28,066."

CONTRACTS JUMP

His tables list the number of federal building contracts and their amount for every year since 1851. Between 1851 and 1900 only 255 contracts were awarded, totalling $12,258,814 in value. Between 1947 and 1957 there were 2,408 contracts with a value of $299,017,273.

"From 1851 to March last year the building construction branch awarded 6,744 contracts for construction of government buildings. Their total value is $795,007,810.30."

Some of his most recent checking shows that the works department's per - capita expenditure by provinces averages only $22 a person in Ontario and Quebec, but in the Yukon and Northwest Territories it's $376.58. The national capital area, with dozens of lofty government buildings, averages $430 a head.

One fact he has discovered particularly pleases Oscar. Hundreds of Ottawans walk by the foot of the Parliament Buildings on Wellington Street daily. They pass an old statue without pausing and few know that the figure is that of Sir Calahad.

"Mackenzie King had that statue built. A friend of his named Henry Albert Harper drowned while trying to save a chum. Mr. King wrote a book on the Secret of Heroism in memory of his friend. Then, when he became prime minister, he ordered that statue built."

TOURISTS IN RUSSIA

British Civilians Join Police To 'Have a Go' at Criminals

By JOHN FREEMAN

LONDON (Reuters)—A crime wave by armed thugs has led British civilians to join police in "having a go" at the criminals.

The crime wave, which last week featured the wounding of two policemen in the arrest of an escaped convict, broke out after the House of Commons approved a bill to abolish the death penalty for murder.

In the latest incident Saturday, a civilian hurled iron rails at a pistol waving man who was being bombarded with nightsticks by about 20 unarmed police in suburban Croydon.

One of the batons hurled by police hit the man on the head. He dropped his gun and the police jumped on him. The gun, later identified as a starter pistol firing blanks, was fired four times at a police sergeant who advanced toward the man following the theft of a car at gunpoint.

RAMMED CAR

In the arrest of an escaped convict after a robbery last Wednesday, citizens joined police in pursuing the man. A motorist rammed the getaway car. When the fugitive was cornered civilians pelted him with bottles, stones and billiard balls.

Until recently criminals were seldom armed in Britain and police are still unarmed except in special circumstances. But they rarely flinch even under pursuing pistol - waving hoodlums.

The crime wave is seen as strengthening opposition to the move to abolish the death penalty, which since 1957 has remained only for such crimes as killing a policeman, killing during commission of a crime such as robbery, and second killings by previously convicted murderers.

Abolitionists cite statistics to show murders have not increased since some categories of killing were made non-capital, but opponents of the abolition bill are preparing a list of amendments to assure that life sentences for killers are longer than the present average of nine years.

Million Bugs Under Control Of Curator

MONTREAL (CP)—A section of suburban Ste. Anne de Bellevue has been crawling with bugs for more than half a century.

Some 20 varieties of cockroaches have been identified there. And it's been estimated that more than 1,000,000 creatures are happily ensconced.

The museum, which has been celebrating its golden anniversary, began with a bequest of 20,000 specimens of butterflies and moths.

The museum also boasts a 4,000-volume library of entomology.

One of the major tasks being undertaken by the museum staff at present is an intricate study of dragon flies. The study is being conducted with a view towards the elimination of similar water insects—the shad and the may fly, both of which have plagued Montreal's waterfront and which experts hope to eliminate by the time of the 1967 world's exposition here.

In 1963, the museum sent out 10,000 varieties of its tiny tenants—most of them on loan to specialists.

The museum plays a more domestic role in the community, too. Puzzled and sometimes frightened housewives bring their captures to be identified.

Often, says Dr. Vickery, they turn out to be cockroaches—which he denies are likely to be found in clean or sanitized places.

On the contrary, he says, the roaches are associated wi hilth and unsanitary conditions.

Star boarder at the museum is a large-sized hairy tarantula.

Plans to Stick With Week-Long Liquid Diet

OAKVILLE (CP)—Jack Waters, 32, of Sudbury, said Monday that he plans to stick with his week-long liquid diet in a bid to raise money to combat starvation despite being forced to leave a Toronto hotel because of a lack of sufficient funds to pay the bill .

Mr. Waters began his demonstration Thursday at the Royal York Hotel to interest Canadians in raising $100,000,000 to fight starvation as a 1967 centennial project. He restricted his diet to liquids such as water, milk, tea and vitamin pills.

However, he had to check out of the hotel after only three days and moved in with his sister-in-law here. Although he received financial help from the United Nations Association of Canada, a personal friend and from a sympathetic woman in Agincourt, it was not enough to cover the bill.

"I plan to stay with my sister-in-law until the week is up," he said in an interview. "Thursday, I'll be back in Toronto and have my first breakfast in a week."

Mr. Waters said he was inspired by an article he read last August which noted that only a small amount of money is needed to help some underdeveloped countries combat starvation effectively.

He said his main idea is to try to interest people into undertaking a small continuous movement to raise money, such as church bazaars, teas and other similar projects.

"If from now until 1967 people would do just a little more towards Canada's centennial projects we could help fight starvation," he said. "It doesn't matter to which organization the cheques go."

Mr. Waters said he feels fine though his back aches at times and he is tired and "down in the dumps.

Disallow

of Constable Poissant's information.

The judge also disallowed a question from Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, about what Constable Poissant had heard concerning the source of the alleged bribe offer to Mr. Lamontagne.

ASKS REGARDING NAME

Chief Justice Dutton asked, "was a name mentioned who made the offer?"

Constable Poissant: "One."

The judge: "One or more names?"

Poissant: "One name."

Mr. Fortier insisted that it was most important that the name be revealed now but the judge ruled that the question could not be put at this time but perhaps later when the inquiry dealt with the conduct of the RCMP in the case.

Constable Poissant said he learned on about July 20 from another RCMP constable that $10,000 had been offered Mr. Lamontagne to get bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne is counsel for the United States government which is seeking to extradite Rivard to face narcotics smuggling charges in Laredo, Tex.

He has testified that his good friend Jacques Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, offered him $20,000 in Ottawa July 14 to drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

Rivard has been in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail since last June.

Constable Poissant said the information about a $10,000 offer to Mr. Lamontagne was talked about and was well known to members of the RCMP narcotics squad.

INTO A LEAK?

He also testified that he made two written and signed statements Dec. 9 during an internal RCMP investigation, apparently inquiring into a leak through which word of the allegation against Mr. Denis came before Parliament last Nov. 23.

Constable Poissant said his Dec. 9 statement contained the information that he first heard a bribe being offered Mr. Lamontagne about July 20.

Mr. Mathews said Constable Poissant's Dec. 9 statement referred in part to the Aug. 20 telephone conversation between Mr. Lamontagne and Mr. Denis then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

Mr. Mathews produced for counsel that part of Constable Poissant's statement dealing with the conversation. The constable's testimony today rounded out his appearance before the inquiry.

about the first arrangement.

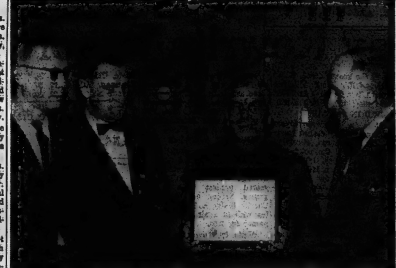
The arrangement would establish, over a period of several years, a free-trade formula in North American vehicle and original parts. Signing is expected any day now.

BACK ROYAL DUTY

The statement issued today was from the Automotive Service Industry Association of Canada. Four companies joined the association in backing the legal suit.

One upshot of this might be a court declaration forcing the U.S. treasury department to impose retroactive countervailing duties on Canadian parts imports, even though the original scheme is being replaced.

Such duties could go back to the time of the first complaints last summer. The treasury department ordered an investigation but has been sitting on the matter while a replacement formula was negotiated.



The U.S. industry statement said independent parts manufacturers "see advantage only to the vehicle manufacturers and the Canadian government."

Tariffs would be removed on vehicles and their component parts in North America but remain on "parts for the vast automotive after - market (replacement parts), thus denying U.S. independents free access to the Canadian market."

(U.S. officials have said that replacement parts may be added to the free-trade formula after a year or two if everything works well).

ANCIENT LAW

QUARTER CENTURY CERTIFICATE — Having served with the PUC in Picton for the past 36 years, Charles E. Presentation was made on behalf of the Canadian Section of the American Water Works Association.

Members

Fourth member of each commission is Nelson Castonguay, the federal representation commissioner.

Mr. Macnaughton's list will be forwarded to Slave Lake Secretary Lamontagne Friday. The cabinet must pass an order-in-council to make the appointments legal.

The legislation, passed late last year, is the first Canadian attempt to have federal ridings redistributed in a near ratio to population by an independent body.

In the past a parliamentary committee redrafted boundaries, and a government majority on the committee often produced highly political results.

Within a week after the proclamation the commissioners are expected to hold their first meetings to begin the politically - charged job that will result in few constituencies escaping the knife.

To bring ridings nearer to representation by population, urban areas will be handed a greater number of Commons seats at the expense of rural areas.

Political parties will have to revamp constituency organizations—an organization task expected to take them from three to six months when the new boundaries are finally settled on early next year.

The Mr. Macnaughton, appointing the 20 commissioners is his touchiest job in nearly two years of trying to arbitrate political strife.

He got the job when the New Democratic Party successfully objected to clauses in the draft bill that would have required the prime minister and the leader of the opposition to name the men each to each commission.

The commissioners settled on are drawn from the academic field, such as university presidents, and from the provincial civil services—persons such as chief electoral officers or surveyors-general.

The act sets a one-year limit for reporting to Parliament. Ontario and Quebec will need most of the year, while provinces with fewer ridings will need much less time.

The provisions for protesting a commission's boundary setting will require another two or three months, putting the effective date for new ridings about mid-April of next year.

Workers Ask Company for Return of Jobs

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A 19-week strike by members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (ind.) against Lanark Manufacturing Limited ended Monday as workers voted to ask the company for their jobs back.

About 100 women approached the plant Monday morning and indicated they wanted to return to work.

Trevor Roberts, company manager, said more than 500 persons are currently working at the plant which is operating close to capacity. He said the strikers' names and phone numbers had been taken and they will be called if needed.

Union officials said that employees are working without a contract although the union is their bargaining agent.

Ross Russell, director of organization for the union, said a majority of the 300 workers supported the strike but a small group of dissidents led by Don Cox crossed a picket line and returned to work. Mr. Cox was president of the former International Association of Machinists (CLC) local which the workers ousted in a government-conducted vote last May.

SIGNED CONTRACT

Before being replaced by the UE, the Machinists signed a five-year contract with the company giving female employees, who make up the majority of workers at the plant a minimum of $1.06 an hour and male employees a minimum of $1.25.

When the new union stepped in, only three years of the previous contract had passed. The union declined to honor the contract and went on strike when the company tried to establish a wage minimum of $1.40 an hour for women and $1.85 for men.

The workers who return to the plant, which produces automobile wiring harnesses, will receive the original wages as established in the machinists' contract which has about 1½ years to run.

Mr. Russell said the union will honor the original contract and attempt to establish a new negotiating position with the company.

another quotation displayed in the banquet room and made it the theme of his speech on behalf of Premier League of Quebec:

"We are a great country and become one of the greatest in the universe if we preserve it. We shall sink into insignificance and adversity if we suffer it to be broken."

So long as the spirit of Macdonald and his Quebec lieutenant, Sir George Etienne Cartier, is preserved, Quebec will not secede, Mr. Arsenault said. Switching back and forth between French and English, he added:

"So long as there are men of vision like Premier Lesage and your own Premier Robarts, this Confederation will never be in danger; and there are such men in the other provinces. A sovereign country which has a flag symbolizing its sovereignty and a distinctive international stature between French and English will survive."

HAS NO GIFTS

Mr. Diefenbaker, in a speech full of anecdotes about Sir John and political culps of his own day, said he had no gifts to bring the banquet and there were no bows knots in his speech. But Sir John had spent a period in opposition and he was "hopeful to." After all, he added, William Gladstone was 82 when he was returned to power as prime minister in Great Britain.

Even with the length of the speeches—a single four - hour speech was not unknown 100 years ago—it was a celebration which Sir John himself might have enjoyed. The banquet of fillet of beef and shrimps fillet of beef was accompanied by white and red wines and champagne although 20th - century Canadian rather than the 19th-century variety was served.

Toasts were drunk to the Queen, to Canada, and to Macdonald. The latter was diluted with the Skye Boat Song, played by pipers.

Gifts of change purses, in the form of Scottish tams in the clan Donald tartan were distributed by ladies in crinoline and lace.

Before the banquet, the guests of honor drove to Cataraqui Cemetery and under leaden skies placed a floral tribute and other wreaths at the Macdonald family plot. Then they drove in cavalcade to the former Macdonald Bellevue, which was bought by the federal government last year as a historic site and is to be restored.

Mr. Diefenbaker addressed 1,000 senior students of Queen Elizabeth high school during the afternoon, recounting the circumstances of becoming a founding parallel in Macdonald's and his own career. The ancestors of both had come to Canada after being driven off the land in the Scottish Highland clearances of Sutherlandshire in 1812, and both had suffered political defeats and literary party strife.

Premier Robarts announced a number of scholarships and exchange professorships honoring Macdonald. He said the same will be done in honor of George Brown on his 150th birthday anniversary in 1969.

A joint announcement was made by the federal, provincial and municipal governments that the annual boat show at the old city hall and the Lake Ontario waterfront will be created a park in Macdonald's name. The work will entail removing Canadian Pacific Railway tracks and storage sheds.

C. E. Hineman Honored by Commission

PICTON (Staff)—The Picton Public Utilities has presented one of its veteran employees with a special certificate. Mr. Charles E. Hineman was awarded the "quarter century certificate" in recognition of devoted service in the water works thereby contributing to the national growth and progress and to the health and welfare of the people of Canada. Mr. Hineman who has worked with the P.U.C. for 36 years spent the first three years with the Hydro Department and in 1932 he was assigned to the water filtration plant where he has been employed ever since.

The presentation was made by a group of P.U.C. officials headed by the chairman Jack Ward. The award presented by the officials was on behalf of the Canadian section of the American Water Works Association.

Mr. Hineman stated that there had been many changes in the filtration plant since he first began there in 1932. There have been three additions, he said. There was no office in the old plant and two pump heaters were the only source of heat. In the old days there were always twelve hour shifts, now there are three steady employees and one relief man. The men work around the clock on three eight-hour shifts. Present for the certificate award were Jack Ward, chairman, P.U.C.; Gordon Nourse, vice chairman; Clealan Blakely, manager of the local P.U.C. office; His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland and members of the board but could not be present.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

(Michael J. Rodden, that old warhorse of the sports typewriter, is the guest columist today. Mike gives his impressions of the upcoming Chuvalo-Patterson squabble and—but—here's what he says.)

By MICHAEL J. RODDEN

The risk is that a defeat would lower a boom on Chuvalo's prestige but necessity demands that Chuvalo should show cause why his pursuit of the crown should be taken seriously.

Patterson, knocked out by Ingermar Johansson once and by "Sonny" Liston twice, has been in eclipse for quite some time. Moreover, his record of achievement forcibly suggests that he won, lost and regained the title during an era that produced no outstanding heavyweights. As of now, he is listed seventh in the "Cauliflower Line."

Chuvalo, son of immigrants, is a rather tough hombre who has never been knocked off his feet but his main claim to fame is that he "layoed" Doug Jones; the New York "cutie" who went the distance against flamboyant Cassius Clay. He has been outpointed by several second-raters but in all fairness it should be said that he was pitted against vastly more experienced mittmen a bit too soon.

The fact that Chuvalo is a Canadian citizen will not endear him to United States scribes who are not in the habit of lauding Canadian mittmen. They conveniently forget that Tommy Burns (Noah Brusso), a lacrosse player from Hanover, Ontario, held the heavyweight tiara from 1906 to '08 and that Sam Langford, a Negro from Weymouth, Nova Scotia, was so greatly feared that the great Jack Johnson, who dethroned Burns, declined to defend the title against him.

Burns, the second lightest heavyweight ever to scale championship heights, was one of the busiest defenders of that bauble. Bob Fitzgibbons, an Australian of Cornish descent, allegedly tipped the scales at a mere 158 pounds when he knocked out Jim Corbett, the defender in the 24th round on St. Patrick's Day in 1897.

Fitzsimmons and Burns are mentioned here because, a la Chuvalo, their challenges had been taken lightly. Burns confounded the guessers when he succeeded the retired Jim Jeffries, but with Jack Johnson and Sam Langford pursuing him United States opinion had it that Burns reigned on borrowed time. Unquestionably, he did but in Rushcutters' Bay, Australia, on December 26th, 1908, he was still on his feet when police stopped the bout in the 14th round.

Burns, hounded, criticized and scorned, registered eight consecutive knockouts in defence of the crown before he accepted $30,000 to meet Johnson; one of the greatest mittmen in ring history. And, arrogh and begorrah, he had the audacity to knock out Jem Roche, the Irish champion, in the first round in Dublin on St. Patrick's Day in 1908.

Burns is mentioned here mainly because he had to prove that he belonged, just as Chuvalo is trying to do now. Too early in his career Chuvalo was badly beaten in a New York ring but he erased memories of that disaster when he switched off the lights for Doug Jones.

Patterson, who has never beaten anybody of any particular ability with the exception of the ancient Archie Moore, could find that this hardrock from the Canadian "wilds" could make a hollow shell of Patterson's peek-aboo defence. Chuvalo has also shown that he can absorb punishment without flinching—or even clinching—whereas Patterson probably holds enviable records willed unto those who are too often on the floor.

Jack Jarvis, one of the shrewdest boxing authorities in Canada or the United States, long ago predicted a bright future for Chuvalo; coupled with the opinion that manager-ial and coaching skill would be essential to success. What Jarvis thinks now might be just as complimentary.

There is no doubting the obvious fact that Patterson over the hill and that, a la "Sugar" Ray Robinson, he is coaching for a few more pay days. Having never been recognized as having been among the immortals, he will lose no prestige if Chuvalo outpoints him or tags him with a knockout punch.

In the opinion of this observer Chuvalo will vanquish Patterson and will probably knock him out; which he will have to do if he aims to prove that he is ready to challenge the incumbent who happens to hold the title. Efforts made to dethrone Cassius Clay via an NBA ruling because is bound by agreement to meet "Sonny" Liston before he accommodates anybody else will not be taken seriously by promoters or the paying public.

No other heavyweight champion has ever been deprived of the laurels via a committee room verdict and it isn't likely that Clay or Liston, if the latter regains the title, will be unceremoniously cast into the discard. In the event that Chuvalo beats Patterson his next opponent would probably be Ernie Terrell of Chicago, and the survivor would unofficially qualify for a bout against the reigning champion, which would be either Clay or Liston.

Odds Against Sweep ★ ★ ★ Hull May Rewrite Record; Bank Book ★ ★ ★ Depends On Team

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Hull could earn as much as $12,750 in official bonus money this season if he and his Chicago Black Hawks teammates pick up all the marbles.

The odds are against Hull making such a sweep of the National Hockey League's prize money, but his current scoring blitz creates the possibility. In any case, he should cash at least $6,250 worth of NHL cheques.

Hull appears to be a cinch for All-Star honors and the scoring championship, which could mean as much as $4,000. As a leading contender for the Hart and Lady Byng trophies, he could pick up another $3,000.

The other $5,750 worth of icing on the cake depends on the success of the Black Hawks as a team. If the Hawks finish first in the league, he picks up $2,250 and should they win the Stanley Cup, Hull earns $3,500.

Unless Hull has a complete collapse, he should make a minimum of $6,250—a total of $12,000 as an All-Star, $1,500 for leading the scoring race at the halfway mark and winning the title at the season's end, $1,500 as the NHL's Most Valuable Player (Hart Trophy) and $250 should the Hawks finish fourth.

CASHED IN ALREADY

Hull is one of three players who have already cashed bonus cheques this season, receiving $500 for leading the point parade after 35 games. Other beneficiaries were Stan Mikita, second in scoring for $250, and goalie Charlie Hodge of Montreal, a $250 recipient as the Vezina Trophy leader.

When the All-Star and trophy leaders are announced shortly, Hull should be in line for another chunk of cash. Add to this his regular salary, and the incentive clauses placed in his contract by the Hawks management.

The record book may have to be rewritten this season, but so will Hull's bank book.

Closest to Hull in the NHL scoring "chase," according to official statistics released today, is teammate Mikita, who picked up five points last week. Hull scored four, including his 34th and 35th goals, to run his total to 57 points—12 more than Mikita.

HAVE BEST AVERAGE

Toronto's combination of Terry Sawchuk and Johnny Bower has the best goaltending average — 2.45 — with 23 goals scored against them in 38 games. Second are Montreal's Charlie Hodge and Lorne Worsley with 90 against them in 36 games for 2.50.

Mikita took over the leadership in penalties with 106 minutes, three more than Toronto defenceman Bobby Baun. Detroit is the most penalized team with 586 minutes. New York Rangers are the good guys with a league low of 412.

The Mick May Get $115,000

NEW YORK (AP) — There were indications Monday that the Yankees' Mickey Mantle may become baseball's highest paid player in 1965 at a salary of about $115,000.

"Mantle will be very happy with his contract," said general manager Ralph Houk at a press conference to announce the club's radio-television sponsors for the coming season.

Mantle received $100,000 last year for the third straight season. Willie Mays collected about $105,000 from the San Francisco Giants.

Despite his usual troubles with his legs, Mantle played in 143 games last season. He belted 35 homers, drove in 111 runs and batted .303, fourth in the league.

Mantle, now 33, switched from centre to right field midway through the 1964 season. He is expected to be in right field again to protect his legs.

Undefeated Bantams Tie, Midgets Win

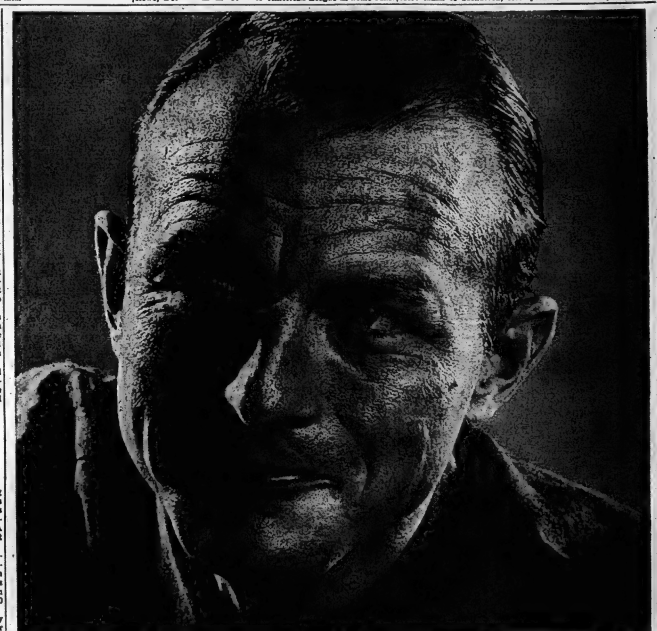
Picton held the high-flying Belleville bantam Oddfellows to a 2-2 tie while this city's midget Oddfellows whitewashed Picton 4-0 in a pair of OMHA games played in the county last night.

Belleville's next OMHA action is Wednesday here. Rollins' peewees meet Wellington at 7.00 while the Oddfellows bantams and midgets clash with Napanee teams at 8.00 and 9.00 p.m.

The midgets scored in every period to earn their win over Picton. They potted two in the first frame and singletons in the last two.

L. Moore triggered two Belleville markers while J. Parks and J. Holmes bagged the others. B. Beecher and C. Wilson gained the only assists.

Picton picked up five of the game's nine penalties.



In the bantam tilt, Picton jumped ahead 2-0 in the first before the undefeated Oddfellows started back to grab the split in points.

Bland potted one Belleville goal, aided by Royea, in the second period, and House completed a play with Janitach to tie it in the final period.

There were four penalties per side.

Lightfoots, RCAF Win Hoop Games

Meanwhile here at Quinte Secondary School, Belleville Lightfoots stayed two points back of the Flyers by dumping Cobourg Kiwanis 60-42.

Lightfoots had a battle on their hands until breaking loose in the second half. Cobourg held a slim edge during most of the first half and led 23-22 at half time.

Belleville jumped in front early in the second half but it was see-saw for a while until the winners broke ahead by ten points — and maintained the margin.

Don Smith was top scorer in the game, looping 20 of the Lightfoot points, aided by some fine setup plays by Duggan and Latchford. John McKibbon hit for 10 points, Bob Smith for nine and Bill Latchford, playing his first two-way ball in his first start with the team, collected eight. Sixteen of D. Smith's points came in the second half.

Jim Coughlan sparked the Cobourg scorers with 16 points. Dennis Clarke carried most of the remaining attack with a 15-point effort. The Kiwanis crew sorely missed Brian Sayers, third high scorer in the league and the team's top ball-handling guard, who was unable to make the trip.

Cobourg Kiwanis (42) — D. Clarke 15, Milne 2, C. Coughlan 5, B. Stuart 2, Collart 2, M. Coughlan, J. Coughlan 16.

Belleville Lightfoots (60) — G. Duggan 3, I. Houchin 5, J. McKibbon 10, B. Smith 9, J. Clapp 3, D. Smith 20, B. Latchford 8.

MAY BE ON TV

TORONTO (CP)—Games in the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League may be televised this year, the league announced Monday. The league said in a statement that "some large sponsors" have become interested in televising its games this season.

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston, hopeful of becoming the permanent home of the American Football League all-star game for 1966, found itself today host of the game a year earlier than expected.

Joe Foss, league commissioner, pulled the eastern and western division all-stars out of New Orleans Monday after No-pro players complained of racial discrimination in the Louisiana city.

Twenty Negro players refused to participate in the Saturday game, saying they were denied cab service and refused admission to night clubs in the French Quarter.

The contest will be played in 35,000 - seat Jeppesen Stadium at 2 p.m., EST, Saturday.

The players began converging on Houston Monday, and by today nearly all were on hand for the opening workouts.

Oakland, which also has hopes of being the all-star game's permanent host, and Houston were the cities bidding strongest for the game after the league turned its back on New Orleans.

A 50,000 - seat stadium is scheduled for completion in Oakland by 1966. Houston's revolutionary - domed stadium is to be completed this spring.

The AFL owners meeting also was switched to Houston, and expansion of the league will be one of the topics. The weekend's developments at New Orleans' hopes for a pro-football franchise back several years.

A crowd of 60,000 had been forecast for the game in New Orleans. There were no official estimates of expected attendance here, but it was generally acknowledged the late shift would hinder the sale of tickets ranging from $2.50 to $7.50.

The game will be nationally televised by the ABC.

Harney Wins LA Tournament

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Paul Harney won the $70,000 Los Angeles Open Golf tournament for the second straight year by firing a two-under par 69 Monday for a 72-hole score of 276.

Only two other golfers have had consecutive victories in the 39-year history of the event.

Knocking eight strokes off par over the par 35-35—71 course, the 35 - year - old Sacramento, Calif., pro started the final round with a two-stroke lead Harney picked up a cheque for $12,000.

Dan Sikes was second, finishing with a 70 for 279 total and a $6,500 payoff.

Bill Casper Jr., who led for the first two rounds, shot a 71 for 281 and third place, worth $4,000.

Deadlocked at 272 and winners of $3,300 each were George Knudson of Toronto, with a 70 Monday; British Open champion Tony Lema, with a 69, and PGA champion Bobby Nichols, 71.

Can you beat this?

Last Oct. 15 — baseball team that had been counted out of the National League pennant race won the World Series. The next morning the winning manager resigned.

Hours later the losing manager was fired although he had won a pennant in his freshman year.

Four days after these events, the winning manager was hired by the team he had just beaten. About a month later the ousted losing manager got took a coaching job with another club, where one of his bosses was a man who had been fired as general manager of the victorious club he had helped to mould.

Can you beat it?

No—say a vast majority of some 250 sports writers and broadcasters participating in The Associated Press year-end poll. By an overwhelming vote, they picked this sequence of events as the sports oddity of 1964.

Departmental Hockey

The Ontario Intelligencer, with a full squad out for a change, gained their second point of the season last night in Interdepartmental Hockey League play.

English Soccer Cup

Three 'Outsiders' In Play

LONDON (Reuters) — The Football Association Cup, traditional scene for shock results and giant-killing feats, has so far this season pursued an unusually predictable path.

After third - round matches, only three clubs outside the top three divisions remained in competition. These three are Stockport County, Millwall and Torquay United of the Fourth Division. Stockport County and Millwall won through Monday night in the fourth round; Torquay still faces a third-round replay.

Only one non - league club, Barnet, got through to the third round, and it was beaten 3-2 by Preston North End of Division II.

Torquay's £20,000 team gained a magnificent achievement Saturday by holding Tottenham Hotspur, which cost 20 times as much to assemble, to a 3-3 draw. It's doubtful whether Torquay can win the replay on Tottenham's home ground.

ELIMINATE FULHAM

Millwall produced a similar shock by holding First Division Fulham to a 3-3 draw Saturday, and Monday night it eliminated Fulham with a 3-0 victory. Millwall will play at home to either Manchester City or Shrewsbury Town in the next round, Jan. 30.

Stockport County knocked off Bristol Rovers 3-2 in a Monday night replay and meets Liverpool in the next round.

The defeated Bristol team leads the English Football Third Division with 14 wins in 28 games, while Stockport has only four victories in 26 league games.

Millwall, despite its low place in the league table, is a well-known Cup fighter and has reached the semi-finals of the competition three times.

Stockport must look back to the 1936-37 season for its last honor—championship at the old Third Division North.

Says Clay Will Meet Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP) — Cassius Clay will fight George Chuvalo if the Toronto heavyweight beats Floyd Patterson Feb. 1, Bob Frewin of The Telegram says in a dispatch from New York.

Clay, tentatively scheduled to meet Sonny Liston in a world heavyweight title rematch which the World Boxing Association does not recognize, predicts Chuvalo will defeat former champion Patterson in their New York bout.

Frewin quotes Clay as saying:

"Me and Chuvalo? I don't know. He's strong and I've been knocked down in my fights. He might take me but I want to fight him.

"He'd be the 'white hope' and the whole world would be rooting for him as the underdog."

Frewin quotes Clay as saying a title fight between him and Chuvalo would be "the biggest fight in the history of the heavyweight championship."

"I want to fight Chuvalo. It'll make a $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 gate."

The win was the second in as many days for the Nationals, who edged the Czechoslovakian national team 3-2 Sunday in Toronto.

May Retire

Faloney Is Undecided

HAMILTON (CP) — Quarterback Bernie Faloney, traded by Hamilton Tiger-Cats to Montreal Alouettes last week in a three-for-five swap, said in an interview Monday he is still undecided about whether he will continue in football or to confine himself to business in Hamilton.

He said he may decide before the end of this week.

The Ticats, Eastern Football Conference champions, gave up five halfbacks Ralph Goldston, 34, and Jackie Simpson, 29, in the trade.

In exchange, they got Billy Ray Locklin, 27, who plays either offensive or defensive end; guard Dick Walton, 23; defensive half-backs Billy Wayte, 26, and Ted Page, 22; and Don Clark, 27, an all-star halfback who retired prior to last season for a newspaper job in Akron Ohio.

Faloney, who led Hamilton into the Grey Cup final six of his seven years with the club, is a director and shareholder of Contractors Machinery and Equipment Company here. He said the company will hold a directors' meeting this week "and that should give me some answer" about the future.

He said he would like to continue in football but has to weigh this against uprooting his family, which includes two boys aged 6 and 7, the impact on his business career and his 78-acre farm, where he owns and breeds seven jumping horses and boards seven more.

HAS BIGGEST ROLL

DENEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Arnold Palmer lost the 1964 money-winning race to Jack Nicklaus, but Palmer still has by far the biggest bankroll of any pressteddy golfer. Palmer won $113,203 in official money last year to bring his earnings for the 1947-64 period to $568,211. This gives him $214,144 more than Billy Casper, whose 1964 winnings boosted him from seventh to second place with $372,067.

First Year as Canadiens' GM

Pollock's Problem — Win, or Face Critics

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) —One of Sam Pollock's problems is that unless Montreal Canadiens finish first in the national Hockey League this season he'll be at the mercy of the critics.

It's his first season as general manager of the team, having succeeded Frank Selke, and last year's first - place finish makes it a tough act to follow.

The only way he can improve on the job done by his successor would be to reach the Stanley Cup finals, something Canadiens failed to do last season, and perhaps win the cup.

But with the club in the thick of the fight for the top spot in the league, the critics are quiet.

Not that Pollock is concerned. "The only difference about my job now is that I'm responsible for making the final decision. But that doesn't bother me. It's what I want to do."

When the 35-year-old Pollock was named general manager, he got a lot of flak from many who would go to Kenny Reardon, the former star defenceman.

"I had an idea this job might be open before it was offered to me," Pollock says. "You just seem to know things like that. It was still a big surprise getting it."

EASY CHOICE

David Molson, the team's president, admits that the final choice was between Selke and Reardon but adds that it didn't take long to decide.

Molson didn't explain further, but perhaps the main reason was Pollock's uncanny knack of spotting hockey talent. Ralph Backstrom, Gilles Tremblay and Bobby Rousseau are just a few examples of his ability.

As a scout and later director of Canadiens' farm system, Pollock built up a habit of scanning a heavy sampling of sports pages from Canadian and American newspapers. He still does it.

He can keep a pretty good check on every hockey player in the country in this way; he's scouting the goals who isn't—that sort of thing."

Pollock has also been described as a walking encyclopedia, able to dredge up out of his memory the statistical record of any player he's ever seen present.

But another reason he finds himself with this new responsibility is that he has been grooming his position for years.

Son of an immigrant Irish-American in Newfoundland, mother, Pollock never played pro hockey, and in fact wasn't really good enough to show what he could do when he turned out years ago with Montreal Royals junior team.

He got into coaching in 1947. 48 when he took over Montreal Junior Canadiens and two seasons later, at 25, became the youngest coach of a Memorial Cup winner.

He coached for seven years before giving it up to adopt varied administrative duties with the Canadiens organization.

He's been credited with the responsibility of negotiating trades. His most sensational was in 1963 when he was given the task of shedding goalie Jacques Plante, an all-star. Canadiens needed goalie Gump Worsley and forwards Dave Balon and Lean Beliveau from New York Rangers for Plante, Don Marshall and Phil Goyette.

Balon got 38 goals for Canadiens last season and is the only one of the three players still with the team. But the goalie trade cleared the way for Charlie Hodge to move into the Montreal nets and that's one reason for the team's success to date.

Asked if he thinks the GM's job is the pinnacle of his career, Pollock says he never thought of reaching any kind of pinnacle but admits he had something like this job in mind when he started out.

"I don't know how much higher a guy can go, unless it's to own his own team, but, of course, that will never happen to me in the National Hockey League."

Few 'Clean' Goals in NH League

MONTREAL (CP)—Lou Angotti, 26-year-old rookie centre of New York Rangers, says there are few "clean" goals scored in the National Hockey League and one reason is that many pros have difficulty executing fundamental moves.

"By clean goals, I mean those that are scored on clear-cut plays—with finesse, in other words," he said.

He said the reason for the general lack of finesse can be traced to the amateur system Angotti said amateurs play so many games in one season they never have enough time to practise and learn fundamentals. And they moved into pro ranks without the benefit of this early training.

Lined up chiefly by New York coach Red Sullivan as a penalty - killer and to beef up the team when they want to preserve a slim lead, Angotti has scored six goals and five assists.

The opposition has only scored once when Angotti was on the ice killing a penalty.

Angotti went to New York from Maple Leafs, who traded him and Ted Lawson last summer for two Rangers farmhands, Ed Ehrenvarth and Duane Rupp.

Mills' Win Said Upset Of Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Last October, Lieut. Billy Mills of the United States Marines, an almost unknown runner, won the 10,000 metres in the Summer Olympic Games at Tokyo by outsprinting world record - holder Ron Clarke of Australia.

His victory was hailed as the upset of the year by United States sports writers and sportscasters pooling the year-end poll announced Monday.

When Dick Button of 250 experts were counted, Mills' Olympic triumph was just one point ahead of Southern California's 20-17 football upset to Notre Dame, then Rated No. 1 college club in the country and riding a nine-game winning streak.

'64 VOTE

Eighty voters cast first-place ballots for Mills and 62 for Notre Dame, with the point scoring on a 3-2-1 basis for second and third was only 345-344 in favor of the Olympic feat.

The St. Louis Cardinals' victory over Philadelphia Phillies in the National League pennant race was the 1964 second, and Cassius Clay's victory over Sonny Liston in their sit-down contest for the world heavyweight championship was No. 4.

No American had won an Olympic distance race since 1908.

Mills, whose career as a college runner had been undistinguished, had finished behind 18-year-old Gerry Lindgren in the U.S. Olympic trials.

By GORDIE HOWE

A soft pass has its advantages. However, there are times when a nice, easy pass is a big mistake. That's when there is a chance of its being intercepted.

As Sid Abel, the Red Wing coach pointed out in practice the other day, by throwing the puck a little harder, you won't have to lead the player you're throwing it to as much.

The slower you pass it, the farther ahead of him you have to throw it.

Then if you can lead a man well ahead with a nice soft pass, then he can skate into it with more confidence, be sure of getting better control of it.

I use the pass mainly when there is nobody else around.

However, there is another way of throwing a soft pass, instead of sliding it along the ice.

This requires getting control of the puck around the heel of the stick. When you swing the stick, you come up a little high with the stick to loft the puck, by having it near the top, you will lift the puck) yet it will come off the stick flat.

For instance, you're throwing it to a teammate but getting it in the air to cut down the chances of an opponent getting his stick on it.

The lobbed puck will land lightly on the ice and if you lead a mat enough, the spin of the puck will be well dissipated. It will be much easier for your teammate to gain control and manoeuvre it.

Even when you make a fast pass, if you meet the puck squarely, instead of cutting across it, imparting spin to it, it will be much easier to control.

Monday Night on Television Programmed on Light Side

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that NBC has moved Man From U.N.C.L.E. into the ranks of Monday evening television, viewers must make some painful decisions.

Take Monday night. The question was whether to watch intrepid Napoleon Solo confound the evil, clever Thrush agents or see a giant jelly fish smothering a nuclear submarine in ABC's Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea.

There was, of course, a third choice—CBS' I've Got a Secret, a pleasant little guessing game.

But Monday night even that was clamoring for attention with an unusual device, a double panel of guessers.

Monday night on network television seems to be programmed deliberately on the light side, at least until 10 p.m. when CBS Reports moves into view.

The Man from U.N.C.L.E., if watched in the spirit in which it was meant, is usually a rather amusing burlesque of all the super-spies and super-spies of books and movies.

The show ought to do better in the new time period. Even in its old Tuesday position opposite Red Skelton. Skelton fans are by and large faithful. Wicki's and that's real devotion and tough competition.

When Skelton departed, whose weekly program was high in the ratings, repeatedly failed to wind ending to series and easing his load, nobody really believed that—except NBC, which boldly signed him last season for a number of specials. It seems that he was in earnest.

Jack Paar has been another TV star who has flitted seasonally from regularity but pundens that no one paid much attention—except, again, NBC. It appears that he will not put no stumbling blocks in his way of Jack's decision to quit regular network TV at the end of this season. But The Jack Paar Show ratings this season have not been very impressive, either.

Recommended tonight: Hullabaloo, NBC, 8:30-9:30 EST—Premiere of a new variety hour with Jack Jones as the singing host.

Trot Body Elects 30 Directors

TORONTO (CP)—Thirty directors were elected to the Canadian Trotting Association board today following nationwide balloting by the association's 3,800 members. Twenty-one of the members are holdovers from last year's board.

Eight men ran for three openings in the hotly contested Zone 8, west of a line from Trenton to Mattawa and including Prince Edward County in Ontario. Re - elected were Alex Parsons of London, Ont., and Max J. Webster of Brantford, each to three-year terms. Heading the poll was newcomer Dr. Lloyd S. McKibbin of Windsor, Ont., also elected for three years.

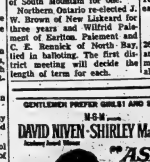
They join holdovers H. Allan Dickenson of Mount Hope, who is president of the association, Ralph Armstrong of Brampton, Leslie Ehrlick of Toronto, Dr. C. H. Heslop, of Milton and Douglas Palmer of Schomberg.

Complete re-election of directors in District 7 saw Scott Burchell of Perth back for a three-year term, James W. Rankin of Renfrew back for two years and John E. Thompson of South Mountain for one.

Orlando Bellamico elected J. W. Brown of New Liskeard for three years and Wilfrid Palmer of Earlton, Lawrence and C. E. Rennick of North Bay, tied in balloting. The first directors' meeting will decide the length of term for each.

Scottish Curlers Win First

CALGARY (CP)—Canada increased its lead to 243-145 in the Strathcona Rivalry Monday night but Scotland picked up its first win of a Canadian tour.



Aggregate scores in the Monday night competition, against six Alberta rinks, was 76-49 for the Canadians and 30-20 in favor of the short end of aggregate scores of 96-81 Vancouver and 79-31 Banff, B.C.

The Canadians, from Edmonton today, are playing a series of games across Canada. The Scottish visitors, Alphonse Aggregate wins the Strathcona Cup, presented in 1909 as a trophy for competition between Canadian and Scottish rinks. Ten matches have been played, each country winning five.

Shipboard Adventure, Far Behind Time, Nearly Ready

By BOB THOMAS

Montreal has finally finished, to the relief of 20th Century-Fox. The shipboard adventure went far over schedule due to the plodding pace of German director Bernhard Wicki. Although the slow acting ranklied Marlon Brando, he veloed the studio's proposal to replace Wicki with a speedier director.

"My contract gives me director approval," Brando said, "and I'm not going to give people another chance to say that a director had to be removed on a picture of mine." The replacement of Carol Reed by Lewis Milestone on Mutiny on the Bounty was blamed on Brando, who claimed to have had nothing to do with it.

Wicki's contract is a fiasco under Wicki's direction. Both Brando and co-star Trevor Howard are reported to have been immensely pleased with a rough cut of the film. All's well that ends. . . .

WAYNE WORKING

"If I didn't," he reasons, "then people would say I was really sick."

The picture is scheduled to shoot five weeks on location, then return to Hollywood. However, if a strike of the craft unions develops, the production will shift to Mexico City. The few other films scheduled to start in January also have alternate plans to shoot in foreign countries if the strike continues. . . .

Leap year has come and gone with scant toll on Hollywood's most eligible bachelors.

Warren Beatty, Richard Chamberlain, Vincent Edwards, Albert Finney, Cary Grant, Rock Hudson, Elvis Presley, Frank Sinatra and Efrem Zimbalist Jr. remain at large.

REMINDER WARM

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Spectators at the opening of Bowie Race Track had cold feet and a warm reminder Monday when a 3,000-foot stretch of artificial snow-covered track bearing a streamer which read, "get well soon—get warm at Bowie" officials believed the move sponsored by the Florida track was a reprisal for last year's Bowie-sponsored streamer at Hialeah which read, "get even at Bowie through March 21."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 13

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Journey is over. You are to complete mission. Don't attempt to prolong project. Hanging on or persisting creating animosity. Maintain dignity. Cycle favorable. Be receptive.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): If you depend entirely upon others . . . you will pay consequences. Means be self-reliant. Express ideas. Show you are aware of needs. Then you gain respect. And get better service.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Place no stock in rumors. Your associate is not aware of truth. Be specific. Outline financial goals. Be charming but firm. Aim toward goal. Don't be sidetracked by well-meaning underlings.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Write, express ideas. Look to future instead of laboring over past. Friends will offer suggestions. But you must make your own decisions. Do so with confidence, good cheer.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Make this a time for self-analysis. Find out where you want to go. Contrast this with where you are going. Realize you can change your course. Take steps to do so!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23): Attend to basic duties. Avoid being a clock watcher. If you do your best . . . you feel free. Pay heed to call or communication. It's important!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Be wary of those who offer "bargains." Strive instead for quality. Stick with the tried-and-proven. Then you will feel better . . . and you get money's worth.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Tendency exists toward self-deception. View persons, situations as they exist. You learn through group activity. Knowledge comes through personal experience.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Take care in public expressions. Realize others take you literally. No time for subtle meanings. Be direct. Keep track of public relations. Emphasize great tact.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): People are drawn to you with their problems, beliefs. You will gain by teaching. Best to complete projects . . . finish what you start. Avoid one who is overly aggressive.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19): Build solid foundation. New starts can assure fulfillment of emotional needs. Be sure you are in position of self-reliance. Change for the better due. Be aware!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Heed emotions. Your intuitive intellect spells out true situation. Don't go against grain of inner feelings. Then you will be free of unnecessary burdens.

If today is your birthday . . . you are capable of overcoming obstacles to achieve your goals. You are patient, determined. And you do have time on your side.

Bid For Title
Manchester U. Poised

LONDON (AP)—Denis Law, mastermind of Manchester United and the bad boy of British soccer, ends a 56-day suspension sentence this week—and Manchester is poised for an all-out bid for the English League championship.

The tousle-haired Scot, forward, formerly a star of Torino of Italy, was banned from playing for 28 days last month by the disciplinary committee of the English Football Association because he used foul language to a referee.

Law watching from the sidelines, Manchester has slipped a bit in the race for the league title.

Leeds now leads the standings with 30 points from 26 games. Chelsea and Manchester share second place with 27 points from 25 games.

The team that ultimately wins the league gets a place in the money-spinning European Cup of Champions next season.

EXPERTS SAW END

When Law was suspended, experts said it would mean the end of Manchester's championship bid. The Scottish international was Manchester's leading scorer with 12 goals this season, and he had made the openings for plenty more goals by Bobby Charlton, George Best and David Herd.

It looked as if Law would miss four vital league games. But luck was with Manchester. Two of the matches—home fixtures against Leicester City on Dec. 26 and Fulham Jan. 3—were postponed because of bad weather.

Those games will be played later in the season, on dates to be announced. Law then will be available, barring injury.

Manchester has been striving to get back into the European Cup ever since the tragic day in 1958 when eight of its players were killed in an air disaster at Munich.

Tubes Could Be Used for Rockets Says Witness

OTTAWA (CP) —Electrical equipment of the type an Ottawa businessman is charged with selling to the Czech embassy could be used for rocketry, a witness testified Monday in magistrate's court.

David L. Maunder, president of Timberline Construction and Equipment Limited, pleaded not guilty to selling two Vidicon tubes to the commercial counsellor at the embassy, contrary to the Export and Import Permits Act.

Dr. George T. Fuller, a specialist in electro - optical devices with the Canadian Armaments Research Establishment, told the court he believed such tubes were used in rocketry.

Maunder was charged in November with 12 counts of violating government export controls by selling or trying to sell goods to Russia. Three of the charges were withdrawn Monday.

The accused is free on $15,000 bail. The trial continues.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in most cases, and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One rectal specialist said after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was stopped promptly and sorely relieved . . . serious reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases so long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that the improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new pain relieving substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special gauze spreader).

MAYOR TAKES POST

For the past seven years the representative from the municipal council to the Campbellford Memorial Hospital Board has been the reeve of council. In Monday night's council meeting two nominations were made one, Mayor Tanner, the other Reeve A. Brown. In the ensuing voting four votes were cast for each candidate. Mayor Tanner then declared motion lost but up further consideration decided to vote, although no polled vote had been asked for. Mayor Tanner voted in favor of himself and declared motion carried in his favor, after the two votes on the two candidates had been taken.

It has been past policy in Campbellford council that the mayor voted only on a polled vote, the legality of the mayor voting in this instance depends on the interpretation of the Municipal Act which states chapter 249, section 200-196: "The head of the council, or the presiding officer, except where he is disqualified to vote by reason of interest or otherwise may vote with other members on all questions — any question which there is an equality of votes shall be deemed to be negated."

Mrs. Mary Collins was appointed to the authority of Merryvale School for Retarded Children.

Mr. Donald Tucker of Stirling interviewed council regarding control of dogs in Campbellford. Mr. Tucker stated he had such control in Rawdon township, Sidney township, Frankford and Stirling. Mr. Tucker stated his terms, which included building of kennels and other necessary equipment. No decision it was turned over to the police commission for consideration; a report to be made at a later meeting.

SPEAKS ON LAGOONS

F. M. Rutherford addressed council regarding lagoon system of sewage disposal and referred to an article contributed by Peterborough Examiner correspondent and written by Dr. McNulty of B.C., in which, according to Mr. Reid the article quotes Dr. McNulty as saying "lagoons are a danger to public health and it is time for the medical profession to take a stand and place this absurd and stupid method of waste treatment where it belongs, in the museum of sanitary history."

Mr. Rutherford stated it was reported in the press of recent issue that the cost of sewers and lagoon system of $16,300 had been approved for the town of Brighton. Mr. Rutherford also quoted paragraph from a letter of January 5, 1965, signed by Mr. K. H. Sharpe, director of Division of Sanitary Engineering for OWRC: "It is my opinion that a properly operated sewage lagoon suitably isolated from urban areas provides an economical method of treatment to rural municipalities."

Briefs From Council

CAMPBELLFORD — The taxi license of Douglas Calver having been in order regarding insurance and other details was renewed for the year 1965.

A letter was received from Campbellford Chamber of Commerce asking that Council petition O.L.C.B. to have liquor store remain open six days a week during entire year instead of as last year from June 15 to September 15.

L.O.D.A. reported they are sending representatives to Sportsmen shows in United States and that each communnde member furnish tourist brochures to be shown. The Chamber of Commerce had already taken care of this detail.

Clerk E. M. Ihey reported he had received an invoice from Marconi Co. for $1290.08 for police radios. Clerk Ihey stated these radios were procured on a six-month trial basis by former police commissioner R. K. Thompson. The trial period has now more than elapsed. Mr. Thompson, a local high school teacher, living in Campbellford for a short period of time and elected as a councillor and chairman of the police committee, moved away in the summer because of teaching interest elsewhere. Apparently no one was aware that time was running out on the trial period until it is now realized the trial period is over and some action must be taken immediately. It was turned over to the police commission for study and a report to be made in February.

Mayor Tanner reported he had a phone call from a representative of the John Howard Society in Belleville asking for a contribution. The society is an organization to help rehabilitate offenders who have spent some time in prison.

A by-law was passed permitting council to borrow up to $15,000 to take care of expenses until revenues start in from taxes or other sources.

Miss Winnifred Hay was reappointed to the Campbellford Library Board for a three-year period.

Deputy Reeve Locke asked that a notice be placed in the local paper regarding prepayment of taxes.

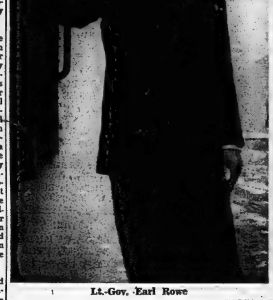
Deputy Reeve asked that the names of previous mayors be inscribed on the mayor's chain of office.

Councillor H. Dunk suggested the formation of a planning board comprised of representatives of, boards and commissions in Campbellford to prevent various organizations and prevent undue expenses and overlapping of work. Councillor Sharp suggested Councillor Dunk should take leadership in this avenue of thought, supported by all other members of council.

Industrial chairman R. Bennett asked for report of delegation which had been in Toronto re low rental housing. A report was promised for February meeting.

Councillor J. Torrance reported that Community Centre canvass now amounted to $22,300, still lacking $18,000 to have sufficient funds.

Reeve Brown asked for report of time and place of the Campbellford Memorial Hospital Board meetings. Deputy reeve Locke asked that more interested people attend meeting of Hospital Board, especially the annual meeting.



A motion on record in the municipal records limits the amount of money which can be spent without permission of council, this motion appears to be disregarded on the pay sheets presented, especially in travelling expenses.

CITY ON MOVE

Party Poster

Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe

Belleville Stopover

Biggest Birthday Party of the Year

The crowd on the platform serenaded him with "Happy Birthday" and the familiar, figure waved cheery acknowledgment.

"I guess there are no secrets in this business," Premier Robarts called back as the birthday spotlight glinted comfortably out of Belleville C.N.R. station.

Publicly, he was heading toward the biggest birthday party of the year, the Kingston celebration of Sir John A. Macdonald's 150th anniversary.

Personally, the Premier also was marking his own birthday yesterday—a fact not forgotten by the crowd of well-wishers which gathered to greet him at a Belleville whistlestop.

The informal interlude — as the Montreal-bound CN passenger train made its regular Belleville stopover — also brought some other well-known figures down to the platform in the Premier's wake.

The official Province of Ontario party headed by Premier Robarts, journeyed to Kingston in a special section hooked to the rear of the regular express.

POSTERS ON COACHES

Bedecked with posters printed in period typefaces, the official coaches were drawn up to the platform immediately after the train had disembarked regular passengers.

The small, but enthusiastic crowd which had awaited its arrival dead on time at 12.52 had only moments to wait before greeting the Ontario official party.

First to descend to the platform was the Premier, followed almost immediately by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Many of those on hand were party supporters and the Premier moved among them renewing acquaintances, shaking hands and being introduced to members of the public.

But the surprise of the occasion came a few moments later.

As the crowd surrounded Mr. Robarts and the Lieutenant-Governor someone caught a familiar figure emerging from the coach onto its rear platform.

He passed only to flash the smile and handwave that once had been a significant part of many another platform in the province. Then Leslie Frost strode down to the crowd to be accosting it with another aspect of his public magnetism—his fabled ability to recall faces on a first-name basis.

However, he did not allow his appearance to divert from the presence of his predecessor in office and, within minutes, climbed back aboard.

With a final wave to the crowd he and Lieutenant-Governor Rowe disappeared beside, leaving Premier Robarts alone to bid farewell.

He was almost out of earshot and heading for John A's big posthumous birthday party before they had finished slaying.

Mayor Tanner Inducted by Reeve Brown

CAMPBELLFORD — The inaugural meeting of the Municipal Council was held in the council chambers Monday forenoon.

Newly-appointed Reeve A. Brown placed the chain of office on Mayor Tanner. Reeve Brown who said he had been asked only a few minutes previously to perform this service spoke appropriately of the ceremony. He stated the custom originated with the Lord Mayor of London in 1190 and that the Lord Mayor of London had five different robes for special occasions. Reeve Brown said the symbol of office is indicative of the esteem of the wearer and concluded by saying may it always remind the wearer of the dignity of office.

Lieutenant Wilson of Campbellford Salvation Army Corps gave the spiritual direction and benediction. He expressed his appreciation of the invitation. He used as the basis of his remarks Micah 6-8 "To do justly, and to love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God."

Mayor Tanner in his address welcomed the new council members, recognized the press, and the only visitors, two elderly gentlemen. He expressed pleasure in working with last year's council and hoped the same co-operation would prevail this year. Mayor Tanner stated that truth should be considered above all else.

MUST ACQUIRE INDUSTRY

He said he hoped the town would acquire new industry this year, that all committee members would not over spend a designated budget, and that all would live up to the trust placed in them.

It was decreed by motion that the mayor appoint a striking committee to name committee chairman. The committees to be Reeve A. Brown, Deputy Reeve R. Locke and high vote councillor R. Bennett.

To inform new members and expedite the night meeting to follow minutes of last council meeting were read and approved.

Council adjourned to be guests of Campbellford Rotary Club at luncheon.

Pearsons and Johnsons Will Visit Informally at Ranch

WASHINGTON (CP) — A weekend visit between Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson at the LBJ Ranch in Texas was announced Monday as a replacement for a call by the prime minister Friday at the White House.

On present planning — and some details of the, White House-planned get-together remain unknown—the two men and their wives will visit informally without another official in sight.

So far, no consideration has been evident about adding the Canadian ambassador, Charles Ritchie, or anybody else.

The Pearsons will be returning from a Florida holiday and the original schedule called for stopping in Washington to see the president Friday, plus some other government leaders. The Pearsons would have returned Saturday to Ottawa.

The plans announced Monday repeated that informality remains the key feature. There is no agenda. Pearson would arrive Friday afternoon and there is no word when he will leave, although presumably he would do so Saturday.

Later, it was learned reliably that the prime minister intends to be in Washington next Monday. It was not known whether he would leave the ranch Saturday or accompany the president to Washington Sunday.

An earlier departure seemed indicated, with a possibility that Pearson and the president might jointly announce something in the nature of formal agreement on a long-negotiated free-trade arrangement in autos and new parts.

Pearson also is expected to present a formal invitation for the president to visit Canada this year although Johnson already has a heavy travel agenda—to some Latin American countries, European capitals and perhaps Moscow if he receives an invitation in the wake of his own suggestion that Russia's new leaders visit the U.S.

The ranch is about 70 miles from Austin, Texas, and is a favorite working - holidaying spot for Johnson. The White House announcement said he hopes this weekend—before returning perhaps Sunday to Washington—to work on his Jan. 20 inauguration address.

School Board Elects Officers For New Year

CAMPBELLFORD —The inaugural meeting of the Public School Board was held on January 6th in the Bridge Street Senior School.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Roberts, presided for the election of chairman and vice-chairman for 1965. Mr. Wayne Gunter was chosen as chairman and Mr. Maurice Blodgett as vice-chairman. Mr. Gunter conducted the meeting.

Reports were given concerning the work done in the Christmas vacation at both schools. Mr. C. V. Johnson gave the financial report, which showed $13,447.54 to be carried forward into 1965

It was decided to join the Urban and Rural School Trustees' Association this year and to affiliate with the Trustees' Council as usual.

Both principals reported for the schools. Registration days for kindergarten are Feb. 11 and 12 at both schools. All children who will be five years old by December 31, 1965, and those parents are public school supporters, are eligible for registration for the fall term.

Mr. Gunter chose his committees as follows: management, Mr. C. Duff and Mr. William W. McKeaney; property, Mr. M. Blodgett and Mr. William A. Murray; finance, Mr. C. V. Johnson.

Charlotte Gives Support To Cameramen

She snapped at women she termed "some bearded fool in a raccoon coat" who frolicked before cameramen, cameras representing Sir John and his family.

"If Sir John had been around, he would have placed his foot in the start of the fool's anatomy especially designed for that purpose."

Police Charge Husband With Wife's Death

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Police said Monday that Howard Mulder, 51, of Harrow, Ont., was charged in hospital Friday with capital murder in the Dec. 19 death of his wife, Juanita, 41.

Mrs. Mulder, mother of 13, was shot through the heart while sitting in a chair in a shack near her home. Mulder and another man, Eddie Jean Williams, 41, were taken to hospital with gunshot wounds after the incident.

U Thant Launches Final Effort to Break Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant has launched a final effort today to break the U.S.-Soviet deadlock over United Nations peace-keeping dues before the General Assembly returns to work Monday.

Delegates saw little chance of avoiding a showdown which could result in loss of assembly voting rights for Russia, France and 16 other nations. They are more than two years behind on their UN assessments as a result of their refusal to pay peace - keeping costs.

Nationalist China also faced a challenge to its voting rights as a dues delinquent but gave Thant a cheque for $4,990,500 Monday.

Recently Communist Bulgaria paid $160,000 on its regular budget and under UN bookkeeping practices escaped being in arrears for two years on all its assessments.

Just before the end of the year, UN records show, the Soviet Union paid about $1,300,000 in partial fulfilment of its regular 1964 budget assessments.

MAKE PAYMENTS

Three other Communist states, Byelorussia, Hungary, and the Ukraine, also made payments on regular budget assessments at that time. But none of them had paid anything near the peace-keeping assessments and all four are still more than two years behind in total assessments.

Most delegates feel a showdown is inevitable when the assembly meets Jan. 18 in view of the adamant U.S. stand and the Soviet refusal to make a solid financial commitment.

But Indonesia Charges British Plans Attack

JAKARTA (CP) — President Sukarno said today Indonesia would not declare war on Malaysia but if she were attacked ah would strike back.

Talking to reporters at his palace, he was asked if Indonesia would start a war over the Malaysia issue, Antara news agency reported.

He replied: "No, definitely not, but if Indonesia were attacked, the Indonesians would strike back."

When asked if there were indications that Indonesia would be attacked, he replied: "No comment."

Sukarno said there would be no other steps following up Indonesia's withdrawal from the United Nations.

ACCUSES BRITAIN

A foreign office spokesman charged Tuesday that Britain is preparing to attack Indonesia by creating "another Suez incident" in this part of the world.

In a statement, spokesman Gania Haroeno said the British military buildup in neighboring Malaysia "is unprecedented in peace time."

Haroeno said Britain used Egypt's seizure of the Suez Canal as a pretext to attack the Egyptians in 1956 and such an action "will be repeated by Britain by using the Malaysia dispute as an excuse."

Haroeno charged that Britain had deliberately spread rumors that Indonesia's main reason for withdrawing from the United Nations was to free it from all ties so as to begin a general attack on Malaysia.

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) — Gen. Sir James Cassels, the British chief of staff-designate who is here on a 10-day survey of Malaysia's defence problems, has conferred with Malaysian defence leaders.

Meanwhile, jet fighter - bombers from the British aircraft carrier Eagle flew into Singapore airfields today several hours before the 30,000-ton ship was schedule, to berth at the Singapore naval base.

(From Hong Kong it was reported that an airlift of British Army Gurkhas from Hong Kong to reinforce security forces in Malaysia got under way today.)

The troop movements took place as British and Malaysian officials reported substantial inroads against rebels in Borneo six on the islands near Singapore and Malaya.

Some 2,000 British servicemen are stationed in the 16-month-old Federation of Malaysia — made up of the British colonies of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo).

The federation is locked in an undeclared war with Indonesia. Indonesian President Sukarno, who sees Malaysia as an extension of British colonialism in Asia, has sworn to crush it.

Cassels was one of the three senior British defence officials in the federation. British Army Defence Minister Fred Mulley is in Borneo and Gen. Sir Malcolm Cartwright - Taylor, commander of the Royal Marines, is in Singapore.

Razak also told reporters of plans for a major expansion of Malaysia's citizen forces. These included establishment of depots to train 40,000 recruits and the arming of 40,000 home guards in remote jungle and coastal areas — where Indonesian guerrillas have been landing.

Attack Continues On Plan

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The proposed Canada pension plan was expected to continue getting a robust shelling by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association today after a double-barrelled session Tuesday showed no signs of depleting the ammunition.

The association, representing 162 Canadian, American and European insurance companies, mounted a broad offensive against the proposed pension plan when a 13-man delegation appeared before a joint Senate-Commons committee Tuesday.

The assault was mounted from a number of fronts:

That today's aged would get nothing from the plan; that those now in need of benefits would get less than the well-off; that the unemployed and those with small earnings

Abandon Hope For Rescue of 14 Miners

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Rescue workers abandoned hope Tuesday night for 14 miners trapped for nearly two days after a huge avalanche had blocked the corridor in the Usce coal mine pit, about 115 miles south of this Yugoslav capital.

Reports reaching here said mountaineers answered the concentration of carbon monoxide was fatal in the pit.

UN Dues Impasse Remains

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary - General U Thant sought today to salvage a foundering Asian - African plan to settle the stalemate over the General Assembly votes of nations which refuse to pay peacekeeping costs.

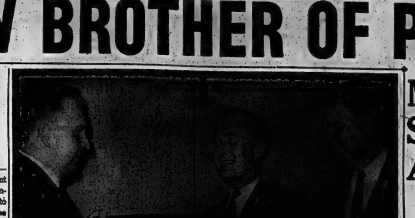
Thant held an emergency conference Tuesday night with Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana after the United States announced it had rejected a provision of the Asian-African plan setting aside the UN charter's Article 19. This penalty clause takes away the voting vote of any member two years behind in its payments.

Informants said Thant and Quaison-Sackey hoped to persuade the 59-nation Asian-African group to make their plan more palatable somehow to the United States and to the Soviet Union in hopes of avoiding a showdown when the assembly returns from New Year's recess Monday.

Article 19 would take away the vote of the Soviet Union, France and 16 other nations more than two years in arrears in their UN payments because of their refusal to pay peace-keeping dues.

The Asian-African bloc has indicated it would pay into a voluntary fund without disclosing the amount and provided its payment was not listed as a peace-keeping contribution. But it also demanded that Article 19 be suspended and threatened to quit the UN if deprived of its Assembly vote.

Both the Russians and the French contend the peace-keeping assessments are illegal because they were voted by the General Assembly instead of the Security Council.



A 12-member committee of the Asian-African group plans to present the plan in a resolution to the Assembly, but it decided Tuesday night to delay drafting it until Thant negotiates further with the United States, Russia and other nations concerned. Such a resolution would probably bring on the Soviet-American confrontation that other nations are trying to avoid.

Doctors Want Nursing Home Standards Set

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association called of the provincial government Tuesday to establish operating standards for all nursing homes.

In a brief to the legislature's select committee on aging, the doctors' association said it was essential to insure that nursing home patients get adequate care.

Provincial standards now apply in most cases only to homes looking after welfare cases.

Plays Hans to Win Friends With Loan to Municipalities

OTTAWA (CP) — That noted auctioneer Harry Hays is holding up for the inspection of his Cabinet colleagues a new plan aimed at making friends on all sides for the Liberal government.

The agriculture minister's project is a loan fitty "as big or bigger" than the $400,000,000 municipal development loan.

In one stroke it would pump new capital into the economy and, in a departure from past agricultural policy, make funds available indiscriminately for community centres and agricultural fairs.

Sources say Mr. Hays is campaigning vigorously for introduction of the scheme as soon as the financial climate is right.

Low-interest loans would be offered to promote community centres and large buildings of that kind which might only incidentally and for a short period every year be used as homes for agricultural fairs and exhibitions.

Mr. Hays first mentioned the fund last month to the Canadian Association of Exhibitions in Toronto.

He spoke then of opening up "a whole new source of financial assistance" for fairs and exhibitions. He said they weren't able to carry out the type of expansion needed "with $100,000 or even twice that amount."

Sources say the amounts he has in mind are more in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 for the larger exhibitions with re-

Unemployment Total Stays Well Below That Year Ago

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada in mid-December, 1964, rose to 283,000 from 258,000 in the preceding month, but was still well below the December, 1963, level of 346,000.

A joint report issued today by the departments of labor and by labor department reported employment at 6,614,000, down 80,000 from November, but 186,000 above the figure for a year earlier.

The jobless total represented 4.1 per cent of the labor force of 6,890,000, compared with 5.1 per cent a year earlier, but was an increase from the 3.7 per cent rate for last November.

Highest rate of unemployment for 1964 was in January and February, when seven per cent of the labor force was unemployed. September had the lowest unemployment rate with 3.1 per cent.

The seasonally adjusted rate for December was four per cent, compared with a mid-November figure of 4.3 per cent, and 4.9 per cent for December, 1963.

	Dec. Nov. Dec.
Labor force	6,890	6,852	6,774
Employed	6,614	6,694	6,428
Unemployed	283	258	346

The report said about three-quarters of the 80,000 decline in employment between November and December was due to agriculture, with employment holding up "better than usual" in non-farm industries.

Employment dropped from 579,000 in November to 521,000 in December in the agricultural field, compared with a drop from 6,115,000 to 6,093,000 in non-agricultural work.

"The decrease was somewhat less than average" for the last several years, with an increase of only 27,000 unemployed persons.

"Of the 283,000 unemployed in December, some 218,000, or about three-quarters, had been unemployed for three months or less. An estimated 33,000 had been seeking work from four to six months, and 34,000 for seven months or more."

U.S. Planes Shot Down In Viet Nam

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP) — Two American planes were shot down today in South Viet Nam near the Cambodian border. One was shot down, the other crashed when it ran out of fuel, U.S. spokesmen said.

No lives were lost in the plane crashes. Two crew members in a small army spotter plane suffered second - degree burns when their craft was shot down. A U.S. Air Force officer suffered minor bruises and scratches when his plane ran out of fuel.

Anti - government demonstrations in three cities subsided, and the demonstrators in Hue prepared to send a delegation to Saigon to discuss their grievances with chief of state Phan Khac Suu.

Hue was reported quiet in Hue, Quang Tri and Nha Trang, where noisy demonstrations took place Tuesday and Monday. A three-day general strike ended in Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon.

In Saigon, conferences continued between U.S. officials and Buddhist leaders who oppose Premier Phan Van Huong's government, but the Buddhists were reported talking as hard as anti - government line as ever.

Meanwhile, Communist China charged that "U.S. imperialism" was behind a South Korean government decision to send 2,000 non-combat troops to South Viet Nam.

Murder Suspect Still On Stand At Dorion Probe

Liberal Organizer Knew "Extradition Expert"

MONTREAL (CP) — Murder suspect Robert Gignac testified today that he knew Raymond Roulleau, brother of Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, but that he never discussed business with him.

Gignac told the Dorion judicial inquiry that he did not know Guy Rouleau, who resigned as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson last November following allegations in the Commons that a ministerial executive assistant had tried to bribe or coerce a Montreal lawyer acting in a narcotics case.

Gignac, testifying for the second day before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court, was asked by Paul Jolin, counsel for the New Democratic Party, whether he held connections with Liberals in Guy Rouleau's Montreal-Dollard constituency.

Before Gignac could reply, objections to this line of questioning were raised by the commission counsel Henri Dorjardins and Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government.

MENTIONED CONTRACT

Mr. Jolin said that in testimony Tuesday Gignac had mentioned a contract to build a house in Montreal-Nord.

Replying to Mr. Jolin, Gignac said the work was to be done in the Montreal-area communities of Pointe - aux - Trembles and Ville d'Anjou, and added he would, for the Union Nationale member.

He then corrected himself to say the work was for Mayor Crepeau, whom he did not further identify.

He said the hospital work was for a development corporation and further questions along this line were not immediately forthcoming.

Gignac identified the company as quad development corporation.

Under questioning by Francois Even, counsel for the Credit Interbanques, Gignac denied suggestion that he was owed $10,000 by Lucien Rivard, la jail inmate being the outcome of extradition proceedings aimed at taking him to Laredo, Texas, to face narcotics - smuggling charges.

OFFERED BRIBE

Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne has testified that he was offered $20,000 last July 14 by Raymond Denis, an executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, to agree to Rivard's release on bail pending the extradition hearings. Lamontagne is counsel for the United States government in the extradition case.

Gignac, who said he is not a dent of two contracting firms, testified that many tens of thousands of dollars are owed to his companies. But he repeated that Rivard is not in debt to him personally nor is he his personal creditor.

Gignac testified Tuesday that shortly after Rivards arrest last June 19 he brought together Mrs. Rivard and a business

New Terror Grips Boston Area, Gang War Leaves 15 Men Dead

BOSTON (CP)—The wave of mysterious strangings which ended exactly one year ago with 11 victims has given way in Greater Boston to a new terror —gang warfare of major proportions.

Even while the strangings

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: All regions will notice cooler temperatures today. Tonight nearby clear skies will aid in producing markedly cooler temperatures around the lower lakes.

continue to defy solution, 15 men have been killed in gangland slayings and at least a half-dozen others have been wounded in obvious slaying attempts.

The strangling victims — all women—were killed in an 18-month period from June 14, 1962, to Jan. 4, 1964.

Death came to the last of the 15 men Jan. 10. Arrests have been made only for one of the slayings.

The Boston police department serves as clearing house for the half-dozen communities involved in the investigations.

Boston Deputy Commissioner Herbert F. Mullonev says the slayings can be traced to three hoodlum elements: Rivalry between a Boston gang and a Somerville area mob, loan sharks and tailgators who rob from open trucks.

Mullonev added: "We think that sometimes a killing is to show personal strength. One gang wants to show another that it is strong so they kill a member of the rival gang."

One source said investigation is under way to determine if some of the unsolved killings involved a pay-off to a man who knows who took $1,551,277 from the mail truck robbery in Plymouth, Mass., in August, 1962. The man was reported to have demanded $50,000 in hush money and already had collected $25,000.

The unsolved mail truck robbery still stands as the biggest cash robbery in U.S. history, topping the $1,219,000 robbery of the Boston headquarters of Brink's 12 years earlier.

Most of the men killed had police records.

150 Taxis Hijacked In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — At least 150 taxi cabs were hijacked in downtown Montreal Tuesday night and demobilized by parking incidents in a wildcat walkout staged by scores of cab drivers, police reported.

Strikers halted cabs driven by non-strikers and asked to be taken to midtown Lafontaine Park where other strikers removed the meters, locked the cars and threw away the keys.

Police said seven men were taken into custody when dozens of police officers arrived on the scene. The demobilized taxis could be towed away by the cab companies.

One striker said: "It won't be safe to drive a cab after midnight tonight."

The wildcat strikers are employed by two Montreal companies.

"COOLED OFF" STRIKERS

Because taxi drivers who had their cars hijacked were unwilling to press charges, the seven men taken into custody were released after what police called "a cooling off period."

A police spokesman said the strikers showed no discrimination in the choice of taxis they took into the park. The strikers forced drivers for their own firms and others to abandon their vehicles.

Police said a special four man squad has been assigned to keep an eye on the headquarters of the firms affected by the strike.

Strikers said the reason for their actions was that some owners had raised the rental charges on their cars by $1 to $2.

Taxi fares were recently raised by Montreal city council.

The wildcat strikers said that although they were being charged more, their meters had not been adjusted to the increased rate.

WANTS LIMIT

OTTAWA (CP) — Controller Murray Hall has asked for a 40-miles - an - hour minimum speed on the Queensway Expressway running through Ottawa, and Mayor Don Reid said Tuesday Police Chief Reginald Excell has been ordered for an immediate accident report on the highway. The mayor said legislation for minimum speeds might be beyond jurisdiction of the city but might have to come under the Ontario Highway Traffic Act.

Queen and Prince to Spend Night In Tent When They Visit Ethiopia

LONDON (CP) — The Queen will spend a night in a tent 10,000 feet up in the mountains of Ethiopia when she and Prince Philip visit the east African country in the first week of February, it was reported Tuesday.

It will be one of three nights the royal couple will spend out of the capital, Addis Ababa, during their eight - day stay. The other trips will be to Asmara and Asuna, capital of the legendary Queen of Sheba from whom Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie claims direct descent.

The emperor will accompany the British Royal Couple on their trips. He is said to enjoy camping trips — something of a national pastime in the lush green country of majestic crags and peaks and perpetual balmy weather — and often prefers to live under canvas as he moves around his domain rather than in the official rest-houses.

The Queen's camp will be on a hill near Gondar, an ancient city once the capital of Ethiopia.

Her last visit to East Africa was in Kenya in 1952, when she was still Princess Elizabeth. She and Prince Philip were in the famous Treetops Hotel, sa-safari centre, when the news came of King George VI's death.

After the Ethiopian tour the Queen and Philip will spend four days in the Sudan from 5-12. Preparations for the visit are going ahead as scheduled, after some initial uncertainty in the British foreign office when President Ibrahim Abbood, who issued the invitation last May, was deposed in November.

The Queen's host in the Sudan will be Premier Sir El Khatem El Khalifa, 47, head of the interim civilian government that replaced Abbood's military rule.

Each and Every One Integral Part of Community Says Judge in Opening Assizes

Quinte Kiwanis Hears Talk on Traffic Mishaps

Quinte Kiwanis Club met at the Kiwanis Centre, Monday. The speaker was Staff Sgt. Ralph Blatchford of Belleville Police. His subject was "Traffic and Traffic Safety". He was introduced by Doug. Pickering and thanked by Les Minlop.

Staff Sgt. Blatchford stated that during the year 1964 720 traffic accidents had occurred in the city at a cost of $192,000 property damage, 118 people hospitalized and 4 fatalities. He stated that accidents occurred by three factors — vehicles, roads and people.

People are the greatest variable. Factors affecting them are emotions, maturity, apathy and lack of awareness of what constitutes hazards. People appear to be more concerned about damage to vehicles than human suffering.

The role of the police is to educate the public in safe driving habits, assist the provincial engineering dept. in providing facilities to minimize accidents and enforcing regulations in a manner that the public will accept and apply to safe driving, Sgt. Blatchford said.

"No five citizens assume an active status in the social obligations of their community, an Ontario Supreme Court judge viewed here yesterday.

"It seems to me unfortunate that too many of our young people — and too many of our older people — have the impression that they are each and every one an integral part of (their) community," Mr. Justice D. R. Morand said.

His Lordship made the comments as he opened the Hastings County winter assizes in Belleville.

In one instance, persons guilty of such social negligence tend to "look upon police forces as the enemies of society . . ."

The police and courts "are your representatives in the community," he told a court room filled with jurors.

"It is up to each and every citizen to participate in support the processes by which that community is run."

HOSPITALIZED BY RESULTS

He said he was "horrified" by the results of a recent TV poll in which five out of 10 Canadians voted identity Sir John A. Macdonald.

"Most people can't even tell you who their member of parliament is or who their chief of police is," he asked.

"Each person must feel that they are part of a community, that they are proud of that fact of that area, that they owe a duty to that area".

His Lordship presides over an assizes with one of the largest court dockets in recent sessions.

Of a total of 34 jury and non-jury cases listed, 27 are accident claims. There are four criminal actions — the lowest number in recent years.

There is one criminal case — a charge of rape.

His Lordship was welcomed to the bench for the first time he had practised in Belleville by city barrister Ronald Cass.

Mr. Les Andrews, not completely recovered from attempting to teach 97 boys how to swim in the local YMCA on Saturday morning, requested that any Cubs who have their swimmers' badges should not put in an appearance on Saturdays and any fathers who would like to help out would be most welcome.

A very heart-warming offer from Chisholm-Keith of Roslin, to provide free of charge enough plywood to cover the windows in the District Council building at Camp Sagonaska was accepted with grateful thanks by all present.

A Scouter or Senior Camp Course is to be held in Fleetwood, Jan. 20th, Wednesday, Jan. 27th, upstairs in the Bridge Street Parish Hall at 7.30 p.m. and outdoors on the weekend of the 30th and 31st of January at Camp Sagonaska. All interested should contact the District Commissioner soon as possible. It will be necessary because of unprecedented demand for all the groups wishing to use Camp Sagonaska in 1965 to apply to the D.C. in writing show why permission to use and program not less than one month in advance. This is to avoid the camp unlawful parking, destruction of property and misuse of the reservation Authority properly is to be avoided if we are to maintain the high standard of relationship with the Authority. Don't spoil it for everyone else—plan ahead.

Reports from those groups present indicated Cubbing (Scouting) remains at a high level after the Christmas season. However, one group reported it was completely registered its Cubs and Scouts and one Leader-Auxiliary to Cub Scouts. How about it? Scouting needs you and you need Scouting.

BADGES RECEIVED

Mrs. Betty Fort reporting for the Auxiliaries made a plea for the services of all Scout badges not required by ex-Scouts or Scouters to be given on behalf of the local group to the Indian Scout group being organized at Fort Albany. So long as the Scouts are hearable the Nuns at Fort Albert have guaranteed to put into suitable condition. You can save on mothballs and do a "good turn" all in one swoop.

Give Mrs. Fort a call if you have a hat you no longer use which you would like to donate. Watch for an announcement of an Auxiliary training course early in February.

The meeting adjourned at 8.30 p.m.

Dumbert Samenez, seriously ill in hospital with a bullet in his head, said the gunman, who picks his victims on the street at random, was a tall, slim man of about 30 who shot at him left-handed from a black car.

IN MEMORIAM

MILNE — In loving memory of my dear sister, Mrs. Barbara Milne, who passed away on January 20th, 1964.

God took her with a merciful hand,
He saw her suffer and bear,
For life is not the same to me
Since you were called to rest.
I've learned with patient effort,
To bear the heavy load each day,
But cannot help the longing,
To have you here with me.
When days are dark and lonely,
And my heart is full of pain,
I seem to hear you whisper,
"Meet me in heaven again."
How can I look at your picture,
You seem to smile and say,
"Dear sister, don't be weeping,
We'll meet again some day."
Sadly missed and always remembered by her loving sister and family.

MORRIS — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Hazel Morris, who passed away January 19th, 1964.
We miss her love and cheery ways,
Her gentle smile and kindly face,
As memory we see her the same,
As long as we live she'll remain.
—Lovingly remembered by husband Peter and children Marion and Ronald.

VINKLE — In ever loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, John, who passed away January 19th, 1964.
My heart still aches with sadness,
And tears flow silently,
What it meant to lose you,
No one will ever see.
When I am sad and lonely,
And need a helping hand,
I seem to hear you whisper,
"Don't worry I understand."
Each time I see your photo,
Each time I hear your name,
Memories flood my heart,
We'll meet again some day."
—Sadly missed by his loving wife and family.

MORRIS — In ever loving memory of our dear mother, Hazel Morris, who passed away one year ago today, January 19th, 1965.
A cherry smile, a heart of gold,
The kindest soul you could ever hold,
A friend to all her last would give,
To help the needy live.
—Sadly missed by her daughters, sisters and brothers.

Claude Winters, Game Warden, Dies in Crash

A Department of Lands and Forests game warden at Wellington, Claude Winters, 54, died last night when his car crashed off the Madoc county road near Crookston.

Cause of the fatal accident was not immediately known.

Mr. Winters, a well-known, popular figure in the Wellington area had been stationed there since he joined the department 18 years ago.

He had spent most of the day at a meeting in the department district offices at Tweed. He had dropped an outboard motor at Madoc for repairs and was returning home when the accident occurred around 10.45 p.m.

Scene of the mishap was just north of Crookston, about four miles south of Madoc.

Mr. Winters lived at Wellington with a widowed sister and a 14-year-old daughter, Judy.

Council Members Guests of Kiwanis Club

Mayor Jack R. Ellis was represented at the meeting by Alderman J. B. Corke who also acted as the guest speaker. Nine other aldermen accompanied Mr. Corke.

One of the main points of Mr. Corke's address was the restrictions surrounding the setting of a mill rate. Mr. Corke said that council is restricted by rules of Provincial government act and other officials. As a result he said, the area of decision is very small.

Mr. Corke said that people tend to get the idea that council decided themselves what the mill rate is going to be, but he said, this is a wrong idea.

Mr. Corke went on to explain the function of city council and their aims and objectives for 1965.

Mr. Corke was introduced to the club by President B. Bradley and thanked on behalf of membership by Kiwanian K. Pinder. Members of council present, introduced themselves to the club.

Charge of Rape Is Dismissed, No Bill Returned

A charge of rape against a Belleville man was dismissed today after an Ontario Supreme Court grand jury returned a no bill on the case.

The jury thus signified it had found insufficient evidence to send 32-year-old Howard Franklin Babcooke on trial.

The charge, laid by provincial police late last year after an alleged incident in an automobile outside Belleville, was the only criminal case on the current Hastings County assizes, which opened yesterday.

The grand jury reached its verdict last night but Mr. Babcooke was not in court at the time.

When Mr. Justice D. R. Morrow demanded an explanation this morning, Babcooke's lawyer, Tom Lally, said the accused had mistakenly left the court with his defence witnesses.

His Lordship said only Babcooke and the woman involved in the case knew the truth of the alleged incident.

"Regardless of what the circumstances were," he told Babcooke, "in any event perhaps this experience will have taught you something . . . I trust this will be the last time you will be before the court."

Student Rioter: An Agent of Explosion

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Multiply him by thousands, abandon him and his brethren to unscrupulous and opportunistic leaders, and he can bring down governments.

Student mobs . . . student riots . . . student demonstrations . . . these are convenient catch-all terms. There are students and students, demonstrations and demonstrations.

In the wave of student violence in Asia, Africa and Latin America, the participants' ages ranged from pre-teens to over-ripe maturity. In the mass they are not just kids on a rampage, but an explosive political force.

How many of the outbursts are spontaneous? How many are provoked by legitimate student leaders? What impels students to violence?

Stormy student participation in politics is an old European custom, transplanted as a heritage of colonial times to Asia, Africa and most of the western hemisphere.

The old world idea—strong in Latin America and prevalent in much of the rest of the world—is that the ground is the university are sacrosanct, beyond government authority and are indeed practically autonomous.

LET OFF STEAM

The tradition is almost superstitiously respected in much of Latin America. Often superannuated "student leaders" are free on campuses to plot against government. The fever spreads from university to lower schools and even to preteen kids. Politics may mean nothing to them but rioting presents opportunities to let off steam against elders.

In the one-nuclear age, when the world was not so compressed a package, the university was the training ground for future leaders through exposure to problems of political and social justice. The tradition persists, but today it is an explosive agent in a time of intense global contest. The student—member of an elite and a potential future leader—becomes a prime target of opportunists of right or left intent on power.

Since education is usually expensive, the students for the most part come from well-to-do families, and their politics often are largely a matter of rebellion against their elders.

In the intellectual violence around the world, there are several types of students involved.

One is "the perennial student." Often he is a Communist. Often he is in his 30s or older, but he styles himself "youth leader." For example, in Venezuela, several Communist "student leaders" are in their late 30s.

Then there is the captive student.

MAKE MUCH NOISE

In many Asian, African and Latin American countries a puny minority of young intellectuals have made themselves the backbone of extremist strength. They are persuaded to believe themselves on a ramp page against their elders, that they are members of an elite which will rule because, unlike its elders, it knows all the answers in advance.

What these students do in reality is submit to regimentation. They march stolidly through city streets, paced by strutting, self - important officers over-age student leaders. In the name of rebellion and non - conformity, they submit and conform, chant tattered catch-phrases about peace, disarmament and imperialism.

Finally, there are the frustrated students. In many countries they have genuine, or what they believe to be genuine, grievances. They face the frustration of living in countries so backward that real democracy is a dream. They often are, without realizing it, in a state of shock from the clash of their world with the 20th century.

There are students who know that for all their education—India, South Korea and South Viet Nam are cases in point—there will be little place for them in the world. There will be not enough jobs to go around commensurate with their schooling, not enough room for them in government, and stony resistance to change from their elders.

Faculty Asks Delay of Medicare Plan

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Fifty-two faculty members of the University of Western Ontario have asked Premier Robarts to delay implementing his proposed medical care insurance plan.

One reason for their request, a letter says, is that introducing the Ontario plan now " . . . Would prejudge the merits of a national scheme sponsored by the federal government."

It would be wise to postpone a decision in Ontario until the Ottawa plan is made known, the letter says. If the federal scheme is inferior to the Ontario plan, the possibility would still be open for the province to establish its own.

Parade of Homes Show Postponed

Quinte Home Builders' Parade of Homes project has been delayed to fall, Don Keller announced at the Home Builders' Association's monthly meeting last night.

The Quinte contractors' offer to buy land on Victoria Avenue from the school board, whereon each contractor would construct the type of home he featured this year, was rejected.

By locating the homes on one street, the Home Builders had felt customers would be able to make truer comparisons. A new site will be sought.

The project will be completed by September to tie in with the National Parade of Homes Project scheduled for then.

Driver Left Mishap Scene, Given a Month

TRENTON — A Belleville resident, Frederick Walter Curties of 130 University Ave., pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday and was sentenced to one month in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Curties received one month concurrent on a charge of reporting his car stolen with the intent to mislead a police officer. He also pleaded guilty to this charge.

The court heard evidence that Curtis had been the driver of a car involved in an accident on Dundas St. East in Trenton on the evening of January 8. He failed to stop after striking another car.

Following the hit-and-run accident, Curtiss was reported to have ditched his car near Glen Miller.

After drinking a beer in a local hotel, in company with a friend, Curtiss reported his car stolen at the Trenton police station.

Broken glass found at the scene of the accident on Dundas St. East matched a break in the headlight of the car found in the Glen Miller ditch. After questioning by police, Curtiss admitted that his car had not been stolen, and that it had been involved in the hit-and-run accident.

Curtiss does not have a driver's license, and acting Crown Attorney John Lennox suggested his "phantom" actions might be laid to this.

FINED FOR SPEEDING

Paul Richard Peoples, 16, pleaded guilty to driving his mother's car at 80 mph in a 30 mph zone, in magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday, and was fined $20 and ordered to pay court costs of $3. Only All-Girl Judo Club In Ont. Located in City, Is Taught by Another Girl

In existence for only ten years, the Hatashita Judo Club in Belleville has already produced four black belts and is unique in that it has the only all girl judo club in Ontario which is taught by another girl.

The Belleville Judo Club's fourth black belt was achieved over the past week-end at the 8th annual Kagami Biraki in Toronto.

At the Kagami Biraki (opening ceremonies for Judo for 1965), Belleville club member James Gulley, was presented with his black belt by famed olympic coach Frank Hatashita.

Mr. Gulley is assistant personnel manager at the Ontario Hydro here. He moved here from Ottawa last May and in June of last year tried his test and examinations for promotion to black belt - - Shodan (first degree black belt).

HAS 16 MEMBERS

Belleville's "all-girl" judo club has close to ten members who practise on their own at the YMCA on Thursday evenings. Their instructor is Mrs. Gladys Smith, a brown belt, who won her recognition in women's tournaments throughout Ontario during the past three years.

There is also a children's judo club in Belleville, who receive instruction from John and Tony TerHarr, two green belts from the adult club. Ronald Cartwright, a brown belt, studying for his black belt, is the other children's club instructor.

At the Kagami Biraki in Toronto Sunday, Dennis Brunner of this city and student at Nicholson Catholic College, received a medal from Mr. Hatashita for being the outstanding judo student of the year.

Jimmy Driscoll, the Belleville club's organizer, has been a black belt for five years and is the chief instructor at the local judo club.

Election This Spring?

Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, back from a Caribbean holiday, says he expects the Liberals have an early election in mind.

This may not be entirely wishful thinking. Although the Conservative leader has problems of his own which might be eased by a call to a battle of ballots, the Liberals, too, are treading cautiously on thin ice. Nobody can tell for certain how damaging to them will be the results of the Dorion inquiry.

There was a time when it was almost a foregone conclusion that another election would see more Canadians swinging to the major parties, in an effort to avoid the evils, real or imagined, of minority government. The only question was which party, the Conservatives or the Liberals, would pick up the most seats from this trend.

It is by no means certain today that the swing to the major parties would materialise.

It is almost impossible to estimate the results of the flag debate on Liberal and Conservative popularity. The abandonment of the Red Ensign will cost the Liberals some votes, notably in Ontario and the Maritimes, but on the other hand former Conservative voters not wedded to the Ensign may register their disapproval of the lengthy debate which the Conservatives forced on the flag issue.

Aside from this time-consuming debate, some may regard the Government's record of legislation as good, but paradoxically enough may consider this as lessening the need for a majority government by proving that a minority government can work.

The Conservatives appear to have lost some ground in the Prairies, where the Liberals have proven that the sale of grain to communist lands does not depend on Hon. Alvin Hamilton being minister of agriculture.

But the biggest, and most unpredictable, changes have been taking place in Quebec. There the Conservative party's stand against the Maple Leaf flag is certain to cost it many votes, if it does not produce the expected formal split from the party of present Conservative members.

The Liberals, however, are not in a position to feel confident of Quebec gains, because of the alleged bribery offer being investigated by the Dorion inquiry, and because there are grave suspicions that this offer may be tied in with the source of the campaign funds in the past. Under these circumstances, it is possible that the Creditistes, whose fortunes were believed on the wane, may enjoy a resurgence. It all depends on whether French-Canadians discover a repugnance for even the suspicion of corruption.

How the Social Credit "official" splinter, under Robert Thompson, will fare is anybody's guess. Some suspect that Mr. Thomson, who has always been regarded as the soul of honor, has overplayed his hand and been a little too much holier than the Liberals. The New Democrats, under these circumstances, have high hopes, much too high, many feel, to be realistic. At the very most, it is doubtful if they can do better than regain the highwater mark attained by the CCF, but even this would render the chance of either party obtaining a clear majority extremely difficult.

Long Live 401

Well, Highway No. 401 is now the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway.

Even if the evil that men do lives after them, it is a little difficult to see how Sir John A. and Sir Georges-Etienne can be fairly blamed for the rat-race on this divided highway, excellent though it is.

Not only had they no way of knowing that Confederation was loaded with such consequences, but it is extremely doubtful whether the occasional traffic jams are an inevitable consequence of that pact.

Seriously, how many people who live along the province-wide length of 401, from the Quebec border to Windsor, are going to call it the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway?

Names like this are bad enough when they are tagged on a road from the first. Trying to make them stick after the roads have been decently and logically numbered is not going to work.

Even the Queen Elizabeth Way, which never had a number, is now generally known as the QE to its users.

Long live 401!

When a true genius appears in the world, you may know him by this sign, that the dunces are all in confederacy against him.—Jonathan Swift.

Fallacies of Our Population Explosion

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Exploding Some Fallacies About the Population Explosion.

Fallacy: That the high rate of population growth in Canada is caused largely by the under-developed countries, and that the United States does not share in this growth.

Fact: The United States is currently experiencing one of the most rapid rates of sustained population growth in the history of any nation.

Fallacy: That the large family is a requisite of population increase.

Fact: "With the average American couple having fewer than three children, the present situation in this country is a dramatic illustration of a new and tremendously significant fact: no longer is the large family a requisite of population increase."

Fallacy: That the American population growth rate has substantially decreased since the late 19th century.

Fact: "A growth rate that has averaged 1.5 percent since the period World War I has been adding more than 2,800,000 to our population each year, a number greater than the total population of the whole San Francisco - Oakland urban area, and nearly a half million larger than the entire Boston metropolitan area."

Fact: "Our growth exceeds that of any other industrial country . . . The American birth rate has been consistently higher than that in the northern and western European countries for the present time."

Fallacy: That since we have only six percent of the world's people and a growth rate approximately equal to that of the world as a whole, we thus account for only six percent of the annual growth in world population.

Fact: "With only six percent of the world's population, we consume roughly half the world's annual production of the non-renewable resources . . . From the standpoint of the relevance of population to depletion of the resources necessary to improve levels of living throughout the world, we Americans could be said to account not for one-sixteenth but for something closer to one-half of the world's annual increase."

All the above questions are taken from the recent book "Too Many Americans," by the respected demographers, Lincoln and Alice Day. Their best is the best, most carefully balanced, and least alarmist, of the current works on the population problem.

Nobody yet knows the answers to this problem. This book, however, goes far toward starting us asking the right questions in their proper frame of reference, without hysteria or complacency.

Height of Uselessness

Leo Aegius Times

(By Jack Smith)

Manufacturers of consumer goods are outdoing themselves this season in the production of useless objects.

I don't mean useless in the sense that a Chinese bamboo backscratcher may be thought useless. One can, after all, scratch one's back with one, if he feels so inclined.

Besides, the back scratcher is an expensive item. The purpose of uselessness in an object is to demonstrate the owner's wealth.

If a lady in Beverly Hills, Calif., let us say, buys her Russian wolfhound a sable jacket, that is conspicuous consumption, as the economists say.

They mean that's putting it on.

Up to now, I would say that Nieman-Marcus, that chic department store in Dallas, was ahead with its six-and-a-half-inch flying balloons. They used to sell six-and-a-half airplanes, but these turned out to be virtually a necessity in Texas.

When it comes to sophisticated New York. Someone has sent me an ad from a New York paper for a device that appears to have no equal for pure uselessness. It is offered for sale by Nammacher Schlemmer, a reputable store, and it is called the Something Box.

It looks like a portable typewriter case with eight little buttons on one side. These bulbs, according to the ad, blink. And that's all the something there is. It blinks. You can't turn it on. You can't turn it off.

It is guaranteed to blink for "about a year." Then it goes dead. It absolutely can not be repaired. It costs $20.

There is something to be said for something that can't be repaired. You save a lot of money right there. I'm afraid, though, that if a man really put his mind to it he could figure out something to use the Something Box for, and that would spoil its usefulness as something useless.

Anyway, if the Something Box turns out to be a success, the credit goes to a professor at the California Institute of Technology who did the pioneer research in the field of useless beas.

I wrote about this professor's work four years ago. He wouldn't let me use his name, but he let me see a photograph of his project, taken from a long way off.

It was a shapeless mass, about the size of a large cat. It appeared to be made of marbles, concrete and glass. At that point, the professor said he had licked the problem of usefulness—that is, he had gone around and around it efficiently turning out useful. But he didn't know if it could ever be made useless.

I have no doubt that the Something Box is a splendid, at least, start at anonymous professor.

So once again we see clearly that behind the wonders of technology, which are adding so much to the sum of human happiness, lie the dedicated labors of pure science.

Another Flub By Computer

Portland Oregonian

The less-than-perfect machine performance, this time, occurred at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, where each year a computer pairs boys and girls scientifically for a university ball. Bonnie Mitchell, 18 asked for a tall, dark-haired, blue-eyed boy who is pleasure-loving and looks on marriage favorably. The computer picked for her, from among the school's 4,000 men, a 19- year-old who had asked for a date with a tall, red-haired girl who is hard-working and who looks on marriage favorably. He was Bonnie's brother, Richard.

Bonnie dated Richard, as the machine prescribed, but she'll make her own choice next time. She said afterward she had an "interesting" time.

That may not be much, but it's a better time than two computers would have had a party.

A former gold miner and prospector returned home this week after many years over-seas, where, to learn that the gold and lumber stock, which was worthless when he enlisted, now has a market value of nearly $70,000.

The 85-year-old native of Brandaigh, and two partners, staked a property which now is Wawa Lake gold mines in Northern Quebec. He received 30,000 shares in the company as his vendor interest. In recent months the property has become one of the new developments in activities in the northern Quebec gold fields and the stock is now selling at $1.50 a share.

"I can hardly believe it and have to pinch myself — but I always had faith in the property I staked," the sturdy member of the Royal Canadian Engineers said in an interview.

Are Too Many Prisoners

Financial Times

Here are astonishing figures from a report by Chief Chitty's Law Journal (Toronto).

In 1961 England and Wales, with a population of 44 million, had 29,025 persons in prison and 28,023 convicted offenders out on probation. In the same year Canada, with 18 million population, had 46,905 locked up and only 13,987 on probation.

Are Canadians more depraved than the inhabitants of England and Wales? Are the laws tougher here, the judges harsher, the police more efficient?

About 70 per cent of all prisoners pass into probation, which means closely supervised liberty, never put into trouble again. The proportion of repeaters among those who serve out their full sentence is very much higher.

The more one looks at the Canadian penal system, the more evident is the need of a complete reconsideration.

To Your Good Health
Cerebral Palsy Likely Caused by Low Birth Weight

By JOSEPH C. HOLMES, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My child is mildly affected by cerebral palsy and for years I have felt guilty. I took two antibiotic pills between the first and second month of pregnancy. What are the chances that this caused cerebral palsy? I also had a very difficult and long labor.

My little boy is now six years old and doing well, although probably about a year behind other children of his age. Most C.P. children don't go past the sixth grade, but he is very alert now and seems to be able to learn, although at a slower rate. — Mrs. J. A.

First the pills had nothing at all to do with it. Second, you must dispel your sense of guilt because as the child grows older he might resent it.

The long, hard labor very probably was the cause. Studies indicate factors at the time of births are responsible in about 60 percent of such cases. Prematurity also is thought to be a cause, and infections of a viral nature in the newborn may injure the brain.

There is an active organization doing a great deal of work in research and education in this field: (I understand that they are trying to discourage the word "palsy" which means "paralysis." A C.P. child is not always a victim of this degree of paralysis or "spasticity," causing difficult or awkward movements. Some, it is reported, show slip, or stutter, and he could, too, sway hundreds of odds.

The tobacco auctioneer, on the other hand, is speaking only to buyers who can understand his fast chant. When he says "Fifty-eight bid-be-bid-fif-ty uh!" they interpret his lingo quickly and thoroughly.

Before the high school auctioneer, quarters are pronounced "rough" and half-dollars are pronounced "hay." Why this is so doesn't make much difference, actually, especially in these days of high prices when fractional bids are seldom made.

Auctioneers Study Chant

Waterloo Times

Did you ever wonder where auctioneers learn their lingo, chant, style and billingual phrases? Some of them come by it naturally, possibly having learned from their father, grandfather or other relatives. Others have to do it the more painstaking way — by study. A bid that is why the Missouri Auction School in Kansas City is in existence, and doing a good business.

Basically, there are two kinds of auctioneering. One includes those who want and have to be understood. The other is tobacco auctioneering, which is the exception to the rule of intelligibility.

A livestock auctioneer, for example, must make himself understood. He is probably selling at a rate of 80,000 a minute. One slip, or stutter, and he could lose away hundreds of dollars.

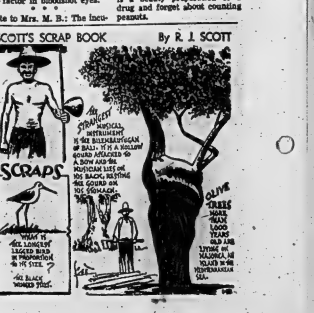
The tobacco auctioneer, on the other hand, is speaking only to buyers who can understand his fast chant. When he says "Fifty-eight bid-be-bid-fif-ty uh!" they interpret his lingo quickly and thoroughly.

Before the high school auctioneer, quarters are pronounced "rough" and half-dollars are pronounced "hay." Why this is so doesn't make much difference, actually, especially in these days of high prices when fractional bids are seldom made.

Fight About Peanut Butter

Milwaukee Journal

The United States food and drug administration wants to meet complaints over peanut butter, if you happen to like it at all—lumpy and full of peanuts or smooth and separated.



The FDA suspects the peanut butter industry has used fewer and fewer peanuts in the stuff and larding it out with heaven knows what fat substances. It proposes that peanuts make up at least 90 per cent of the total weight of the munching public.

There are no neutrals on the subject of peanut butter. Its friends are warm and legion. Its opponents are equally as soon see the spread loaded on a large barge and given a decent burial. In this regard, the peanut butter eaters as barbarians, a jump removed from the jungle, are the well-adjusted-butter crowd doesn't care how fat or how many pounds are in a pound. The peanut- butter eaters are too generous in spreading the stuff an inch thick on chunks of rye bread, topped with such delicacies as cream cheese, bologna, anchovies and cottage cheese.

Thus the FDA is faced with massive indifference on the right and preoccupied munching on the left. It might as well go back to worrying about whether wrinkles removed lotion is a beauty preparation or a drug and forget about counting peanuts.

Like the municipal development fund, which in the last two years has pumped more than $200,000,000 into the economy, the fund for community centres would probably allocate money by regions and in some cases through the provincial governments.

No mention has been made of whether, as with the municipal loans, the federal government is prepared to absorb the loss of part of the money involved.

Municipal loans are repayed at a rate of three per cent with 25 per cent of the total forgiven in projects where the work is completed by March 31, 1966.

partner, Guy Masson, who, Gignac said, claimed he could get expert help to free Rivard. Gignac said Masson was a Liberal organizer in Chambly constituency.

Examination of Gignac today by several of the score of lawyers at the hearing covered again his story of going to Hull, Que., with Masson, where the latter met a "Mr. Denis."

At one point, Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, suggested that Masson told Gignac they would have to remain overnight in Hull following Masson's interview with "Raymond Denis."

COUNSEL OBJECTS

This produced an immediate objection from Guy Guerin, counsel for Mr. Denis, that at no time in Gignac's testimony had the Mr. Denis of the Hull meeting been identified as Raymond Denis.

Mr. Fortier apologized, adding that "it was an association of ideas."

Gignac testified before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court that a former employee-partner in his contracting business had become known an "expert" who could help Rivard.

Rivard, the Gignac, is lodged in Bordeaux Jail here. Rivard is awaiting final disposal by Canadian courts of a United States application to extradite him to Texas on charges of narcotics smuggling for the Mafia international crime syndicate.

Gignac, who said he has been Rivard's friend since 1956, testified that he had inquiry into allegations that a $20,000 bribe was offered and pressure exerted on Rivard to federal cabinet ministers to get Rivard freed on bail.

EXPERT AT EXPERT

He swore that his employee-partner, Guy Masson, whom he described as a Liberal organizer in Chambly constituency, claimed to know an expert on extradition matters. That was Masson had made a trip to Hull, Que., where a Mr. Denis appeared to be their contact.

But he said he wasn't able to identify anyone when asked whether Mr. Denis was in the courtroom.

After a few feet away sat Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Lucien Cardin, who has been accused by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne of offering him a $20,000 bribe last July 24.

Mr. Lamontagne has testified the bribe offer was made to get him to agree to drop opposition to bail for Rivard. He is counsel for the U.S. Justice department in the extradition proceedings against Rivard.

The "extradition specialist" wasn't the only mystery figure mentioned before the inquiry Tuesday. RCMP counsel Norman Mathews told chief justice Dorion that a report was initiated of death on an unidentified person to make an RCMP witness feel safe after he reported a similar bribe offer in the Rivard case.

HEARD ABOUT OFFER

The witness was Constable Gilles Poissant, part of the RCMP's 17-member Montreal narcotics squad, who testified he heard July 3 about another bribe offer—11 days before Mr. Lamontagne said he was involved an offer from Mr. Denis.

Constable Poissant, 29, said the bribe offer he heard about July 3 concerned someone other than Mr. Lamontagne and was well known among members of the narcotics squad.

Mr. Mathews successfully appealed to Chief Justice Dorion that Constable Poissant not be required at that point to give details.

The policeman also swore he heard about July 20 that $10,000 had been offered Mr. Lamontagne in the Rivard case. This was weeks before Aug. 11 when Mr. Lamontagne went to the RCMP.

Gignac said he heard about Rivard's arrest the day after it occurred June 19. Out of friendship, he brought together Mrs. Rivard and Masson, loaning the latter his office for a conference.

'MR. DENIS' APPEARS

Later that day the two motored to Hull and took a suite at the Fontainebleu Motel where a Mr. Denis appeared following a phone call by Masson. He said he spoke only briefly with Mr. Denis.

He maintained under questioning that the two went along mostly to drive Masson back to Montreal that night but Masson had had to stay in Hull, across the River, to confer with Ottawa.

Gignac said Masson claimed the "expert" might be able to get Rivard freed but he couldn't remember whether Masson ever identified him. He thought Masson had told Mrs. Rivard with the aid of his "specialist."

He said under questioning that Denis had been mentioned to him once or twice by Eddie Lachasseur, a friend of the Rivards who has been charged in a $2,000,000 alleged bankruptcy fraud here.

But he replied "no" when Ross Cornelius, counsel for the Progressive Conservative party suggested Denis was the "expert" who would get Rivard out of jail.

In the weeks after the Hull trip, he discussed the Rivard case with Masson who had joined his construction firm.

RECEIVED $1,000

Masson had handled the Rivard matter because he had more ties time than Gignac, who was busy building a hospital among other things. Gignac said Masson got $1,000 from Mrs. Rivard.

He said that at one time after the Hull trip he was at the Maxime Lounge here with Mrs. Rivard, Lachasseur and Lachasseur's girl whose name he thought was Linda. Several phone calls were made but he didn't hear to whom or what was said.

Mr. Lamontagne has testified to receiving a number of phone calls after rejecting the $20,000 offered July 24.

Mr. Rivard and Lechasseur are scheduled to testify later. Gignac also testified that he discussed the case with Rivard in Bordeaux Jail. He described Rivard as being amazed at reports of a bribe to get him freed on bail and unable to believe anyone would put up that kind of money along with bail money.

He said Mrs. Rivard had borrowed money to make up $50,000 estimated as required if bail was granted. He and Mrs. Rivard despaired the money with the Royal Trust Company and were co-signers of the deposit.

TRIED TO COLLECT

Gignac said at one point he tried to collect from Mrs. Rivard about $400 in long distance phone calls, some made by Masson on Mrs. Rivards behalf.

He testified he might have told RCMP investigators Sept. 10 that Lechasseur threatened to strangle him for this action. At another point he denied using those words, quoted to him from a statement he signed for police.

Mr. Drouin asked why Gignac stepped in to bring Masson and Mrs. Rivard together.

"That's normal for a friend, Gignac replied. "Rivard isn't the only one I've helped in this way.

He said he and Rivard met frequently at Rivards Plage Idéale resort near here and that they lived four doors apart. He had bought a house from Rivard's brother.

Soviet Union Takes Kick At Wilson's Foreign Policy

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

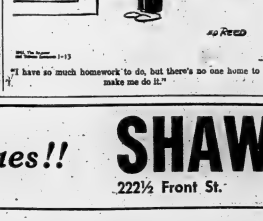
The Soviet Union has caused some embarrassment in Britain by following the announcement of Premier Alexei Kosygin's planned visit to London in the spring with a sharp kick at Prime Minister Wilson's foreign policy.

However, experienced British authorities tend to dismiss the latest accusations as more of an indication that perhaps Soviet leadership is not yet "fully collectivized" than a prearranged Soviet foreign office blow aimed at the British government.

For some weeks Wilson had been pressing Kosygin for a firm date for his British visit after the Soviet premier had accepted in December the invitation to come to Britain in the new year. Kosygin still hasn't fixed a firm date, though he now says he will come in the spring which could mean April or May.

This was immediately hailed in the British press as a visible sign of warmer Soviet feeling towards the West. It was considered particularly significant that Kosygin should pick Britain as his first Western stop, indicating perhaps that Wilson would be able to play an expanding role in East-West relations.

POLITICAL FARCE



No sooner were these glowing predictions made than the Soviet armed forces newspaper, Red Star, lashed out at the Labor party's "political farce. It charged that the new Labor regime was devoting itself to preserving world chaos and continuing the arms race while promoting a multi-national nuclear force for the Western Alliance.

This may be a method chosen by the inheritor of Nikita Khrushchevs seat to indicate that the new Soviet leadership isn't about to show any particular softness towards the West.

Kosygins continuing vague-ness towards West-perhaps in suggesting he is still more concerned with political power problems at home—has raised questions in British quarters whether the Kosygin - Wilson talks will produce concrete results in the form of new disarmament measures or measures aimed at solving other East-West problems.

would get no benefits; that the structure of the plan is too complicated; that it is bound to become unstable; that tying it to the cost of living means admitting inflation is uncontrollable; that it would be difficult to integrate the plan with existing private plans.

The main of the association's argument was that Canada could better be served through amendments to the existing old-age security program than through the implementation of the compulsory wage - related pension scheme.

'NEEDY GET LEAST'

The pension plan meant "up-side-down welfare"—those most in need get the least return. Some 2,000,000 Canadians would fail to qualify for the plan, said the association, and in 1976 two-thirds of all Canadians over 65 would still be receiving no benefits.

The association mounted its offensive under a heavy cover of statistics, which Richard Cashin (L—St. John's West) said were misleading.

"You ride one horse when it suits you in one direction and another when it suits you in another direction," he said.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said that despite the concern shown for older people by the association, its suggestions would not give them any more than existing flat rate of $75 at age 70, while the proposed scheme would increase their income. He regretted that the association would "chide us" for not doing more, while its suggestions amounted to even less.

E. Brown, senior vice-president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, said the suggestions were not meant merely to set out a pattern. Parliament could increase the level of benefits.

Douglas-Home Prepares for New Campaign

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Foreign Minister Alec Douglas-Home received a medical check-up the new political week today while Tory strategists launched a "save Sir Alec" campaign.

The Tory troops have been ordered, in effect, to stop fighting among Sir Alec's critics and instead concentrate their fire on the Labor government.

Sir Alec, 61, underwent an Edinburgh nursing home Tuesday night for what the hospital medical bulletin described as a routine medical check-up.

Douglas-Home, saying Sir Alec made the appointment some time ago, added at their Scottish home:

"There is nothing whatever to be concerned about. I expect him to be in the hospital for about 24 hours."

Leading Tories are known to be dismayed that the party leadership has been a topic of heated public discussion during the Christmas recess, which ends next Tuesday. They are determined to avoid another leadership struggle in the face of a possible general election later this year.

Alliance Church Pastor Moving To Owen Sound

Pastor at the Alliance Church in Belleville for the past eight and a half years, Rev. Sackville Palmer has accepted a call to Owen Sound where he will be a minister at the Alliance Tabernacle in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer with their two children, Philip and Wendy, will leave for Owen Sound following their farewell services next Sunday.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. Palmer served in England, Sicily, North Africa and Belgium. Returning to Canada in 1945 he trained for the Christian ministry and held pastorates in Midland, Ottawa and Chatham prior to coming to Belleville.

During Mr. Palmer's pastorate at Belleville there has been a marked increase in the congregation at Alliance Church and the Sunday school enrolment increased three fold from 110 to 330.

Missionary giving doubled from $3709 in 1956 to $8270 in 1964 and youth activities have been stepped up with five groups meeting each week. A building enlargement program was completed in April 1960.

Mr. Palmer is a member of the Belleville Ministerial Association; a member of the executive committee of the Eastern and Central Canadian District of the Christian and Missionary Alliance and is also on the board of directors of the Canadian Bible College in Regina, one of the denomination's five educational institutions in North America.

Major Railways Oppose Request Of Millers

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's major railways said Monday their rate structures would be thrown "all out of kilter" if three milling companies get their request for elimination of a surcharge of three cents a hundredweight on grain milled in transit.

Denis Headley, general rates officer for the CNR, told the board of transport commissioners that it could lead to loss of a grain market worth $3,000,000 to the CNR, CPR and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company.

Successful Living

Reader Is Interested in Becoming a Missionary

DEAR DORIS — How do you go about getting work in the Salvation Army and becoming a missionary? — SALLY ANN.

DEAR SALLY — First you must be a Salvationist; you may or may not be wearing a uniform. Then if you feel that you have been called by God, you may apply to take the two-year course. This is given at a Salvation Army Training College, either at Toronto, Ontario, or St. John's, Newfoundland.

Here you learn the theology and practical training of a Salvation Army Officer. Then you apply to enter the mission field, you may receive further specialized training, at nursing or teaching, for instance.

Recently the Army has been considering plans for utilizing the already acquired skills of nurses, engineers, and so on, in the mission fields where such services are sorely needed. I'm sending you the name of the Divisional Commander where you are. He will gladly answer all your questions about a career with the Salvation Army.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — What would be the best way to discipline a 13-year-old boy who has trouble getting up on school mornings at a set time?

Would perhaps having him go to bed earlier in the evening or waking him up still earlier in the morning, be advisable?

Or perhaps there is a better way yet that you could tell us.— BEWILDERED.

DEAR BEWILDERED — Put it up to him. What time does he think is right for bed, giving him enough sleeping time so that he is ready to get up on time? And what time does he think he needs to get up? When you agree on these points, also agree that you will only call him once. After that, it's his business.

Then bite your tongue rather than call him twice. I'll wager he won't be late more than a couple of times before it'll sink in that consequence follows cause.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — We have four children. The oldest is seven and still sucks her thumb. — YOUNG MOTHER.

DEAR YOUNG MOTHER — Sometimes bottle babies miss out on cuddling and sucking satisfactions and go on thumb sucking years after we think they should. Did your second baby follow her recess to this physical pleasure?

Give her her own spot in the sun. Challenge her with some seven-year-old activities and praise and admire what she does with them — not forgetting the healing effect of hugs and kisses in large doses.

Speaking Personally

by Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

BEER, PORK, EGGS, VINEGAR

After the column about sleighriding on Vinegar Hill was written, several people were good enough to call and tell me that there was indeed a vinegar factory at the foot of Octavia Street.

A call from the County museum led me to Church Street where I was shown an old picture of the Belleville Fruit and Vinegar factory. This building is shown on an 1877 map of Belleville. It is quite an imposing stone building, and looks about three stories high.

One caller told me the name of the manager was Mr. McMullan. Another told of swiping apples from the factory. They were unfit to eat, but made good ammunition for throwing at each other. One reader said the McAdams family were the owners of the factory.

Some people remembered the spring water which was used to chill the vinegar, and which the people in that vicinity also used. Many people recalled sleighriding there, and also on Catherine Street hill and one remembered an accident when a bobsled crashed into a tree and several girls were taken to hospital with injuries. (Women drivers?)

In conversation with Mrs. E. W. Vanner and Mrs. A. Wrightmyer who lived in the district and knew well, we learned that the factory was originally a brewery, later a pork packing industry, then a place where eggs were candled and sold, and then a vinegar factory. Mrs. Vanner thinks the vinegar was made there about 1910-12, but was not in operation during the first world war. The manager of the factory lived on the third floor of the building. Mrs. Vanner recalls watching the workers washing apples for vinegar and later the children used to play on the floor which had been used for drying hops for the brewery.

My husband and his family came to Belleville from Deseronto in 1916, and lived on Marmer Street, and he tells me there was a vinegar factory there. It wasn't running then but it was a wonderful place for boys, 6-7-8-9, to play. Of course you weren't supposed to be there, but they played there. I guess that was the good old days when kids made their own fun and not bought by parents!

The bigger boys played hooky from school and went up there, and the truant officer would chase them, and it seemed they always ran in there. By the way, what ever happened to the truant officers?

* * *

The old factory is all built over with houses now, and no traces are left.

My thanks to all who volunteered information. I found it all most interesting to get this glimpse into the past.

Vibrant Colors Highlight Fashions for Next Summer

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Paisley sharkskin, polka dot chiffon, border prints and vibrant colors highlighted a showing Tuesday of next summer's fashions.

The carefree collection of skimmer dresses, patio pants, bikinis with m i c h i n g "big tops" and sand - length beach wrapups called chimo coats represented light fabrics and slim lines.

A noticeable trend was the comeback of the wide hemline in a new blouson revival of the shirtwaist, shown to advantage in an aqua - and - white polka dot dress in cotton chiffon.

Another version of the widening hemline appeared in the bias flared skirt, shown in abbreviated night - and - day bare - top dresses. The navy seam piping on a sunset print dress matched the navy shoestring straps.

One group of dresses featured flower - embroidered sharkskin, the embroidery usually appearing around the neckline or on the skirt to give a border print effect. This idea was carried over to beach wear, and demure little girl dresses made deceiving cover-ups for bikinis.

"Summer fireworks" — a selection of semi - tailored shift dresses in flame hot oranges and pinks with stronger shades used in vertical and v-shaped seam stitchings.

Several swim suits were shown in silks. A printed Italian silk bikini and a silk chiffon overblouse in hazy purple with long sleeves.

Chimo coats, a new full-length idea in beach coats, were sleeveless with side slits. One was shown in a pink, purple, yellow and white triangle pattern with back buttons.

The "big tops" used in slacks and shorts combinations as well as with swimsuits, came in roomy styles with bold stripes or large prints. One top in green, mauve and purple had wide ruffled sleeves and was worn with tapered slacks.

Dates Given For Sacred Praise Festival

The Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise committee which met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. T. W. Spear, acting president, announced the dates of the forthcoming festival as May 3, 4, 5 and 6.

Because of the upsurge in interest in good music, the committee decided to extend the scope of its classes to include pipe organ, violin and all band instruments. The usual piano and vocal classes are being retained and in some cases increased to allow more opportunities for group singing. Scripture classes too are being studied with the aim to adjust existing classes and perhaps add to them.

The increased registration has made it necessary to add a day to the usual time in which the festival is held and contestants are advised that no entries will be accepted after March 27. Former contestants are being contacted but others who may wish to compete in the festival are welcome. Syllabus may be obtained from Mrs. D. M. Armstrong, Stirling.

WIDE INTEREST

Wide interest in this festival was reported with contestants coming from Belleville, Marmora, Madoc, Frankford, Stirling, Brighton and Trenton. The committee was acutely aware of how much more could be done to further this work amongst the young people should it be financially possible to do so. Consequently, a finance committee under the chairmanship of Mr. A. E. Nunn was formed and will consider the best ways to obtain the necessary capital to assure the success of this work of promoting interest and helping young people to develop the various means of engaging in sacred praise.

It is hoped soon to be able to announce the name of this year's adjudicators. It has always been the policy to have the best men available for this duty, and in the past, most of Canada's well_known musicians have participated. This year's will be no exception.

HELD AT ST. PAUL'S

The committee agreed that this year, the festival would be held in St. Paul's Church in Stirling, but that consideration of changing yearly the place in which the festival will be held, be discussed at an early date. Many local musicians attended the meeting and an invitation will be extended to others at an early date.

U.C.W. Meetings

ST. OLA U.C.W.

The St. Ola United Church Women met at the home of Mrs. R. J. Wood for their January meeting. There were 14 members present.

Mr. VanderVeen presided in the election of officers for 1965. It was agreed that all officers be returned to office by acclamation:

President, Mrs. Oscar Phillips; secretary, Mrs. Ed. Langmuir; treasurer, Mrs. M. J. Hamm.

The ladies carried on the business at hand after which Mrs. Wood served a tasty lunch.

BOOTS' CARE

MONTREAL (CP) — Winter boots need constant care in snowy parts of Canada, says the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada here. Silicone spray, which can be used on leather, suede, fur and fabrics, will make salt rings easier to erase, but boots must be wiped clean and polished after each wearing. Saddle soap is good for reptile finishes.

Church Groups

ST. RICHARD'S C.W.L.

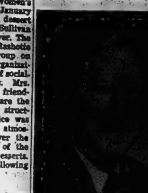
The regular meeting of St. Michael's Catholic Women's League was held on January 11th in the form of a dessert meeting. Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan recited the opening prayer. The president, Mrs. J. E. Rashotte spoke briefly to the group on the definition of an organization and the importance of socializing among members. Mrs. Rashotte remarked that friendliness and congeniality are the basis of all organization structure. Certainly this advice was well taken in the warm atmosphere that prevailed over the sharing and enjoyment of the varied and bountiful desserts. Gifts were exchanged, following refreshments. . . . . .

SENDS STAMPS

Mrs. B. Farrell, spiritual convenor reported that she had sent 15 pounds of cancelled stamps, to foreign missions. Pamphlets were distributed by Mrs. H. Brown, convener of Citizenship and Immigration concerning safety in the home.

It was brought to the members' attention by Mrs. T. Young that items of council accomplishment would appear in the Canadian League national magazine. The considerable merits of this publication were extolled emphasizing that it contains the messages exclusive to the Catholic women in Canada. Subscriptions are showing a substantial increase in this council.

SOCIAL ACTION



Mrs. T. Farrell reported the many aspects of social action which continued to be one of the busiest projects undertaken each year. Mrs. J. Boyd reported that over 2,600 pounds of used clothing were sent to impoverished missions this year and outlined plans for aiding two further missions. It is advisable, it was pointed out by Mrs. J. Gallagher for patients in the hospital who wish to be visited by their parish priest or CWL visiting committee to make their request known to the floor nurse since hospital regulations have undergone slight changes. Plans are under way for the annual Queen of Hearts Ball to be held on Friday, February 12th.

At the conclusion of the meeting, slides of her travels in Europe were shown by Mrs. F. Ross.

Four Banks in India Run Exclusively by Women

By EUKEMNI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Four banks, exclusively run by women have been organized in India.

The latest in the Karol Bagh residential colony of New Delhi has a staff of 10—one manager, two officers, six clerks and an attendant—all women. The only man in the setup is the bank's guard.

"It is only a question of time before we find a reliable woman who can handle a gun and protect the bank," said an official of the Syndicate Bank of Mysore, which is organizing the women's banks.

The three other women's banks are in Madras, Trivandrum and Hyderabad. Their turnover increased by 200 to 400 per cent within six months.

The women's banks welcome deposits from men, too. A brochure says: "The bank considers no women—or man—too small for a bank account."

ADVANCE LOANS

The banks also advance personal loans of up to $1,000 to professional persons going abroad for advanced technical training. Preference is given to women.

A top official of the Syndicate Bank of Mysore said the main idea behind the ventures is to inculcate the banking habit among Indian housewives who are generally home-bound and regard banks as a mala pre serve.

One banker said the women's banks were among the most efficient in the country. A reporter of the New Delhi Statesman noted: "The books are tidy, there is no shirking, there is less talk and certainly better service to the customers."

The Experts Say Must Consider Four Basic Factors in Decorating Room

TORONTO (CP)—If you want to be subtle in decorating both rooms in your home, you'll have to be subtle in your approach.

Mr. Watson recommends that customers determined city policemen for ideas but warns against pulling an idea out of context.

"You should also analyze your living. Decide where pictures of you are so that you can't get furniture blocking a passage.

LAMPS IMPORTANT

"If chairs are going to sit in front of the TV they almost seem to be upholstered in leather—it won't be a dream without thinking about them. They can change the tone of the room. They have to come last, but they can show your personality.

"Watch that the size and scale of lamps. You need something tall for good reading light, and all your lamps should be at more or less the same height so there's no patchy effect."

In sizing up a room it's important to remember that it needs a focal point, Mr. Watson says. "It may be suggested by the architecture and be a bay window or fireplace. It could be a sofa. But the most part there should be only one. More than one and they'll fight one another."

Decorating, he says, is partly a matter of knowing when to stop—again like a woman putting on jewelry. "You're better off with too little than too much, no matter what."

OLD SCHOOL

WINNIPEG (CP)—The first girls' public school in Canada has celebrated its 50th anniversary. William Whyte school named after a vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was established in 1914 to assimilate daughters of new immigrants to Canada. In addition to their regular studies, the first students also learned cooking, sewing and housemaking. The school became co-educational eight years ago.

QUEEN VICTORIA SCHOOL

The January meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association was held recently, with the teachers present to report on the progress of the pupils.

Mrs. Cato were reminded of the annual "Fun Fair" to take place in March.

Mr. C. Ingram addressed the meeting continuing with a study of the third of the child's four sets of teachers, that is the school.

After studying the child's first two sets of teachers, the home and his playmates, it is understood that education does not begin entirely at school.

NEW SITUATION

Before he enters school the child's academic education begins. He learns that his sister is "taller than" her; that he weighs "less than" his brother; he learns poetry, listening to stories, how to sing; he learns co-operation in society, and above all, before he enters school his formal education begins. He enters the classroom with 20 other people his own age and fit is here that he is confronted by a new learning situation. Here he is taught by self-discovery and cannot always rely on parent or family members to him the correct answer to all his problems.

TEACHER'S CONCERN

His own learning to become more proficient at doing things drives him forward, as well as the successes and praises of others. His school education is his teacher's concern. It is his responsibility to see that this child benefits from a sound education and no school could function properly without competent teachers, nor could education survive.

Mr. H. R. Frink spoke on the subject of the classroom teacher, stating that a child spends a surprisingly small fraction of his life in the classroom.

"For example, the pupil who has spent a year in each of Kindergarten and Grades 1 to 8, passing into Secondary school at the age of 14, has spent just under 7 percent of his life up to that point in school," said the speaker.

POOR RELATION

"The teaching profession is anxious to improve itself. Teachers' Federations spend a large part of their time in trying to weed out the inefficient teacher, and in trying to get the standards of training for teachers raised, but the teaching profession remains the poor relation of the other professions, falling far behind the doctors, lawyers, dentists, engineers, etc. not only in financial rewards, but in the public's esteem. At this present time a committee of the Department of Education is conducting an enquiry into teacher training; Home and School is playing a part in its deliberations.

"We are not satisfied with ourselves; we are anxious to improve our standards, but in the long run it is you, the parents, who will decide what kind of teachers and what kind of teaching your children will have. It is you who will have to decide how much you want to spend on education; at present we are spending more on alcohol, or tobacco, on cars, than we are on education. It has been pointed out that like preventive medicine, if we skimp on education, we may have to pay anyhow in lower standards of living, in juvenile delinquency, in corrective institutions."

DISCUSSION GROUPS

Groups were formed and a lively discussion took place on the subject during the lunch hour.

Next month the series will conclude with the program topic "The Community Teachers."

Collection of Sportswear Leans Heavily on Towels

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The leap-year "hunting" season officially ended Dec. 31, but designers here on this last day of spring previews for the fashion press obviously intend to continue to outfit women 'or the chase.

Leap year or not, a single woman needs a variety of hunting outfits, and a married one requires chic caretaker equipment to keep her game from escaping.

That was the consensus of Anne Fogarty, Jane Derby, Jean Louise and French couturier Antonio Castillo, although each designer's approach was different.

In a collection of sportswear for Zacari, Castillo leans heavily on towels, a trick used by a successful man-catcher from his French homeland, Brigitte Bardot.

Manikins wrapped the towelling fabric around their heads much as though they were wearing turbans to the steam room. Terry-cloth in brilliant hues and rich patterns became jaunty shifts and hooded beach capes worn over pyjamas. Castillo also made tennis shorts with bandwiper panels inserted at the backsides.

Man-bait play clothes were shown in cye - catching polka dots and stripes. Colorful silk shifts were worn with bold-colored stockings and matching shoes. Most daring were stretch suits that let little to the imagination.

FIT FOR SAFARI

A safari suit — a belted silk-pants costume — was Castillo's wardrobe solution for the girl set for really big game.

Anne Fogarty's system is to be young and sweet in pastel fabrics, and lily and efficient looking in grey flannel, frosty with organza and pique, and cheerful even in a storm (by wearing bright vinyl raincoats and boots.) With these good qualities, a girl ought to be able to make use of the Fogarty white — dotted, high - waisted wedding gown.

Jane Derby always takes the feminine approach. This year her formula was a mixture of prints, full skirts, romantic dinner gowns with scalloped edges, and bolongaro skirts that widen at the calf-length hemline.

Among his crop of glamor gowns are those with ruffled sleeves, gay chiffons in a combination of colors, culotte dresses in exotic south sea island prints, and some tailored gabardines.

Printed Furs Latest Craze In Paris

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Printed furs are the latest fashion craze in Paris.

Supple flat-haired furs such as river otter, seal, and pony skin are printed with textile patterns in bold multi-colored tartans, bound's tooth checks, stripes, and shadow plaids.

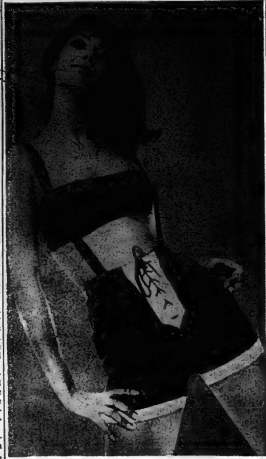
No new idea has so revolutionized the French fur industry since furriers launched bleached beaver and other artificial blonde pelts 13 years ago.

Paradoxically, many smart Frenchwomen, who consider that the epitome of bad taste is to wear a fur coat over a printed dress, are among the strongest partisans of printed furs.

Chombert, the man who originated the novel idea of printed furs this winter, has earned the nickname of Picasso of the Pelts. This designer's new collection, featuring 200- fur models, is the largest in Paris.

Once, as he automatically became a coat, a jacket, or a stole. For the last few years, however, designers, Christian Dior, Pierre Balmain, Revillon, and Chombert leading the field, have developed supple furs in every type of garment. There are fur pants, fur shirts, fur skirts, and fur bostess clothes. Balenciaga reached the pinnacle of luxury with his floor-length dressing gowns made of white mink or chinchilla.

FURS WEAR PLATE



Now, comes printing.

Fur kerchiefs and scarves come printed in sporty geometrical patterns. Another novelty is an ankle-length bostess gown made of black and white printed giraffe skin.

Chombert's furs are waterproofed, so that sport, beaver, and leopard have suddenly acquired all the practicality of an all-weather coat. In any way changing their original aspect.

Roger Vivier, the shoe designer, is showing a collection of handbags and footwear in the same seemingly fragile pelts. Amusing leggings, gaiters, knee-high boots, and roomy travel bags appear in Chombert's water - repellent skins, destined to match, or contrast with his fur "raincoats."

Pierre Cardin shows the most exotic monkey fur coat in Paris. He has dyed the long-haired skins bright green, and then worked them upside down. Long strands of fur sprout out from the body, so that the model looks somewhat like a palm tree suddenly come to life.

Susanna's Family Fare

SOAP OPERA

Dear Susanna: After being a widow for nearly 20 years, I recently married again. My second husband is a retired general storekeeper, and since he had so much experience purchasing supplies, I encouraged him to do most of our shopping. It not only gets him out of the house, but it provides him with something to do, and gives him an excuse to hobnob with his pals down on the main street.

One thing puzzled me though. He always kept large quantities of laundry bar soap and hand soap on hand, and each week he would buy a small additional quantity which would be placed at the bottom or back of the supply. One day I got curious enough to ask him why he kept so much soap on hand, and I think you'll agree that the answer is worth considering.

If you buy your cake soap and keep it for six months it will last twice as long when you come to use it because it has dried out and hardened. Leave it wrapped up and simply store it in your linen cupboard.

You will obtain just as good results but it doesn't run away on you the way soft soap does when it is immersed in water. If we stop to think about it, we will probably all realize that the softer the soap the faster it disappears. — Mrs. Jim Cobb

I agree, Mrs. C., soft soap may be wasteful for washing, but let's not dispense with it altogether. When applied to children and grown men it still does an excellent job of inducing them to see things our way! — SUSANNA

COTTON COVER-UP

Dear Susanna: I was all dressed, but wanted to re-do my hair and makeup in a hurry to go out. I couldn't, seem to lay my hands on my plastic make-up cape as I slipped into one of my husbands old, long sleeved, cotton shirts that was hanging in the cupboard. I've been doing this ever since.

It was light, cool, loose, stayed in place, and almost covered my dress completely. Best makeup - type protective covering I ever had. — Lassie

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

East.

The treasurer Mrs. Parks submitted a comprehensive report with the results showing a substantial balance. This amount was made possible by the two bazaars and teas, eight church suppers, four wedding receptions dinners and the remuneration made from quilts made during the year. The successful year was the result of the fine efforts of each and everyone who contributed her share the past year.

Baked Rice Is Really Nice

By MARY MOORE

The middle of January seems to me to be the perfect time for a hot rice pudding for dessert.

My cousin Irene was visiting us. Besides being a Home Economist she has lived in the Orient and knows her rice.

So I fixed her brown eyes with my blue ones and pulled up naked here for the testing. She merrily laughed and did.

This rice pudding goes to gether so easily it is hard to believe it will be so good. In addition it may be dressed up with a broiled whipped cream topping. However, this broiling treatment collapses the whipped cream but not before it is golden-tinged and speckled attractively. If you do not add the whipped cream, serve the pudding hot with pouring cream.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

BAKED RICE PUDDING

(easy and economical — serves 4. Double these amounts to serve 8).

2½ cups milk, 1¼ teaspoons butter, ⅓ cup raw long-grain rice, 2 or 3 tablespoons sugar (see note below), ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 egg, ½ cup Sultana raisins, ½ teaspoon grated yellow lemon rind, 1¼ teaspoons lemon juice.

Heat 2 cups of the milk with the butter to scalding point. (Reserve remaining ½ cup milk for future step.) In buttered baking dish (one which may be taken to table) put the uncooked rice, sugar, salt and vanilla. Stir well, break the egg into them and stir very well. Add the hot milk and butter and raisins and stir. Then add lemon rind and juice. Mix well and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes, then remove from oven, stir well and add remaining ½ cup milk, cover, reduce heat to 250 deg. Fahr. and bake, 1 hour longer. Serve hot with rich milk or pouring cream.

Or whip 1 cup 32% cream until stiff and spread over top of hot pudding. Sprinkle with 2 teaspoons sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Slide under preheated broiler burner and broil until top is lightly brown—watching it all the time and remove as soon as browned.

Note:—Half of our sweet-toothed crowd thought the pudding with 4 tablespoons sugar just right, the other half, including me, thought the pudding with 4 tablespoons sugar spoons sugar just right. Take your choice.

Mother's Helper

A KITCHEN PICNIC is fun for a special Saturday treat. Set out the makings for different kinds of sandwiches, and let the children make their own—and yours, too. Add sandwich bars, milk in an insulated jug, cookies, fruit, etc.—and there's a family picnic no matter what the weather.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Go, go, go. Wonderful day when your baby takes up crawling. But once he starts this new adventure, there are certain things to do:

• Floors should be scanned for pins or any small objects baby might sight and swallow. Iron and toaster cords or drooping plants should not be left dangling.

• Stairs should be sealed off with a folding gate . . . baby confined to an area within your eye's reach.

• Overalls are in order to protect tender knees; soft-soled shoes to guard tender toes. Both should have plenty of room so torso and toes can move freely.

Overall coverings. Corduroy overalls make good creeper outfits because the fabric is so wearable and washable. Upkeep notes: (1) After washing, if you brush corduroy while it's still slightly damp, nap will fluff up nicely. (2) If you buy overalls with patch pockets, you can use pockets as patches when knees wear through.

Two Gerber Fruit delectables. Bananas with Pineapple, Applesauce-and-Apricots. Both are brimming with the kind of sun-kissed flavour small "fruit fanciers" favour. Strained or junior.

Fruit-ful ideas for creepers, lapsitters, or toddlers. Gerber Strained and Junior cereals are great favourites with babies of all ages. And for good reason. They're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to preserve the tissue-nature colours and orchard-good flavours that make them so appetizing. Flash-cooking also helps preserve the nutritive values so important to your baby.

Talk about teething. Teething time can be troublesome for your wee one. Here's a relief measure that will stand him (or her) in good stead: Gerber Teething Biscuits. Ann Finds Herself In "Dog House" Again

DEAR READERS — Well, I've done it again. Started a real dogwatbrook.

I've had complaints from science writers, beefs from physicians, bouquets from the geneticists, questions from nonprofessionals.

And I've heard from cousins by the dozens — Some damning me, others praising me.

It all started when I advised first cousins who had fallen in love to go ahead and marry. I said, "It is not true that first cousins produce half-witted children. Inheritable physical defects are likely to show up in offspring when first cousins marry. However normally healthy people need have no fears."

ANN LANDERS

After reading the excellent material sent by Dr. Eric Reiss, chairman of the division of medicine at Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center in Chicago (he's agin' such marriages), I was inclined to send a telegram to those first cousins and tell them not even to look at each other. His letter claimed that among children born to first cousin marriages the incidence of amaurotic idiocy, (mental deficiency associated with impaired vision or blindness), for example, is about 18%.

Dr. James Crow, Professor Medical Genetics and acting dean of the medical school of the University of Wisconsin wrote an equally convincing letter. He claims first-cousin marriages are not particularly hazardous.

"The girl next door, who is no relation whatever, could have deleterious recessive genes," wrote Dr. Crow. "The chance for abnormal offspring when first cousins marry increases roughly from 3% to 3% — hardly worth worrying about."

And then there is the other side again:

Dr. Samuel P. Bessman, Professor of Pediatric Research and Associate Professor of Biochemistry at the University of Maryland in Baltimore who wrote, "Please accept one bouquet of asafoetida for your cow-eyed advice to the man contemplating marriage to a first cousin. Love does not conquer genetics, as Egyptian royalty, the Hawaiians, the Hapsburgs can attest. The likelihood that a first-cousin marriage will reveal genetic traits present in a family is very great."

A reader from Benton Harbor, Michigan, wrote, "I married my first cousin and we have six bright, healthy children. My brother married a girl he met in Europe, during the war. They have four of the smittest kids I ever saw."

A geneticist from Washington, D.C., wrote, "If cousins possess especially desirable traits — traits worth producing — a marriage between these two exceptional people would be desirable. This theory is basic in reproducing thoroughbred horses."

As if this wasn't atough I also heard from lawyers. In my advice to the first cousins I informed them that not all states permit first cousins to marry, so I suggested that if their state does not permit it, they should go to a state that does.

A Chicago attorney wrote, "Your advice suggests that the first cousins can go to another state, marry, and return to their home state and live happily ever after. Well, this is not the case. Their marriage could be considered null and void — in Illinois, for instance."

So — my advice to first cousins who are in love and want to marry is this: Look up a couple of doctors and a couple of lawyers, listen to them all, and then determine whose advice you are going to take.

Young America Name for Group Of Dresses

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—At the end of his spring collection showing for the fashion press, Oleg Cassini hopped onto the runway and danced the twist with one of his pretty models.

Many changes have occurred since the designer was applauded by Mrs. John F. Kennedy in 1961 as her official couturier. But witty commentary and gyrations to music continue to be a part of his show.

He had to say that his close relationship with the White House inhibited him. For example he had to forego humorous labels for his creations.

However, the names such as "The Missionary's Downfall" were back in his vocabulary and his collection this season. It appeared Monday as a long-sleeved navy crepe dress with a deep scoop neckline with white ruffled collar and cuffs.

A fluttery red chiffon dress with a yellow slip under the skirt was called "Bloody Mary." The black number with a v-neck plunging to the waist over a black bra shall go nameless.

These were a part of a youthful group of clothes called "Young America" which recently has replaced his couture lines.

INFLUENCED BY JACKIE

A sleeveless sheath in pale linen, long-waisted with a side-buttoned bodice, was a Mrs. Kennedy - style dress, Cassini said. It was proof, he said, that the elegant lady still influenced his fashion thinking.

The show had opened with shapely models in bathing suits. Those designed for wolf whistles were black with slacks and sides generally scooped away.

One girl in a black bikini seemed to have perfectly coiffed platinum hair. But this turned out to be a surprised wig that is the newest thing in bathing caps.

Earlier, Ben Zuckerman previewed his spring collection as a part of the American designers series now in progress.

Zuckerman chose to remain with the slim sheath. He shaped his suits and jackets to follow the line of the body.

In contrast to Zuckerman was Sarmi, whose ballgowns shown included his famous bird dresses with bosoms covered by the plumage of jungle bird feathers.

EARLY AMERICANS

North America's earliest settlers are believed to have crossed from Asia, perhaps 30,000 years ago.

Poland Ousts U.S. Attache; Canada Warned

WARSAW (AP) — The Polish government has accused the U.S. air attache in Warsaw, Col. George F. Carey Jr., of photographing an air base and ordered him to leave the country within two weeks.

The Canadian air attache, Group Capt. James Borden, was involved in the same incident, and the Canadian embassy was given a warning by the Polish government, the sources added.

Diplomatic sources said U.S. Ambassador John M. Cabot was called to the foreign ministry Monday and told that Carey has been declared "persona non grata" (unwelcome) as a result of an incident and scuffle with the police Jan. 4 near an air base at Bydgoszcz, in central Poland.

Carey, 44, of Alexandria, Va., said he had no camera at the time of the incident. He said the charges against him "are lies, with no proof whatsoever."

Presumably the United States will now expel the Polish air attache in Washington, the customary procedure in such cases.

TELLS OF INCIDENT

Carey gave this account of the incident:

"We were in close proximity to the airfield, walking into the town of Bydgoszcz, when we were accosted by a policeman. We showed our documents.

"We were invited to get into a police car. We refused because they would not say if we were under arrest. There was an argument for an hour and five minutes."

The two attaches were taken to the Bydgoszcz police station. Carey said, where they were questioned for 30 minutes. Then "an officer apologized for the rough handling by the police. We got the impression that they were not sure of their footing.

"They asked us if we had cameras and we said we had none."

Must Record Details on Used Car Deals

TORONTO (CP)—Regulations controlling used car dealers and salesmen, printed Tuesday in the Ontario Gazette, demand extensive details be recorded about each transaction.

The Used Car Dealers Act provides for registration, supervision and control of persons in the used car field.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said regulations covering registration will not be effective for about a month to permit the return of registration applications.

The remainder of the 17 regulations will go into effect almost immediately, Mr. Wishart said.

The act does not apply to an individual selling his own car, wreckers, auctioneers, liquidators and barristers selling cars in the course of their practices.

Each salesman must be bonded for $5,000 and each salesman for $1,000 and records must be kept of the date and amount of all transactions and details of the vehicles.

When a used car is sold, a dealer or salesman must keep a record of the name and address of the purchaser; an accurate description of the car, including details of any extra equipment; the sale price and the amount of any deposit made.

The amount of the balance and other charges must also be recorded.

Mr. Wishart said a separate regulation covering advertising has been prepared.

"The advertising part states a dealer's licence may be withdrawn and cancelled if the registrar finds his advertising has been deceptive, misleading or fraudulent," he said.

The legislation to crack down on unscrupulous dealers was proposed last February by the select committee on consumer credit and the act was passed by the legislature in April.

Centennial Commission Will Establish Regional Offices

OTTAWA (CP)—The Centennial Commission will establish five regional offices across Canada to facilitate dovetailing intergovernmental plans for Canada's birthday party in 1967, it was learned Tuesday.

A former army public relations officer and newspaper editor, Jack Golding, has been hired by the commission to act as liaison officer between the regional headquarters and John Fisher, centennial commissioner.

Establishment of the offices is to ensure immediate contact between the federal centennial planners and their counterparts at the provincial and municipal level.

The offices are to be set up for the Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, Prairie and Western regions. Their exact locations and chief personnel are not yet known.

A task force of federal centennial planners now is in the Atlantic provinces, negotiating with provincial and local authorities on such 1967 projects as the route of the centennial train and caravans. Similar talks with Ontario authorities were concluded before Christmas and will be undertaken in the next few weeks with Quebec and the Western provinces.

Centennial officials said here they are confident they are entering 1965 with a solidly-based preliminary plan for marking the 100th anniversary of the coming into force of the British North America Act in 1867.

They plan to begin soon to draft out a definite calendar of events in 1967. So far, the major events are the movement of the centennial train and caravans across Canada as a focal point on local celebrations, a travelling military tattoo in the major centres, and the over-ing of a string of cultural and performing arts centres housing a festival of the arts.

Mr. Golding graduated from Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., in 1933, and spent 30 years as a newspaper, magazine and radio writer and editor. After being editor of The Maple Leaf, journal of the Canadian Army overseas, he was secretary and syndicate editor under the late Lord Beaverbrook, publisher of the London, England, Express group of newspapers.

BIG CHANGEOVER

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden is looking forward to Sept. 3, 1967 with mixed feelings—it's the date to switch from lefthand to righthand driving. In Europe only Sweden, Britain, Malta, Iceland and Ireland still drive on the left. The changeover cost to Sweden is expected to be about $80,000,000 for signs and other traffic indications.

Smoking Habits Changed in Research Centre

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) —One of the largest cancer research and treatment centres in the United States said Tuesday it had changed the smoking habits of 69 per cent, or 403 of 583 persons, who enrolled in smoking-withdrawal clinics.

Fourteen per cent have quit smoking since the clinics were inaugurated 16 months ago, said Dr. Charles A. Ross, chief of thoracic surgery at Roswell Park Memorial Institute.

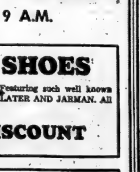
Ross, who directed the clinics, gave these other results:

Thirteen per cent cut daily cigarette consumption by 50 per cent or more, 38 per cent reduced daily cigarette use to a lesser degree and four per cent switched to pipes or cigars. The other 11 per cent still are smoking as heavily as they did before trying to quit.

Roswell Park, a state institution which contends that cigarette - smoking is a major cause of lung cancer, began the group withdrawal clinics in September, 1963.

The figures cited by Ross covered those persons who enrolled in the first 12 clinics.

Some of those who participated were given medication to help them stop smoking. The medication consisted of Lobeline, a nicotine substitute; cinnamon - flavored lozenges to be taken whenever the smoker felt the urge to light a cigarette, and appetite - depressant pills.



One group, the eighth, received medication but did not assemble for lectures or meetings. Only four per cent of this group was able to stop smoking, Ross said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Approximately 3,300,000 men and 200,000 women in the United States have sworn off cigarette smoking since 1963—and "probably most of them did so in the last year," a spokesman for the U.S. public health service said Tuesday.

This brings to approximately 18,500,000 the number of adult United States residents who have become ex-smokers of cigarettes "in the last 30 years or so," he said.

The total is made up of 12,300,000 men and 3,200,000 women, all adults 21 and over.

Only France, Spain Have Death Penalty

LONDON (CP)—While Britain moving to abolish capital punishment, only France and Spain in Europe actively retain this penalty as a supposed deterrent to murder and treason.

France is famous for the guillotine, first used during the French Revolution. Now this punishment is rare: About once or twice a year.

During the Algerian War it was applied largely by Algerian terrorists. In the state of emergency which existed then, several Frenchmen were shot by firing squads after being found guilty by special military tribunals. Death sentences are frequent but in most cases the president of the republic cuts them to life terms.

Only four persons have been executed in Spain since 1960, among them Communist leader Julian Grimau April 20, 1963.

Belgium still retains the death sentence in law but it has not been applied for civil crimes since 1917. War criminals were executed under this law after the Second World War.

All Scandinavian nations have abolished the capital sentence. Norway did away with it, for civil crimes, in 1902, but nobody had been executed there since 1876.

KEPT FOR TREASON

Norwegian military law maintained it, however, for treason, murder and assault while resisting arrest. This was chiefly in the period after the Second World War when the nation dealt with war criminals.

Sweden abolished capital punishment in 1921. The last civil execution took place in 1910.

The last Finn to be executed died in 1826, but the capital punishment law was abolished only in 1949.

In Denmark, capital punishment was done away with soon after the First World War. It was reintroduced for a short time after the Second World War and applied to former pro-Nazi collaborators. It has since been abolished.

In Italy, the death sentence was abolished at the end of the Second World War.

Holland did away with it in 1870. Introduced for a short time to punish war criminals and traitors, it was soon abolished.

West Germany, under its new constitution of 1949, abolished capital punishment. There is a movement led by ex-chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his Christian Democrat party to have it back again. Other parties oppose its reintroduction. An amendment to the constitution requires a two-thirds majority in parliament.

Federal Switzerland abolished the death sentence before the First World War, except for cases of treason in wartime. The 25 cantons which make up the federation started abolishing the death sentence beginning in the 1850s, but none had executed anybody for decades.

Portugal has had no execution since 1874 when it still was a kingdom.

RETAINED IN CANADA

Capital punishment also has been abolished in about half the countries of Latin America, although it is still retained in Canada and much of the United States.

In Canada, however, there have been no executions in more than two years and Parliament is scheduled to hold a "free vote" later this year on whether or not to abolish them.

In the U.S., seven of the 50 states have abolished capital punishment — Oregon, Alaska, Hawaii, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Rhode Island imposes the death penalty only for murder by a prisoner serving a life sentence.

Another eight states have abolished the death penalty at one time or another for periods ranging from two to six years, then returned to its use. The earliest case was Iowa, which had no death penalty from 1872 to 1878 and the latest was Delaware, which ruled it out from 1958 to 1961.

Most of the states retaining the death penalty employ electric chairs, but 11 use gas chambers and seven the gallows. One, Utah, offers the condemned man a choice between hanging or a firing squad.

SURVEY

The latest comprehensive world survey on capital punishment, published by the United Nations in 1962, listed 81 countries and territories retaining capital punishment, and 26 where it had been legally abolished. A handful of other countries and territories have not imposed the death penalty in years, although it is still provided for by their laws.

The UN report, prepared by French jurist Marc Ancel, also disclosed some wide variations in the crimes punishable by death and in the methods of executing sentence.

It reported an Arkansas law providing for death for "killing by colliding while in charge of a steamboat," and a Tennessee law stipulating capital punishment for "assaulting a person with deadly weapon while in disguise."

In Afghanistan, adultery is punishable by death; in Chile, assaulting a minister of religion; in Dahomey, the removal outside the country for financial gain of a person of unsound mind, or of a minor without the consent of his parents.

The report listed several states of the U.S. which retained the death penalty for train robbery and train wrecking.

It said four countries—Nationalist China, South Viet Nam, Spain and Yugoslavia—imposed the death sentence for hoarding or unlawful and serious raising of prices. Poland, Russia and Yugoslavia retained it for "serious crimes against socialized property."

PUNISHED BY DEATH

Various kinds of treason or offences against the state, kidnapping, narcotics traffic, rape, aggravated robbery, recidivism and some types of perjury were other crimes still punishable by death.

In Iran, a death sentence on a pregnant woman is postponed automatically until three months after the child's birth—or two years after the birth if the mother decides to breast-feed it. Several other countries also postpone sentence on pregnant women, the report said, adding that in most cases the postponement leads to subsequent commutation.

A handful of countries still practise public execution. In El Salvador, it is specified that the execution should, if possible, take place in the same locality as the crime.

The report noted an unusual system in El Salvador "in the case of several deaths passed on several persons."

It said that "according to the number of persons simultaneously sentenced, the number of those actually executed varies and only those at the head of the list are in fact put to death."

At another point the report commented that the "uneveness in the application of the death penalty" makes it appear as "a somewhat sinister lottery, whereas by definition it is supposed to be an absolute penalty."

Reporters are permitted to attend executions in a few countries.

Cross-Canada Survey

Winter Is Wonderful --In Hawaii That Is

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadians in ever - growing numbers are discovering that winter can be a grand season, especially in Egypt or Hawaii or the Caribbean.

A record - breaking seasonal exodus from the snows to the sub-tropics is in the making as the winter tourist migration gets into full swing, according to a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press.

The breeze - caressed Caribbean appears to be beckoning strongest, but there is plenty of swinging economy.

In almost every province, The West Indies rank at or near the head of the list. Some of the heaviest travel to that area is from mod-climate British Columbia, and in late December Air Canada started a direct daily flight between Vancouver and Nassau to handle up to 960 persons a week.

A couple of other trends noted this year:

Many visitors are choosing the small islands of the Caribbean in preference to the tour-jammed larger islands of the mid-Caribbean. For instance, Pacific Western Airlines is flying charter groups of up to 200 a month from Vancouver to Grand Cayman, a tiny island off Jamaica.

Sea cruises are climbing in favor, for those who have time. Cooks in Toronto reports booking cruises around the world, to the Mediterranean and to The West Indies.

In the Maritimes, virtually the whole movement is expected to be to The West Indies and Florida. Once at the top, Florida has dropped off somewhat, partly because of relative uncertainty of climate. One agent also mentions Florida's racial problem and "the Cuban influence" -- possibly influx of anti - Castro refugees. However, Florida remains popular in New Brunswick.

MIDDLE EAST DRAWS

In Montreal, Air Canada reports a disposition by many to get the jump on winter and spend Christmas in the south—the usual trend is to head down after the festival. By mid-December, demand had begun to outstrip even extra accommodations.

Barbados is the most popular resort for sun-chasing Montrealers, but Florida is holding up well along with Mexico. A considerable number also were planning flights to Arizona and California.

Air travel from Ontario was aimed heavily at such islands as the Bahamas, Barbados and Antigua, though some were heading for tiny Caribbean spots like Montserrat. There also was a big demand for Hawaii and good bookings for Israel, Egypt, Spain and Portugal.

The Prairies, with two good grain crops harvested and oil money gushing in, are winging in high, wide and handsome style. Manitobans are booking for the south in greater numbers than ever before, flying mainly to Florida, the Bahamas, Jamaica and Mexico.

FARMERS SPENDING

Says a Saskatchewan travel agent:

"Last year we had many farmers in asking about winter vacations who never came back. I was in my office this year on the farm in several, and they were doubtful about two years in a row. This year they're flocking in and bringing their money with them."

Early main target for Saskatchewan vacationers was Florida, but Hawaii was expected to take over early in the new year. Mexico also was getting a play. A few were headed for Tahiti. Some were driving to such places as Arizona and California.

Albertans were favoring the Caribbean, Hawaii and Mexico. Canadian Pacific Airlines was completely booked up from Calgary to Mexico and Hawaii to the end of the year. An Edmonton travel agency reported an increase of between 15 and 20 per cent to Hawaii over last year.

British Columbians, apart from heading for the Caribbean, also were flowing to Hawaii, and the increase for the two was estimated at between 25 and 30 per cent. CPA inaugurated a daily service to Hawaii to increase its weekly capacity to 900.

Reeve Fred Beckett, as chairman, welcomed the guests and in his opening remarks said that fire protection had been discussed for a long time and tonight it had become a reality. He stated that he had been advised that the centennial grant on the fire hall portion of the building would be received, the amount being approximately $4200. This project also was possible due to increased road grants.

Members of the Rawdon Fire Department were on hand to explain the various functions of the fire equipment.

Other contractors included: Mr. Alex Knot of Norwood heating; Mr. Frank DeCarroll of Campbellford, electrical wiring; Mr. William Bolle of Stirling, plumbing; Mr. Ken Sine of Harold, gas pumps.

Writing Book on Days of Sailing

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP)—The image of tall square-rigers is strong in the mind of Stanley Spicer whose quest for old logbooks, the diaries of captains' wives and forgotten shipping reports may soon day result in the first comprehensive account of the Maritimes' age of deep-water sail.

Mr. Spicer, 40, director of physical education with the New Brunswick education department in Fredericton, was granted $4,000 by the Canada Council a few months ago to help with the cost of research.

A native of Campbellton, N.B., Mr. Spicer comes from a long line of seafaring folk. As a youth he sailed briefly in coastal vessels and a gypsum carrier. A few months after he left the carrier in 1940 she was torpedoed.

Although he quit the sea in favor of greater opportunities ashore his interest in ships remained strong, fed partly by family documents including the diary of his grandfather, a world - girdling master mariner.

The interest found expression at times in scripts for CBC radio and articles in the monthly Atlantic Advocate, a magazine published in Fredericton. Most of the stories were based on individual incidents at sea.

FED WELL

The idea for a book followed naturally. Mr. Spicer says the full story of Maritimes' square-rigged ships has never been written. In the latter part of the 19th century, these ships made the label Bluenose known in ports around the world.

Any ship from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island was known as a Bluenose to sailors of every nationality. They were known to be good feeders, a rarity at the time, whose cooks enjoyed great privileges. On the debit side, from a seaman's viewpoint, they were well kept and hard driven, which added much to the normal hackbreaking work aboard any windjammer.

The ships were built in dozens of tiny coves and hamlets as well as in the bigger centres in the Maritimes. The trade died with the coming of steam and the practice of building cheaper steel and iron ships.

Mr. Spicer said he is interested only in the wooden square-rigged ships of the 19th century. Other authors have covered the development of the two-, three- and four-masted schooners whose heyday existed alongside, and last longer than, the square-riggers.

Much of his material has been gathered in Nova Scotia and his favorite haunt in Halifax is the Maritime Museum of Canada, situated in temporary quarters in the Halifax Citadel.

DIARIES INFORM

He said he will try to bring out the business of ship, how the charters were arranged, where the money to build them came from, profits and wages.

Regarding life at sea, he said logs were helpful but they recorded mostly positions, weather, courses and distances run. The most intimate view of life in the ships is given in diaries kept by the wives of some captains.

It was a peculiarity of Bluenose ships that captains, who could expect to be away from home for three or four years, took their families along. To a lesser extent this also applied to cooks.

Some of the wives, to whom everything at sea was by turns fascinating, novel or terrifying, recorded their impressions in diaries. A few of these books survive, either treasured as family heirlooms or stowed away in forgotten corners.

Mr. Spicer has found a couple in a leaking garret for more.

He estimates it will take about two years for him to complete the book in which a publisher is already interested.

When it is finished he thinks he will tick something else of a similar nature.

SURPLUSES UNLIKELY

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan is not likely to accumulate another 10-year period of grain surpluses such as it had during the 1930s, C. W. Gibbons, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, said Tuesday.

H. C. Arnold Again Heads Producers

Hector C. Arnold of Campbellford has been named as chairman of the Ontario Cheese Producers for his tenth consecutive term in that position.

The re-election of Mr. Arnold as Cheese producers head was made at the annual convention held last week in Ottawa which highlighted addresses by speakers from a wide range of business life.

Included among the speakers were Frank Ryan, owner and manager of radio station CFRA in Ottawa, Peter Gomersall representing the cheese importing firm of Lovell and Christmas, England; Fred M. Cass, Q.C., M.P.P. for Grenville-Dundas and Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Convention delegates were told that farmers across Canada were receiving the highest prices ever for cheese milk. Although production has doubled in the past ten years, the marketing board fell short of 1964 requirements, this despite every cheese plant in Ontario was running to capacity.

Man Charged With Stealing Deer From Zoo

PETERBORQUGH (CP) — Robert Gerald Lock, 36, of Peterborough was remanded Tuesday to Jan. 27 when he appeared in magistrate's court on a charge of stealing a deer from the city zoo. Bail was set at $4,000.

The deer was reported missing from the zoo Nov. 14, the day after the deer season here ended. A head was found on the fence and blood stains were found at the scene.

"Edge"--A Razor of Criticism

By JANE BECKER

EDMONTON (CP)—A small semi-annual magazine, aiming a blast at what its founders call Alberta's "anti - intellectualism," has rocketed into prominence after being publicly ridiculed by some cabinet ministers in the province's Social Credit government.

The pocket-sized publication, Edge, is published by a group of staff members at the University of Alberta. The first appeared a year ago. It contains experimental poetry, avante gardo fiction, and articles sharply critical of the Social Credit government, in office more than 30 years.

The articles termed "filth" and "trash" by two cabinet ministers. Its use by a high school teacher was cited as a reason for his suspension.

The criticism has brought Edge booming sales. The 2,000 copies of the October issue sold quickly and editors say they are considering reprinting.

The editors all recent arrivals in Alberta, say they started Edge because they thought it was time someone spoke out against what they call the province's "anti-intellectualism" and "primitivism in political thinking."

WON'T INTERVENE

The university, which draws major financial support from the provincial government, has stood firmly behind its employees' right to publish their views.

"Free expression is the heart and soul of our freedom," said Dr. Walter Johns, the university president, in response to a request for his comment.

On Dec. 14 a statement issued by 146 faculty members declared their belief in the right of individuals to write about, support and criticize the government and to question all views, whether they concern religion, politics, morality, the law or public expenditures.

In an article on the "Sociological and Ethical Dimensions of Alberta," Irwin Sperber, a former sociology professor at the university, said "the dissension and traditions of The Enlightenment have systematically bypassed Alberta."

A poem, "God, Social Debt," talks of "righteous reverend Phasing his Black-to-Power hour," an obvious reference to Premier Manning's weekly evangelical radio broadcasts.

Municipal Affairs Minister A. J. Hooke charged in the legislature that Edge was "polluting the minds of our youths." He called the editors "perverts." Mr. Hooke is a former high school teacher.

CALLED 'TRASH'

At the convention of Alberta Municipal Districts and Counties in Calgary this fall, Mr. Hooke held up a copy of the magazine, calling it an example of the "trash" now invading the province's education. He read one poem that took note of Montreal poet Irving Layton's preoccupation with sex in his writings.

"Mr. Hooke isn't really nearly as interested in the sex in Edge as he is in his criticism of Social Credit," says Edge assistant editor Robin Mathews, 33.

Ethel Wilson, minister without portfolio, in an interview called Edge "filth worse than any of the junk on the newsstand."

In November the Strathcona County school board, near Edmonton, suspended Raymond Hertzog, 26, charging that, among other indiscretions, he gave a copy of Edge to a 17-year-old girl pupil.

The Varsity Tuck Shop, a well - patronized student lunchroom and news stand just off the Edmonton campus, refused to carry the second and subsequent issues. Owner of the shop is Social Credit MLA Edgar Gerhart.

NOW IN TRINIDAD

Co - founders of Edge are Henry Beissel, 36, a German-born English lecturer who came to the university in 1962, and Manfred Bapp, 34, also born in Germany, who heads the university's mimeographing department.

Mr. Beissel laughed publicly with both Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton and Alberta film censor F. J. A. Fleming during his two years at the university. He now teaches at the West Indies University in Trinidad. But his associate editor —all but Mr. Bapp are in the university's English department —say he plans to continue editing the magazine.

Whatever its literary merits, Edge has been lifted into notoriety by the controversy.

"Mr. Hooke made us so prosperous we can now afford to have Edge printed commercially," says Mr. Bapp. The first two issues were produced in the university mimeograph shop.

YARD EMPLOYEES

During its heyday, 20 years ago, the Brooklyn navy yard employed more than 70,000 persons.

PRODUCE COMIC STRIP — Artist Norman Drew (left) and writer Walt McDayter check newspaper picture files for photographs and old illustrations which will ensure accuracy in the art of a new newspaper comic strip series, The Giants, a feature on Canadian figures. In producing the series for the Toronto Telegram News Service, they found plenty of problems turning Canada's past and present into strip form for readers. (CP Photo)

Up to Their Ears in Canada's Past

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) Canadian history has too many beards and more than enough politicians.

These are a couple of offhand conclusions from a young writer-artist team producing a newspaper comic strip series on Canada's great. Another is that Canadian historical writing is full of inaccuracies.

Writer Walt McDayter and artist Norm Drew, suddenly up to their ears in Canada's past and present, find plenty of problems in turning it into strip form for readers of The Giants, a new feature on Canadian figures produced by the Toronto Telegram News Service. Whakers are a prominent one.

Many of the old-timers have come down to posterity decked out in lavish foliage. With a lifetime compressed into about six daily strips, it's tough to bring them along from beardless youth to patriarch without confusing the reader. Drew solves it by designing intermediate barbering jobs to bridge the tonsorial gaps.

FOUND CANADA DULL

The strip, which will cover about 100 "giants" (some by courtesy) and end just before Confederation Year, came about by a combination of circumstances. Syndicate manager Ray Argyle was looking around for a feature with a Confederation tie-in and colleague McDayter's British-born wife was ribbing him about Canadian history being peopled by dull characters.

The writer started browsing and soon concluded there was an interesting story to be told through lively biographies but that it was difficult to sort out fact from fiction.

"The books are full of contradictions," he said, "particularly popular biography. I've had to develop a healthy caution."

Now he spends two or three evenings a week in research. It takes about two hours to write a day's strip, which may contain as few as 50 words of reading matter. His collaborator, a free-lance artist, spends almost his full time on the drawings.

With the feature running in 62 papers, top seller of the syndicate, they figure they're under the gun from a variety of experts. To pass the eagle eye of railroad buffs, for example, Drew recently dug up and faithfully reproduced an illustration of a locomotive from the long-gone Ontario, Simcoe and Huron Railway to depict a train scene.

CAN'T SKIP PMS

Choosing the protagonists in the Canadian story has had its problems. Argyle says they could have done with fewer politicians and more scientists and exponents of the arts in the early times after 1867, the starting point, though things looked up in later years.

"We've had to take all the prime ministers, for one thing," he says, "regardless of whether we consider them giants."

Apart from the obvious ones, there is quite a miscellany of giants. The list includes cornerman Ned Hanlan, Yukon gold discoverer George Carmack, Doukhobor leader Peter Verigin, jazz pianist Oscar Peterson, Niagara Falls waterman Red Hill, Sr., comedienne Bea Lillie, Rocket Richard and Joey Smallwood.

Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson is there and so is a man who was born in Britain as George Belaney but became world famous in the guise of an Apache Indian naturalist called Grey Owl. It was decided that his contribution to conservation outweighed the fact that he hoodwinked a generation of Canadians.

Republican National Chairman Out

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Republican National Chairman Dean Burch announced Tuesday he will resign the chairmanship effective April 1 and that Ray Bliss, Ohio chairman, has consented to become national chairman.

The announcement was made at a joint press conference here by former Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater, the party's 1964 presidential nominee; Burch; Bliss, and former representative William E. Miller of New York, the vice - presidential nominee.

Sport Slices....

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Those up-and-coming gentlemen who form the board of directors under President William Phillips of the Belleville District Fish and Game Club have a problem.

They're serving some 15 to 20 valuable prizes awarded annually in their Fish and Game contest—and at the moment it looks like they're really going to be left "holding the bag."

It seems the valiant brotherhood of membership have had a helava bad year triggering and hooking—or they are too darn lazy to enter their bags and hauls.

Right now an average-size sardine would win the "largest sardine" prize and a baby muskrat would walk off with the trophy for the biggest bear.

Someone evidently looking for the booby—oops—baby prize in the deer contest has entered a youngster, which weighed only 14 pounds 12 ounces.

There are special awards in the fishing, deer, moose and bear columns, while the Judge J. C. Anderson Trophy is awaiting the owner of the 52kg Fish of the season.

Whether their captors are members of the Fish and Game Club is not known, but there were some lunker muskies and trout hauled in during the summer. Good size pickerel and bass, all of them prize-winning possibilities were taken.

Bear hunters and non-bear hunters never had it so good as last season when the mild weather forced Bruin out into the open—and some big hunks of bear-meat were brought down.

And I understand a couple of giant moose were shot in the far northern regions and brought down to this section of the banana belt.

So it behooves the brethren of the rod and gun fraternity to produce evidence of their hauls and take a load off the hands and minds of a worried directorate.

If there are no more entries come next Tuesday evening than at the present time I'm going to get me a package of supermarket frozen meat, engage the services of the office artist for retouching purposes and enter them into the piscatorial classes.

And I could get Mrs. Lloyd Hicks of Ottawa and that Duffy guy to-appear in their favorite moose and bear (not bare, really) skins and enter in the respective classes.

Seriously, the F. and G. directors would like to get as many entries as possible before the judging takes place at the annual dinner meeting scheduled for the Club Canara next Tuesday evening.

And speaking of the dinner meeting, better get those tickets right away since the sale closes on Friday noon. They can be obtained from President Phillips, directors Fred Fisher, Fred Clarke, Ken Yorke and Jack Layton or at Bob Hinino's Sport Shop, South Front Street.

—Tuesday brings the big night of the year for the Fish and Gamers. This is the night they bring along the little woman and kids or sweethearts and line their innards with excellent food.

They will elect or re-elect the board of directors and pay tribute to President Phillips and his knights of the round table on a seasonal job excellently done. From the new board they will name the 1965 president and other executive officials.

It should be a great night for the travel-minded. The boys have secured the services of J. R. Radford, owner-manager of radio station CFJR, Brockville, who toured and pictured the world from the poop-deck of a tramp steamer. Exciting and interesting besides being extremely colorful.

Added attractions are the presentation of the main prize of the evening, a Sony transistor radio—and fifteen or more other awards. There will be the Minnie Minney film, "Mysteries of the Deep" and if time permits, other films.

In the meantime get those entries in to the Fish and Game Contests. The handsome awards are itching to be taken away.

Memories, Not Sticks, Hurt Backstrom

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Although Ralph Backstrom is currently one of the hottest properties in the National Hockey League, he won't be satisfied until the memory of his dismal performance last year is erased.

"It's nice to be scoring again," says the 27-year-old centre for Montreal Canadiens, "but I still have a long way to go to redeem myself for last season."

The 1963-64 season was a big one for the Canadiens, who won the NHL title, but it was the year that wasn't for Backstrom who scored only eight goals and 21 assists in 70 games—his worst showing since he joined the league seven years ago.

This time around Backstrom has 14 goals and 13 assists in 36 games but says he's doing nothing differently.

"I tried just as hard last year, but the harder I tried the worse things seemed to get. I never stopped skating but just couldn't buy a goal and started losing confidence in my shot."

Coach Toe Blake admitted that Backstrom "never stopped working."

Skating and working is Backstrom's secret. He always travels in top gear, apparently gaining speed as the game progresses. Of his 14 goals, eight have been scored in the third period.

Blake refuses to throw bouquets in Backstrom's direction, although he'd probably like to. The last time Blake complimented his Canadiens was a week ago and the Habs promptly suffered two losses, dropping into second place behind Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks can increase their one-point lead tonight when they face the Maple Leafs at Toronto in the only NHL game scheduled. The Leafs can latch within three points of the Hawks with a victory and leave fourth - place Detroit three points behind.

Chuvalo Almost Floored

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP)—George Chuvalo of Toronto, the Canadian heavyweight champion who claims he never has been knocked down in a fight or in training, came about as close as possible to being floored Tuesday as he opened a training camp at this Catskill Mountain resort.

Chuvalo, who has been working out near Toronto for his Feb. 1 fight against Floyd Patterson at Madison Square Garden, boxed five rounds against four sparmates in his first drill at a country club here.

The first of them, Cody Jones of Detroit, landed a good punch just before Chuvalo apparently slipped or tripped and the Canadian almost went down. Jones is a former sparring partner of heavyweight champion Cassius Clay.

Chuvalo went on for one round each against heavyweight Jimmy Christopher of Toronto and light heavyweight Greatest Crawford of New York, a former Patterson sparmate, and two against Sonny Little, a Detroit middleweight.

Former Champion

Walls Likes Chuvalo Chances

TORONTO (CP)—Earl Walls, 36 - year - old former Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, says he "wouldn't mind being five or six years younger and sitting in George Chuvalo's spot."

Chuvalo, current Canadian titleholder, is in New York preparing for a 12-round fight with former world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson. The winner of the Feb. 1 match has been guaranteed a crack at the winner of the March 5 World Boxing Association championship fight between Eddie Machen of Portland, Ore., and Ernie Terrell of Chicago.

"I would love it," says Walls, of Toronto, who was once rated sixth in the world. "Chuvalo fits a big frame to make big money. Even if he doesn't win the world's title. He's young enough to keep at my mind, the opposition in his path toward the championship is poor."

Walls said Chuvalo is "too strong and hits too hard" for Patterson and "should knock him out."

Walls retired 18 years ago and turned to the real estate business. However, he admits he has considered making a comeback.

"But not for long," he says. "I've got a nice home, two growing boys who are going to go to college or get a couple of left hooks to the ribs. I'm making a good living and nobody is belting me on the nose all the time."

He said he came closest to returning to the game about five years ago when a team offered him a sizeable amount of money.

"It was within two days of signing that contract. I forget what happened, but I didn't sign. I'm not sorry, although at the time I'd been keeping in shape and figured I might have made a decent come-back."

College Bid Gets Pro Support

CHICAGO (AP) — The National League Athletic Association claimed written support from the major professional football leagues, has taken a major stride toward preventing the premature signing of college players by the pros.

The NCAA, in its annual convention, took a strong stand on its relations with the pros Tuesday and the pros immediately came up with some qualified support.

Pete Rozelle, National Football League commissioner, praised the report by the NCAA's pro relations committee and said he is generally in accord with the proposals.

The NCAA report stressed several matters, including the widespread professional practice of hiring assistant college coaches as scouts, in addition to the problem of premature signings.

Hope Slim For Dog Recovery

LONDON (AP) — Hope has just about disappeared for the recovery of the greyhound Hi Joe, Hi-Jo-1 favorite to win the Greyhound Derby who was dognapped from his kennel 10 days ago.

There has been no sign of the two-year-old dog, winner of the last six races, despite a $14,000 reward offer by the owners of the dog and an intensive search by Scotland Yard.

Marlies Stop Flyers

Generals Whip Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Buchanan and Bobby Orr are doing their best to keep Oshawa Generals in the first division of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

While Oshawa defeated Kitchener Rangers 4-2 Tuesday night in the senior city, Peterborough scored three goals and assisted on the other. Orr scored the other goal and also assisted on Buchanan's game-winning tally late in the third period.

The game was the 17th in a row in which Buchanan has picked up at least one scoring point. He has scored 31 goals in 37 games and has added 19 more. He has 33 assists to place him fifth in the race for league scoring honors.

And defenceman Orr is just seven goals short of tying his goal - scoring record for defencemen. Last year he scored 30. Tuesday's counter was his 23rd of this season.

In other league action Tuesday night, Toronto Marlboros handed the league - leading Niagara Falls Flyers a 4-3 setback, the first home loss by Flyers in 13 games, and Montreal Junior Canadiens rallied for a 4-4 tie with Peterborough Petes.

The win for the Generals was their first in four games. They outshot the Rangers 43-25 in the game.

Bill Hway and Sandy Fitzpatrick scored the Kitchener goals in the second period.

Paul Laurent, Barry Wintersteln and Barry Watson scored for the Marlboros in a period of 4½ minutes in the third period to win for Toronto. Brian Glennie scored the other Marlboro goal.

Ted Snell and Bill Goldsworthy gave the Flyers an early 2-0 lead and Jean Pronovost scored the other goal for Niagara Falls in the second period.

The win for Toronto moved them to within one point of the league leaders.

Colombia Bans Team From Cuba

BOGOTA (AP)—The Colombian government has refused to grant visas to a Cuban basketball team for the world series of amateur basketball.

Instead, the government sent out 28 visas to exiled Cuban players in Miami, Fla., who will participate in the tournament with a team called Free Cuba. The series begins Feb. 12.

The head of the foreign ministry's immigration department, Jorge Manrique, said Tuesday that Colombia rejected the Havana team because "Cuba is a Communist 'country" and the ministry will not let its players into Colombia.

Sources indicated Mexico will probably drop out of the tournament as a result of the switch to a Free Cuba team.

Mexico is the only country in Latin America still giving diplomatic recognition to the Castro regime.

The sources added that if a team from Cuba participated, four other countries would have abstained from sending teams.

League Increases Cash Pool

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Increases in the number of postseason games and the size of the Calder Cup cash pool for players have been approved by the American Hockey League's board of governors.

The changes, to take effect in the 1965-66 season, were approved by the governors at a meeting in New York Monday and announced by the league Tuesday.

The present $106,000 players' pool will be increased to $114,000.

Next season, which will start Oct. 22, two weeks later than usual, and wind up later, April 10, 1966, the number of post-season games will be increased from best-of-five series to best-of-seven series in first-round playoffs and Calder Cup finals.

Playoffs between second- and third - place clubs in each division will be increased from best-of-three series to best-of-five.

The governors also approved a request by the Rochester Americans to play at least 10 home games next season at Toronto. The move is necessitated by a national bowling tournament scheduled to begin in February, 1966 in Far Maple Leaf Gardens, home of the Americans' play their home games.

Cassius 'Ready' For Sonny

BOSTON (AP)—Cassius Clay arrived here Tuesday in a 60-passenger, red-and-white bus, with foot-high lettering on each side reading "world's heavyweight champion."

Clay was here to have a physical examination today at Boston City Hospital, where he underwent a hernia operation Nov. 13, three days before his scheduled title defence against Sonny Liston.

Clay said in an interview he thinks he is well enough to resume fighting training but he wants the approval of his surgeon, Dr. William McDermott.

He told newspaper men he is ready to fight Liston in what "as soon as he gets out of jail," — a reference to Liston's troubles with the law in Denver.

Clay said he's going to write about the Chuvalo - Patterson heavyweight fight for a national magazine next month.

5 Million Track For Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—An official sod turning ceremony here Tuesday started construction of a $5,000,000 harness racing track which is expected to return to Windsor its once-flourishing horse racing business.

Ivan Thrasher, member of the legislature for Windsor-Sandwich, wielded the shovel for Windsor Downs Racing Limited, backers of the project which is to be completed Oct. 1, 1965.

The new track, located on 200 acres of land on the city's west side, will include a grandstand seating 2,000 with room for 9,000 standing. There will be 15 winterized barns to accommodate 600 horses.

The lighted track, 1,100 yards in length, will provide a five-furlong raceway. There will be parking for 3,000 cars and a clubhouse for 400 diners.

Victoria Loses To Blades 4-2

VICTORIA (CP)—Los Angeles Blades trimmed Victoria Maple Leafs 4-2 Tuesday night in a Western Hockey League game before 5,000 fans.

The win, Blades' first in six games, moved them into a fourth place tie with Leafs, who lost their second in the last 11 starts.

Norm Johnson and Leo Labine got the others while Danny Belisle and Larry Keenan scored for Leafs.

Picton Jrs. Lose To Brockville

PICTON (Staff) — Brockville's Junior "A" entry gained a 5-3 nod over Picton Merchants, of junior "C" calibre, in exhibition hockey here last night.

The two clubs had played an earlier 5-5 tie in Brockville.

It was a close, hard-fought game all the way last night and the outcome was in doubt until Brockville's final goal was scored into an open net in the final seconds.

Brockville, outshooting the Merchants 40-32 overall, led 1-0 and 2-1 by periods. They opened up a 3-1 lead early in the third but Picton came right back to tie it.

Terry Strange scored the deciding goal, unassisted, and down one goal, Picton gambled on an extra attacker, lifting their goalie, at 4:40. Then move backfired and Don Snider banged home the clincher, assisted by Simard.

Earlier Brockville scoring plays saw Reid click on a power-play marker, aided by Snider in the opening half; Laforty complete a play with Reilly for a 2-1 lead in the second and John Cahill obtain a three-goal sortie with Reilly and Laforty early in the third.

Bill Pelkey attended to all of the Picton goals. His first marker, assisted by Gary Hassnel and Don McNeil, tied it 1-1. Hopkins struck for his pair in the third to tie it again, 2-2, with Harold Matlock helping on both and Bob Boyle on one.

Picton borrowed Bob Boyle, from Belleville Junior "B's", and Don McNeil, from Wellington Junior "D's", for the game.

The Merchants' next OHA Eastern Junior "C" appearance will be here at home against Gananoque Islanders tomorrow (Thursday) night.

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (CP - AP) — Canada's sturdy little band of bobsledders, who produced the Olympic four-man champions last winter in Austria, looms as a threat for both the two - man and four - man titles in the world championships beginning here Jan. 23.

The Canadian four - man crew who provided one of the biggest thrills of the Innsbruck games by roaring down the chute to a gold medal will not be together here, however.

Driver Vic Emery and brakeman Peter Kirby of Montreal and Dr. John Emery of Toronto, in the third seat, will be three of the four men defending Canada's unprecedented world laurels in the sport but second Doug Anakin of Montreal, who married recently, was unable to join his gold medal comrades here.

Vic Emery, the driver and captain, said Anakin's replacement will be Mike Young, a University of Toronto student who joined the Canadian bobsled team this year.

MAKE FAST TIME

Vic Emery and Young form the first two - man crews Canada is entering on the basis of practice times so far, looks like strong contenders.

Their fastest time since arriving here Sunday is one minute, 21 seconds — the second-fastest time thus far behind Britain's Innsbruck gold-medal winners, Tony Nash and Robin Dixon, who have recorded 1:20.5.

The two - man competition opens Jan. 23.

The Canadian four - man crew is more than satisfied with our first runs. The British and the Italians will be the men to beat, but the Americans could well spring a surprise."

The No. 1 four - man crew remains Canada's biggest hope for honors here, in the opinion of followers of the sport. They have not had a chance to make practice runs yet.

Comprising Canada's second two-man team are John Emery and Purvis McDougall of Montreal.

Make-up of the second Canadian four-man crew may not be definite until the eve of the four - man competition, scheduled for Jan. 30-31.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

There was a big lineup of players in the Detroit trainers' room before a recent Montreal game. They were waiting their turn to be taped up by Ross (Lefty) Wilson.

Lefty was working fast, trying to get everybody taped up. So I got in line.

"What do you want?" Lefty asked.

"Anything, just tape me, it seems like the thing to do," and everybody had a good laugh.

Actually, we only ask of the 17 players on the club who weren't being taped that night.

For instance, Norm Ullman and Al Langlois had broken fingers. Ron Murphy and Alex Delvecchio were having their shoulders taped, just to mention several of the injuries.

Recently I went to catch a shot. I opened the palm of my hand to stop it. Instead, it caught the ball just above the cuff.

There is very little protection on the inside of the glove there, in order that you can bend your wrist freely.

My wrist was paralyzed for a little while. It really hurt. It is okay now. The trainer has to be careful and not tape you too tightly. If the taping is too tight, it will restrict circulation. The limb will go dead. This is especially true in case of the legs. Or if your foot is being bandaged.

Sometimes if you tie the laces of your skating boots too tightly, your foot will go completely numb. You lose all feeling. That's bad.

The same is true of the forearm. It isn't so bad on the wrist. In the case of broken fingers, if they're taped tight enough, it numbs them, dulls the soreness.

Catching a shot, sometimes you'll get it on the fat of the thumb. It'll be sore for a month. Taping it gives you a little more strength.

Nowadays they have a new type of stretch bandage made of gauze. You can wrap it on yourself. It'll give a little. It's the latest thing.

Face Conspiracy Charges

Soccer Players On Trial

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—Ten professional soccer players, including international stars Peter Swan and Tony Kay, went on trial Tuesday on charges of conspiring to lose games in order to win bets.

Swan, a player for Sheffield Wednesday, and Kay, of Everton, both pleaded innocent of conspiring to throw a game between Sheffield Wednesday and Ipswich in 1962.

The charges are based on the activities of James Gauld, a former player for Swindon Town and Mansfield Town, and John Fountain, also a former Swindon Town player.

Gauld, who sold his story of the conspiracy to a Sunday newspaper, The People, for $19,600, pleaded guilty to 15 charges. Fountain pleaded innocent to five charges of conspiracy.

One of the other players, Richard Bestite, former Portsmouth and St. Mirren goalkeeper, pleaded guilty to three charges and innocent to one.

QUEBEC (CP)—Swedish star Ulf Sterner, a constant threat while on the ice, led Baltimore Clippers to a 3-1 victory over Quebec Aces Tuesday night in an American Hockey League game before 1,738 fans here.

Stapmer scored the opening Baltimore goal in the first period, l a u n c h e d dangerous shots at hard - working Aces goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley, and proved an effective poke-checker in Quebec territory.

Gump later made a save on Norm Beotal, but Penn caught the rebound to make it 3-1.

Clippers outshot Aces by a wide margin, Worsley making 29 saves against 13 by Jean-Guy Morissette.

Herb Capozzi must be kidding.

The general manager of the Grey Cup champion British Columbia Lions said the other day his club would seek the use of the fair catch and unlimited blocking in Canadian football. Unlimited blocking, maybe, because this can help create a guy loose for some exciting runbacks.

But the fair catch? That's as exciting as the intentional walk in baseball or freezing the puck against the boards in hockey.

The nine teams in the Canadian Football League will have a chance to consider Capozzi's suggested changes early in February and the general managers and coaches should give that fair catch thing short shrift. Managing director Lew Hayman of Toronto Argonauts, for one, is opposed to it.

"That's a horrible thing," Lew said in an interview. "To dead against it."

RUNBACKS SHORTER

Why would Capozzi, a Canadian and an Ironman with Montreal Alouettes, entertain such a change? Here's his reasoning:

"Canadian players aren't returning punts any more. They're just catching them and getting hit. The average return goes down every year.

"The game has become dull—just a kick and a catch and a tackle. The only excitement comes if the guy happens to fumble."

He may be able to quote statistics to back this up and he can exercise his vocal chords until they are raw, but it shouldn't be necessary when it comes time to sit down and talk rule changes in the CFL.

If anyone made a survey among the millions of Canadians who regularly watch National and American Football League and U.S. college games on television, they probably would find the majority head for the icebox when they see the punt receiver sticking up his hand to signal a fair catch.

In Canadian football, there is no blocking on punt returns and the receiver must be given five yards until he touches the ball. There is no five-yard rule in the U.S. game.

ROYAL LIKES ROUGE

Capozzi's comments came at a time when a couple of American coaches were talking in favor of adoption of the Canadian five-yard rule. One is Bob Bronzan, director of athletics at San Jose State College. With potential tacklers hearing down on him, the punt-return man has little choice but to call for a fair catch or let the ball bounce untouched, he says.

The other is Darrell Royal, who has an intimate knowledge of the Canadian and American games and should be given an attentive hearing.

He coached Edmonton Eskimos in 1953 and made them a power with the split-T formation which got a Edmonton three straight Grey Cup victories over the Alouettes—and Capozzi—starting in 1954. Royal now is coach of the University of Texas.

The Canadian rule on punt returns, he said after Texas upset Alabama 36-37 in the Orange Bowl, "would be better than our fair catch."

Not only that, but Royal said the likes of Hess had often advocated adoption of Canadian football's single point for the U.S. game. "It is one of the best and fairest rules and great for spectators but our end zone is too short," said the attacking team counts a single point. In the U.S. a defender can ground the ball behind his goal line with his team getting possession on its 20-yard line.

Gael's Line Paving Way

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The line of Bob Pond, Larry Jones and John Van Brunt are paving the way for last year's cellar-dwelling Queen's Golden Gaels in their bid for the first division and a playoff berth in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League this season.

Gaels, who totalled only eight points last year, have gained seven points in their first five games and of their 30-goal output, 23 are credited to Pond, Jones and Van Brunt. Pond and Jones are deadlocked for fourth place in the standings with 15 points while Van Brunt is in sixth spot with 14.

The Monteith brothers, Steve and Hank, traded spots as the top of the list again last week with Steve taking over on the basis of his 12 goals and 11 assists for 23 points. Hank, who played two years at the University of Toronto Blues' team, was sidelined with a shoulder separation. He had 8 goals and 13 assists prior to his injury.

Ward Pazsi, also with Blues, is in third spot with 19 points.

Elwin Darbyshire of Queen's and Gary Bonney of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, share the lead in the goaltending department with 3.40 averages. Each has allowed only 17 goals in five games.

'Dead' Boxer Revived

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A 17-year-old boxer was revived by oxygen in the mezzanine Tuesday after he was pronounced dead in the hospital. He was reported still in critical condition.

Jerry Como, a senior at Youngstown East High School, was taken to hospital from the Youngstown South High School gymnasium where he participated in the city's annual golden gloves boxing tournament.

Trainers in his corner said he was hit on the temple by Harvey Christian, 16, of Youngstown, during the second round of a three-round novice-division bout for 135-pounders.

Dr. M. M. Sucs, physician at the bouts, started massaging the boxer's heart externally after the youth collapsed in the ring.

Nicklaus Reaches Peak?

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus already is an old man in golf at the age of 24, has reached his peak and can't get any better, says veteran Sam Snead.

"It's just a question of how long this boy can hold what he has," the 57-year-old slammer from West Virginia said Tuesday. "I don't think he'll improve.

"... Jack has been playing competitive golf since he was 13 years old. He burns up a lot in that length of time. He's the equivalent of a man of 35."

Snead was in New York for the annual awards dinner of the Metropolitan Golf Writers Association.

He was honored along with Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., national amateur champion.

Stratton Takes Over AHL Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's become of that pat hand Quebec Aces were bolding in the American Hockey League all season?

The Aces have been trumped twice by AHL foes in three nights and victimized by a Buffalo shuffle in the individual scoring race.

Art Stratton and Lou Lunde of the Bisons moved past previous leader Wayne Hicks of the Aces, marking the first time in more than 12 days Quebec players failed to lead the point scorers. Stratton, with eight goals and a league-leading 42 assists, has 50 points. Lunde, the No. 1 goaltender with 27, has 20 assists for 47 points.

Hicks is tied for third with Ed Litzenberger of Rochester Americans at 46 points and Ed Hoekstra of Quebec is another back in his fifth position. Hicks, Hoekstra and teammate Bill Sutherland had either led or shared the lead since the season opened.

Gerry Cheevers of Rochester is the league's leading goaltender with a 2.48 goals-against average in 30 games. Playoff-rival Clover of Cleveland Barons continues to lead with 118 minutes in penalties.

Football Switch
Both Teams Are Losers

HOUSTON (AP)—The player pension fund will be one of the biggest losers resulting from the transfer of Saturday's American Football League all-Star game from New Orleans to Houston.

League officials and the New Orleans sponsors had hoped for at least 80,000 cash customers at the Sugar Bowl there before the nationally televised game was transferred to Houston's 32,000 - seat Jeppesen Stadium.

Joe Foss, AFL commissioner, ordered the game's transfer Monday after 21 Negro players walked out in protest against alleged discrimination by New Orleans taxicab drivers and French quarter night clubs.

Is Greenland on the Move? Expect Answer in 20 Years

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—The lofty ice-capped island of Greenland is a geological mystery that may be moving north past Ellesmere Island into the Canadian Arctic at a rapid clip—about 40 centimetres a year.

In an effort to confirm this theory, the Polar Continental Shelf Project of the department of mines and technical surveys has launched a long-range research project to co-operation with nearby other scientific bodies.

The project, expected to cover at least a 20-year period will involve a series of precise measurements in the sciences of geology, gravity, hydrography and seismology.

It surveys from another attempt to settle a two-century argument that the world's land mass once was a single continent and that North and South America have been sliding away from Europe and Africa for millions of years.

Scientists who never been able to measure this suggested drift because of the great distances separating these continents. However, if there is such a thing as continental drift, Greenland and Ellesmere there was a single continent must have been located between Scandinavia and northern Canada.

On the assumption there is drift, Greenland should be sliding north past Ellesmere Island as North and South America and Europe and Africa continue to separate. The narrow channel between the two islands offers scientists an opportunity to make precise measurements to test the theory of continental drift.

MADE SURVEY

Dr. R. Boots, co-ordinator of the Polar Shelf Project, said in an interview that the first objective of the survey is to determine the precise position of a number of points on Ellesmere Island to establish in the same number of positions on Greenland.

Initial work on this phase was completed last summer by the Polar Shelf Project, the Geodetic Survey of Canada, the transport department and the civil engineering department of the University of New Brunswick.

This consisted of a topographical survey of the two locations—six on Ellesmere Island and six on Greenland—on either side of Robeson Channel.

This channel separates the two islands near their most northerly extremities some 500 miles from the North Pole. It's about 18 miles wide and some 30 miles long, extending Kennedy Channel to the south and the Lincoln Sea to the north.

Distances between the various geodetic stations were determined with geodimeters, instruments which measure distances with light waves. Use of this instrument was necessary because of the narrow channel separating Ellesmere Island and Greenland.

The information will be used during the next two years in establishing permanent monuments or markers on the two islands. The monuments must be located on land which will not shift as a result of local geological processes.

CHECK DISTANCES

Once the permanent monuments have been erected, the Geodetic Survey will use geodimeters to obtain the precise location of the monuments in relation to each other. These distances will be re-examined in 10 years and again in 20 years to determine whether Greenland is sliding past Ellesmere Island.

Present plans also call for three measurements to be made in with tidal stations to determine whether the Greenland land mass is rising or falling as well as drifting.

One way to do this would be to locate automatic tide gauges on the two islands in the Robeson Channel area to obtain precise sea levels. These measurements could be compared with levels to be obtained in 1975.

Dr. Boots said other studies also indicate that Greenland is sliding past Ellesmere Island.

A recent magnetic survey in this area showed abnormal variations in the earth's magnetic field. This may be caused by a mass of material below the earth's crust which has a high temperature and is basically non-magnetic.

This suggests there might be a thinning or separation in the earth's crust between Greenland and Ellesmere Island. Gravity readings also indicate that the material below Robeson and Kennedy Channels has a density different from that under the islands.

In addition, a study of earthquake records shows no earthquakes have originated in the two channels. There have been numerous earthquakes to the south in Baffin Bay and to the north in the Lincoln Sea.

Earthquakes are created where there is resistance to the movement of crust or mantle movement of crust or mantle material. Such resistance might not exist under the two channels because the sliding movement of Greenland allows crust and mantle material to adjust itself.

GREENLAND MAY BE MOVING — The Polar Continental Shelf Project of the department of mines and technical surveys has started a long-range study of the theory that Greenland may be moving north past Ellesmere Island into the Canadian Arctic. The project is expected to cover at least a 20-year period. Twelve points — six on Ellesmere Island and six on Greenland on either side of Robeson Channel — have been determined and permanent monuments will be built on them so scientists can keep check on their precise location in relation to each other.

'Hullabaloo' Called Lively New Musical Variety Hour

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A lively new musical variety hour is slated into NBC's evening schedule Tuesday night.

Hullabaloo, as it is called, was produced by, with and for the young crowd, and there was nothing the matter with the music, the dancing or the singing. And there was also interesting production background including room for a 120-piece marching band.

If one must do a little carping, it is to question the judgment of permitting those screaming teen-age girls in the studio audience where they were howled when they saw a recorded reproduction of two British singing groups.

Their squealing was annoying and distracting to the living room audience, and obviously distorted the sound of the show's host.

Jones, a singer with a pleasant voice and easy style, but can't get the squeals, probably because his hair shows signs of recent attention from a barber and he wears ordinary American men's clothes.

Others on the show included the new Christy Minstrels and a 19-year-old French girl, Jocelyne, whose voice and style remind one of Brenda Lee when she was about the same age.

Later, NBC's tour of the United States capital proved a rare and unusual television experience. Crews had filmed the vast structure mostly at night.

During the leisurely inspection of the statues, the freezes, the columns and the legislative chambers, corridors and halls, we saw not one human being. With the imaginative camera work and the well researched narration by Canadian born Raymond Massey, it was like being taken on a comfortable and private tour.

The camera work was supplemented by old prints and maps. The narration was loaded with fascinating bits of history.

The lonely, almost ghostly mood was broken a few times by the use of old films—of Roosevelt, Churchill and MacArthur among others, addressing Congress. It would, perhaps, have been more effective to merely use their voices echoing as we saw the empty chamber.

Big Pictures, Big Profits Film Industry's Theory

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The American film industry, riding the crest of renewed prosperity, has invested $105,000,000 in 15 movies with hopes of continuing the boom.

"Think big" has been the keynote of recent industry practice, the theory being that big pictures can mean big profits while small pictures seldom do. The system can bring near-disaster, as in the cases of Cleopatra and Mutiny on The Bounty.

But epics like Ben-Hur and The 10 Commandments can boost a company's fortunes for a year or longer. And so nearly all of the major studios invested last year in large-scale films.

Some are the road-show or hard - ticket attraction, which means they will be exhibited on a reserved-seat, advanced-price basis. Others will go into general release.

Twentieth Century-Fox is the most bullish on the road-show films and will release three in 1965. They are:

The Sound of Music, the final Rodgers and Hammerstein collaboration, starring Julie Andrews and Christopher Plummer. Estimate: $8,000,000.

The Agony and the Ecstacy, the Sistine Chapel portion of Irving Stone's book on Michelangelo, with Charlton Heston and Rex Harrison. Estimate: $8,000,000.

Those Magnificent Men in an early-day air epic with an international cast. Estimate: $7,000,000.

Biggest of the new epics is George Stevens' long-awaited The Greatest Story Ever Told. He has refused to reveal its cost. United Artists also has been secretive about it. But trade observers place the eventual bill at nearly $20,000,000. The film will have its premiere in Cinerama next month.

United Artists has another film planned for a Cinerama release, The Hallelujah Trail, a knockabout Western with Burt Lancaster and Lee Remick. The cost is reported at $7,000,000

Another Lancaster film for United Artists, The Train, ran over its budget during shooting in France. The final tab: About $6,000,000.

Jubilant with returns from My Fair Lady, Warner Brothers apparently felt few qualms about shelling out $13,000,000 for the Great Race, a wild chase with ancient automobiles and stars Jack Lemmon, Natalie Wood and Tony Curtis.

Plan to Divorce Announced In TV Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Nick Adams has disclosed to a network television audience he and his wife plan to divorce.

And, in Hollywood, his wife Carol confirmed it after the show Sunday night, but commented:

"That's Nick for you. He called me up this afternoon and told me to watch the show and please be understanding.

"Understanding? I'm in a state of shock."

Adams, best known as television's The Rebel, used the Les Crane Show over ABC-TV to take his case for the breakup of the marriage.

"I'm inconsiderate," he said "I love my wife and I know she loves me. But I'm in a business where it takes so much drive that I can't come home for supper at 6 o'clock and when I come home at 11 o'clock or midnight, I'm too exhausted to be a good husband."

They married in 1959. They have two children.

First DC-9's Roll Off Assembly Line

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The first two DC-9s rolled off Douglas Aircraft Company's assembly line Tuesday before some 700 spectators.

The twin seating DC-9, the newest U.S. jetliner, is designed for short to medium-range flights, 100 miles to 1,200 miles, with a 90-passenger capacity minus galley.

The company thinks of it as the jet-age successor to its famous propeller - driven DC-3. The last of 13,000 DC-3s was built in May, 1946, but more than half of them are still in service.

The company says it already has orders and options for 118 DC-9s, worth more than $316,000,000, from foreign and domestic airlines.

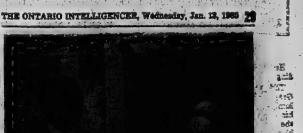
About one-third the size of the four-engine DC-8 jetliner, the DC-9 is expected to cruise at or near a maximum 857 miles an hour.

The DC-9 fuselage measures 107 feet. Its wingspan is slightly more than 87 feet.

First test flight is scheduled for March.

Life savings and tail sections are built by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Limited at Malton, Ont., near Toronto.

Struck by Pistol



WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Patrick D'Amore, 36, was struck by a pistol and shot twice by two men who forced their way into his home Tuesday night.

Mr. D'Amore, owner of a construction company, was in satisfactory condition in hospital with a wound in the back of his head and gunshot wounds to his chest and back.

He told police the men were wearing sunglasses and white handkerchiefs over their faces. Both carried revolvers.

WILL CREMATE

LONDON (CP)—The body of Sir Howard d'Egville, former secretary-general of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, will be cremated at Brighton, England, Thursday. Sir Howard died Jan. 9 in a nursing home near Brighton. He was in his late 80s.

AT THE BELLE — Wednesday — Sean Connery (James Bond) has a new and mysterious girl friend, in "Tippi" Hedren who is delighted that he has arranged for her horse to be brought in from the country, in this scene from Alfred Hitchcock's new suspenseful mystery, "Marnie". Photographed in Technicolor. The romantic film opens today, Wednesday at the Belle Theatre, co-stars Diane Baker and Martin Gabel.

Cross-Canada Survey

Bird Watchers Spot Fewer New Species

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two firsts, the appearance of a Canada jay over Vancouver and the visit of a cardinal to Montreal, were among highlights of the annual Christmas count of birds by Canadian wildlife watchers.

Neither of these species had previously been observed at those cities during the Yuletide tally sponsored by the Audubon Society.

A Cross - Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that fewer species than the previous year were noted. As usual Vancouver's standings were the most numerous, accounting for 190,000 sightings compared to 110,321 at Christmas, 1963.

Members of the Calgary Bird Club observed 15,937 birds in 25 species, the rarest of which was a raven—not previously counted in the area at Christmas. The most plentiful bird was the Bohemian waxbill which made up 4,300 of the tally.

SAW EAGLE

Just south of Calgary the flight of a golden eagle highlighted the chilly vigil.

Dr. Robert Turner, field secretary of the Edmonton Bird Club, said of the Dec. 27 count: "It wasn't a particularly good year."

In cold weather and deep snow, the members sighted only 21 species compared to 35 in 1963 and only 65 mallards made their appearance compared to the previous year's 120.

In Regina some unexpected visitors, such as a crow and a robin, were noted among the 28 species and 3,683 birds. In 1963 29 species were seen.

Members of the Natural History Society of Manitoba braved a temperature of 18 below in a strong south wind to register what member Harold Hosford termed an "uninteresting" day.

FOOD SCARCE

While figures were not yet available he predicted they would be "much below" the previous tally and blamed lack of food on bushes and trees because of a late frost last spring.

However, unexpected callers to Winnipeg in late December were one robin, two cedar waxwings and two cardinals.

A list of 84 species, compared to 99 in 1963, was compiled by members of the Toronto Ornithological Club. One member spotted a golden eagle being harassed by four crows. The total number of sightings, 25,827, was below the last Christmas census of 34,506 but was above the average for the last 10 years.

There was a noticeable scarcity of southern birds—typified by the complete lack of blue jays.

Montreal reported its best ever count due to the mild weather. Most notable was the large number of birds of prey, 20 were seen—driven out of the north by a shortage of their usual victims, the lemmings.

Arctic snowy owls and rough legged hawks were abundant. Some 9,500 birds in 64 species were counted.

Saint John, N.B., registered two rarities, a southern dickcissel and a northern three-toed woodpecker and good counts of evening grosbeaks.

The 50 species seen there included 201 common juncos, an unusually large number.

Halifax was divided into two spotting zones, east and west. In the east 56 species were counted, including a great blue heron and a bittern, both late departures for the season.

Two other late departures for the south were a couple of red-winged blackbirds, included among the 45 species spotted in the west.

Mrs. Pandit's Byelection Victory in India Sparks Wave of Political Views

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—Mrs. Vijaya Laxmi Pandit's victory in a parliamentary byelection made necessary by the death of her brother, Jawaharlal Nehru, has sparked a wave of political speculation in India.

The 63-year-old former diplomat who has represented her country in Washington, London and Moscow defeated a Socialist opponent in Phulpur constituency by a 50,000-vote margin.

The triumph has set at rest, at least temporarily, fears in the ruling Congress party that the "Nehru legend" is losing its hold on the people.

The question being asked in the press and in political circles is: Now that she is back in active politics will Mrs. Pandit pursue her "well-known" political ambitions?

Mrs. Pandit has been widely credited with wanting a top position in the Indian government. Some papers have hinted that she would like to become India's first woman prime minister.

At the moment, Mrs. Pandit's anxiety seems to be to enter the Shastri cabinet as a junior minister.

Prime Minister Shastri faces a dilemma. With Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, already in the cabinet as minister of information and broadcasting, he cannot easily accommodate another member of the Nehru family in the government.

MORE EXPERIENCED

Another complication is that because of her wider experience in public affairs Mrs. Pandit may not like to work in a capacity junior to that of the 44-year-old Mrs. Gandhi, who is No. 4 in the cabinet.

The political correspondent of the Bombay Free Press Journal says that if Mrs. Pandit is taken into the cabinet, Mrs. Gandhi may prefer to leave the government.

The two women have also major ideological differences. Mrs. Gandhi believes that only democratic socialism will ensure India's orderly progress, while Mrs. Pandit thinks the country needs a pragmatic economic approach which does not stifle private enterprise in the name of democratic socialism.

Mrs. Pandit, according to press speculation here, would like to become foreign minister. This would also embarrass Shastri as he only recently appointed Swaran Singh external affairs minister.

Within the ruling party there is strong opposition to Mrs. Pandit being given the foreign portfolio.

Meanwhile, Prem Bhatia, a well-known political columnist here, reports Mrs. Gandhi is being persuaded to take the post of high commissioner to London. He thinks this is connected with moves to find a place for Mrs. Pandit in the Shastri government.

DENIES MOVE

In a public speech Mrs. Gandhi has denied that she is going to London. Despite the denial, speculation has continued about her future.

It also is reported that the present Indian high commissioner in the United Kingdom, Dr. Jivraj Mehta, is planning to retire within another three months.

While being opposed to Mrs. Pandit's appointment as external affairs minister, many top members of the congress party seem to think Mrs. Gandhi would make a good diplomat. She is among the few Indian politicians who have travelled abroad and met foreign statesmen.

Mrs. Gandhi is personally known to the world's top leaders. She recently made a trip to the Soviet Union to study post - Khrushchev developments in the Kremlin.

North China Winter Sets In After Long Warm Autumn

PEKING (Reuters) — Chrysanthemums and cabbages lend splashes of color to Peking's predominantly grey streets as the north China winter sets in after a prolonged warm autumn.

The large oblong cabbage grown in the Peking area is an important part of the winter diet here.

Newspapers and officials have been pouring out advice to housewives on how to store these heavy, nearly white, cabbages to keep them fresh, and on methods of salting or drying them.

Communist party street committees have been urging residents to buy cabbages to store after what was officially described as the third successful harvest.

For several weeks, all roads into the capital were crowded with trucks, wheel barrows, and carts drawn by horses, mules or cyclists, and all piled high with neat stacks of cabbages.

Households all over Peking now have cabbages drying in courtyards, on roofs and stairways, and even in the street where they often block the pavements. They sell for a few cents apiece in the shops and at makeshift street distribution centres.

Apples, plums and tangerines are also plentiful and cheap this winter at street stalls.

Meanwhile, as the capital's inhabitants turn more and more drab in their uniformly dark blue padded winter clothes, houses, shops and offices have been brightened by thousands of chrysanthemums of many types and an infinite variety of shades.

Flower shops have been selling exotic individual blooms, some of them six inches in diameter, for about four cents each.

Flowering chrysanthemums fill corridors and halls of public and government buildings here, including post offices and hotels, to mark the 15th anniversary this year of the foundation of the Chinese People's Republic.

More than 10,000 pots of growing flowers are on display in one of the main parks.

No Radical Change in Soviet Attitude After Ouster Seen

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Three months after the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev, the Western world is still looking in vain for any radical change in the Soviet attitude toward the rest of the world.

Even in its approach to China, Western diplomats at the UN say, there has been no basic change in the Kremlin line.

They interpret any Soviet overtures to Peking that followed the change of command as an attempt to prevent any further deterioration rather than as a move for rapprochement. And they add that the attempt was notably unsuccessful.

In essence, they say, the Soviet attitude towards all sectors of the world—the West, East Europe, the Afro-Asian bloc—has remained unaltered.

AVOID TROUBLE

In two or three areas, the Russians appear to have avoided opportunities to embarrass the West.

In the eastern Mediterranean, they may even have taken a step ahead by improving relations with Turkey, although this development is still being weighed with caution at the United Nations.

At best the visit of a Soviet delegation to Ankara could mean the Russians are pulling back from their heavy support of the Greek faction on Cyprus.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko dropped a hint along the same lines before the UN General Assembly Dec. 7 when he said any settlement of the Cyprus dispute would have to take into account the legitimate rights of both the Greek and Turkish communities.

In the Indonesia-Malaysia crisis, the West was clearly pleased that Moscow rapped President Sukarno's knuckles for pulling out of the UN.

But here again the Western view is that the Russians are more concerned about their own position in Southeast Asia than about the threat to Malaysia and the UN.

Concerning the UN itself, the Russians appear to have proceeded on exactly the same path on the peace-keeping issue that they might have taken with Khrushchev at the helm.

That approach has been anything but co-operative, in the Western view. But there are many who think the Russians could easily have precipitated a much worse situation if they had wanted severely to harm the UN.

WEST ON DEFENSIVE

It is generally conceded at the UN that the Russians have manoeuvred brilliantly on this question to throw the West on the defensive.

Even last fall, it is felt, the West would have had a difficult time rallying enough support to take away the Soviet assembly vote for non-payment of peace-keeping dues.

Now, after repeated postponements of the showdown, the chances of finding such support are probably nil.

The fact that no showdown has developed may mean that the Russians are not interested in forcing a humiliating defeat on the U.S. that could alienate American public and governmental support for the UN.

Chief Justice Says More Judges Needed

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice George Gale said Monday that the 22-member bench of the Ontario Supreme Court needs at least two more judges to bear a backlog of untried cases and deal with an expected increase in litigation.

In his address to the formal opening of the 1965 Supreme Court sittings here, he said there is a "rather dark" backlog of untried cases at Toronto and Ottawa.

In Toronto, he said, there are 2,153 non-jury Supreme Court cases awaiting trial, 2½ times the number of cases ready for trial 10 years ago. A civil suit could take nearly two years to reach trial.

There are 660 jury cases ready to be heard in Supreme Court here, four times as many as on the list in January, 1955.

At Ottawa, there are more than 130 untried cases on the peremptory lists. In January, 1928, there were seven cases pending. He said he hopes to alleviate the situation in Ottawa by sending a second judge there.

OFFICIALS HEAR REPORT

He told his audience, including Attorney - General A. A. Wishart of Ontario and Justice Minister Guy Favreau, that if all 22 judges set to work to try only actions ready to be heard in Toronto, each judge would have to dispose of 125 cases before the backlog was overcome.

But, Chief Justice Gale said, any case of real urgency can be tried within a relatively short period.

Election Predictions Begun by Reuters Man

LONDON (CP) — A stoutish, beetle - browed man wearing carpet slippers and peering myopically at his slide - rule started something on the evening of the British general election of 1950.

Sydney Gampell, chief statistician and financial editor of Reuters news agency, was making the first stab at calling the final result on the basis of a few early returns.

On past performance, the winner might be known in 12 to 14 hours if it was a clear win, some 18 hours if close. This was to be a close one.

After about a half hour, with 10 seats declared out of 625, Gampell called Labor by six. He turned out to be exactly right, ushering in the era of swing analysis and—with his slide-rule later automated out of the running—election by computer.

Gampell's 1950 stab looked like sleight-of-hand at the time but by the time of the general election last October, swing analysis had become not only respectable but essential for every newspaper and radio and TV service.

LECTURED AT COLLEGE

The innovator is a 60-year-old master of science (1924) who specialized in cotton technology as befits a Manchester man. Before joining Reuters in 1933 he was a college lecturer on such subjects as the economics of the grain trade, and one series on this topic had 50,000 copies circulated in Canada and the United States.

For all but two days about every four years—at elections—Gampell writes of finance and economics. His work was rewarded with the OBE last June.

His style is always lively, sometimes obscure, often profound. At his best, his writing is impressively rich in learning and experience, and salted with literary allusions, biblical quotations and colloquialisms from both sides of the Atlantic.

He has been a frequent visitor to North America for meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. Among his hobbies, he lists "meditation on international finance."

Of the five general elections he has analyzed, he was successful in four—1950, 1951, 1955 and 1959. In the fifth in 1964, he confesses, "I barely escaped with my life."

In 1959 he pulled off the astonishing feat of announcing the result in broad terms six minutes after the first seat had been declared. With only two results known, he called a substantially increased majority for the Conservative government. Not much later he sharpened the verdict as "majority increased from 60 to about 100." And 100 it was.

By his second effort in 1955 he had begun to refine and elaborate his system. Electronic computers linked to the newsroom by leased wires replaced the slide-rule. A whole team of assistants manned the unit, now dignified with the name of "analysis desk."

But he conceded defeat in the narrow squeak of Harold Wilson's Labor party in 1964. Seeing signs of an ultra-close finish combined with some shaky indicators, Gampell ran for cover. He gave two releases Reuters' chief news editor, "in saying the issue was too narrow for a firm calculation, then closed down his slide-rule.

"What you want," he told not a statistician but an astrologer."

PIONEER IN PLOTTING ELECTION OUTCOME — Sydney Campbell, chief statistician and financial editor of Reuters news agency, is the pioneer in plotting election outcome. He took his first stab using a slide-rule at calling the result, on the basis of a few early returns, of a British election in 1950. He turned out to be exactly right, ushering in the era of swing analysis and — with his slide-ruler later automated out of the running — election by computer. (CP Photo)

WORD OF THANKS

U. S. Surgeon-General Deplores Heavy Smoking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The surgeon - general reported Monday what he called encouraging progress in getting Americans to swear off cigarettes—but at the same time he deplored "the amount of cigarette smoking still going on."

Surgeon-General Luther L. Terry of the U.S. public health service made the report at a meeting at which figures were given, with his agency's endorsement, that despite gains in weaning people away from cigarette smoking, the habit still stills at least 125,000 in the United States annually — and may even kill as many as 300,000.

The Tobacco Institute Inc., a spokesman for the industry in the United States, had no immediate comment.

The session marked the first anniversary of the report by a special advisory committee to the surgeon-general which described cigarette smoking as a major hazard to health, and called for "appropriate remedial action" by the country.

Terry said that progress made during the last year in getting additional people to swear off cigarette smoking brings to some 18,000,000 the number of Americans who now are "ex-smokers."

Reporting a drop in adult cigarette consumption since 1963—and indicating that perhaps most of it occurred during the last year—Terry said:

"If smoking habits had continued at the level of three years ago, there would be 3,500,000 more smokers than there actually are today. . ."

He said that if, in fact, "nothing had happened" in the last year—as he said some critics have charged—"cigarette consumption would now be much higher tha nit was a year ago —and it isn't."

Terry said a recent national random sampling of 3,500 households had given at least prelim inary evidence that:

—An additional seven per cent of men over 21 have given up cigarette smoking since 1962 —thus adding to the approximate 18 per cent who were ex-smokers at the time of the 1962 surveys.

—The percentage of additional women swearing off since 1962 was less than that for men —only two or three per cent added to those who had sworn off prior to 1962. But this was the first time on record in which the trend has been downward for female smokers."

Senator Maurine Neuberger (Dem. Ore.), who once smoked herself but gave it up, advocated at the meeting that "tobacco be taken off the list of crops the government supports."

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the federal health department said no figures are yet available which could indicate the impact of the Terry report on Canadian smoking habits. He said a special survey has been launched on smoking in Canada and results should be known in a few weeks.

Vatican Relaxes Controls . . . . . Ghana Increases Them

News Censorship Around the World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Censorship, direct and indirect, continued to impede the flow of news around the world in 1964 but a few bright spots appeared.

Soviet Russia came through a change in government without restricting the writing of foreign correspondents. Spain eased controls. Most British Commonwealth nations, the United States and most of Latin America remained free of direct censorship.

Censorship takes several forms.

Actual blue-pencilling of news copy, to delete words or change stories, is unusual today.

Censorship at the source, an effort to restrict information that might be embarrassing if it becomes public, continues even in units of the U.S. government.

Many aspects of this source-censorship still are at work in the Soviet Union. Thus while the Kremlin let correspondents file freely when Nikita Khrushchev was ousted, it kept secret some aspects of the underlying situation and allowed no reporters to question Khrushchev.

Most countries try to restrict military information to official announcements.

Occasionally a country imposes a "responsibility censorship," under which a correspondent may be called in for criticism or expulsion if he has filed something that officials dislike.

At the end of every year The Associated Press has its correspondents around the world report on censorship and other conditions affecting the free flow of news across international borders. Here are their findings in detail:

SOVIET BLOC

Indirect censorship caused the expulsion of three correspondents from the Soviet Union in 1964. One was ousted for his own personal reporting; the others were expelled because of stories they had not written—a false report on the death of Khrushchev, and descriptions of the Soviet scene and Lenin's private life. In both cases the correspondents were made scapegoats for stories written at their home offices.

Foreign correspondents in Moscow are in three categories. Those from friendly Communist countries have some freedom to talk to whomever they wish. Those from Communist newspapers in Western countries are given secret briefings so they can act as channels of information, much of it unpublished in foreign countries.

Others, including Western correspondents, are usually denied access to informed Soviet sources. They are forbidden to make contact with any Soviet official for news other than through the foreign ministry or a "state committee for cultural relations with foreign countries." Attempts to go directly to sources bring reprimands from the press department.

Visiting correspondents get better treatment—their requests for interviews may be honored, while those of resident correspondents are ignored. A tight policy is maintained on requests for resident correspondents' visas. A housing shortage is given as the main reason.

Correspondents need advance permission in writing to go more than 25 miles from Moscow. Many parts of the Soviet Union remain closed to them.

Poland exercises no direct censorship of outgoing dispatches, but has numerous forms of restraint on obtaining news. Resident correspondents are treated often as agents of their governments and barred from press conferences and court trials open to local reporters. Accredited correspondents are informed by the foreign ministry when their dispatches are displeasing and reminded of possible consequences. Reporters based in West Germany find it difficult to obtain visas to cover stories in Poland.

Officially there is no censorship in East Germany but news is controlled in favor of the Communist regime by the blacking of trusted Communists in control of news sources and media. Western reporters can obtain visas for visiting East Germany. There is no prior censorship of their copy, but the authorities find what they regard as an overly critical attitude the correspondent would be asked to leave or would have difficulty obtaining another visa.

Newspapers in the Communist countries are under strict government control.

NON-COMMUNIST EUROPE

Correspondents were forbidden to write any speculative stories on French atomic experiments in the Sahara. The official reason was that the stories would violate security. The real reason was that the French government wanted no reactions in African states bordering Algeria.

Sometimes censorship at the source is the result of lack of knowledge, for President Charles de Gaulle's confidants are few. But overall, the French tradition of a free press continues with no restrictions on a reporter who wants to speculate or write criticisms of Gaulle and his policies.

West Germany exercises no censorship except for a ban on Communist publications. Government officials reserve the right to withhold information on sensitive and touchy issues.

A notable easing of censorship at the source occurred in Spain, where there is no control over outgoing dispatches. The government continued to maintain firm control over domestic newspapers and broadcast news. Directors of publications were permitted to act as their own censors. The requirement for submission of page proofs to an official censor was stopped. The normal foreign correspondents were not subject to direct censorship but publication of articles unfavorable to the government usually touched off a complaint from a government spokesman. There was no easing of direct censorship of domestic newspapers and other news organs.

Flow of news in and out of Britain is entirely free from censorship and restraint at the source is rare.

At the Vatican there was significant relaxation at the source on some Vatican news. Official briefings at the ecumenical council were detailed with spokesmen reporting in full on disputes that might have been glossed over in the past. There is no direct censorship of outgoing dispatches in European countries.

AFRICA

Ghana maintained its stringent, direct censorship over outgoing news. Radiophone were added to the items needing a censor's stamp. Sports writers covering the world featherweight title bout had to submit their copy to a censor in Ingrida.

In Nigeria, the most populous country of Africa, there was no direct or indirect censorship.

In Guinea correspondents say their mail is opened and dispatches regarded as uncomplimentary result in criticism from government officials.

Occasional difficulties arise in times of stress in The Congo. Censorship was barred to foreign reporters immediately after the November U.S.-Belgian rescue mission. Three British reporters were placed under house arrest when they arrived and were returned to Leopoldville.

Seven French-speaking states as Congo Brazzaville, Dahomey, Cameroon, Gabon, the Ivory Coast and Togo continued to be free of censorship. But controls are imposed on communications in times of national upheaval. This may amount to censorship.

ASIA

Severe restrictions at the source impede the work of the few Western correspondents assigned to China. There is no direct censorship over dispatches filed out of Peking, but the correspondents are threatened with expulsion if they send dispatches displeasing to the government. The Chinese press and radio are under complete control.

Censorship is not applied to outgoing dispatches or newspapers on the Chinese Nationalist island of Formosa, but newspapers observe certain recognized taboos, such as avoiding criticism of what is called the supreme goal of national policy —recovery of the mainland. Nationalist China remains barred from the International Press Institute for alleged lack of freedom of the press.

In South Viet Nam, censorship of outgoing dispatches is occasionally imposed, or dispatches are delayed. Censorship of internal news is not a problem in 1964, but even this slackened.

Stories by foreign correspondents remained untouched in Thailand and the new government permitted newspapers for the first time in five years to express opinions.

Burma maintained its ban on stationing of Western newspaper men in the country. Local newspapers were fed from a single, government - controlled source. Stories filed by foreign correspondents visiting Burma were scrutinized carefully but not censored.

Indonesia's foreign ministry press section maintained a close watch on stories about the country by correspondents abroad, but there was no direct censorship. Unfavorable accounts resulted sometimes in action against the correspondent.

Cambodia maintained a cool attitude toward Western—chiefly American — correspondents, refusing to issue them visas except on occasions suitable to the regime of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Malaysia does not impose censorship on either foreign or local newspaper men.

There was no overt censorship in the Indian sub-continent. In most of India, Pakistan and Ceylon news moved freely and officials were available to persistent reporters.

Japanese officials are generally willing to be interviewed by foreign correspondents, and there is no censorship of their copy. The domestic press is entirely free.

Relations of the South Korean government with the local press remained cool at years end. During eight weeks of martial law major newspapers in Seoul and the flow of news to provincial cities were under strict press censorship. Dispatches by foreign correspondents remained uncensored.

MIDDLE EAST

Censorship still plagues foreign correspondents in many regions of the Middle East, varying from light to heavy. Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Jordan and Lebanon are among the countries where restrictions of some kind are occasionally applied. But the main chore of the correspondent is in dealing with secrecy that surrounds governments.

Outgoing dispatches are not censored in the United Arab Republic, but contacts with government officials remain limited.

In Israel correspondents submit dispatches for deletion of security items they might interpret as affecting military security.

The censorship picture improved considerably in 1964 in Turkey with the lifting of martial law. Foreign correspondents send cables without censorship.

LATIN AMERICA

A touch of censorship was applied during the year in Brazil, which has a long tradition of no censorship. During the March 30-April 1 revolt outgoing dispatches were read by military officials.

Colombia exercises no direct censorship, but the government requires all foreign correspondents to obtain permission from the communications ministry before they can send cables at press rates.

Pressure on news services to curb news of terrorism and guerrillas continued in 1964 from Venezuela's democratic but sometimes authoritarian government.

Peru, Mexico, Bolivia, and Argentina were among the many Latin-American countries which impose no censorship on outgoing dispatches.

In Cuba, Western correspondents noted a considerable easing of restrictions over 1964, notably a cut in the delay in placing phone calls and movement of cable copy.

Knowledge About Manpower Implications of Technological Change Is Said 'Inadequate'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada says the effects of technological advances on workers in a buoyant economy would be far less severe than in a period of sluggish economic growth.

Major advances in technology impose severe hardships on individuals when few alternate jobs are available, says the advisory council's first report to the government.

Such hardships could be minimized in a rapidly expanding economy with effective labor market policies and co-operative planning by management and labor.

Knowledge about the manpower implications of technological changes was "woefully inadequate." On one hand it creates new employment by bringing new processes and products into use, reducing costs and widening markets. On the other hand, old jobs and skills are less in demand.

"In general, an outstanding requirement for . . . technological change is to raise educational and skill requirements.

"Generally, new and expanding occupations and the very nearly indispensable ability to adapt to change itself require a higher platform of basic education than is necessary for routine manipulative and clerical tasks.

TWO TRENDS EVIDENT

There were two dominant trends in employment between 1946 and 1963, said the report. Employment in the goods-producing industries and construction increased by only 75,000 while employment in the services - producing industries increased by more than 1,000,000.

And within the goods-producing group, more than 500,000 jobs ceased to exist in primary industry, while employment increased by more than 600,000 in secondary industry.

There are however many areas in which industries increased employment under technological advancements, although not in proportion to output.

Manufacturing as a whole showed a 76-per-cent rise between 1946 and 1963 while employment rose 18 per cent. Motor vehicle production went up by 150 per cent with a 25-per-cent increase in employment.

Fuzzy Forecast Of the Future

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The world will be a buzzing hive throughout 1965 — and you'll have to watch your step to keep from being stung.

This is revealed in our annual unoppyrighted fuzzy forecast of the future.

The crystal ball is even more clouded than usual, but a peek into its mystic depths discloses that during the next 12 months these things probably will happen:

President Johnson will indignantly deny an accusation from Peking that the United States plans to solve its poverty problem by shooting all its poor people to the moon.

Former premier Nikita Khrushchev of the Soviet Union will solve the Soviet government's biggest unemployment problem by accepting a post as public relations adviser to President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Germany, which made less out of war than anybody, will continue to make more out of peace than anybody. Japan will announce plans to build the world's first all-plastic aircraft carrier.

CHANNEL SWIM

Nobody will swim the English channel in either direction during January, February or March. In June, however, an Egyptian swimming coach will collide in mid-channel with a girl factory worker from Manchester swimming west. They will marry in July—underwater.

A scandal will break out in marris cide Englande when one of Her Majesty's ministers is caught chasing at darts in a local pub. Calm will be restored after a televised appeal by Sir Winston Churchill for the nation to stand steady.

Don't look for much change in Viet Nam. The only noteworthy improvement will occur about the middle of the year when, after a bloodless revolt led by three students and an unshocked Buddhist, a new government will be installed headed by a fellow whose name can be pronounced in English.

Richard Burton will star in a multi-million dollar movie epic called Son of Cleopatra. Guess who'll play his mother!

A sensational new dance, immoral, a prominent psychiatrist will defend it on the grounds that it is a harmless way of getting rid of hidden aggressions.

But, all in all, 1965 will be a good time to be alive. Just lay off hands or feet. While in a good stock of aspirin.

House of Gallancz Looks, Hums Like Freight Shed

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Victor Gollancz is both the maverick and the father-figure of the British publishing community.

At 71 he sits like a plump patriarch in his unashamedly shabby office in the middle of Covent Garden market radiating irreverence, wisdom and anguished concern for the injustices of this world.

Most British publishing houses are models of cloistered elegance. The House of Gollancz looks and hums like a cluttered railway freight shed.

Most British publishers adhere to a strict Victorian tradition of aloofness and detachment from the turmoil of everyday life. Gollancz, never one to truckle to any Establishment, has involved himself vigorously with the mass of men.

As much an author and pamphleteer as a publisher, he has spent his working life chairing committees, getting up petitions and organizing rallies in the Albert Hall. He has always been a sucker for a just cause—big, small or lost.

Gollancz founded his own firm in 1928 and was an early pioneer of cheap paperback fiction. The paperback venture failed mainly because Gollancz was publishing young and little-known writers.

STRONG FOR SOCIALISM

But by the middle of the 1930s, says novelist Norman Collins, "it was something of a disgrace for a young writer not to have been published by Victor Gollancz."

In 1936 Gollancz founded his famed Left Book Club. At its peak the club had 60,000 members and the ugly brick-colored volumes helped to educate a generation of socialist thinkers.

In the 1950s he again became the springboard for the Angry Young Men of post-war literature by being the first to publish authors like Kingsley Amis and Colin Wilson.

The VG books in their bright yellow jackets lit up bookstalls and enlightened readers around the world. Gollancz publishes about 140 titles a year, ranging from Dorothy Sayers detective-thrillers to tomes like The Intelligent Man's Guide Through World Chaos.

Poetry, philosophy, fiction and biography have poured off the Gollancz presses but only after every manuscript has been scrutinized by the publisher himself.

Gollancz is the sort of man who would turn down a publishing fortune if he thought a book transgressed the kreed and principles — based on Judeo-Christian socialism and human charity — upon which he has tried to shape his life.

REJECTED LOLITA

"This publishing company wasn't founded to make money," he said during an interview. "If it had been I would be a far richer man than I am now."

One of the fortunes Gollancz turned down was the British rights to Lolita. He also rejected the Encyclopedia of Murder compiled by his protege Wilson because he couldn't reconcile the macabre thesis with his passionate opposition to the death penalty.

Authors of the "hang 'em and flog 'em" school are politely but quickly shown the door.

Why then does he continue to publish dozens of lucrative but turid detective novels? Gollancz grinned:

"I suppose I'm a businessman as well as an idealist. We may make a few mistakes but most of our thrillers are harmless entertainments. You couldn't call Dorothy Sayers brutal and sadistic—not like Ian Fleming."

Abolition of capital punishment is just one of the many causes Gollancz has picked up over the years and transformed into crusades. He has chaired committees for refugees from China, occupied Europe, Israel, the Gaza Strip and South Africa —everywhere there has been oppression during the last 30 years.

He has been a convinced pacifist since he first heard Hitler "I thought that such violence could only be opposed by its opposite," he once said. He sympathized with but didn't join the nuclear disarmament movement.

He has initiated campaigns to bring music to prisoners in British jails and to have Adolf Eichmann put on trial. "There must be atonement, pardon, a forgetting," he pleaded during Eichmann's trial.

He is more relieved than jubilant now that a bill to end the death penalty has been approved. Quoting a passage of Thackeray from one of his own anthologies, he said: "There has been enough blood shed."

The walls of Gollancz's office are a collage of newspaper clips interspersed by portraits of his children done by his wife Ruth. Books are piled irregularly everywhere. Puffing contentedly on a cigar and tipping the ash casually onto the threadbare carpet, he looked like a man prepared to retire from the fray. Not at all.

PLENTY OF CAUSES

"There are plenty of causes left. The big cause, the one that covers all the smaller ones, is to bring socialism to Britain—not just a Labor party govern-ment but a truly socialist government."

And as long as he lives Gollancz will continue to show concern for society's outcasts—even if they are criminals.

"I feel immensely sorry for the wicked of this world," he explained. "I think they are spiritually crippled and it's usually not their fault."

In 1963 the friends of Victor Gollancz—and they are legion—gave him a 70th birthday party in the Savoy Hotel. There were a host of tributes. Daphne du Maurier praised his humanity and Sir Compton Mackenzie his energy and vitality. But Norman Collins summed it up best:

"There has never been a publisher like Victor Gollancz before and there never will again."

LUNAR HAZARD

LONDON (AP) — Lightning may be a particular hazard for moon-landing astronauts and affect their instruments, suggests microscopist Brian J. Ford in Space Flight, the journal of the British Interplanetary Society. He has theorized that craters on the moon and earth are caused by colossal electrical discharges when the moon was formed—as some believe — by material wrenched from the earth, and static electricity remains a danger.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer, who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

CHANGES FOR 1964

This column is written to assist a taxpayer with income tax problems and if a particular problem is not covered in the articles, a personal reply will be made providing the instructions at the foot of the column are followed. These articles deal with personal income tax only.

Last year I received many inquiries as to Gift Tax, Estate Tax (Succession Duties), Corporation Tax, etc. Enquiries regarding these taxes should be made direct to the nearest office of the Department of National Revenue (Taxation Division) as my particular field is personal income tax.

There are a number of changes in the personal income tax field as applies to the year 1964. Some of those that apply to the working taxpayer are:

Pension Contributions, Dependent Brothers and Sisters, Dependent Children, Students and Tuition Fees, and Appeal Expenses. Each of these will be covered fully in following articles. The other subjects in this series will be selected from the enquiries I received in 1964. In many cases, if the taxpayer had read the instruction sheets that came with his return, he would have found the information that he wrote me about. I answer all letters that I receive and replies are mailed within 48 hours of the receipt of the letter, providing the necessary enclosures are received with the inquiry. If your newspaper requests a fee for each question, please send the required coin in the envelope. Fasten the coins to the bottom of your letter, below your signature with scotch tape. If my reply has not been received within two weeks, write again and mention your question, as your original may have been lost or delayed in the mails. This happened a couple of times last year, particularly in mail from Western Canada.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed and fire-cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

QUESTION 1: My daughter earned $355 during the summer holidays. No tax was deducted. Is it necessary for her to file a return?

ANSWER: No.

QUESTION 2: My son earned $700 in the summer holidays. There was $48 tax deducted. Does he have to file a return?

ANSWER: Yes. He is taxable but a return is necessary to obtain a refund of the tax deducted.

Philip's Globe Trotting Changes Royalty Image

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—For a man who walks two paces behind the Queen, Prince Philip covers some startling big strokes of territory.

Occasionally, Britons are heard to murmur about the globe - girdling habits of the handsome prince. They sometimes mention Philip as a dramatic example of how royalty, like practically everything else, has changed.

Queen Victoria, they feel sure, would not have been amused if Prince Albert had gone flitting around the world the way Prince Philip does—if that had been possible in Albert's day.

Victoria would likely have stopped up her royal embroidery at the thought of her shy consort dashing off alone to Australia or being ogled by Mexican senoritas.

Queen Elizabeth's own devotion to the modern Commonwealth indicates she approves of the travels her husband is called upon to make even though they take him away for long periods from the four royal children and herself.

Some British and European newspapers, however, question the wisdom of the royal travels, although they are not as outspoken in their criticism as the prince is to be when he is displeased.

The London Daily Express, once termed a "bloody awful newspaper" by Philip, commends that foreign Soviet premier Khrushchev "in his heyday" never travelled more than the prince.

Its sister newspaper, the Sunday Express, suggested a New Year resolution for the British government and the Royal Family:

"That a resolution to use this man, whose character and life have been shaped by public service, in the true and useful service of the country."

The Sunday newspaper, in its article by Colin Cross, says the prince is undoubtedly a success as a "roving ambassador" making friends for Britain but questions whether that is the work he ought to be doing. "We need a man of his talent and experience at home," it says.

"His children need him at home.

"The future success of the monarchy in Britain could well depend on his influence as a parent."

The newspaper makes no specific suggestions about Philip's role at home but notes that unlike Queen Victoria's husband he holds no rank as prince consort.

Prince Philip, 43, spent only 13 days in Britain in the 11 weeks before Christmas and it was something of a reunion when he joined the Queen for the Yuletide festivities at Windsor Castle with Charles, 16, Anne, 14, Andrew, 4, and Edward, nine months.

Then Philip took Prince Charles and Princess Anne on a New Year's skiing holiday to Liechtenstein while the Queen went with the two younger children to Sandringham, where all were reunited before Charles and Anne returned to school.

Besides October's visit to Canada by the Queen and Philip, the prince in 1964 travelled officially to Morocco, France, Belgium, West Germany, Mexico, The West Indies, Panama, Malta, Malawi and Holland. He also made private visits to Greece, Germany and Italy. The royal couple goes to Sudan and Ethiopia in February and then Philip flies alone to Australia for a week-long stay.

The Sun, new London newspaper, makes a spirited defence of Philip's travels in an article by Margaret Jones, who says 13 days in Britain in the 11 weeks before Christmas and it was something of a reunion when he joined the Queen for the Yuletide festivities at Windsor Castle with Charles, 16, Anne, 14, Andrew, 4, and Edward, nine months.

"In a world of growing bureaucracy, he cuts a dashing figure: flying his own plane from country to country and town to town, showing a healthy contempt for pomp and fuss and a lively curiosity in the places he visits."

have a monument built to him in a royal park where the Women's Institute can sit and eat their sandwiches?

"Stay deshbound at Buckingham Palace when he isn't walking two paces behind the Queen?

"Would the people who want to ground the roving prince really like to see him sharing (or would it then be interfering?) in affairs of state?"

Miss Jones says it is obvious he loves to travel and the commercial and political value of the journeys are "incalculable"—certainly far greater than the £40,000 ($120,000) he receives annually from the government.

"It is difficult to think of any job Prince Philip could do at home which would make better use of his particular talents and personality. . . .

"In a world of growing bureaucracy, he cuts a dashing figure: flying his own plane from country to country and town to town, showing a healthy contempt for pomp and fuss and a lively curiosity in the places he visits."

NCO's Trying To Find Mate For Charlie

GOOSE BAY, NFld. (CP)—Non-commissioned officers at this U.S. Air Force base in Labrador have turned matchmaker.

They're raising money to acquire a mate for Charlie, a rare tropical sunfish who resides over the inhabitants of a big squarium in the mess.

Charlie, who measures three inches seemed happy in his home. But someone decided he looked lonely and this led to a campaign to raise $1,800 to buy a female of the same species.

"No one has asked Charlie what he thinks about it," said one non-com, "but if he lives up to the tradition set by thousands of servicemen before him he won't back down."

The squarium is in a cocktail lounge in the mess called "Charlie's Hideaway" in honor of its most celebrated inhabitant.

When the lounge is in use, almost always someone has his nose pressed against the glass saying hello to Charlie. Sometimes the remains of a glass of liquor will be fed to him.

"Charlie has done more for morale than Brigitte Bardot and Jayne Mansfield together and we felt it was time we did something for him," an NCO said.

"If we do this thing right and get Charlie properly paired off, we might someday have a whole tankful of Charles," said another.

Cross-Canada Survey

Despite Hunting-Safety Measures Fatalities Were Up Slightly Over Last Year

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Despite widespread intensification of hunting-safety measures, fatalities among Canadian hunters crept upward in 1964 from the low figure for modern times of the year before.

A compilation by The Canadian Press in a Cross-Canada Survey shows 55 accidental shooting deaths among hunters, slightly over the 53 of 1963 though far under the recent record of 94 in 1960.

It was a spotty year around the country. Prince Edward Island had no deaths, for the second straight year, and Manitoba had only one, also for the second time in a row. But Saskatchewan and British Columbia each equalled their top marks of nine, and each had four more than 1963.

Quebec's death toll dropped by nine, Ontario, though it had the highest provincial total with 14, dropped one from 1963 and had less than half its 1960 figure of 36.

The totals by provinces, with 1963 figures in brackets:

Newfoundland, 1 (3); Nova Scotia, 5 (2); New Brunswick, 3 (2); Prince Edward Island, 0 (0); Quebec, 10 (19); Ontario, 14 (19); Manitoba, 1 (1); Saskatchewan, 9 (5); Alberta, 3 (); British Columbia, 9 (5).

FEW INNOVATIONS

There were no new departures in safety measures during the year, except that Nova Scotia adopted legislation making it mandatory for all hunters to carry basic survival gear in a waterproof container. Alberta put into effect the hunter training program now common in most of the provinces and qualified 185 instructors who trained more than 500 students.

Other provinces pushed ahead with existing programs. Quebec and Ontario, particularly, credited the safety training projects of the last several years with holding down their fatal shootings.

The bag of game varied from area to area but appeared generally satisfactory, though there were few statistics on kills. The Ontario lands and forests department reported a "banner" year for hunters, particularly bear and deer. The moose hunt was hampered by rain and snow. Bird hunting in the province was good, with duck bags reported up to excellent.

Quebec kept a count on moose and reported 7,435 killed—almost double the previous year's figure. There was an open season on females and young, to help balance the herds.

GOOD B.C. BAG

On the west coast, British Columbia's moose kill was indicated as up 10 per cent; deer up fractionally, and mountain sheep and goat, grizzly bear and caribou about the same as last year or slightly lower. The waterfowl season looked "fairly good," and the grouse kill apparently was edging upward after a cyclical decline.

In Alberta, there were no figures on big game hunting but the upland bird bag was slightly improved and the duck harvest was slightly down. There was an abundance of pheasants but hunting conditions were not good.

Wildlife officials in Saskatchewan report big-game hunting "generally successful" and the deer shoot excellent. It was the best year ever for pheasant and hungarian partridge, with pheasants described as "superb." The year also was one of the best for geese, though lack of water in sloughs cut down the duck-shooting areas.

In Manitoba, for the first time in some years a "bucks only" law for deer was in effect in the province's south, where most hunting is done. Officials said the season came up to expectations. Reports on the moose season from Nov. 27 to Dec. 31 said severe weather made shooting difficult and the kill was believed lower than usual. The upland bird season was only fair, and some of the duck migration bypassed the more popular areas and reduced the bag.

GOOD YEAR IN N.B.

Indications from deer and bird hunters in New Brunswick are that the season was as successful as the previous year. A six-day moose total was at least 200 and not all reports are in. The kill in a similarly brief 1963 season was 296. The open season on moose started in 1960 after a ban since 1937.

Nova Scotia's deer kill is expected to pass the 20,000 mark, compared with 19,000 a year earlier. It works out at about one for every two hunters.

Prince Edward Island, with no big-game hunting, reports continuance of a 10-year decline in non-resident and urban resident licences — the only kind needed — for upland gunning. Officials feel this likely indicates a drop-off in the population of partridge and pheasant, though kill statistics are not kept.

Newfoundland officials report an apparent decline in the number of hunters and slight fall-off in big-game kills. The island for the first time had an open season on moose—30 days in the Avalon Peninsula—and there were 50 kills. There were no estimate on bird bags.

Tyranny, Bloodshed, Injustice Mark History of Newfoundland

By ED WALTERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—It was 123 years ago that Newfoundland's first parliament assembled in a meeting which marked the end of more than three centuries of oppression, bloodshed and unparalleled injustice.

Sir Thomas Cochrane, a British admiral who was appointed governor in 1838, convened the parliament Jan. 1, 1833.

It was a good New Year's present for the people of Newfoundland. Existence of representative government meant that no longer would they have to fear a resurgence of laws against settlement that had their origins in 1620 and which were still being enforced up to the early 1800s.

Settlement had been encouraged in the rest of British North America. What now are the Maritime provinces had long been prosperous and the wilds of Canada were being tamed.

Settlers elsewhere had enjoyed protection of British law. In Newfoundland, the settler had been looked upon as little more than an outlaw.

Newfoundland had yet a long way to go. The colony joined Confederation in 1949 and only now is starting to catch up with the rest of Canada in development.

A combination of corruption, indifferent royalty and the jealousy of fishing merchants in the West of England thwarted development of the island from the early 17th century.

Following its discovery in 1497 by John Cabot, or perhaps even earlier by fishing ships from Bristol, England, as increasing hordes of fishermen came yearly to harvest the great cod-filled offshore banks and the more sheltered inshore coastal waters. They came from England, France, Spain, Portugal and Flanders.

The English were masters by right of discovery, force and the official claim by Sir Humphrey Gilbert who took possession of the island for Queen Elizabeth in 1583. The Britons were from the West of England —Devon, Somerset, Cornwall— and some from Wales. They claimed Newfoundland as their own.

They didn't want to see settlers taking over the harbors and coves they used each summer and the fishing ship owners kept up a steady stream of petitions and bribes in efforts to have laws enacted that would forbid settlement.

But already people were staying on the island instead of returning with the fishing fleet in the autumn. As early as 1528 John Rute built a permanent residence in St. John's. Those who stayed all winter wanted their families with them, so women found their way over, bringing domesticity to a land that was by turns beautiful and harsh.

Although the life was hard the land was free. A man could hunt all winter without fear of arrest for poaching. Children were born who knew no other home, and to them the land was theirs. By the late 1600s there were about 1,800 permanent settlers, or planters as they were called, of whom 180 were children.

In 1630 an English judicial body known as the Star Chamber made legal the practice of allowing "fishing admirals" to govern harbors.

This was already an ancient custom whereby the captains fishing out of one harbor elected a different one of their number each week to be chief. The new rule said the first captain to arrive would have charge for the season.

Of all the evils that tormented the fishing admirals, which Newfoundland, probably the rule lasted until 1784, was the worst. They were frequently ignorant bullies and by law they held the power of life and death. They had no sympathy for the settlers.

The Star Chamber in 1637 passed another law which forbade settlers to live closer than six miles from the shore. As their livelihood came from fishing, this rule almost succeeded in depopulating the island.

Newfoundland, composed mostly of precambrian and cambrian rock, is little suited for extensive farming. So the planters who stayed mostly moved to little-known coves to escape the harsh law. Some wisely settled on "straight shores" where there was no shelter for the hated fishing ships.

Musgrave Harbor on Newfoundland's northeast coast is an example. Even today the coastal ships must wait for calm weather to anchor off shore to unload supplies.

There were some official attempts to start colonies. John Guy's Sea Forest Plantation at Cupe in 1610 was the first. Guy stayed for two years, then left the colony in charge of his brother-in-law who left the following year. Both were disheartened by the antagonism of the fishermen and private raids.

Later attempts were made by Sir William Vaughan, Lord Falkland and Lord Baltimore. These men were visionaries and their settlers were mostly young titled gentlemen who were unwilling to buckle down to the demanding life.

The real stock of Newfoundlanders was being built up by the men who deserted ships and hid until the fleet sailed. They somehow found wives, and carved homes out of raw wilderness.

When Oliver Cromwell overthrew the monarchy in England he made the first sensible attempt to help Newfoundland. He sent out 14 commissioners in 1653 under John Treworgie, the first real governor of the island. Settlement was encouraged, planters were protected, farming, shipbuilding and the fishery flourished.

The restoration of the monarchy seven years later undid all the good. The old laws were brought back into force and the fishermen took bloody revenge on the settlers.

The French captured St. John's in 1696 and after they were routed the senior naval officer on the coast gradually began to blead the power of the fishing admirals.

A turning-point came in 1711 when the leading citizens in St. John's tried to form a parliament, but their efforts fell through two years later.

Capt. Henry Osborne was appointed governor in 1729 after numerous petitions from the settlers. He was the first since Treworgie.

The fishing admirals were forced to give up the last vestiges of their power in 1736 when Britain's navigation laws were extended to Newfoundland and a collector of customs appointed.

The laws against settlement remained however, and successive governors were obliged to see that they were carried out. Vice-Admiral Sir James Gambier, governor in 1808, was moved to outright pity by the plight of the settlers. He deliberately disobeyed the law and granted to private ownership 80 acres of land in St. John's.

This marked the dawn of a new era for Newfoundland. The English merchants saw that settlement might be a good thing after all, because it would save them the expense of bringing fishermen out every spring.

The laws that hindered settlement and development were gradually repealed and Governor Cochrane in 1833 arranged for the first representative government to be elected.

University Is Potential Breeding Ground for Alcoholics Says Student

By JIM NEAVES

WINNIPEG (CP) — University may be the key to higher education but it may also open a door of another kind —one leading to alcoholism.

Bob C., 23, in his second year at the University of Manitoba, has had ample opportunity to study drinking on campus.

"University is a potential breeding ground for alcoholics," he says. "If a young person had had experience with liquor in high school but has not started to drink heavily, there's a pretty good chance the bottle will get him in university."

Bob's own drinking problem reached its peak during the interval between graduation from high school and starting university. After two unsuccessful attempts to start his studies, however, he has managed to stay clear of liquor for two years with the help of Alcoholics Anonymous.

He says he and most of his friends started to drink in high school — "most kids in high school think a non-drinker is a square."

"I didn't know it then but, I was on the road to a real problem. I was shy, even scared of people, and drinking helped give me enough courage to attend dances."

SUFFERED BLACKOUTS

At 18 he entered university for the first time and lasted 11 weeks before he quit. In the period before the next term he worked at several laboring and clerking jobs as his drinking increased.

"It was at this time that I began to drink heavily on weekends with my friends. I never reached the state of drinking alone. But I did start to get blackouts, became violent and anti-social during my drinking bouts."

Making another try, Bob, then 19, entered university for the second time. This was less successful than the first and he was out after seven weeks.

Still drinking, he worked for three months before enrolling for an architectural draughting course at a technical institute.

"No one knew for two weeks, but after the second day I didn't attend classes; I just hung around downtown."

Bob, who was four when his father was killed in an air crash a month after the Second World War ended, was raised by his mother, who worked part time.

"I don't know whether she realized I had a drinking problem. I know I didn't. But she persuaded me to see a psychiatrist. He suggested I take shock treatments because he felt I had a nervous condition. But I got scared when I saw the treatment machine and left the hospital where I was supposed to be treated."

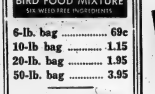
LIVED WITH UNCLE

After learning Bob had left technical school, the psychiatrist suggested he go live with an uncle in the country.

"He thought my father's upbringing had some effect on my feeling of inferiority. But after one month with my uncle I returned to the city—accompanied by my drinking problem."

It was at this point, Bob says, that he became "lucky," agreeing to attend meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous at the psychiatrist's suggestion.

Since then he has managed to stay away from the bottle. During summer vacation he worked as a railway sleeping car-porter and says the contact with people helped give him confidence. He now talks easily to strangers.



He says he realizes that one drink would probably lead to the failure of his third attempt at getting a university education. And while trying to lick his own problem, he feels his own experience may help others.

High school students with a feeling of inferiority or shyness, instead of drinking to bolster their courage as he did, should attend open meetings of A.A.

"They will find most people at the meeting will tell of similar problems and of the futility of trying to solve them through a bottle."

Turkey Is First To Reject NATO Nuclear Fleet

Washington Notified Of Decision by Ankara

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey has pulled out of the pro-knocking another pin out from under the already wobbly project.

The notification was given Washington Wednesday, but officials professed to be unsurprised. The state department has been aware of Turkey's lack of enthusiasm for about two months.

Turkey borders the Soviet Union, and officials speculated that Moscow's stiff opposition to MLF might have had something to do with the decision.

America's pet scheme already has picked up more than its share of thorns. France attacked MLF violently last month. Britain's new Labor government has been working on alternative plans. Other allies are cool. In fact, only West Germany among the major Western powers sees MLF in the same shining light that Washington does.

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW

Turkey's desertion is the first, however, and officials consider it a heavy psychological blow. Others, it is feared, might follow Ankara's lead.

MLF is a proposal for a separate force of surface ships, equipped with nuclear - tipped polaris missiles and manned by a mixed crew of allied sailors. In this, way America's allies would share in a nuclear force and yet proliferation of nuclear weapons would be avoided.

U.S. policy-makers figure that major countries — West Germany is prominent in their thinking—would build an independent nuclear force of their own if they failed to share in atomic control.

Turkey was one of eight allies given the green light by political, military, technical, and financial possibilities of the ambitious plan to launch 25 fleet of 25 vessels equipped with 200 Polaris missiles. An 11 - man Turkish contingent is on the Ricketts, an "American development operation experimentally with a seven-nation crew. U.S. officials expect the Turks to be pulled off.

CONVICTED OF FRAUD

HAMILTON (CP) — Charles Edward Cadotte, 38, of Hamilton, who operated a $2,200 advertising by saying he was starting a Masonic newspaper, was convicted of fraud Wednesday. Assistant Crown Attorney David A. Robinson said similar charges from Ottawa, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and five other Ontario communities are pending against Cadotte.

Two Dead, 5 Missing In Slide

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two persons are dead and five more feared lost today in homes smashed by a rending slide at rain-drenched Ocean Falls, a coastal pulp mill town 300 miles northwest of Vancouver.

More slides were feared as torrents of water, fed by fast-melting snow and days of driving rain, cascaded down mountains on three sides of the community.

Several duplex homes on the south side of the town crumbled as their foundations gave way.

Just five days earlier, four persons were killed 110 miles east of Vancouver when millions of tons of snow and rock fell across the southern transprovincial highway.

Detailed reports from Ocean Falls were impossible.

Telephones were disrupted at 30 p.m. Wednesday and a ham radio operator, identified as a Mr. Hess, gave the first information from the town to ham operator Einar Carlson at Prince Rupert, 150 miles north of Ocean Falls.

RECOVER BODIES

He said two bodies had been recovered, five were missing and five persons were taken to hospital.

The community of 3,000, which lies at the head of an inlet off Dean Channel, gets an average 176 inches of rain a year. It had several feet of snow in December, now running off under warm temperatures and torrential rains.

A weather station 50 miles away, has had almost eight inches in the last week.

RCMP at Prince Rupert said a rescue team withdrew early today from the slide area because of the danger of new slides.

MOVE INTO MILL

Several families were evacuated and moved into the Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited mill, which suspended its rounds the clock operations shortly after midnight.

"Everything is under control at the moment," an RCMP spokesman at Prince Rupert said early today.

Multi-unit company homes in the slide area lie on streets cut into a steep mountainside. The streets parallel the south shore of the inlet. Across the inlet lies the mill, virtually the sole source of employment for the town.

CHIANG'S SON PROMOTED

TAIPEI (Reuters) — Gen. Chiang Ching - kuo, 54 - year-old Russian - educated son of President Chiang Kai-shek, was appointed defence minister of Nationalist China Wednesday in a move observers said rocketed him to power with probably unprecedented swiftness. The vigorous Chiang, who has a Russian wife, has often been described as the most feared man" on Formosa.

Canada's Share Declines

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's share of world trade is declining, and since 1953 she has needed a steadily-rising amount of exports to pay for a given volume of imports.

Bulk of her exports are still resource materials when the big boom in world trade has been in manufactured goods.

Lion's share of Canadian exports still is going to the United States and Britain which, compared with other industrial nations, have grown relatively slowly. Even there, Canada has lost ground to other exporters.

These disquieting facts emerge from the report of the Economic Council of Canada.

REMOVE LUSTRE

They remove some of the lustre from Canada's 1964 trade performance. Exports last year rose by more than $1,000,000,000, the biggest year-to-year gain in history.

The council wrote this prescription:

"A complete shift in emphasis" is needed in Canada's commercial policy, as enunciated by the government, said the council.

The aim should be to win better access to foreign markets for Canadian manufactured products and highly-processed raw materials, instead of concentrating as in the past on tariff breaks for raw materials.

Elsewhere in its report the council noted that manufacturing will have to supply most of the 1,500,000 jobs needed in Canada in 1964-70.

(Recent government measures have protected this already to the policy line, in general, for Canada's part in the Kennedy round of negotiations in Geneva).

Also recruited, said the council, are "effective policies and efforts designed to improve the competitiveness of the economy, particularly in the areas of more highly processed and manufactured exports.

"Consequently, increased emphasis must be given, as a matter of high priority, to industrial rationalization and specialization.

"This will involve greater technical efficiency and higher productivity in manufacturing, and particular attention to methods of achieving, in Canada, the later stages of processing of raw materials.

"Further, Canadian prices and costs must be kept in line, at any given exchange rate, with world prices and costs for goods entering international trade."

The council also said the "private institutional and psychological barriers" to higher exports of manufactured goods must be reduced.

Steps recommended in that direction:

—Broader development within Canadian industry of modern and aggressive marketing techniques.

—Adequate, competitive, export-financing facilities.

—Removal of arbitrary re-

Could Ontario Become First In N. A. With Ombudsman?

OTTAWA (CP) — Could Ontario become the first place in North America to have an ombudsman?

Professor Donald C. Rowat of Carleton University hopes so and urged the suggestion Wednesday on the Ontario royal commission on human rights under Commissioner James Mc Ruer.

Mr. Rowat said an ombudsman for Ontario would not be a cure-all in the human rights field. But he would be a catch-all, an available avenue of appeal open to any citizen who had exhausted other channels.

Proliferation of government boards, agencies and commissions makes it difficult for governments to keep individual rights in mind, he said.

Opposition legislature members have a check on government through questions, the professor said. But they find themselves unable to keep up with decisions in all fields of government activity.

Another factor was the ingrained tradition of secrecy in the parliamentary system, apparently a holdover from the days when the Crown could do no wrong. The idea was "to reveal only what is expedient."

One of Mr. Rowat's sugges-

British Aviation Future Buffeted by Many Storms

LONDON (CP)—The British government is being buffeted on all sides in the current storm over the future of the nation's aviation industry.

Both sides of industry are lobbying and organizing mass protest meetings against the threatened scrapping of the TSR-2 strike and reconnaissance warplane.

Some 10,000 aircraft workers plan a protest march on Hyde Park today and Prime Minister Harold Wilson meets the chief of Britain's two largest plane-making firms today (Friday).

At stake is a project conservatively estimated to cost 1,000,000,000 ($3,000,000,000) over the next five years. Also involved is reports of cancellation or curtailment are the P-1154 vertical take-off fighter and the HS-681 transport plane, designed to service the TSR-2.

Wilson as yet has made no announcement concerning any of these planes, his decision, when it comes, could either cripple the government-subsidized aircraft industry or keep it operational for the time being.

He cannot afford to allow 250,000 skilled and ingenious engineers to squander their energies on projects which were dismis-conceived in the first place or which are already out of date," says the Manchester Guardian in an editorial suggesting the TSR-2 and its "supply train"—the HS-681—should be ditched.

But the right-wing Conservative newspaper, The Daily Telegraph, takes the view that cancellation will lead to British firms coming a satellite of the United States:

"It is not merely a matter of the TSR-2 and of the other aircraft whose future is still in doubt. What is at stake is no less than the whole future status of our country."

PCs From Quebec To Meet

MONTREAL (CP) — Conservative members of Parliament from Quebec province gathered here today to discuss their strained relations with their party, and to decide whether they should leave it to sit as independents in the Commons.

The private meeting of the 10 Quebec Conservatives was scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m., but was delayed by last-minute efforts to effect a reconciliation.

The meeting was called by Quebec leader Leon Balcer, 47-year-old former transport minister and MP for Trois - Rivieres, and Conservative Party House Leader John Diefenbaker for months, he announced 3½ weeks ago that he was seriously considering a clean break with the party.

Since then he and other Quebec Conservative MPs have been canvassing the opinion of their constituents as to whether they should remain in the party.

CAMP ARRIVES

Rene Camp, national president of the Conservative party made an unexpected trip here from Halifax to meet with Mr. Balcer before the Quebec caucus started.

He was conferring with Mr. Balcer in one room of the Windsor Hotel while other Quebec members waited in another room for the caucus to start. Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Temiscamingue) also will be believed to be attending the meeting with Mr. Camp.

Ezan Chambers, Mr. Camp's predecessor as national president of the Conservative party and a former MP for Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, was also reported to be participating in the reconciliation talks.

There was no indication of what Mr. Camp planned to outline to Mr. Balcer in an effort to prevent a split in the party. There were unconfirmed reports that Mr. Balcer planned to demand that a national leadership convention be held this year. If this request was not met, he and some of his colleagues were reported ready to go ahead with plans to quit the party.

TO TELL TODAY

Following the meeting here Mr. Balcer planned to go to Ottawa to announce the results at a 4 p.m. press conference.

Awaiting Mr. Balcer and Mr. Martineau in the caucus were Messrs. Remi Paul (Berthier - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere), Gilles Grondin (Lasalle), Theogene Ricard (St. Hyacinthe-Bagot), Howard Graffety (Brome-Missisquoi), Joseph Pigeon (Joliette - L'Assomption - Montcalm), Georges Valade (Montreal Ste. Marie), Clement Vincent (Nicolet - Yamaska) and Gerard Ouellet (Rimouski).

Mr. Martineau and Mr. Ricard visited Diefenbaker cabinet letters, the former having been mines minister and the latter minister without portfolio in the final months of the Diefenbaker administration.

Mr. Girouard and Mr. Ouel-

Suspected Dope Smuggler Aided Liberal Machine

'All Kinds of People' Needed at Voting Time

MONTREAL (CP)—Eddy Lechasseur, 33-year-old friend of suspected narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard, testified today that Rivard sent him to see Raymond Rouleau partly because Mr. Rouleau's brother was a Liberal member of Parliament.

But, Lechasseur told the Dorion inquiry, neither Raymond Rouleau nor his brother, Guy Rouleau, then parliamentary secretary to the Prime Minister Pearson, had been able to do anything much to get Rivard released on bail.

Lechasseur said Rivard wants to get out of Bordeaux Jail in Montreal because he is on the point of losing his case. Ideale resort and prefers to be free to close the sale.

The witness said Rivard had rendered services to politicians and it was therefore "perfectly normal" that he should ask a long-time friend Raymond Rouleau for any help possible.

Le Chasseur said Raymond Rouleau told him that Rivard had faced a serious charge and that he did not think his brother Guy could do much.

QUOTES ROULEAU

He quoted Raymond Rouleau as saying that Guy Rouleau had stated that he did not see how he could do anything in Ottawa.

Lechasseur said Raymond Rouleau would ask for Rivard's services at election time.

Commission counsel Andre Desjardins asked what type of services Rivard rendered to Raymond Rouleau.

Lechasseur said Rivard had a number of employees at his resort and that Rivard "knows all kinds of work to be done and you need all kinds of people," at election time.

"There are politicians here and you would ask them to tell you," Lechasseur told Mr. Desjardins.

He said he and Mrs. Rivard went to see Raymond Rouleau to find out whether he could do something for Rivard.

Rivard had good reasons to approach Mr. Rouleau. They had been good friends for some time.

Mrs. Rivard had told him that Raymond Rouleau had a brother in Ottawa who might perhaps be able to help Rivard.

BROTHER AN MP

One of the considerations of seeing Raymond Rouleau was that his brother was an MP.

Raymond Rouleau hadn't undertaken to do anything definite but had said he would do something if he could.

Lechasseur said he kept calling Raymond Rouleau after words to see whether there were any developments.

He said Raymond Rouleau told him that his brother was here, there and everywhere and

British Isles Hit By Storm

From AP-Reuters

LONDON (CP) — Gales and snow buffeted the British Isles Wednesday night. Two Greek ships were in trouble in heavy seas.

The 1,463-ton Elli radioed she had lost a man overboard south of Ireland and that shifting deck cargo and bad weather made it impossible for her to turn back and search for him.

The 7,185 - ton cargo vessel Plate Explorer warned other ships in the English Channel to steer clear of her. She reported her steering gear was broken and she could only proceed in an easterly direction.

Winds at Manchester airport reached 65 knots, grounding all flights there.

Blizzards struck Scotland and northern England and drifting snow blocked all but one road route between the two countries.

In western England, flood warnings went out as prolonged rain swelled rivers.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland, a church collapsed Wednesday night at the height of the city's worst storm for several years. Only the spire was left standing.

Viet Cong Forces Have Gained Numerical Superiority

SAIGON (AP)—At an obscure village near the Binh Gia hill bodies of South Viet Nam's best-trained, best-equipped and best-seasoned combat troops lay in the brush and rubble.

In the last six days of 1964 they had faced the most powerful Communist onslaught mounted to date in the war in South Viet Nam.

The casualties of these bodies being removed on ox carts and litters was a fitting symbol of the decline in military fortunes for the government and the United States.

As 1965 began, there no longer was much question in the minds of any Vietnamese or U.S. officials here that the war was being lost.

The remaining uncertainties were how fast the war was being lost, and whether there still was a reasonable chance of reversing the trend.

The Vietnamese war always has been a hard thing to measure, because it is not a war for territory but for people and supplies. Some parts of Viet Nam are more or less controlled by the Saigon government, others are more or less controlled by the Viet Cong shadow government, and a third category is controlled by neither side.

These patterns of control, never known with any real certainty, change from day to day and even from hour to hour. It all depends on who has the strongest forces at any given point and time.

Increasingly, the advantage of numerical superiority is with the Viet Cong. The Viet Cong moves secretly to its intended battles in groups of twos and threes, joins at the moment of fighting, and then dissolves again into little groups. Government troops move mostly along roads in large convoys with tanks and artillery and overhead planes and helicopters.

Viet Cong military strength has grown dramatically and steadily during the last three years, despite its increasingly bloody losses. Most of this strength has been the result of recruiting in South Viet Nam.

U.S. intelligence experts estimated three years ago that main force Viet Cong troops numbered about 18,000. By last July, this estimate had climbed to between 28,000 and 34,000 main force troops with 80,000 regional guerrillas. Now the total armed strength of the Viet Cong is thought to be about 150,000 or even higher.

Furthermore, these troops are far better armed and trained now. In 1964, the Viet Cong captured about 13,700 weapons from government forces, losing only 4,900 of their own. Captured weapons were supplemented by arms smuggled from North Vietnamist bloc into South Viet Nam.

All this has happened despite official Vietnamese and American estimates that 59,000 Viet Cong were killed between 1962 and 1964. Nonetheless, the Viet Cong keeps getting stronger.

On paper, South Viet Nam has about 615,000 men under arms, counting the various para-military forces and the police. In fact the government units supposed to spearhead major actions against the Viet Cong—the rangers, the airborne brigade and the marines—all are below strength. Some of their battalions have been bled placements, and actually have while by casualties and desertas little as a third of their authorized strength.

The draft has been stepped up sharply, but draft dodging is still a major occupation of many youths.

The war has gone on for three years against a sapping rate of military rivalries, coups, purges, incessant changes in command at every level, and the absence of any central driving force at the riceroots level.

During the heat of the Binh Gia fighting, virtually all South Viet Nam's general staff was 20 miles away at the seaside resort of Cap St. Jacques, talking politics.

There is a feeling on all sides here that time is running out on the Viet Nam war.

A "joy ride" through the countryside during the early hours of Wednesday morning ended in a rest in Picton County jail for 19-year-old Brian W. Irvine, of R.R. 1, Carrying Place.

It all started about 1.00 a.m. on Wednesday morning when it is alleged Irvine and two friends stole truck from the Beaver Lumber yard in Trenton. According to police the youth drove to Consecon where he struck four parked cars. He then proceeded two miles down the second concession of Ameliasburg township, where he hit a parked truck and then proceeded to a farm owned by Ernest Young.

The youth is reported to have stolen a half-ton truck from the Young farm and drove it to Belleville where he abandoned it at No. 2 Fire Hall in Belleville he exchanged it for a rancheroo type vehicle owned by fireman Ronald Hiles.

He then proceeded back to Trenton via Highway 401 and hid the Hiles vehicle behind a building owned by Mrs. Harvey Brown about 1½ miles east of Highway 33.

Here he abandoned the vehicle and walked to his home about a quarter of a mile away, where he was picked up last night by Ontario Provincial Police from Picton.

Altogether there are three stolen trucks involved and five damaged vehicles, amounting to about $1,500 damage.

Irvine has been charged with three counts of theft and driving while under suspension, and five charges of failure to remain at the scene of an accident.

He will appear in county magistrate's court in Picton next Wednesday.

Grouse Hunting Should Improve

TWEED — The past partridge (grouse) season was slightly better than the previous year, but still far from being good. However, by the number of birds seen lately budding in the thickets, indications are that there has been good survival. If conditions remain right, there should be an increase next year.

The cold wet spring was a mixture of good, bad and indifferent. Some members were either dry or drinking little water. Shooting in beaver ponds was most productive and the Conroy Marsh held lots of ducks until the freeze-up after the deer season.

Migrating Canada Geese remained longer in this area than usual. Hunters reported good success in the stubble fields in the southern portion of the district.

let bolted to the Conservatives from the Social Credit party early last year.

Mr. Graffrey, only English-speaking member of the Quebec delegation, said he felt that Opposition Leader Diefenbaker he has no thought of leaving the party.

Before meeting here, there were reports that if Mr. Balcer left, Mr. Diefenbaker also has said he plans to remain in the party, would become Quebec chief.

Sunday night Mr. Paul, criticizing party policy, party leader and program, said he and three other Quebecers might decide to sit as independents. He also named the others as Mr. Balcer, Mr. Martineau and Mr. Bernard.

Monday night Michael Starr (Ontario), chairman of the party's national labor committee, criticized the statement made by the former labor minister, Mr. Paul. He said in a Toronto speech that the statements harmed the party.

Right up to the eve of the Montreal meeting, Mr. Balcer declined to comment on whether he would bolt the party for which he was a cabinet minister throughout the six years of the Diefenbaker government and before that president of the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Balcer was chosen Quebec lieutenant to Mr. Diefenbaker at the party's annual meeting in Ottawa early last year. During the 1964 parliamentary session they were seatmates in the 265-seat Commons, where the Conservatives have 96 members to 129 for the Liberals, 18 New Democrats, 13 Creditistes and a lone Social Credit.

Relations between the two were strained from the beginning, as Mr. Balcer increasingly opposed the opposition leader's policy on federal-provincial relations and his pro-red ensign stand during the flag debate.

It was Mr. Balcer who invited Prime Minister Pearson to impose closure to halt the protracted flag debate.

'All Number' Phone Book Off Press

The first "All number" telephone book for this district is off the press and on its way to some 44,100 area customers.

Since last issue in the spring, all telephone numbers have been converted to all number calling, the new numbering system where the letters are replaced by the corresponding figure on the dial—hence the all number phone book.

Featured on the front cover is a well-known historical site in Prince Edward County, the White Chapel, oldest Church in the area. The illustration was commissioned from Canadian artist Albert Cloutier, A.R.C.A.

Don Curry, local Bell Telephone manager reminded customers to check personal lists of numbers against the new directory for changed listings and emphasized the importance of marking emergency numbers in the front of the book.

Again the introductory pages contain handy tips on telephone usage.

Effective January 20th, the new book covers Bancroft, Belleville, Bicroft, Bloomfield Brighton, Coe Hill, Frankford, Gilmour, Madoc, Maynoora, Maynooth, Picton, Stirling, Thurlow, Trenton, Tweed, Wellington and Wooler.

Dr. Z. S. Phimister Named Deputy Education Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Zachary S. Phimister, 60, completed the climb from the bottom rung of the ladder Wednesday.

In 1934, he was a public school teacher at Toronto's Williamson Road School.

Wednesday he was named by Education Minister William Davis as top non-elected official in the department for the province—deputy minister.

Along the way he collected four university degrees, taught high school, was a public school inspector, superintendent of public schools for Toronto and, finally, director of education for the city. He served for about four years in the Canadian Army during the Second World War, rising to the rank of major.

He came out of the Northern Ontario community of Schreiber, whose population even today is barely 2,000. Schreiber is 126 miles by road east of Port Arthur. When Mr. Phimister was born there it was no road, just the Canadian Pacific Railway.

TAKES PAY CUT

When Mr. Phimister takes administrative control of the department of education March 1, he will command a salary of $25,000 a year. That will be a considerable cut from the year from what he would have received as director of education in Toronto when a new pay raise came into effect.

He brings to the department a reputation for hard dealing and toughness gained after several scraps in Toronto with traditionalists and people he considered were interfering with academic processes under his control.

Mr. Davis was asked why he chose someone from outside the department - considered an unprecedented move—to fill the newly created post of deputy minister. He summed up his reasons simply:

"We wanted the best person for the task and feel that Dr. Phimister is that man."

The new deputy minister has a doctorate in the field of education. This title he gained after attending Queen's University, the University of Toronto, the University of London, England, and Columbia University in New York.

HAD TWO DEPUTIES

Formerly, there were two deputy ministers in the department, along with one chief director. The present chief director, J. S. Brown, will remain with the department in an advisory capacity.

H. E. Elborn and W. R. Stewart, current deputy ministers, will become assistant deputy ministers under Mr. Phimister.

Mr. Phimister has also gained a reputation as an innovator in his years in Toronto. Under his urging senior public schools were started in the city, an education centre was opened and schools with radical architecture, such as the city's Frank School, were built.

During 1960 he delivered a series of public addresses calling for a "new dimension" in education. Automation and the dwindling demand for unskilled and semi-skilled workers would demand this, he said. In addition, he said, education must teach "creative leisure."

WANTS EQUALITY

He has said many times he believes in equality of opportunity for education, whether for city or country dwellers, children or adults.

His reputation as a believer in Liberal education will probably stand him in good stead.

Mr. Davis at 36 is the province's youngest minister. And he has brought with him a concept of quick change and realignment within his department.

Two of Mr. Davis' ideas considered revolutionary by more conservative men include integration of elementary and secondary school systems and the introduction of community colleges in the province. The new deputy minister will have the responsibility of both instituting and carrying through on these policies.

Ski Reports

TORONTO (CP) — Excellent ski conditions were reported today from both northern and southern Ontario points as colder weather improved the province's general picture.

Excellent conditions were reported from Dryden, Espanola, Kirkland Lake, Cobalt, Sault Ste. Marie, Muskoka, Sutteridge, Collingwood, Owen Sound, London and Napanee.

Good skiing was reported at the Lakehead. Onaping-Levack, Timmins, Limberlost, Coboconk, Maple, Milton and Ottawa, with fair conditions at Barrie-Craigharst, Devil's Glen, Kimberley and Don Valley.

Inquiry Hears Of Many Phone Calls

By DAVE McINTOSH

MONTRE L (CP) — Testimony in the Dorion inquiry indicates that most of the principals involved had telephones better than those at North American Air Defence Command.

Accounts of various telephone calls, long or short, menacing or mysterious, stream through the more than 1,500 pages of testimony like a flood tide.

Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, who has testified that he was offered a $20,000 bribe to agree to the release on bail of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard, has said he was put under pressure by telephone.

He has said that he received threatening and blackmailing calls even while he was on holidays last July at Chicoutimi, Que.

The RCMP monitored an Aug. 20 call between Mr. Lamontagne and Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Pelletier. They prepared to monitor another between Mr. Lamontagne and Montreal Liberal MP Guy Rouleau but Mr. Rouleau didn't call at the appointed time.

COUNSEL CALLS

Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins is still trying to pin down who made the calls to Mr. Lamontagne at Chicoutimi.

Wednesday he even questioned Mr. Lechasseur, 29-year-old friend of Rivard, about the location of telephones in the rest rooms at Maxime's Bar here.

Lechasseur testified about a call he made from Maxime's to Raymond Daoust, lawyer for Rivard. Mr. Desjardins pursued relentlessly.

Lechasseur said he had stayed all night with one Linda Dumont but he didn't remember whether he had made or received telephone calls at her residence.

At another point, Lechasseur said Mrs. Rivard was calling Mr. Daoust "10 times a day" about bail for her husband, but the lawyer rarely answered her calls.

ISN'T CLEARED UP

Still not cleared up is the matter of a telephone call which Mr. Daoust said he made to one Guy Masson at Hull, Que.

In the same cageiory is a call said to have been made to the murder suspect Robert Gignac's office to the Commons office of Mr. Denis. There has been no testimony—as yet—as to who made the call or who received it.

Then there is the matter of a call said to have been made by Masson from a Hull motel which summoned a "Mr. Burry" to the motel where Gignac was drinking beer.

Later, back in Montreal, Gignac complained to Masson, a sometime employee and partner of his, about a reputed $412 telephone bill for one month.

Who was "Bob" or "Gingras" who, Mr. Lamontagne said, called him in Chicoutimi with a threat about things Mrs. Lamontagne wouldn't want to hear?

Mr. Daoust has said that even with telephone, at his restaurant table during lunch, he had to make 20 or 25 calls every evening from his office to keep abreast of things.

Assessment Of Town Now $16,179,190

Trenton — Trenton's total assessment for 1964 broke all previous town records, according to a report released on Wednesday by assessment commissioner J. Allan Smith.

The 1964 figure was $16,179,190—an increase of $400,620 over the 1963 total.

The increase is due mainly to the construction of new buildings, said Mr. Smith.

The figures will form the basis for 1965 town taxes. Trenton's population now is at 14,115, as compared with 13,823 last year.

The Handguns

The following scores were shot at the regular weekly pistol course held in the armouries. Frank Allin was top man, scoring 268, followed by Cliff Smith 250; Don Parks 222; Harry Hodgkisson 215; E. McMurray 227 and Stew Kerr 180. 22 marksmen took part in the event.

Board Refuses To Interfere With Contract

TRENTON — The question of conflict of interest was brought out at last night's inquiry into the hiring of the Trenton Board of Education, concerning the awarding of a subcontract for electrical work on a proposed new public school in east Trenton. Miron-Wiggers, the overall contractor for the work has awarded the sub-contract to the Quinte Electric Company, and the head of this firm is E. D. (Del) Topping, a board member.

At last night's meeting of the board, a letter from Donald Sutherland, defeated in a bid for a seat on the board in the December elections, was read. Mr. Sutherland questioned the "moral" ethics of a board member being awarded a contract when the board itself said that he had obtained a lawyer's opinion on the matter and that in his opinion, and in that of the lawyer, it was proper.

However, the board had also obtained an opinion from Trenton solicitor Mr. G. T. Fetzer, which said in effect, that since Miron-Wiggers had employed Mr. Topping's firm, the board had no responsibility in the matter and that the hiring of Mr. Topper's firm could not be construed "conflict of interests."

Cigarette Consumption

Luther L. Terry, Surgeon-General of the United States, reports evidence that there has been a sustained reduction in U.S. cigarette consumption.

In a preliminary year-end report, the Imperial Tobacco Co noted: "The Canadian tobacco industry in the last six months of this year (1964) has recorded increasing cigarette sales at the rate of five per cent, thus experiencing return to the pattern of higher volume of the past several years."

At first glance, this appears to mean that the pattern in the U.S. is different from that in Canada.

However, we find Surgeon-General Terry referring to US. statistics which match those quoted by Imperial Tobacco for Canadian consumption. Terry concedes that his evidence on reduced consumption does not tally with figures for tobacco warehouse shipments and tax returns, which point to a resurgence of cigarette smoking after a pronounced decline last spring. But he doubts the story told by these trade statistics.

Perhaps the Stratford Beacon-Herald has put its finger on the explanation. Commenting on the Imperial Tobacco Co. report on Canadian consumption, it says: "We know so many mature people who took the hard decision, and broke the (cigarette) habit a year ago that we strongly suspect that the year's gain in cigarette sales does not represent people relapsing into the habit so much as it represents children taking up the habit, in numbers more than great enough to offset the grown-ups who have succeeded in kicking the habit."

If this is true in Canada, it is probably also true in the United States. If this is the explanation for the contradiction between Terry's evidence and trade statistics, we can be sure that it gives us any cause for comfort. It would be much more encouraging if the developments had been exactly the opposite—few present smokers reformed but a decline in the number of young people acquiring a habit which Terry regards as so hazardous to health that he describes it as a "national catastrophe."

School Trustees Deserve Praise

We applaud the members of the Belleville Public School Board for declining to vote themselves up to $60 remuneration per month.

This does not mean that we do not think their services to the city are worth this sum.

On the contrary, it is because we appreciate their dedication and hard work that we find their decision to remain unpaid so heartening.

It provides a guarantee that only those who are truly interested in the welfare of our public school children and in the proper development and administration of our schools will seek the posts of trustees.

Though $60 a month is a comparatively small sum, it might tempt some person with only passing interest in the schools to seek election. Since personal popularity always plays a large role in election results, and since ability does not always go hand in hand with a pleasing personality, the results might not be in the best interests of the schools.

Some may ask why precisely the same argument does not apply to the payment of members of city council. But the work on council makes a much heavier demand on the time of members often resulting in reducing income, and, for this reason, remuneration is essential if some capable men and women are not to be excluded.

Touch of Genius

There is nothing like a mayor who takes major civic problems seriously and is not too timid to propose daring solutions.

It takes a touch of genius, though, to do this in an off-hand manner, so that one may escape from the plaudits of the mob and work one's miracles undetected—except, of course, by a vigilant free press.

Such a genius is Mayor Philip Givens of Toronto, where they are going to be opening a new city hall this fall, in itself an event of such significance that most municipal politicians would permit it to obscure larger issues.

Not so Mayor Givens. He has announced that he hopes to have the new city hall rink operating by the opening ceremonies, in September, "so we could have a hockey game between Toronto Maple Leafs and Toronto Argonauts."

Only a brilliant mind could, in this oft-hand fashion, solve the problem of providing the Argos with at least one game they have a chance of winning.

To Your Good Health
Patient Should Begin Doctor's Program at Once

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I suffer from histamine headaches. My doctor suggests that I take histamine shots. I am hesitating to start on them. What is your opinion? — Mrs. F. S.

My opinion is that I don't know why you are hesitating.

Some people are unduly sensitive to histamine, which is a naturally occurring substance in the body, but if one is hypersensitive to it, it can cause trouble — headaches or other things.

I hope today's column will be noted by a lot of readers who don't have headaches but have other results from being hypersensitive — or allergic, as we call it.

One way of preventing histamine headaches would be to stop it from appearing in the body — but we can't do that!

So the next best way is to train the body to get along with histamine, to have a greater tolerance for it.

This is done by the injection of small amounts of histamine, amounts small enough so the body can accept them without causing a reaction. (In this case, the reaction is a headache.)

Very gradually the amount of histamine is increased. And tolerance grows. Presently the body is able to encounter moderate amounts without headaching or off a headache.

Exactly the same procedure is used for hay fever, which is a hypersensitivity or allergy to certain pollens. Small amounts of the pollens are injected until the body's tolerance gradually increases. At that point, the patient can encounter moderate amounts of pollen without getting hay fever. (But he will still get hay fever if he becomes overconfident and thinks he can expose himself to unlimited amounts of ragweed pollen with impunity.)

If I had histamine headaches, I most certainly would start at once on the program suggested to you. But I also would try to avoid heavy exposure to anything which, in your experience, has shown itself to cause a rise in histamine in the system.

And if I had hay fever, this is the time of year I would start having shots for it to build up resistance for next fall.

This gradual exposure to the offending substances is desensitization.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there danger in giving children too many baby aspirins when they have a cold? What would be an average daily dose for children under five? — Mrs. D. O.

Yes, too much can be given, but I don't want to set down any fixed amount as being safe. The dosage of aspirin (and of most other drugs) depends at least in part on the weight of the child, as well as on whether it is being given for only one day, or for several days in a row. It also depends upon what (if any) other medication is being given. The only safe answer I can give is for you to have your own doctor establish the proper dose, and then stay within it.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have constant gas attacks, some so severe that I must go to bed. They draw me up double. What could cause this? Would you advise seeing a physician? — A.W.

Most certainly consult a doctor. You have severe abdominal pain. Whether this is caused by gas is doubtful. There is a long list of possible causes of such pain. "Gas attacks" is a term used too often for disorders that are not caused by gas—but can and should be corrected.

New Bottles Are Hazard

Sarnia Observer

Lambton county council, last week, agreed with a Perth county resolution that new pop bottles are a hazard. Legislation has been offered for sale in a new type thin-glass, non-returnable bottle.

It is to be supposed that the new type of bottle will have some appeal because one of the problems of the average householder is in getting rid of bottles. Storekeepers are always in a dither about the refunding on the bottles. Bottling people have their problems in giving credits and in reprocessing them for later use.

But while we agree wholeheartedly with the idea of objecting to the throw-away bottle we feel that the municipal fathers should go a bit further. They should seek some effective way to curb the indiscriminate litter of highways and rural roads with empty beer bottles.

People driving and drinking at the same time are actually worse than the over-soused driver who leaves a legal outlet to drive home. Why should public property be debased with this kind of litter?

The province has signs up on its highways warning of the penalties for littering roads. But how well is this enforced and how enforceable is it? Is there no law on the books for illegal possession of alcoholic beverages could be stiffened to the point where no driver of a car would take a chance on being caught.

This does not mean that people transporting beer, wine or liquor in unopened packages should be unduly prosecuted. But if a beer case is opened or if a bottle of spirits has the seal broken, then the crackdown should be severe enough to curb this sort of nonsense.

With the legislature likely to discuss changes in the Liquor Control Act this might be a good time to put some teeth into penalty clauses.

Montreal Star

Prime Minister Pearson is right to refuse opposition requests for an inquiry into the immigration department. Joseph Sedgwick, of Toronto, is already investigating the department's deportation procedures and is expected to present his report in a few days.

A team of management experts has been engaged to examine the department's administrative procedures and a good deal of internal reorganization has been going on during the past year. A judicial inquiry at this stage would be redundant.

Strictly Personal
We Serve God When We Must

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Doctors, even more than department stores, should adopt the motto that "the patient is always right" — For what a patient believes, or feels, about himself is as important to the treatment as what the doctor finds objectively in one real sense, there is no such thing as an "imaginary" complaint.

Diogenes, we are told, struck the father when the son swore — but history does not tell us that Diogenes ever married or had children.

The biggest fool is the fool who has learned to append copious and scholarly footnotes to his folly; there is more concentrated asininity to be found in the learned dissertation than almost anywhere else.

A past - seasonal bouquet to the anonymous wit who said, some years ago, that with exchange of Christmas presents ought to be reciprocal rather than retaliatory."

There are persons who cannot feel forgiven until they make others feel guilty; yet they must never feel wholly innocent, for their pursuit of guilt-objects is relentless and unending.

Most of the violent "anti" letters I received in my recent piece about homosexuals were far sicker than the deviation they condemned.

A quarrel between two ignorant men ends either in a rift or by each of them trying to absorb a portion of the other's stock of ignorance.

Few comments on jurisprudence are as pithily accurate as the old Gypsy curse: "May you bring a lawsuit, and be in the right!"

No contemporary people more than we Americans are so dedicated to the pursuit of pleasure — and so frightened of its consequences.

Either poverty will abolish property, or men of property must abolish poverty; the Communists are doing their utmost to effect the former, and we must be just as ardent in trying to effect the latter; for this is where the real battle lines are drawn in human society.

"To generalize," said Blake, "is to be idiot" — a stunning generalization.

Everyone regresses emotionally during an illness; and perhaps some illness are induced by the need to regress for a while in order to escape from life, and in a sympathetic atmosphere.

LBJ Spurns Formal Dress

Washington Post

G. K. Chesterton once wrote that when suffragettes rise to "clothes you wear—or do not wear."

That may be of some solace to President Johnson, for the clothes he wears—or more precisely, the clothes he has decided not to wear—to the inauguration have resulted in complaints from a large number of vocal, unforgiving souls here on earth.

Breaking with tradition, the president has said he will wear an ordinary dark business suit to the oath-taking ceremonies at the Capitol on Jan. 20.

Unconscionably, the anguished howls of the garment industry and traditionalists have echoed through Washington, but they have been accompanied by very audible sighs of relief from various other quarters.

The inauguration is a ceremonial affair and formal dress did lend dignity to it. Did President Johnson conclude that such dignity would not be in keeping with the "Great Society"?

In any event, he will undoubtedly have his way.

The tragic side of this sartorial landmark involves the new striped pants and frock coat vice-president-elect Hubert Humphrey had already bought for the occasion and now no longer needs.

Perhaps the Smithsonian Institute will purchase them for a display depicting the end of an era in executive garb.

Ottawa Offbeat
What Car Will Drury Pick To Replace German Porsche?

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — They're making bets here in the holiday hush of The Hill as to which of some six MPs will come out the winner in what has become, known as "The Bud Drury Car Sweep."

Parliamentary eyebrows, initially raised when Industries Minister Charles M. "Bud" Drury tooled up from Montreal to Ottawa in a jazzy Porsche, have remained lifted while the Capital waits to see what kind of car he wheels back from his Christmas-New Year vacation.

Mr. Drury's car became a conversation piece when former Conservative Labor Minister Mike Starr wondered out loud in print how come the Industries Minister — of all unlikely members of the Cabinet — should be driving a foreign car.

It was his "second" car, this German-made sports model, the minister explained a bit uncomfortably, and used only in commuting between his home in Montreal West and Ottawa.

It was "so handy."

But this didn't satisfy Mr. Starr who hails from Oshawa, production base of General Motors of Canada Ltd., and, when he was city whips prides itself on being Canada's "Motor Capital" turning out Canadian-made components and the full production line of Chrysler Corporation.

WORD TO WISE

Mr. Martin hasn't hesitated to chide some of his hands of Industrial Affairs for returning from posts abroad with Renaults Mercedes, Citroens, V.W.'s, Peugeots, Fiats, and other fancy and flossy foreign makes, all tax-gouging Canadians are in the business of making and selling any number of proud domestic models, famed and prized in markets around the world.

So Mr. Martin would scarcely hesitate to suggest to Mr. Drury that as Industries Minister, owning a foreign-made Porsche not only wasn't good business, but not good politics, either.

Mr. Starr was quite blunt about it.

If the Industries Minister did not want to drive one of the new widely varied GM line, spoke up the former Labor Minister, then perhaps knows he had a wide choice of cars made in motor plants in other cities.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, too, added Mr. Starr, just in case Mr. Drury hadn't stopped in Oshawa because it had elected a Conservative.

What was wrong with the Industries Minister patronizing Paul Martin's big Chrysler plant at Windsor, he asked.

Mr. Drury owned a Rambler from Brampton in Bruce Beer's riding of Peel.

Then over about a Studebaker from John Munro's and Joe Watkins' Hamilton area.

All good Liberal MPs, these men, Mike Starr reminded Mr. Drury.

CHANGE OVER

So, too, were Dr. Harry Harkness, representing Halton where Ford turns out its Mustangs at Oakville, and J. E. Lloyd and Gerald St Regan of Lincoln, new Canadian home of the Volvo.

But a Porsche!

Mike Starr shuddered.

A number of MPs and even a couple of Cabinet Ministers grinned.

Meanwhile, certain MPs and other wags, enjoying the Industries Minister's discomfiture, have taken to sending him bundles of literature from car dealers' showrooms, auto-sheets of motor advertising pages from the newspapers' car sections, and salesmen have been dropping around, hoping to land the order replacing Mr. Drury's foreign-made "second" car with a home product.

While he was being kidded, the Industries Minister could scarcely cave in without losing face, so he continued, after last Session, barrelling up and down from Montreal in the controversial Porsche.

Now it's a new year.

And a new parliamentary season.

He can drive back from Montreal after the Parliamentary recess in a new job, unafraid of smirks or smart cracks.

Who's going to hit the jackpot among the Ministers? Who from the various motor centres? Seldom has a car purchase in these political parts been clocked so carefully.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 14th, 1945

Old Lady Luck, possibly needing a change of character, dropped a figurative monkey wrench into the machinery of the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday afternoon, and caused a delay of newspaper delivery that approximated two hours. It all happened when a large casting on what is termed in newspaper parlance the mat-rolling machine, — suddenly snapped. The first edition of the newspaper had been run off, and the usual function of preparing the city one was well on its way about 12:30 p.m., when the big casting split.

In keeping with the traditions of the fourth estate, the paper had to go to press. Staff automobiles were called into service and the heavy forms with their loads of newspaper were whisked away to Trenton, where with the kind co-operation of the Trenton Advocate management there, the mats were rolled.

30 YEARS AGO

Jan. 14th, 1935

Mrs. Stewart Collins and son Russell, Cannifton, Ont., have returned home after spending three weeks with friends in Kentucky.

Miss Daisy Munnings, Reg. N. has returned to Hamilton after spending a few days with relatives.

A public reception was held in the Community Hall at Bancroft to honor Miss Christine Shamick for her act of heroism in the rescue of Andrew Raeburn from drowning in the icy waters of the Moira River on March 28th, 1934. tions was to end this "fascination" with secrecy.

He backed wider grounds of appeal against administrative decisions and laws on administrative procedure of boards and commissions. This could include making the government outline reasons and hold hearings where opposition could be voiced before taking action.

Appeals also should be available for persons who cannot afford to both for ordinary courts and for ordinary decisions of administrative bodies, Mr. Rowat said.

SUGGESTS STUDY

He suggested a royal commission study of the court system from top to bottom, particularly with a view to speeding up processing of cases.

Mr. Mellsop, former chief justice of Ontario, noted that "a good deal of work is being done right now" on the work load in various courts.

Mr. Rowat said, author of a book on the ombudsman due for publication this spring, made appointment of this official a key point in his presentation.

The office originated in Sweden — the word in Swedish means representative—and has spread to other Scandinavian countries and New Zealand.

Mr. Rowat said the official would be appointed by the legislature, would have the power to receive complaints from individual citizens and could initiate his own investigation of government actions. He could use such things as newspaper stories as the basis for an investigation as well as an individual complaint.

"Many people in Canada may not understand this," he said, but an ombudsman—cannot be the administrative chief action. His duty was to study the facts and make a report, criticizing where he felt it necessary.

Noting that the federal Justice Minister Guy Favreau said earlier this week that an ombudsman could be a good thing for Canada, Mr. Rowat said he hopes Ontario will be first in North America to make such an appointment.

Ed Buckley Heads Separate School Bd. for Fifth Time

Appointment of a full time business administrator for the Belleville Separate School Board will be considered this year, members of the board were told last night at their inaugural meeting.

Mr. Ed. Buckley, elected to his 5th straight term as board chairman, told board members that the consideration of the proposed eight roomed school in accommodation will be up to them, would be the big board project for this year.

The new school to be constructed adjacent to Nicholson Catholic College on the former Stirling property, is hoped to be ready for classes next September.

On completion of the new building, Grades 9 and 10, now accommodated in St. Michael's Academy, will move in, while the Academy will be used as a central school for the accommodation of all grade 7 and 8 pupils in the city.

1,600 PUPILS ENROLLED

The city Separate schools now have an enrolment of 1,600 pupils up to grade 10.

Business administration of the board has been handled for the past five years on a part time basis by Mr. Carl Casey but Mr. Buckley told the board that consideration would be given this year for appointment of a full time administrator.

Also during the year the board will consider reduction of board members from the present 14 members to eight members.

Separate school board members, followed the lead of the public school board earlier this week and voted unanimously not to accept salaries which under provincial regulations may now be paid.

Committee appointments made at last night's inaugural meeting were: finance, Paul Fleming, chairman, with Robert J. Locy and Monsignor J. P. Sullivan; property, James S. Sleeman, chairman, with David Coates, Gordon W. Cooney, James M. Tobin and Paul G. Wall; management, Mrs. Marie Huffman, chairman, with Steve W. Garvin, James A. Weltz, George E. Whalen and Frank Geaudreau.

'Wash Trading' Conviction Quashed by Appeal Court

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday quashed a conviction against Michael Jay, 49, of Toronto, sentenced to three months in jail last May for illegal manipulation of a stock on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Jay was found guilty by a jury of "wash trading" or illegal manipulation in connection with purchase and sale in August and September, 1960, of Class B voting shares in National Hosiery Mills Limited.

The jury under Mr. Justice William D. Parker convicted Jay of manipulating stock purchases with intent to create a false or misleading appearance of active, public trading in the stock.

Mr. Justice Wilfred Roach, who gave the decision for the appeal court, said the prosecution would have to prove that when a stock purchase was made a substantially corresponding sales order was made at about the same time.

NEED PROOF

In addition, said Mr. Justice Roach, the prosecution would have to further prove the dealings were made with the intent to create a false or misleading appearance of active, public trading in the stock.

There was evidence, Mr. Justice Roach said, that Jay was a man of considerable financial substance not unused to buying and selling on the stock exchange.

The judgment said he intended to buy into National Hosiery and to seek a directorship in the company as a holder of a substantial number of shares of stock. Jay held discussions with some board members of the company on this point.

Speculators had entered the market at the first sign of Jay's buying and the price of the stock had risen, the judge said. Under the circumstances, he would be justified in putting his stocks on the market to try to halt the skyrocketing of the price.

This does not offend the Criminal Code section banning wash trading, the judge said.

SAYS ORDERS MADE

The charge against Jay said he had made 25 separate orders through seven brokers for purchase of the stocks.

Mr. Justice Roach said that if the jury that convicted Jay had properly understood the case, it could not have found the charge proved beyond a reasonable doubt. He found no fault with Mr. Justice Parker's summation to the jury, however.

At the trial, George Finlayson, Jay's lawyer, said his client had made $2,000 in his attempt to take over National Hosiery.

He bought and sold 62,000 of the 110,000 shares in the company in the two months and made 5,200 shares on the six days named in the charge.

Jay made his money in British and came to Canada in 1957.

straints, where they exist, on the competitive export capabilities of Canadian subsidiaries of foreign - controlled firms."

—Vigorous trade promotion for industrial goods.

Statistically, the council placed Canada in this position:

Canadian exports as a share of total world exports slipped to 4.2 per cent in 1963 from 4.8 per cent in 1956.

World trade in manufactured goods rose 66 per cent in 59-63 while trade in primary products climbed only 26 per cent. Shipments of processed goods as a result. But her exports of manufactured products rose by only 0.7 per cent yearly.

There was one bright spot: In 1963 Canadian exports of manufactured goods rose at an annual rate of 21 per cent. That may be a turning point, said the council.

Another major factor is that prices of manufactured goods have risen faster than those for raw materials.

For Canada, the result has been that her ratio of export prices to import prices measured from a 1953 base dropped to 96 cents in 1958 and slipped further to 92 cents by 1963.

In other words, Canada now needs more exports to pay for a given volume of imports.

There are many factors behind these trends in the structure of international trade.

For Canada, one of the most important has been what the economists call "materials saving." In other words, many nations now need produce more with less raw material. In the United States, in 40 years industrial output has grown twice as fast as the consumption of Four Foundation Members Of Commonwealth Must Be Strong Says Commissioner

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — "There is no more important task in the Commonwealth today than in strengthening relations among the four foundation members," says Sir Leon Gotz, newly nominated New Zealand high commissioner to Canada.

"I am convinced we older Commonwealth countries must come closer together and I regard my mission to Canada as an opportunity to make a contribution to that end," Sir Leon said in an interview.

"Only if the white Commonwealth members, who are the 'haves,' devise effective methods of helping the 'have-nots' with knowledge and experience, can the Commonwealth play its full part in the world."

Sir Leon says he hopes to learn much of value to New Zealand in Canada — particularly in industrial development and how to cope with an immigration influx as Canada has done.

He hopes to travel extensively and see as much of the country as possible. I have been to Canada before, but not to live. There are a good many similarities between our countries, but differences too. Relations have always been warm and friendly, but I think contacts can be made closer."

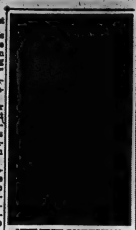
Sir Leon, half French by descent, was educated with an eye to diplomatic service. He went to schools in Switzerland, France, Germany and England, specializing in languages, with such a career in mind.

It has been a long way round, however, for Sir Leon has finally entered diplomatic life at the age of 72. After his father's death he returned to New Zealand and completed his education here. But he has continued to absorb languages all his life. At different times in a varied career he learned to speak a round dozen.

Sir Leon's career took him, among other places, to Malaya, where he was a rubber planter for 12 years. He served during the First World War with the Malaya States Rifles and the Royal Air Force. He was wounded, losing an eye and part of an arm. He wears an eye patch which became a distinctive part of the political scene during his years in Parliament.

Sir Leon saw further tropical service in the Pacific island group of Samoa, where he was general manager of the New Zealand Reparations Estates, formed from German properties taken over when New Zealand occupied Samoa during the First World War, and administered for the benefit of the islands.

Subsequently, he was engaged in business in New Zealand, and then from 1940 he served as a member of Parliament, the last three years, until 1963 as minister of internal affairs, island territories and civil defence.



He is widely known in New Zealand for his sponsorship, as minister of internal affairs, of the national lottery, the Golden Kiwi, which has retained in New Zealand a great deal of money which previously filtered abroad to Australian and other overseas lotteries.

Sir Leon was named a knight commander of the Royal Victorian Order in 1953 after he acted as minister in attendance on the Queen during her tour of New Zealand.

Sir Leon and Lady Gotz plan to leave New Zealand for Canada Feb. 23.

COLLECTION DAY, TODAY

Suspected

It was hard to get hold of him. She kept getting the "same story" when he kept calling Raymond Rouleau.

Raymond had told him that Guy was "not too delighted" about the affair and had said he was looking after it only because his brother had asked him.

Lechasseur said he had never received any report that Guy Rouleau had got in touch with a minister or any other influential person.

The witness said Raymond Rouleau didn't want to discourage Mrs. Rivard and had told him, "Eddy, there's not much to be done in this case."

DEPOSITS $68,000

Earlier today Kenneth Candlish, 28-year-old accountant for the Royal Trust Company, testified that Mrs. Rivard on June 25 deposited $60,000 with his company.

Mr. Candlish said Mrs. Rivard deposited cash—which she brought with her—$65 $100 bills and 70 $50 bills. Mrs. Rivard had withdrawn the money Sept. 18 in $1,000 bills.

Mr. Candlish was asked to look at Lechasseur and to say whether he had ever seen him before.

He said he had seen Lechasseur either when Mrs. Rivard deposited the money or when she withdrew it.

Mr. Desjardins asked Lechasseur whether he had ever been convicted. Lechasseur replied yes but when Mr. Desjardins attempted to find out when Delard Dansereau, counsel for Lechasseur and Mrs. Rivard, objected.

Mr. Dansereau argued that the great publicity being given the hearing would cause prejudice to Lechasseur if his criminal record was given in detail.

ONLY TO LAWYERS

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court, presiding at the inquiry, ruled that a list detailing Lechasseur's record could be supplied only to the lawyers appearing before this inquiry.

At his direction, Lechasseur was supplied with a copy and, after looking it over for about 30 seconds, Lechasseur said he wanted a correction made.

The lawyers huddled briefly and Mr. Desjardins said he would submit a corrected sheet after consulting with Lechasseur and Mr. Dansereau.

Under questioning, Lechasseur said one person who contributed money to Mrs. Rivard for her husband's bail was a Bill Amie. But the witness denied that Rocky Brunette, Montreal nightclub employee shot to death last Sept. 17 was a contributor. Lechasseur said he did not know Brunette.

He also said he does not think Gaston Clermont was a contributor but said he had seen Mr. Clermont a few times as a friend of Rivard.

MENTION BANKS

The name of Hal Banks, deposed head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), cropped up at the inquiry Wednesday.

Banks was appealing a five-year sentence for conspiracy to commit bodily harm to a Great Lakes captain when he skipped $25,000 bail last summer and fled to the United States.

Montreal lawyer Pierre Lemontagne, acting for the U.S. government, has testified that he was offered a $20,000 bribe and put under pressure by federal ministerial aides to agree to the release on bail of Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on charges of smuggling narcotics for a Mafia-run dope ring.

Mr. Lamontagne has said he has every reason to believe that Rivard would skip bail if he was released from Montreal's Bordeaux Jail, where he has been since June 19.

It was Lechasseur who brought up Banks' name during the Wednesday session, saying an "extradition specialist" in Ottawa had been working on the Banks case and had found that Banks could not be extradited back to Canada.

This so-called expert, he said, had studied whether the experience with Banks could be applied to Rivard case.

The U.S. is trying to have Rivard extradited to face the dope charges in Laredo, Tex.

Lechasseur, who followed murder suspect Robert Gignac in the witness box, said the contact between Mrs. Rivard and the "specialist" was Guy Masson, identified earlier by Gignac as a Liberal party organizer.

DIDN'T GIVE NAME

Lechasseur, scheduled to continue his testimony today, said Masson never informed him who the "specialist" was. Masson had told him that the "expert" didn't want his name mentioned and wished to work "incognito."

Lechasseur, who gave his testimony with arms folded and leaning against a pillar beside the witness box, said the "specialist" would advise Mrs. Rivard on how to get her husband out of Bordeaux as a consequence of the Banks case.

The burly witness, who at one point got into a near-shouting match with Chief Justice Frederic Dorion for not being precise in his replies to commission questions, said Masson had quoted the "expert" as saying Rivard's case was difficult because the U.S. wanted Rivard and Canada wanted to get rid of him.

Lechasseur and Gignac both testified that Mrs. Rivard raised $60,000 as bail for her husband, some $35,000 of it from two men identified only as "Roger" and "Dave."

Lechasseur said Masson wanted to be sure the money was available for bail.

GAVE $1,000

Both said Mrs. Rivard gave Masson $1,000 to cover his expenses in dealing with the "specialist," located in Ottawa. Lechasseur and Gignac, the latter charged with capital murder in the slaying of a nightclub doorman here Sept. 17, also testified Raymond Rouleau, brother of Montreal MP Guy Rouleau, former parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson.

Lechasseur said Raymond Rouleau and Rivard were "very close friends" who met quite frequently at election times.

He said that at Rivard's request Raymond Rouleau had met him and Mrs. Rivard.

He said he would outline the objective of this meeting. At that point the inquiry adjourned for the day.

Guy Rouleau resigned as an aide to Mr. Pearson Nov. 24, saying he had made "normal" representations in the Rivard case at his brother's request.

Gignac, self - styled general contractor, said he knew Raymond Rouleau but had no business dealings with him. He said he didn't know Guy Roulleau.

VISITED RIVARD

Gignac testified he visited Rivard three times in Bordeaux before his own arrest in September.

Francois Chapadeo, counsel for Masson, entered as an exhibit a telephone bill for one of Gignac's companies for one month last summer.

The exhibit showed a $1.85 phone call June 22 to Ottawa number 992-2234. This was the number listed in the Canadian government telephone directory for Raymond Deslis at Immigration Minister Tremblay's House of Commons office.

There was no testimony as to who placed the call or received it.

Mr. Lamontagne has testified that Mr. Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe to drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

WAS A GUEST

Gignac said Tuesday that a "Mr. Denis" turned up at a hotel suite in Hull, Que., where he and Masson were staying after Masson had made a telephone call.

Gignac has also testified that Masson, a sometime employee and partner of his, used his help frequently.

Lechasseur denied ever telephoning Mr. Lamontagne and swore that he understood nothing about any bribe offer to the lawyer.

"I don't think Rivard is as rich as everyone thinks he is," he said.

Mrs. Rivard, scheduled to testify later, was described by Lechasseur as a young woman who had led a "sheltered life."

She told Lechasseur to advise her after her husband's arrest so that nobody would take advantage of her "naievete and lack of experience."

At another point, Lechasseur told of drinking orange juice at a roadside stand one evening with Mrs. Rivard and his companion, Linda Dumont.

Gignac had taken Mrs. Rivard home that same evening. Lechasseur said he went home with Miss Dumont and stayed all night.

U.S. Fighter-Bombers Used Against Lines for a Month

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. fighter - bombers have been smashing at Communist supply and reinforcement lines running through Laos for at least a month, government sources said today.

Wednesday's strike — which cost the United States two air force jets—bore down on Route 7, key segment of a road and trail network that feeds both the Red Pathet Lao in central Laos and the Communist guerillas in South Viet Nam.

American authorities refused to say anything publicly beyond the terse announcement that an F-100 Supersabre and an F-105 Thunderchief "were shot down in central Laos by ground fire."

Defence Department spokesman Arthur Sylvester declined to discuss what kind of a mission the two high speed jets were flying.

Four navy and air force jets were shot down over Laos before Wednesday's losses. Each was described officially as either conducting photo reconnaissance or escorting planes taking pictures of the Red supply roads and trails.

CLAIM RAIDS

For weeks, the Communist Chinese and North Vietnamese have been claiming that U.S. air and sea forces have been raiding Communist territory.

The U.S. government evidently is not ready to acknowledge that its war planes are in combat outside the borders of South Viet Nam.

The degree of escalation of the war still is rather low.

Wednesday's strike centred on a section of Route 7 extending northwestward from North Viet Nam to the Communist-held Plaine des Jarres in central Laos. Route 7 intersects with other roads leading down into the Laotian panhandle and linking with trails into South Viet Nam.

This road complex is considered part of what is called the Ho Chih Minh Trail, the system by which the Communist Viet Cong guerillas in South Viet Nam are bolstered with arms, ammunition, other supplies and trained soldiers from North Viet Nam.

COMPLETE SURVEY

MONTREAL (CP) — A six-month survey of Canadian seamen, which opposition members in Parliament criticized as an invasion of privacy, has been completed. The survey was undertaken by the Religion-Labor Council of Canada, in an effort to determine the thinking of seamen about working conditions, and to receive their ideas as to how their lot can be improved.

What Women Are Doing

Mrs. R. E. Barrett, president of the University Women's Club.

The University Women's Club of Belleville and District has an average annual membership of 100 University graduates from accredited universities. It is one of 95 such organizations across Canada belonging to the Canadian Federation of University Women, comprising 18,000 members. The Canadian Federation in turn, is a member of the world-wide International Federation of University Women.

The prime aim of the club, which has been active for 35 years in Belleville, is to assist in developing a sound concept of educational values, in maintaining high standards of public education, and to encourage scholarship. Secondly, they aim to arouse and sustain interest in political, social, and cultural fields, and to encourage active participation in such affairs by qualified women.

To accomplish these aims, the Belleville club holds a Spring Fair each May, with an exhibition and sale of Manly Macdonald paintings. Thanks to the whole-hearted support of the public at this event, the proceeds enable the club to provide annual scholarships for girls in the district who are planning to enter University. Membership fees and Spring Fair home baking returns go to a general fund, from which the club donates annually to the Elizabeth Fry Society, an overseas scholarship fund, the Canadian University Service Overseas, and to the support of a student from Ghana at Queen's University.

To implement another phase of this objective, this club, together with the Business and Professional Women's Club, of Belleville, formed a committee for the purpose of promoting the appointment of qualified women to Civic Boards. The club has also given its active support to the teaching of Oral French extra-curricularly to public school children.

This is the first in a series of articles about women's groups and their activities in Belleville.

French Get In Last Word At Show

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The French got in the last word at the closing program of spring style previews for fashion writers here.

It was the American designer series, but the French had a hand Tuesday in each of them one way or another, featuring "ye-ye," "oui-oui" and "Oh boy."

The young ye-ye, the French counterpart of the English mods had entered the Arlin Fashion house to mass-produce their kind of crazy, mixed-up fashions.

The ye-ye dresses have short and flouncy skirts, sexy waistlines, scooped - out necklines, droopy ruffles and laces, and a combination of unorthodox fabric patterns.

Although the Christian Dior collection originated at its New York house with the American market in mind, it was one of the late Dior's proteges, Gaston Berthelot, a mere year out of Paris, who created it.

Oldfashioned demureness was his fresh approach, in contrast to the new-fangled necklines and see-through bodices which came out of the French house last year. French Pierrettes were his gray and white wool checks with crisp white collars, and utterly prissy was a black and white middy dress. Suits were spare, chic and young, with hip-length jackets over ankle-length skirts.

This year, instead of glittering and clanking in jewel embroidered, pearl and crystal fringed dresses as in the past, the rich young Dior-ite limits herself to shimmering satin suits, fluttering petals of chiffon or quilted white velvet or linen with just a twinkling of opulence.

PAULINE STARS

It was "oui-oui," too, for Pauline Potter, 21, daughter of France and now America's pride. Typical of the Parisienne's talent for originality were her double-dresses and suits.

Models flipped off skirts and peeled off jackets, or shrugged off V-necked jumper dresses and still had enough and the right kind of clothes on them to go to a cocktail party. Usually the hidden dresses were soft and billowing chiasons or silks in brilliant colors with cowl necklines or gland scarves.

Still another French import, designer Jacques Tiffeau, brought the climax of already short skirts when he introduced his collection at the buyers market last fall.

Tiffeau's audience then was shocked. A lot of hemlines have moved upwards since, and Tuesday's audience hardly batted an eye at his thigh-high shifts worn with thongs that criss-crossed up the legs to the knees.

Simmered Soup And Hot Scones

By MARY MOORE

After this feed I thought we'd be snacking all evening but it had surprising staying power.

With all the test-cooking we do in my kitchen sometimes a whole year passes without me making some of my personal favorites — like split pea soup. I was hungry for it so I soaked the peas overnight, then added all the aromatic ingredients ,subspensable to pea soup and let it simmer all day. Everybody who came through the kitchen lifted the lid of the Jerp well cooker and hinted for invitations to supper.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Meat Loaf; Tomato Sauce; Baked Squash; Brussels Sprouts; Celery Hearts; Strawberry Jello; Hot Biscuits with New Marmalade (see Tuesday); Coffee.

SUNDAY

Roast Leg of Lamb; Mint Sauce; Pan-Roasted Potatoes; Green Beans in Cheese Sauce; Celery and Cabbage Salad; French Dressing; Baked Rice Pudding (see Wednesday); Pouring Cream; Tea.

SPLIT PEA SOUP:

1 lb. dried yellow (or yellow) split peas, 12 cups cold water, 1 bay leaf, ½ lb. smoked jowl or side bacon, 1 cup diced onion, 1 carrot, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 chicken bouillon cube (or ½ teaspoon accent), 1 teaspoon sugar.

Soak the peas with the bay leaf in the cold water in the soup kettle in cool place overnight. In the morning grind the smoked jowl or bacon, onion and carrot through coarse knife of food grinder and add with all remaining ingredients to soup pot and stir well and simmer until peas are tender, stirring occasionally. I let mine simmer all day but this is not necessary — 3 hours is long enough. I let it simmer that long just for the fun of smelling it. Taste to see if you and your crowd would like a little more salt — especially if you use a ham bone instead of jowl or bacon. Serve as a main course soup with

FRUITED SCONES:

(Note: I have Mrs. J. G. W. to thank for this idea. I adjusted her Fruit Scone recipe to suit my purpose.)

In cup sugar, 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons single-acting baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup shortening, 1 cup light raisins (or currants or packaged fruit cake mix), 1 large egg, beaten, 1 cup milk.

Cut shortening into first 4 ingredients, add fruit and stir in beaten egg and milk. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 10 times only. Roll out to between ½" and ¾" thickness. With sharp floured knife cut into 2" squares, then each square in half diagonally to form triangles. Arrange at least 1" apart on 2 buttered cookie sheets. To glaze tops brush with mixture of 1 tablespoon milk and 1 tablespoon sugar. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. about 20 minutes, switching pans after first 10 minutes of baking for 2 sets on lower shelf in oven and bottom one on upper shelf in oven.

Serve warm. Any leftover scones may be served cold but are better if split and toasted. Delicious are marvellous with the marmalade I gave here on Tuesday.

Mrs. Clay Set Back $325 For Lounge Gown

By GEORGE W. HACKETT

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Not many women, if lounge around the house in a $325 sable - length gown, can match Cassius Clay's dress.

"I love beautiful things, but I never got a chance to show this one off in public."

The wife of the heavyweight champion sighed and began brushing out the wrinkles in the tissue-thin, chartreuse garment. She had stored it in the closet last November after Clay's rematch with Sonny Liston was postponed.

"The gown was bought just for the fight," said Mrs. Clay. "Nice to put it out myself."

"And paid for it with my money," interjected the champion, grinning broadly.

IS FIRST INTERVIEW

He had agreed to let Sonji be interviewed for the first time since their marriage last August but insisted that he be present.

Kept her away from the press until I could coach her," Clay explained. "Didn't want my baby to get mixed up in no things."

He also pointed out that the Islam religion, which she embraced officially four months ago, relegates women to the background.

"It's pretty demanding," admitted Sonji, who still is trying to master the art of preparing Muslim dishes for Clay.

"One of his favorites is savy bean pie. He likes carrot pie, peach pie and lots of things that were new to me."

Sonji, a dusky beauty of 24 with dark eyes and a waspish waist, did some modeling, then switched to writing. She was employed in a newspaper office in Chicago, her hometown, when she met the champion.

The McKeown's farmed in the 12th concession of Rawdon for many years following their marriage, then moved to an R.R. 3, Stirling farm, where their son Lindsay McKeown, now lives.

In 1937 Mr. and Mrs. McKeown moved to Springbrook to become helper at his son's garage. Until a year ago he acted as night gas pump attendant.

Hi-C Group Holds Service

RAWDON — There was a large attendance of worshippers last Sunday evening at Mount Pleasant United Church for the special youth service sponsored by Rawdon Hi-C Group. Miss Jean Sharpe was pianist and a hymn of praise was led for the occasional with each member carrying a lighted candle.

The president Mr. Lyle Couch conducted the opening exercises. The Bible lessons were read by the Misses Barbara Williams and Mary Dracup. A litany of prayer was lead by Miss Nancy David. The girls' choir rendered a selection, after which the offering was gathered by Brian Allan Wrightman and Roger Smith.

Miss Eleanor Beach of Frankford who is a student at Queen's University, Kingston gave a special illustrated address based on "Crossroads Africa". Eleanor was one of a large group who took part in the self help projects last summer. The colored pictures vividly portrayed views of African homes, schools; also groups of children and adults. The scenes at the markets gave a glimpse of life in that land. Beautiful flowers and shrubs in the park were most colorful. The pictures of the building projects depicted how the group helped the Africans to realize the brotherhood of man.

The pastor, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher conducted the candle light installation service based on "Faith, Hope, Love, Truth, Health, Beauty and Service".

The Rawdon Hi-C officers are as follows: president, Lyle Couch, past president, Barbara Williams, co-president, Mary Dracup, secretary, Nancy David; treasurer, Douglas Potts; pianist, Jean Sharpe; lunch committee, Fred Graham and Jean Jeffs; recreation, Kenneth McConnell and Charles Nix.

The service closed with the recessional hymn.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

Approximately 16 members were present at the meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. L. J. Ketcheson.

A letter was read from the president of P.W.I.O., Mrs. Trivers regarding orders for silver spoons with a crest of the Province of Ontario. This letter was put on file for later consideration.

Mrs. Haggerty, past president of P.W.I. of Canada was presented with a life membership and badge, and she in turn presented the guest seal, and the diamond president's badge to the new president, Mrs. Mathoson of Prince Edward Island, at the third national convention in Nova Scotia, reported by Mrs. E. Phillips.

Mrs. L. Evans reported on Canadian Association of Consumers on national beach plans.

Mrs. G. Garrison gave a reading on the celebration of Christmas at Red River from the reminiscences of Margaret McLeod. Dinner consisted of platters of roast beef, fish and buffalo meat, and Christmas pudding made with saskatoons, brought in with dancing blue flames. Toasts were drunk to absent friends, the warmth of the season's sentiments to the lonely Fort Garry stone gate.

GUEST SPEAKER

Patricia Joan Shorey was guest speaker and gave a report of the 33rd national conference of 4-H clubs at Ottawa and Toronto in the fall. There were 14 delegates from every province and from many states in the United States.

Delegates are chosen for outstanding work in the 4-H homemaking and agricultural clubs. Ontario delegates met in Toronto at the office of Mr. Shewart, minister of agriculture. They flew to Ottawa where the conference was officially opened.

Activities included a visit to the Parliament building, where they sat in on debates in the House of Commons, later toured the buildings under guidance of their own particular member of Parliament; and a tour of Government House, where they were greeted by their excellencies Governor-General Vanier and Mrs. Vanier.

Patricia was chosen to visit the French embassy, as other delegates visited the British, Russian, American and others. A tour of the National Art Gallery and a banquet concluded the Ottawa tour. Every meal was a banquet, sponsored by Canada Meat Packers, International Harvester, Kraft Foods, and others.

In Toronto the delegates visited the museum, and had discussion periods concerning 4H Clubs, Canada and Confederation. They took in a hockey game at the Maple Leaf Gardens; a day at the Winter Fair; a visit to O'Keefe's Centre, and the Horse Show where one delegate from each province was presented to his Excellency George Vanier, and Patricia was again chosen.

A trip to Niagara Falls where delegates saw the Hydro Power plant, completed the trip. Miss Shorey thanked the Women's Institute for making it possible for her to acquire this worthwhile experience. Wallbridge W.I. expressed their pride in the honors won by one of their own 4H members.

WHEN your youngster begins to wear dresses or jeans with such pockets, you'll find all sorts of odd items stashed away. Before you load your washing machine, do make it routine to investigate all pockets. There'll be many occasions when you'll avoid ruining an important but temporarily forgotten treasure.

TOUGH BUT DAINTY — A seamstress works on a ballet dress for the National Ballet of Canada. The ballerinas' outfits must fit so that when the dancer puts her arms over her head the costume does not move. It must be constructed to survive the strenuous treatment without looking wilted after a performance. (CP Photo)

Behind the Scenes

They Design Unruffled Tutus

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—The glitter and glamor of a ballet performance would be dimmed if the leading dancer and her elegant partner finished a performance with rumpled ruffles and baggy knees.

It's the job of the costume-makers to build in some assurance that this won't happen. The daintiest of tutus must be constructed to survive strenuous treatment without looking wilted.

With the National Ballet of Canada, the responsibility rests on James Ronaldson, wardrobe supervisor, who had 28 specialists working for him during the five months before the company opened its season here New Year's Eve.

Three hundred costumes alone were needed for The Nutcracker and others were turned out for La Sylphide and for dancers performing with the Canadian Opera Company.

Ronaldson says costumes for one of the principal dancers can be counted on for only one season. Ballerinas are held and lifted so much that their outfits soon wear out. All are custom-made.

Costumes for other dancers may last as long as seven years, with alterations as necessary.

MUST NOT MOVE

Ronaldson conveys the essence of the job of producing costumes in a single sentence: "When a dancer puts her arms over her head, the costume must not move."

The problem is solved partly by gussets and reinforcing partly by fit. Bodices are fitted so snugly they can't shift easily.

"Everything is made strong with heavy thread. We don't care what it looks like inside."

But it's also important that a dress be light enough to dance in, even if it is designed in the style of periods when skirts were full and petticoats numerous.

Many costumes are made in one piece — skirt, petticoats, bodice and blouse all sewn together. "It saves losing pieces and goes on as quickly as possible."

Stiff, pleated nylon petticoats can be detached and dunked in a tub, as they are after every performance. The rest of the costume is regularly spot-cleaned or completely cleaned. And the pristine whiteness of a white costume is maintained with the firm application of a scrub brush and soap and water.

STRETCH FABRICS

Nevertheless, the costume fabrics are what they seem to be. They really are silks and wools with hand-sewn trim and embroidery. Modern tights are of stretch fabrics, however, an improvement over cotton and wool knits.

The patterns of most of the fabrics are also manufactured to match a designer's sketches. A striped dress is made of strips of cloth sewn together, and a nurse's dress for The Nutcracker has 300 yards of tape sewn on it to make a criss-cross pattern.

The plaid for La Sylphide was specially printed in Montreal from a new design by Robert Perrott. About 250 yards of wool was dyed to the correct background shade and the fabric printed according to his design.

Can Get Girl in Sweden If Wallet Well-Padded

STOCKHOLM (Reuter)—Bored businessmen visiting Sweden can relax during spare evenings here with the girl of their dreams — provided that their wallets are well padded with hard cash.

They have only to dial 54-60-20 and an attractive, intelligent Swedish girl is ready to show them the city highlights.

The telephone line, which is almost invariably busy, leads to Silm Turpin, managing director of Handelsbolaget K. Selander and Company. He has access to some 20 pretty girls all waiting for a pleasant evening out.

They are trained not only to entertain visitors, but also to act as city guides, interpreters and hostesses at industrial exhibitions.

The client pays 25 crowns (about $5) an hour for the girl in addition to all costs incurred at restaurants, theatres or in taxi fares. The minimum time paid for is four hours.

ALSO EARN TIPS

Each girl is paid 10 crowns an hour (about $2) and usually receives tips of between 10 and 100 crowns at the end of the evening.

Girls applying for jobs must be good looking, intelligent, linguists, charmingly feminine and above all, down to earth, Turpin says, adding:

"Obviously, misunderstandings can, and do, arise, and the girls must be able to look after themselves. Swedish sin has a certain reputation abroad and it is imperative for the girls to be able to handle all kinds of situations.

"We always stress to our clients that girls exceeding the aims of the company are dismissed immediately."

Once the minimum period of four hours has been fulfilled, the girls can decide for themselves when to go home.

The girls come from all walks of life, but a majority have been private secretaries or models.

Russian Toy Makers Taken to Task

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Russian dolls in Brigitte Bardot hairdos?

The idea may sound slightly absurd, but evidently some Russian toy manufacturers don't think so.

They were taken to task in the newspaper Pravda for showing poor taste and for poor-quality production.

"In shops we see a lot of dolls —small and big, in nylon dresses and cotton dresses; they differ from one another but they have something in common: roughly-painted faces and terrible hair styles."

For some reason, complained Vera Tkachenko, writer of the article, many Russian producers find it "impossible" these days to turn out dolls with side pigtails, the traditional Russian style.

Instead, dolls with such names as Svetlana, Alena and Nadenka incongruously sport "fashionable Babetta"—a reference to the ponytail hairdo worn by Miss Bardot in a movie which ran here several years ago, making the style suddenly popular in the Soviet Union.

TOYS REJECTED

The Pravda article complained about poor quality and lack of imagination in the production of toys generally. Twenty per cent of all production in one economic region, which accounts for 72 per cent of the Soviet Union's output, was rejected on the grounds of quality, it said.

"There are few toys with mechanisms and electric engines, few construction sets."

The low artistic and technical level of toys is explained by inadequately staffed designing bureaus, it said, explaining that some enterprises have no painters or designers at all.

The Pravda article came out at the height of the New Year's shopping season here—the Russians exchange gifts at New Year's the way people in Western lands do at Christmas.

Successful Living

Unwed Mother Offers Good Practical Advice

DEAR DORIS — I was an unwed mother at 16. Maybe girls don't quite realize the humiliation and emotional upsets that a pregnant unmarried women goes through. People stare, hoodlums whistle, taxi drivers ask where your husband works and people talk.

You become guilt-stricken and sick at the same time as your enlarged figure stares back at you from the mirror. The radio blasts music in your ear and the urge to dance and be with the gang again becomes unbearable. The worst hurt of all is the night your baby is born. You have mixed emotions; you want to be free but then you don't want to give up the life that has lived inside you so long.

DORIS CLARK

Many girls think that being in love makes everything all right and that Sam will marry you if anything goes wrong. But such is not always the case. It is difficult to keep high moral standards, but for me I only need to visualize the small child I once held in my arms to make saying no a lot easier.

But for others, perhaps I could suggest another good reason: If you love your fella and have hopes of marrying some day then your dreams must inevitably include your wedding night. Don't you want it to be something special, a beginning of a new life as it should be? Then be smart, say no and keep in shape!— T.R.

* * *

DEAR T.R. — Thank you for putting it on paper. If your story stiffens the spine of even one young girl, or changes the point of view of a single Canadian youth, the telling will have been more than worth while.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I hear there is a Canadian Peace Corps. Can you tell me what it does, and how to find out more about it? — SCHOOL TEACHER.

* * *

DEAR SCHOOL TEACHER — Just three years ago a Canadian agency was formed to round up and send abroad skilled workers to the places in the world where they could do the most good.

The organization is Canadian University Service Overseas. Volunteers are from an assortment of professions, such as teachers, engineers, nurses, doctors, physiotherapists, social workers, agriculturists, lawyers.

They only go where they are asked for; they fit into the place where they are sent. Adaptability and patience are essential characteristics. They go not to reform folk in our ways but to learn about their ways and contribute the latest in knowledge to their educational and industrial programs.

In 1964 CUSO appointments overseas totalled 148. For details write to Canadian University Service Overseas, 75 Albert Street, Ottawa 4, Canada.

No Signs of Religious Friction in New Program

NEW YORK (AP)—A maternity care program, backed by federal funds and including free birth control aid to low-income neighborhoods, is operating here without any signs of religious friction.

The situation is seen by some specialists in the field as indicating increased interfaith understanding on approaches to birth control.

"Areas of agreement are broadening all over the country," a spokesman for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America says. "The old-fashioned struggles have become the exception."

The city health department disclosed recently that through a federal grant of $1,400,000 it has launched five maternity-care clinics in poorer sections, with four others scheduled to be opened soon.

Along with a comprehensive program of pre-natal care, the clinics offer birth control materials and advice.

There was no immediate comment on the program from the New York archdiocese of the Roman Catholic Church, which has long condemned artificial means of birth control. New York City's population is 45 per cent Catholic.

However, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. Frawley, director of Roman Catholic hospitals in the archdiocese, said he thought "its program in its broad aspects is most acceptable."

"Families should be free to act in accordance with their conscience and convictions," he said.

Two Catholic hospitals, St. Vincent's in Manhattan and St. Catherine's in Brooklyn, are supervising two of the program's clinics. Both offer instruction in the rhythm method of birth control, which is acceptable to the Roman Catholic Church.

At the other clinics, however, mothers may obtain birth control pills and contraceptive devices.

The areas are predominantly Negro, with high birth rates.

DANCING SNOWBALLS

Dear Susanna: I enjoy your column immensely, and trust the recipe I am enclosing for Dancing Snowballs is something new to your readers.

Add 2 t. blespoons of citric acid and 4 tablespoons of baking soda to 3 or 4 cups of warm or hot water. Tint with vegetable coloring. Stir well to dissolve all ingredients. Drop in a handful of moth balls. The liquid should be reinforced with more acid and soda as the moth balls stop dancing. — Mrs. Isabel LeMicre

If one uses a low glass or crystal bowl for the liquid with a reflector underneath, the whole thing makes a lovely centre piece.

Color the water red for Valentine's day, green for St. Patrick's or deep purple for Easter — the moth balls will stay white.

Don't be disappointed however, if the snow balls don't pop out of the water like ping pong balls — ours didn't but they did twist and turn and bounce up and down off the bottom and into each other. Children and adults alike were absolutely fascinated.

You may have a little trouble getting the action started in the first place after all the ingredients have been added. This happened to us, so we shook a small amount of the citric acid on top of the water and away it went! This went on for about an hour.

You know, it's not a bad idea for a new dance craze. The Snow Ball Snarl!

EYE, EYE!

Dear Susanna: Sewing machines: If that belt breaks, in an emergency you can stretch a rubber ring used in canning over the fly wheel and it will serve as a belt for your machine for quite a while.

I wonder how many persons like me have found that frames of eye glasses have a habit of sliding down the nose and have to be adjusted by the wearer umpteen times a day.

Just try applying clear nail polish to the cushions or pads of the part that goes next to the nose. Allow the varnish to dry, — about three very light coats are best — then notice the difference in comfort when you put your glasses on.

This can be repeated as the coating wears thin and the cushions start sliding again. — Mrs. Violet Cawthron

Son 13 Should Be Allowed To Shave Upper Lip Fuzz

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our son who turned 13 last week has a moustache — or to put it more accurately, he has some noticeable fuzz on his upper lip.

My husband insists that the boy be allowed to shave it off. I feel it is terrible for a boy of 13 to put a razor to his face. I'd much rather buy some hair remover, in paste form, and let him remove the fuzz that way.

In my opinion, if our son begins to shave he will get the idea he is a grown up man and this might lead to things which could be bad for him.

The boy is not aware that my husband and I have been arguing about this for weeks. We've said nothing to him because we are unable to agree. Will you please settle it? — AGIN' IT.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR AGIN' — I'm with your husband. If the boy has a moustache it should be removed in the traditional male manner — with a razor.

Don't make a federal case out of the shaving bit and the boy won't attach so much importance to it. It's the mothers who usually carry the emotional freight of Sonny's first shave — which makes it rough on Sonny.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a woman 53 years old. Something has been bothering me for years.

At the funeral of a relative back in 1943, when the minister's wife met my sister for the first time she said, "You two don't look like sisters." My sister replied, "We're not really sisters, but that's a long story." My brother-in-law pulled her by the arm and said, "For heaven's sake, Mabel, don't get started on that old thing."

Again in 1958 when Mabel and I attended a wedding dinner we became involved in a friendly political argument. Someone said, "It's strange that two sisters should have such divergent political views." Mabel replied, "We aren't related."

I'd like to get the facts straight once and for all, but both my parents are dead and my sister is now in a mental institution. How shall I go about it? Do you agree it would be worth the effort and money? — FAMILY CLOSET.

DEAR CLOSET — If you have nothing more important to do than dwell on remarks made in 1943 and 1958, I suggest you find something to occupy your time.

Mabel's present address probably has something to do with her statements. Now forget it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 24, single and enjoying my profession as a hospital nurse.

This past year three male patients have invited me out. They are high-type fellows, good company and eligible.

My aunt who raised me says she would be ashamed to have anyone know I am dating former patients because it is not respectable.

I have tried to explain to her that it is no different than a secretary accepting a date with a man she meets in the office. Will you please comment? — S.W.Q.

DEAR S.W.Q. — I see no reason why a nurse should not accept a date with a male patient after he leaves the hospital.

If you are thinking seriously about any of the three men, however, I urge you to consider all the aspects of marriage before you say yes. I've heard speculation that a man who falls for his nurse is the dependent type who wants to be catered to and waited on for the rest of his life.

Let's hear from some nurses who married former patients. Is this right or wrong?

President Outlines Year's Work At Horticultural Society Meet

The Belleville Horticultural Society held its annual meeting in the staff room at Moira Secondary School on Monday evening at which time reports from the various committees were read. Mrs. Wilson as convener of the membership committee stated that the membership total had risen to 325.

The new slate of officers was read by the convener of the nominating committee, as follows: president, Mr. A. C. Smith; first vice-president, Mr. Taylor Franklin; 2nd vice-president, Mr. Enos David, and the board of directors: Mr. Stan Downing, Mr. Gardiner, Miss Ella Rowland, Mrs. Frank Foley, Miss Nell Merry, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. R. Pringle, Mrs. North, Mrs. W. Slack and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Dreinger.

In the president's report past president Stan Downing expressed appreciation to all for the fine spirit of co-operation given him the past year and was most gratified for the many fine friendships he had enjoyed with the association.

He noted that the year had been one of achievement—but nevertheless there had been many problems but without these there would have been nothing to strive for.

PLANT PROBLEMS

Mr. Downing dealt with the problems involved in securing a working executive with the year 1964 beginning without a president. Thanks were expressed to Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Buckley for carrying on in the early part of the year with Mr. Evans becoming president for a brief period, but due to the pressure of business was forced to resign. The speaker, who was vice-president at that time, moved up to the presidency, so it was a year of many changes.

The theme for the year was "Beautify Belleville" and many fine efforts were put forth in this direction so now with the efforts of the society and the citizens of Belleville a more beautiful city in time will become a reality.

In continuing Mr. Downing expressed appreciation to the secretary, Mrs. Slack, for her efficient work; to Mrs. Wilson who headed the membership committee; to Mrs. Griffith of the program committee for arrangements made during the year; also to Mr. Buckley for publicity and to Miss Merry who took over later.

VARIOUS PROJECTS

In concluding Mr. Downing outlined the projects accomplished during the year which included the distribution of 1,000 Colorado blue spruce trees to the members; the planting of flower beds at the three entrances to the city; advertising to add stimulus to the theme "Beautify Belleville"; encouragement of Christmas lighting; awarding of a certificate of merit to Miss Ella Rowland; and the donating of $50. to the libraries of the city to provide garden and horticultural books.

Previous to his talk Mr. Downing reported that through the Japanese consul in Toronto he had arranged for Miss Macheko Endo, a Japanese lady to give a demonstration of Japanese flower arrangements at the next meeting of the Society on February 3.

Present for the program was Mr. B. Wheatcroft a representative of the Sylvania grow lamps, who gave a scientific, informative and illustrated talk on the use of these second to nature lamps.

V.O.N. Reports Month of Activity

The December meeting of the V.O.N. was held at the YMCA. The president welcomed the regional director Miss Donna Nash to the meeting. Notice was received that Miss Jean Leask, the director-in-chief from Ottawa had consented to speak at the annual meeting.

The president reported that the legal adviser to the V.O.N. was working on the incorporation of the Belleville Branch. Members discussed at some length the number of calls that are made by the staff to patients outside the three-mile limit.

Miss Dorothy Connor's nursing report indicated that a total of 556 home visits had been made through November, with 30 per cent of these visits for nursing care.

Out-of-Court Settlements Before Last Minute Urged By One-Man Commission

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Commissioner James C. McRuer of the Ontario Roy..l Commission on Human Rights suggests lawyers ought to consider out-of-court settlements before the last minute.

The former chief justice of the Ontario Supreme Court, appointed as a one - man commission to study whether human rights are infringed by Ontario laws, made the point at a public meeting here Tuesday.

It came during a submission by D. Donald Diplock, president of the Carleton County Law Association, on the heavy backlog of non-jury cases awaiting hearing in the Ottawa area. Mr. Diplock said there was such a pile-up that some cases could take 2½ to three years before a decision.

The commissioner said there is about a one-year delay for such cases in Toronto.

But he added that many cases come right up to the day set for hearing then are settled out of court. "This is true of at least 85 per cent of auto cases, at least in Toronto." This caused problems in the court calendar.

WANTS MORE EFFORT

Mr. McRuer said out-of-court settlement had a definite place in the legal field and perhaps more effort should be made to achieve it before the last minute.

The commissioner also heard from four suburban Ottawa residents with a beef against "tyranny" in expropriation by the National Capital Commission.

Mr. McRuer said the NCC, a federal body working on development of the capital region, is outside his jurisdiction. But he accepted the group's suggestions insofar as they applied to expropriation of land by municipal and federal governments.

Mrs. F. T. Graves, Dr. Conway Don, D. C. MacPhail and O. Fisher, all residents of suburban Rothwell Heights, said the NCC took over land for a parkway development in 1963 despite assurance earlier that prospective residents should go ahead and build in the area.

Their brief suggested hearings be held before any expropriation; the authority seeking the land must justify its need; formation of an administrative tribunal to consider public need for a specific expropriation as against civil rights; and that a court appeal be allowed on the necessity for any particular expropriation.

John Cassells, Crown attorney for Carleton County, but submitting a brief as a private citizen, suggested facilities be set up for speedy mental examinations connected with court cases.

He noted the nearest mental hospital to Ottawa is in Brockville, 85 miles away.

Mr. Cassels noted that a reading of different laws tends to indicate a difference between a mentally ill and a mentally deficient person in the eyes of the law.

Mr. McRuer said there should be a wide interpretation of this term in court — neither a mentally ill person nor one with the mental age of a child should be ruled fit to stand trial.

Mr. Cassels suggested the commissioner consider whether Ontario ought to join Quebec in treating offenders as juveniles until age 18, rather than 16. Many petty crimes are committed in the 16-18 age bracket and treatment as adult offenders means Ontario 17 and 18-year-olds carry criminal records, he said.

Arnold Smith Considered As First Secretary-General For Commonwealth Plan

Economic Council Seeks Price Stability

OTTAWA (CP) — What' is "reasonable" price stability?

This is one of the goals set for the country in the report of the Economic Council of Canada, published Monday.

Stepping gingerly into an area where many economists have feared to tread, the council has spelled out just what it means by "stability."

In the 1953-63 decade Canadian prices rose 15.2 per cent—a little higher than in the United States, but well short of the steep inflation in Western Europe and Japan.

The annual average price increase in Canada in that decade was 1.4 per cent for goods and two per cent for services.

Said the council:

"After careful consideration, we have assumed that if annual average rates of changes in prices and costs in 1970 can be contained on the limits of the ranges of movements over the decade 1953 to 1963, this would represent the attainment of a satisfactory degree of price and cost stability."

That will be a difficult task, the council said.

In effect, the report asks that price increases in the high-demand, high-employment conditions it foresees in 1970 be kept in line with the increases in a period of relatively slow growth and high unemployment.

U.S. PRICES KEY

This involves one major assumption: That U.S. prices also will remain relatively stable. American prices are the most important factor affecting Canadian prices — more important, the council said, than pressures on demand and supply inside Canada.

However, the council said these factors give hope for future price stability:

—Canada's recent record of price "stability" under conditions of strengthening demand and the devaluation of the dollar.

—Higher productivity growth, possible for five years ahead.

—"Price consciousness" for particular products among consumers.

—Various policy measures that would include strong public and private efforts to enhance productive efficiency in Canadian industry; active government participation in trade national negotiations aimed at freer trade; and increased adjustment to change and mobility of productive resources in the Canadian economy, along with a more effective labor-market policy and more comprehensive long - term business planning.

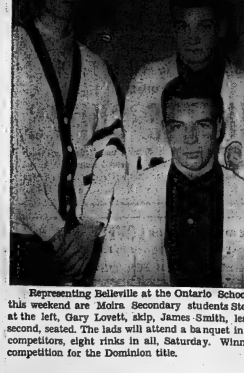
LONDON (CP) — The Commonwealth's first permanent secretariat likely will begin functioning within a few months headed by a nucleus of about 10 skilled diplomats and supported by a modest budget drawn from contributions from all Commonwealth countries.

Its headquarters likely will be in London's Marlborough House, a huge, ornate palace where the late Queen Mary resided and which subsequently was turned over by the Royal family for public use as a conference hall for Commonwealth affairs.

After eight days of closed-door talks, senior Commonwealth officials unanimously agreed Wednesday that prime ministers establish the secretariat which had been approved in principle by the prime ministers' conference last year.

There now is a likelihood that some of the top men of the new body may be selected in time to prepare the groundwork for the next prime ministers' meeting which may take place here next summer.

Among those being considered as secretary - general of the "CS," as it will come to be known, is Arnold Smith, Canada's assistant deputy external affairs minister, a veteran diplomat who was ambassador to the Soviet Union during 1962-63.



Informants said the senior officials sounded out Smith to see whether he would be available for the job. He has been seconded to - born diplomat is giving the matter thoughtful consideration. He has been stationed abroad for so many assignments that he may wish to see whether other Canadian considered.

British authorities said it appears likely that the final choice would come from Canada, Australia or New Zealand, which provide the necessary experience available in the older Commonwealth countries.

The secretariat would draw staff from a number of countries though initially only about 10 officials may be selected. It would function to provide background material for Commonwealth meetings, provide advice to the administrations and help to further strengthen Commonwealth links.

The senior officials also prepared and recommended the proposed structure for a Commonwealth foundation which would be operated by a representative entity to encourage a greater interchange of professional efforts by people of the Commonwealth.

The informant said British officials considered that the proposed £250,000 ($750,000) which initially the Commonwealth governments would put into the foundation to assist scientists, teachers and others in their Commonwealth travels. Other funds likely would come from industry and other private sources.

NO CHANGES

Indicated net asset value of Argus Corp. Class C and common shares was $21.25 at Jan. 11 compared with $20.69 at Nov. 30, 1964. No changes in major investments have taken place since the start of the current fiscal year Dec. 1, 1964.

CHANGE DATE

The Plastics Show of Canada will be held in Toronto May 23 to May 26, 1967 instead of May 2 to May 5, 1966. The change will avoid conflict with the National Plastics Exposition and Conference in New York City in June, 1966, the show's management says.

Canadian General Electric will supply more than $1,000,000 worth of electrical apparatus for a pulp mill expansion in New Brunswick.

DISPOSES OF HOLDINGS

Lynn A. Townsend, president of Chrysler Corp., disposed of nearly half his holdings in the company's common stock last month; the New York Stock Exchange said Wednesday. The exchange said Mr. Townsend sold or otherwise disposed of 32,437 shares, including 2,437 shares as a gift. He still holds 33,333 shares. Chrysler stock closed at $61.87 a share Wednesday on the New York Exchange.

Blast Kills One Worker, Injures Two

TORONTO (CP) — An explosion at the Canada Packers plant in northwest Toronto Wednesday killed one man and injured two others.

Peter Mosbolitzey, 33, was dead on arrival at hospital.

Ray Mayo, 37, was seriously burned and Jim Bigelow, 34, was slightly injured. Northwestern Hospital officials said both men were in satisfactory condition.

The three men, all with families, were repairing a tank in the fourth - floor hydrogenation department where vegetable oils are processed for margarine and shortening. The department was closed down at the time.

The blast, believed to have been caused by sparks from a welding torch, shook the five-storey building and blew out about 60 windows on one side of the building.

Police cordoned off an area around the St. Clair Avenue and Keele Street site in case of further explosions. No fire followed.

Mrs. R. McGarvey, Marmora Wins Wagon in I.G.A. Bingo

Playing TV bingo is fun!

But it is more fun when you happen to win one of the major prizes.

At least this is the case for Mrs. Ronald McGarvey of Marmora, who yesterday was presented with a new Studebaker station wagon as one of four Ontario winners in the I.G.A. supermarket TV bingo contest now attracting the interest of district housewives. I.G.A. stores provide the bingo cards and supply the prizes.

Mrs. McGarvey was presented with her new wagonaire by Vaughan Glover, Marmora I.G.A. store manager. The vehicle was supplied by Vader Motor Sales in Belleville.

The new station wagon will come in handy for the McGarvey family and their five small children. Their present 1956 model car is not operating this winter due to needed repairs.

Mrs. McGarvey doesn't drive but winning the new station wagon has caused her to come up with a decision.

"I am going to learn," she says.

Sukarno Says He Would Abide By UN Survey of Borneo Views

JAKARTA (AP) — President Sukarno called today for a new investigation by an "all-African - Asian" commission or by the United Nations of whether the people in North Borneo want to remain in Malaysia.

Sukarno said he would abide by the decision of either group and added, "am I not peaceful?"

"I am for a peaceful solution to the Malaysia issue," Sukarno told reporters, "but let us investigate the real wishes of the people of North Kalimantan."

(North Kalimantan is the name the Indonesians give to Malaysia's north Borneo states of Sabah and Sarawak.)

Asked if he would agree to a second investigation by a United Nations mission in Sabah and Sarawak although Indonesia had withdrawn from the UN, Sukarno replied:

"Yes, I am willing on (Malaysian prime minister) Tunku Abdul Rahman to come back. I shall abide by any decision on an Afro-Asian study commission. I will (also) abide by any decision of a United Nations commission."

A UN team in August and September of 1963 conducted a survey to ascertain whether the peoples of Sabah and Sarawak wanted to join Malaysia. The result was positive, but Indonesia rejected it with the contention that it was held under the threat of British bayonets.

Meanwhile, combat - ready Gurkha troops from Hong Kong landed in Malaysian Borneo today and immediately began moving toward the Indonesian border, where Indonesian troops have been reported massing.

Some of the famed Napalese jungle fighters were flown to the border area by helicopter. Others moved overland to forward posts to ready for patrol duty along the border.

Si-ttle flights of RAF four-engine Britannias will complete the airlift of the 500-man battalion to Borneo within the next five days. They will bring the number of Commonwealth troops in Borneo to 10,000.

Although Indonesia has staged only sporadic guerrilla raids across the Borneo border in recent months, intelligence reports have reported a heavy build-up on the Indonesian side.

Consumer Price Indexes Rose In All Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer price indexes rose in all major Canadian cities between November and December, the Bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

However, there was no uniform push on prices for either goods or services. For example, food prices dropped slightly in Calgary and Edmonton but rose 4.5 per cent in Toronto. Housing prices fell almost everywhere except Winnipeg, where they rose fractionally.

Following are the total city price indexes for December with the November index bracketed:

St. John's, Nfld., 121.9 (121.7); Halifax 132.5 (131.8); Saint John, N.B., 133.1 (134.8); Montreal 136.2 (135.9); Ottawa 137.2 (136.6); Toronto 138.2 (137.1); Winnipeg 133.8 (133.3); Saskatoon - Regina 130.5 (130.2); Calgary - Edmonton 128.4 (128.2); Vancouver 133.7 (133.1).

The indexes are based on 1949 prices in each city equalling 100, except for St. John's where the base of 100 was set for 1951. The indexes show changes in each city. They do not show whether it costs more or less to live in one city than another.

Abortion Law Outmoded Says Chief Coroner

TORONTO (CP)—The Criminal Code should be amended to provide greater freedom for physicians to perform abortions says Metropolitan Toronto's chief coroner, Dr. Morton Shulman.

Abortions should be legal to prevent children from being born with serious physical or mental defects, Dr. Shulman said in an interview Tuesday night.

Abortions also should be permitted when pregnancy imperils a woman's mental or physical health or when conception results from incest or rape, he added.

Dr. Shulman said he will send these recommendations to Justice Minister Favreau.

The Criminal Code now allows abortion only when a physician considers it necessary to save a woman's life.

The recommendations were favored in part by Rev. Frank Peake, associate secretary of the United Church's board of Christian education.

But Rev. Frank Stone, director of the Catholic Information Centre, said the Roman Catholic Church would reject the recommendations.

Mrs. M. L. Sitkirk, chairman of the Toronto branch of the Council of Women, said the national council has discussed the present abortion law confused, conflicting, cruel, outdated, and in some cases unjust.

The national council, representing 700,000 Canadian women, meets in Ottawa next week to recommend establishment of a federal commission to study the abortion law.

IODE Will Continue to Use Union Jack

TORONTO (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire will continue to use the Union Jack in its ceremonies as a symbol of its Commonwealth affiliations, National President Mrs. J. W. McGibbon of Toronto said Wednesday.

"We carried the Union Jack originally as a symbol of the Empire and then the Commonwealth. We will continue to carry it because we are a Commonwealth organization.

"But our national executive decided some time ago that if our government decided on a distinctive Canadian flag, as a Canadian organization, we would recognize that flag.

"We fought the good fight and we lost. I would like to think if we had won, those who opposed the Red Ensign would be as agreeable as we are."

Method to Prevent Heaving Of Roads Now Being Tried On Certain Sudbury Roads

OTTAWA (CP)—A method to prevent the heaving of roads by the soil mechanics section of the National Research Council, the city of Sudbury and Dow Chemical of Canada Limited is being tested.

The aim of the project is to evaluate the effectiveness of using foamed polystyrene—a plastic—to insulate the subgrade or natural soil under road surfaces. Heaving of the asphalt surfaces of roads occurs when the subgrade soil freezes.

Sudbury was selected for the tests because of the serious frost-heaving conditions encountered in this city due to the frost-susceptible nature of the subgrade soils.

Two 100-foot sections of road in Sudbury were selected for the tests one on Byng Street and the other on Antwerp Street.

The normal design for road construction in sudbury is to place 18 inches of sub-base or rough gravel on top of the subgrade soil. The sub-base is covered with three inches of base coarse or fine gravel and this is topped with 3½ inches of asphalt surfacing.

On the 100-foot section on Byng Street, a layer of polystyrene boards measuring two feet by four feet and two inches thick were placed 12 inches below the surface of the asphalt. This means that the boards are in the sub-base zone and extend to the level of the subgrade soil.

TRY SECOND METHOD

The tests will show whether the polystyrene boards will retard frost penetration and prevent the subgrade from freezing and causing the asphalt surface to heave.

At the Antwerp Street location the same construction design was used on half of the 100-foot section of road. However, on the other half the polystyrene boards were placed directly on top of the natural soil and covered with only nine inches of sub - base material, three inches of concrete base and 3½ inches of asphalt.

The construction work was done last Summer and tests now are being made with automatic recording equipment. Officials of the city are assisting in the observations.

Dow Chemical provided the insulation and assisted with its installation. Normal construction costs were borne by the city.

Thermocouples are being used to measure ground temperatures and a frost penetration rod of Swedish design have been installed to obtain measurements to depths of 10 feet under the road surface. Surface elevations are being determined regularly to check on any frost heaving that occurs.

Uncle Sam May Zip Up Wallet If Russia Votes Without Paying

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States is reported telling United Nations members that it will take a second look at the big sums it pours into UN projects if they let the Soviet Union keep its General Assembly vote without settling its peace-keeping debts to the organization.

In another effort to avoid a clash when the assembly resumes Monday, Secretary-General U Thant called in U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Soviet Chief Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko Wednesday.

Neither Stevenson nor Fedorenko gave any indication after the separate consultations whether any progress had been made toward breaking the deadlock.

Philippine Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez, who talked with Thant after Stevenson, told reporters he saw no sign of a breakthrough.

Thant has been sounding out the two big powers on an Asian-African plan to resolve the dispute. It would set aside for this assembly session Article 19 of the UN charter, which says a member two years in arrears on assessments loses its assembly vote.

This would remove the voting rights of Russia, France and 16 other nations who are two years or more behind because of their refusal to pay for The Congo and Middle East operations.

The plan also calls for voluntary contributions into a rescue fund to help clear up the peace-keeping deficit of nearly $86,000,000.

The United States has agreed to the voluntary contributions but refuses t. waive Article 19. The Soviets have argued to pay an unspecified sum at an unspecified time into a voluntary fund provided it is not earmarked for peace-keeping as such. They have threatened to quit the UN if deprived of their vote.

There has been some talk of winding up the assembly's general policy debate next week and then adjourning until December. But the United States, Britain and other Western nations were reported opposed to this, which would imply that UN decisions were meaningless.

Most African and Asian nations were also reported pushing for discussion of colonialism, racial questions and other issues.

TO STUDY PROPOSAL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Co-operative Union of Canada is expected to consider proposals to open its membership to large co-operative centrals and federations even in provinces where a provincial co-operative union now exists, it was announced Wednesday. The CUC said in a statement that the five - man board of directors will be considered at a three - day Canadian Co-operative Congress in Toronto, April 7 to 9.

Commerce Body Opposes Canada Pension Plan

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce turned thumbs down on the Canada Pension Plan Wednesday, but stopped short of recommending to Premier Roberts that he take Ontario out of it.

At a meeting with Mr. Roberts and his cabinet, a chamber delegation declared its opposition to the funding provision of the proposed federal pension scheme and to the plan's relation of benefits to earnings.

Any public pension plan should be financed on a pay-as-you-go basis and no huge capital fund such as that envisaged under the Canada Pension Plan should be accumulated by government, the chamber said.

Don Bath, chairman of the finance and taxation committee, said the delegation did not specifically recommend that Ontario opt out. However, he agreed that if the chamber's criticisms were accepted, Ontario would not participate in the federal plan.

Mr. Bath suggested the establishment of a flat-rate pension rather than one related to earnings. An increase in the existing $75-a-month social security payment would suffice, he said.

However, the chamber had no specific figure in mind as to a new level for social security.

Masochists' Pact Ended in Death

CALGARY (CP)—Ernest Eric Bancroft, 32 - year - old unemployed electrician, has been sentenced to four years in penitentiary on a reduced charge of manslaughter in the beating death of Eleanor Andruso, 33, a waitress.

Bancroft told police in written statements accepted as evidence Tuesday by Mr. Justice J. M. Cairns of Alberta Supreme Court that he had tied and gagged Miss Andruso during the early hours of June 9 in the city.

He said he struck the woman with his belt and later removed the car. Miss Andruso's naked body was found on a bed in Bancroft's apartment.

Pathologist Dr. Lola McLatchie testified that Miss Andruso died of asphyxia brought on by blood blocking air passages in her throat and nose. There were multiple bruises on her body.

Teen-Age Canada
Young Canadians Wanted To Join Frontier College

By JACK RUTTON

Looking for a summer job from nowhere, working also to 30 hours a day or more, isolated from civilization — for labor-er's wages?

You'll have to get in line. The unique Canadian phenomenon known as Frontier College proves every year that young male Canadians are interested in more than a soft job.

You haven't heard of Frontier College? Let me sum it up by saying this group has been performing the same job in isolated sections of Canada that our Canadian University Service Overseas does in other countries.

One hundred young men (18-20 years-old) spend months at a time in mining camps, lumber camps or with travelling railway gangs, working the regular shifts by day and organizing activities and classes at night.

THE NEED

If this sounds like missionary work, you're more than half right. The story is often told of how a missionary from Picton County in Nova Scotia, Rev. Alfred Fitzpatrick, struck upon the idea for labor-teachers after years of frustrated effort.

A mining camp or a lumber camp can be a depressing place far from the comforts of civilization. Married men miss their families. Younger men drift into a routine of card-playing and carrying that leaves some broke before they've even left camp.

And there is always the fear of what will happen if weather or other factors close the camp. What chance is there of another job if the other camps are filled?

Mr. Fitzpatrick was a strong believer in self education. And he started with a campaign to have employers build shanties for the use of men during leisure hours. Several organizations donated books and magazines.

Right away the idea ran into a problem. Men often didn't use the reading rooms. If a teacher or university student were there th men regarded the outsider as a soft-handed fellow who did not understand them.

A CHANGE

In 1901, two years after Mr. Fitzpatrick founded the first reading rooms, one instructor became so frustrated that he took a job in the camp by day. Suddenly the men who had ridded him looked again. This fellow could do their work.

The men who had shunned the classes started drifting into the back seats, one by one. And the basic concept of Frontier College was born — a teacher has to sell himself as much by example as by words. In other words, get out there and work.

E. W. Robinson, Frontier College, principal, told me this week the process is a two-way one. "Our fellows learn as much from the workers as the others do at night," he said. "It's an experience that develops leadership in a way few other jobs do."

Minimum age for teacher - laborers is 18. "But," adds Mr. Robinson, "some of our best fellows have been 17-years-old. It depends a great deal on the individual."

RAILWAY WORK

Head office for Frontier College is Toronto but applicants come from all across the country and are placed across the country. At the moment the College is considering applicants for railway gang work next summer.

The pay? "That varies," says Mr. Robinson. "The teacher - laborer earns the going rate by day and may earn more, therefore, is a mining camp than is some other jobs. But we pay a couple hundred dollars on top of that basic pay."

This means that the average Frontier College teacher-laborer leaves his summer job with about $800 or $900 — more than a headstart on university costs for the next year.

If you're interested — even for a summer job years in the future — write to Frontier Colleges, 21 Jackes Avenue, Toronto. Or simply Frontier College, Toronto. Either address will do.

STAMP HONORS CANADA

Did you know that Canada's part in international crises can often be told in stamps? During the Suez crisis of 1956, Egypt's President Nasser called in the Suez stamp as he announced he was taking over this vital trade link.

After Canada played a leading role in organizing a United Nations army to control it e emergency, both the U-N and Brazil issued stamps to mark the occasion.

It's time for stamp collectors to watch for a similar event in the stamp world. The United Nations Postal Administration in New York will issue a new series honoring U-N peace-keeping operations in Cyprus. Release date: March 4.

Canada led the way again in organizing this peace force.

NOTE: Watch for further news and more names in Project PEN next week. It's spreading into even more countries.

GUNS WERE SILENT

HALIFAX (CP) — The navy says it's a matter of protocol that shore-based batteries reply to gun salutes fired by visiting ships. The question was raised when shore guns remained silent at the arrival of three West German ships, the first post-war ships from that country to visit here. The navy said that as the German ships had no "ceremonial guns" aboard they were greeted in silence.

Jaycee Driving Tips

A car can bring so much pleasure, but also so much tragedy. Always be aware of the responsibility which has been given to you. The writing and driving test for your driver's licence was not only to satisfy the department of transport, but to satisfy yourself. This satisfaction should be given over and over again. Every time you step into a car it should be a test. Not to test how fast you can drive and still get away with it, but how safely you can handle the car. Many times during the year you have opportunities to attend safe driving competitions. Here is the place to sow your driving ability as well as your knowledge of traffic laws and regulations. Do you know the correct answers to the three following questions:

1. Traffic Control Signals are: A. traffic signals; B. turn and stop signals on the car; C. all highway signs that control traffic; D. Speed control signs.

2. Defensive Driving means: A. to drive with concern for oneself; B. to drive slower than the road speed; C. to depend on the horn to tell others that you are here; D. to consider the safety of all individuals.

ANSWERS: 1. (A); 2. (D).

Headmistress Lambasts Strip Shows Near School

By J. G. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — Strip tease has never had such an airing in Auckland as began when a headmistress lambasted strip shows near her school.

Strip tease is an entertainment comparatively recently established in New Zealand.

For some years Auckland, largest and most sophisticated city, has seen discreet performances by occasional touring revues. Bolder performances were presented in locally based shows which started a few years ago. The first of these were presented in late-night coffee shops without the necessary entertainment permits, and ended with the proprietors and performers, who were alleged to have carried their performances too far, appearing in court.

But later a court ruling held that properly licensed shows were not improper. Several permanent strip shows have been functioning at upper class level more than a year. They had become more or less accepted as part of the social scene until Miss R. I. Gardner, headmistress of the Auckland girls' grammar school, rose a broadside at the annual prize-giving ceremony of the school.

It happens that two of the shows are on opposite sides of the main street near the school, one of the leading girls' schools in Auckland. They carry large photographic displays of their performers in windows fronting on to the street.

Miss Gardner, in her speech to parents and pupils, said strip-tease shows flourished at a local city where school children of all ages waited for buses, but the public conscience remained unconcerned.

If such shows flourished, she said, because of public apathy in condemning them, "then surely we are all as responsible for those they corrupt as are those who batten on to the profits of the corruption."

"If such shows have to be tolerated surely they could be banished to back streets and side alleys where their patrons might undoubtedly find them, but where they would not be a threat to the morals of the youth of the city through their blatant advertisements and suggestive photography."

The case was promptly taken up by Mrs. G. A. Davidson, chairman of the board of directors of the YWCA, who said she and other members had already studied the advertisements and pronounced them disgusting.

The YWCA sent protests to the city authorities and the police, and discussed the situation with them.

Assistant Commissioner A. G. Quin, head of the Auckland police district, said strip-tease advertising photographs in front of the clubs are not regarded as indecent within the meaning of the law and that no action can be taken. Senior police officers agree the photographs were in "bad taste."

Mayor D. M. Robinson of Auckland believes the city council has no power to deal with the complaints. He said the Municipal Corporations Act does not appear to give the council power to frame bylaws dealing with the picture.

"I'm against anything pornographic," he says, "but I don't think we can do anything about this."

COMMEMORATES ASSASSINATED PRESIDENT

— A 14,000-foot peak in the St. Elias mountain range close to the Yukon-Alaska border has been named after President John F. Kennedy. Last November the government named a peak south of Mount Logan as Mount Kennedy but this later was considered to be overshadowed by Canada's highest point, Mount Logan. Another mountain was named after the assassinated president on Jan. 4. The Canadian Permanent Committee of Geographical Names describes the newly chosen peak as an "outstanding physical feature." Nursing Homes May Get New Regulations

TORONTO (CP) — The select committee on aging may recommend legislation covering nursing homes to the Ontario legislature next week, Committee Chairman Alex Carruthers said Wednesday.

Mr. Carruthers said that with the first round of hearings ended the committee will consider recommending legislation in its first interim report.

"I'm certainly inclined to think we should," he said. No details of legislation have been decided.

The legislative committee has heard testimony about lax, inadequate and dishonest operators of nursing homes.

Tuesday, it asked the province to investigate a nursing home conditions, calling for reports from the provincial department of welfare and health and the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

Commenting on the possibility of legislation proposed by the committee, Welfare Minister Louis Cecile said Wednesday he is against "spur - of-the-moment" acts.

Mr. Cecile said his department will be happy to consider recommendations, but he challenged critics of nursing homes before the committee to name names of offending institutions.

Burrell D. Morris past president of the Association of Nursing Homes of Ontario, told the committee last week that some nursing homes pad their accounts and in some cases blind persons have been fed scraps from the plates of other patients.

3-Lane Roads Said Coming In Peninsula

VINELAND, Ont. (CP)—Ontario highways department planners predict that three main corridors of traffic will be retained in the Niagara Peninsula in 1985.

A preview presented here Wednesday to more than 100 municipal representatives said there would possibly be some modification in the corridors.

Here is what planners said motorists will probably find in 20 years:

—The Queen Elizabeth Way will be a six-lane freeway from Hamilton to Niagara Falls, and possibly a four-lane route to Fort Erie.

—A heavier traffic artery along the Lake Erie shore of the peninsula will link Fort Erie with Highway 56 and Hamilton, by — passing Dunnville.

—The north-south traffic corridor in the Welland Canal region will be served mainly by Highway 406, now under construction, and a new highway proposed for the east side of the canal from Port Colborne to Thorold, where it will link with an east - west canal traffic route.

The main guide for the survey was an analysis of 35,000 interviews with drivers in the peninsula, plus commuter projections on development in the next 20 years.

NO LONGER TOMB

Russia has changed the name of a Kazakh republic city because it discouraged settlers—to Virgin Land City instead of Virgin Tomb.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — The first church service in the new Thomasburg United Church took place in the basement on Sunday evening, January 10, with a good number in attendance.

The Sunday School has been moved to the basement for about three weeks.

Since the fire which destroyed the former church in September, 1963, church service and Sunday School have been held in the schoolhouse and the I.O.O.F. Hall.

The building body of the church is expected to be completed within the next month and an official opening and dedication service is planned.

Should Protect Pastor's Salary Says Editorial

TORONTO (CP) — When a clergyman is charged by police with an offence he should be relieved of his work—with salary protected—until the case is settled, says The Observer, official publication of the United Church of Canada.

"It is understandable that a presbytery hesitates to take this action for fear it prejudices, in the eyes of the public, the good name of the man charged," says an editorial in the Jan. 15 issue.

The two-page editorial refers to Rev. Russell Horsburgh, 45, who resigned as pastor of Park Street church, Chatham, after he was convicted last fall on five of eight charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Free on $2,500 bail pending appeal of a one-year sentence, Mr. Horsburgh continued to receive his salary until Dec. 31, but local church officials refused to pay his legal fees.

Kent presbytery appointed Mr. Horsburgh to Park Street Church in 1960 and asked him to resign after his conviction last Nov. 10.

SOUGHT ADVICE

The editorial says:

"In this particular case, presbytery sought advice through proper channels in the proper places, and after consideration, decided not to order the minister . . . to refrain from exercising his ministry. But it did strongly advise him to refrain voluntarily until the issue was settled. His official (church) board was so informed."

Mr. Horsburgh "should have taken this advice" and when he didn't "he should have been ordered to."

"But there was a strong organized protest in Chatham against this wise advice," the editorial says.

The church should have "a firm policy" to guide presbyteries in event of future incidents.

"A minister under trial should automatically be relieved of his ministerial responsibilities. Proper arrangements should be made for temporary (clergy) supply and for the continuation of his salary. . ."

FARMS FOR PROFIT

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — This city is in the farming business, in a way. It rents out farmland and this year earned some $5,000 in revenue—but the figure isn't fixed because the land is rented on a crop-sharing basis. Revenue from the crop is divided on a percentage basis between the city and the tenant.

Mr. Ernest Craighead, welfare committee chairman, stated he had visited the hospital every Sunday last year to call on sick members of the Club and while in hospital visited other patients as well; he also sold 20 "Buy and Sell" bonnets. This meant that Mr. Craighead, although quite elderly, had travelled 20 miles, possibly at least 50 times. The club had provided funds to buy small gifts, fruit, etc., which were delivered.

Mr. Craighead particularly mentioned ward patients and urged members to visit them, as he reported they were always more than some others.

Mrs. Gordon Fields and Mrs. Becky Miller had also visited the elderly women patients in hospital and urged others to do so.

OFFERS ASSISTANCE

Councillor F. Mabee, council representative to the Senior Citizens Club spoke briefly and offered assistance in any field where required.

Reeve A. Brown said it was a privilege to be a member, he enjoyed the social atmosphere, congratulated the club on the large attendance and offered his assistance in any way.

W. Vanderwater New Chairman Of Utilities

C[illegible]BELLFORD — The Public Utilities Commission met on Tuesday evening for the first meeting of the year. Chairman Ernest Craighead opened the meeting and welcomed the new commissioner, E. Sexsmith.

By motion of Commissioner J. D. Renor and Mayor Turner, Commissioner W. G. Vanderwater was elected chairman for 1965.

Commissioner H. MacArthur thanked last year's commission members for their co-operation in 1964 and asked commissioner chairman Vanderwater, to take the chair. He also asked for the same co-operation for the new chairman and commissioners.

Vice-chairman elected was Commissioner J. O. Renor, newly elected E. Sexsmith is third commissioner on the board. Commissioner J. Renor has served on the commission for 14 years and Commissioner Vanderwater for seven years.

Finance committee was: Commissioners Vanderwater and Steele; water works, Commissioners Renor and MacArthur; engineering, Commission Vanderwater and Mayor Turner.

Commissioner Vanderwater expressed a word of advice to the commissioners that they should try to bring any complaints to the commission as that was the proper place to have them and iron out any difficulties.

The manager, James McMullen gave his report and arranged for services for the OMEA and OMEGA conference, March 1st, 2nd, 3rd.

ARCHITECT PRESENT

Mr. D. Lee, architect and engineer on the filtration plant, was present at his discussion of installation of pumps purchased by the commission from Fairbanks Morse and Company.

The plan as outlined is to install the new pumps in the basement of the water building, also a new diesel engine to be installed which was also recently purchased from Fairbanks Morse. This diesel will be an auxiliary in case of power failure. Plans will be prepared by the J. D. Lee Co. of Kingston.

Commissioner MacArthur questioned what should be done with the transformer at the pulp mill and after considerable discussion it was decided to have any action left to be present in abeyance, as Mayor Tanner mentioned the possibility of a new industry coming from Chicago.

Considerable discussion took place regarding the brick building built for a pumping station south of Anderson's Dairy. The present option was that the pump should be sold and the building removed.

It was decided on motion of Commissioners Renor and Black that the old pump machine be purchased at a cost of $500.

BUDGET PASSED

A tentative budget of $41,000 was passed for 1965 expenditures.

In the year 1964 hydro power bought amounted to 946,130, the rebate back from Hydro was approximately $9,000. This with $2,000 worth of power sold back to Hydro by the town power plant leaves a total cost of hydro power purchased at approximately $36,130.

Manager James McMullen reported some of the major projects carried out during his three years as manager, two new trucks, an aerial ladder, new fire hydrants, new filtration plant built, lines from town to power house rebuilt and poles replaced, one set down and one repaired and in good shape.

The commission has shown decided profits at the end of January 1st, power users will be receiving a substantial reduction in their accounts.

Home Town Labor Council Attacks Premier

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Premier John Robarts and his progressive conservative government drew sharp criticism from his home town labor council Wednesday night for the government's action — and lack of it — in the current strike at the Ontario Hydro plant here.

In its strongest action to date in the strike, the London labor council voted unanimously to "condemn the provincial government for passing laws to permit corporations to circumvent the rights of the working people."

The council voted to send notice of the criticism to Premier Robarts, Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson and Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party.

In making the motion, A. A. Simpson, member of Local 27 of the United Auto Workers (CLC) which is the striking union at Wolverine, struck out particularly at legislation regarding strike injunctions which he said permits management to disregard the rights of workers.

READS STATEMENT

"I am of the opinion that the Robarts administration cannot cope with unscrupulous management such as this, or else there is a deliberate looking away. If management of this type can ignore the laws of our country, then I am sure that tactics used by Wolverine Tube can be matched by others to weaken and dispose of legitimate unions."

He added: "Premier Robarts should be ashamed to come home, knowing full well that this week's administration bill has failed to do an effective job in our community and province."

Premier Robarts is member of the legislature for London North.

The union went on strike at the plant in August to support negotiations for a first contract. The company has continued operations.

P.M. Sato Visiting America Merely to Get Acquainted

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The visit to Washington by Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan is being interpreted as mainly a get-acquainted step.

The principal point from the American side has been Sato's polite but firm insistence that Japan will continue to trade with Communist China, although it recognizes only Nationalist China diplomatically.

Little or no U.S. argument is believed to have come from U.S. leaders on this point. The countries have agreed to give advance notice of any change in their respective China policies.

The public statements by Sato struck knowledgeable observers as cautious re-statements of the status quo, although others read them as signalling the Japanese intention to play a larger role in Asia and as a muted hint about more independence from the U.S.

HONEST BROKER

Sato has been in office only a couple of months. A devout Buddhist, he set forth some views on the workings of the Asian mind and made a plea for Japan as an honest broker between East and West and Communism and the free world.

He got an attentive hearing from President Johnson, State Secretary Rusk and others for various reasons.

As Sato noted, Japan is the biggest trade customer of Canada and the $5,000,000 Japanese farm the major markets for U.S. farm goods.

U.S. thinking, as well, has become increasingly sensitive to Asia because of the anti-Communist war in South Viet Nam and China's atomic bomb. Japan stands as a prosperous, friendly and expanding ally in a generally-unhappy U.S. theatre of the world.

Sato said without elaboration that U.S. national interest would benefit from an "increasingly flexible attitude in response to the needs and desires of the Japanese people."

Regarding China, it was unfortunate that the country had different political philosophy but "it is our view that if improvements can be effected through such contacts in the welfare and livelihood of the Chinese on the mainland, as with the rest of Asia, this would lead the way in the long run to peace and stability in Asia."

Added Sator: "While Japan does enjoy close and friendly ties with the U.S., her nearest neighbors (Russia and China) are the two most powerful Communist countries in the world. . . ."

Thus, Japan could play a useful East-West linkage role.

Japan was Asian but "at the same time we have come to understand Western ways of living and thinking as have any other country in the East".

One thing he reiterated time and again—any Japanese role to help stabilize Asia will be non-military.

INSTINCT STILL USEFUL

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Hans Selye, director of the experimental surgery and medical department at the University of Montreal, says neither extremely intelligent persons nor highly complex instruments are always needed to make discoveries in experimental medicine. He said in a speech that the researcher needs instead an instinctive understanding of nature and a great sense of fulfilment.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If Merv Potts, the demon publicity man of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club, is busy studying those headaches commercials on the family "quarrelsor" you can't blame him.

By spring Merv should be able to name the winner of the "Pain Stakes" for according to his latest bulletin, he and the club executive are having their share of quirks of circumstances.

It seems that when the Department of National Defence decided to whittle the army down to its size, it closed the armouries in several centres, among them Napanee and Picton, where the local badminton buffs held forth at different nights of the week.

Rather than see these beaus and belles of battledore and shuttlecock deprived of their favorite sport, the Garrison Club decided to share their courts with the aficionados of the "closed" centres.

So with the exception of odd trips to Peterborough and possibly Cobourg, the Garrisoners will be playing the balance of the season in a "closed circuit."

It involves a lot of "bost" work on the part of the city club. In fact the Potts' bulletin says that only two Saturday nights will be available for out and out club play over the rest of the season.

This, as Mr. Potts points out, should serve to stimulate more active interest locally but also will mean an extra, week lead for those in charge of food and entertainment.

The hospitality of the Garrison Club is well known throughout the district and I have been told by out-of-towners that it ranks the best. But the willing horses cannot do all the work and the executive is calling on all members to put a shoulder to the wheel.

Due to the influx of out-of-town members the Garrison Club executive has adopted a stepped-up agenda for the rest of the season. It is seeking active interest in organized play so the youngsters will be able to play in the teen-age tournament scheduled for Peterborough January 30.

It is promoting round robins to be held every playing night possible, encouraging partnerships among newer members under supervision for short periods each night.

And the treasury department has clamped down on those players who for some reason or another have neglected to pay their club dues. Long about this time of the year it is figured that the holiday bills have been paid. The errant ones are reminded that if the membership tickets are not forthcoming from now on it will be "pay or no play."

It their stiff, but as the Potts' pen points out the "new-new-new latter" season is over. Don't be bashful. Mr. Potts, Doug Law, Ted Smith and Billie Waldren will accept the backers-in with a smile and a thank you. No questions asked.

Adding to the fine gesture of inviting members of the courtless clubs of Napanee and Picton to use their courts, the Garrison people have extended their membership to these more or less "unfortunates."

These people have been invited to join the Garrison Club at a reduced fee since they have already paid for membership in their new "homeless" organizations.

The highlight of the current season is the Central Ontario Badminton Association "B" closed tournament scheduled for the armouries here on February.6. Committees and chairmen have been appointed. An all-out club effort is required.

With a mild reminder to "book the baby-sitters now" Mr. Potts announces that the Garrison Club will host Picton and Napanee in specials on January 18 and 30, while the Peterborough Club will be guests here on Saturday, January 23rd.

Rules Changes Discussed

CFL Drafts Schedule

CHICAGO (AP) — Proposals for a tentative 1965 playing schedule and a central scouting system were submitted to individual clubs for study as the Canadian Football League ended a three-day meeting Wednesday.

The CFL members were among the 3,000 delegates to the annual National Collegiate Athletic Association convention.

Some rule changes were discussed without any definite stand being taken, but they will be rehashed probably before the CFL rules committee meets Feb. 8 at Toronto.

Some sentiment was expressed to open up the interference phase of the Canadian game, legalizing blocking by backs within five yards of the ball snap and blocking on punt returns.

DRAFT SCHEDULE

The general managers drafted a tentative 1965 schedule, starting July 30 and ending Oct. 30, with 16 games a club in the western division and 14 for the eastern unit.

This schedule, after study by individual clubs, gets final action by the general managers in Ottawa, just prior to the CFL annual meeting there Feb. 10-12.

The proposal for a central scouting system, aimed at economy, will be submitted to each club before possible league action at the Ottawa meeting.

The Canadian football group felt it was not involved in the NCAA's squabble with the National and American Football leagues over premature signings of American college stars.

URGES COMMON DRAFT

HOUSTON (AP)—Ralph Wilson, owner of the champion Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, urged Wednesday a common draft as the solution to pro football's basic problem. "I think the two leagues must have some sort of an understanding on the draft before too many years roll by or I see some very serious storm clouds on the hirizon for pro football," said Wilson in an interview.

Spotlight On Brothers ★ ★ ★

Hulls, Hawks, Leafs Fight To 0-0 Tie

★ ★ ★ Tight Checking

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Too bad the 14,437 fans didn't have seats in the dressing room.

That was the scene of most of the action Wednesday night as Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs fought to a 0-0 tie in the only National Hockey League game played.

While the tempo on the ice was restricted to say the least, a feud was born in the changing rooms. Shots on goal favored Toronto 30-19, but the Hawks had 3-1 in threats.

Toronto defenceman Kent Douglas, who tangled with Dennis Hull a couple of times and then caught the back of Bobby Hull's hand in the face, delivered the first declaration of intent:

"If Dennis Hull wants trouble he'll get it," said Douglas, still smarting from Bobby's blow. "And his brother won't always be around."

The incident occurred in the first period when Douglas tangled with older brother Bobby on the boards, a split second after Tim Horton had been called for holding the Chicago superman.

"I don't know what Bobby was doing," Douglas said. "He just hit me with his glove. I guess he was looking after Dennis."

Across the hall, the Hull brothers were ready with rebuttals:

DENNIS AGREED

"Dennis is big enough to look after himself and Douglas knows that," said Bobby. And Dennis was in complete agreement.

"I don't need anyone looking after me. Maybe next time we meet Douglas will need some straightening out as proof."

The verbal scrimmage was one of the few highlights of the scoreless tie, which enabled Hawks to move two points ahead of idle Montreal Canadiens although first-place Chicago has played three games more than the Habs.

Toronto crept to within three points of Montreal and two ahead of Detroit. Leafs meet Canadiens in Montreal tonight while New York Rangers play in Boston in the only two games scheduled.

DENNIS HULL

Hawks and Leafs found their defensive play stifled by tight checking that kept play mostly in the centre ice area. Goalies Johnny Bower and Denis DeJordy weren't hard pressed as they both chalked up their second shutout of the season.

DeJordy had the toughest time, keeping the title with a big save in the final minute on a shot by Dickie Moore.

"The puck just caught my ankle," he explained.

Bower had it easier as he recorded his second straight shutout in the Toronto net, although Hawks enjoyed three power plays to Toronto's two. The three Leaf infractions were incurred by players impeding the progress of Bobby Hull.

Lightfoots Win Battle 'Of Fouls'

Belleville Lightfoots blew a big lead but fought back to win a battle of fouls 63-60 over Trenton Wilsons in a Bay of Quinte Basketball League game at Trenton last night.

Both lineups were cut to a minimum through players fouling out during the heated action. In all, Trenton lost five players and Belleville, with three on court, and Belleville lost two, leaving them five men at one's end.

Lightfoots moved ahead by 12 points early in the contest and led 32-23 at half time. Then came a great surge by the Wilsons who took a 47-40 lead at one point in the second half.

Belleville, fought back again and with 30 seconds left, were ahead 61-58 and Trenton's manager was down to four players. But later another man fouled out of Trenton and the visitors hung on for the narrow win. Belleville had lost their two men on fouls early in the second half.

Jan Hourd sparked the Lightfoot victory with a 19-point effort. Don Smith was close behind with 17 points, while Bill Latchford hit for ten.

Arlen Burleigh paced the Wilson with 16 points. Second high scorer was newcomer Jim Amm, a giant of a man, standing near 6' 7", who hit for 15. Carl Crews contributed 13.

For the Lightfoots, it was their second win of the week but left them two points back of the RCAF Flyers. The league-leading Flyer team edged Cobourg 76-72 in overtime on Tuesday night.

RCAF and Lightfoots clash head on in Belleville Monday next in a key battle for both clubs. Game time will be 8.00 at Quinte Secondary School.

Belleville Lightfoots (63) — G. Duggan 6; I. Houchin 19; D. Smith 17; J. McKibbon 4; J. Clapp, B. Latchford 10; B. Smith 7.

Trenton Wilson (60) — A. Burleigh 16; W. Whitely 6; G. Bambers 7; C. Crews 13; R. Rodgers 1; R. Gingman 2; J. Amm 15; M. Jeffery.

Scots Win Four From Canadians

EDMONTON (CP) — Scottish rinks won four of six games against Canadian curlers in Edmonton Wednesday in Strathcona Cup competition.

The Scots compiled an aggregate score of 77-68 over Canada to cut Canada's total aggregate lead so far in six days of play to 383-378.

The Scots, who started their tour in B.C. with losses in Vancouver and Trail and went on to win in Calgary, wind up Jan. 30 in Nova Scotia.

In the current tour, which started in B.C. Jan. 7, Canadian rinks have won 23 games and the Scots seven. The Scots lost all six games in Vancouver and all six in Trail, won one of six in Calgary and two of six in Edmonton Tuesday night. The tour winds up in Nova Scotia Jan. 30.

DECLINES TO SIGN

MEMPHIS (AP) — Tim McCarver, St. Louis Cardinals catcher, said Wednesday he has returned his 1965 contract to the baseball club, unsigned. "I am dissatisfied with my new contract and have returned it," he said.

229 Nights Harness Racing
Offer $2,141,150 In Purse Money

TORONTO (CP)—The Golden Horseshoe circuit will offer $2,141,150 in purse money for 229 nights of harness racing this year, it was announced Wednesday.

The schedule — an increase of 28 nights and $400,000 from 1964 — was approved at the annual membership meeting of the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association.

The three-track circuit, operated by The Jockey Club, comprises Greenwood in Toronto, Mohawk Raceway at Campbellville and Garden City near St. Catharines.

Past president Bob Parks of Hanover said horsemen will race for a nightly average of $9,350 compared with the $8,639 average of 1964.

John J. Mooney, managing director of The Jockey Club, said the season will open March 13 at Greenwood with an afternoon card of racing. Afternoon racing will be held the next two Saturdays of March.

The Greenwood meeting will run 27 days, ending April 24. Mohawk will run from April 26 to May 29, Garden City from May 31 to July 17 and Greenwood again from July 19 to Sept. 4.

The fall session will be at Garden City from Sept. 8 to Oct. 30 and at Mohawk from Nov. 1 to Dec. 4. The Ontario Racing Commission is expected to ratify the dates this week.

Scott Burchell, mayor of Perth, was named president of the association.

Hewitt, Lockhart Honored

TORONTO (CP) — Foster Hewitt of Toronto, the voice of hockey in Canada, and Tommy Lockhart of New York, for many years president of the United States Amateur Hockey Association, were elected Wednesday to the game's Hall of Fame as builders.

Their elections were announced following a meeting of the governing committee of the hall which also appointed two new members to the selection committee — James D. Norris of Chicago, co-owner of the Black Hawks in the National Hockey League, and Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., secretary - manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Norris replaces the late Walter Brown of Boston Bruins in the NHL and Juckes replaces Al Pickard of Exeter, 1923, formerly of Regina and a past president of the CAHA. Norris will represent the U.S. on the committee and Juckes will represent Saskatchewan.

Hewitt, now 60, is in his 42nd consecutive year of broadcasting hockey games. His first broadcast was in March, 1923, from the old Mutual Street Arena in Toronto. This was a senior amateur game.

He started broadcasting NHL games from Toronto in 1926.

Football Season Not Over

HOUSTON (AP) —The football season isn't over yet. The floating all-star game of the American Football League will be played Saturday at Jeppesen Stadium. And already they are dreaming up games to lengthen next season.

The AFL is considering a proposal to add a new game in early August at New York's Shea Stadium between league champion Buffalo Bills and the AFL All-Stars.

There will be no conflict between this game and the All-America game among pro rookies in Buffalo June 27 or the college all-star game in Chicago Aug. 6.

In the Chicago game Cleveland Browns, the National Football League champions, play rookie all - stars from both leagues.

Vic Emery Hurt In Sled Run

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP) — Vic Emery, captain of Canada's Olympic champion four - man bobsled team, suffered cuts and bruises when his sled overturned during a practice run Wednesday.

Emery, from Montreal, was not seriously injured and told reporters at hi. hotel that he expects to resume training Monday for the forthcoming world championships.

The Canadian plan to enter two sleds in the two - man competition Jan. 23-24 and two in the four-man competition Jan. 30-31, in which they hope to match their stunning victory at the 1964 Winter Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria.

Practising for the two - man events, Emery and brakeman Mike Young of Port Credit, Ont., were approaching the finish of the St. Moritz bobsled run when their two - man sled overturned at one of the last bends.

"We were bruised up a little bit," Emery said. He suffered a sore shoulder and minor lacerations in one arm and hand, while Young bruised his knuckles.

"We were approaching the fastest part of the season when it happened," Emery said.

N. Y. Writers Sing Chuvalo Praises

But Patterson Is Favored

By AL COLLETTI

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (CP)—Ah, those smart-aleck writers.

The drum-beaters and boxing promoters have a full-fledged heavyweight fighter in their fold, Toronto's George Chuvalo, and his arrival on the New York scene was like a blast of cool Canadian air on a hot July day.

They have sung his praises, overlooked his faults and placed him in the contender's seat. And Chuvalo is confident that under his new stewardship he will go all the way to the top.

His entourage had hardly opened camp near this northern New York resort centre Tuesday when the promotional stuff began describing Chuvalo as another Tommy Burns, Canada's first and only world heavyweight boxing champion; a Canadian Rocky Marciano, and another two-ton Tony Galento.

Perhaps there is a little of the aggressiveness of each in Chuvalo, who will fight former champion Floyd Patterson in New York's Madison Square Garden, Monday, Feb. 1. But there the comparisons end.

Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay called Chuvalo the "Washerwoman" but said he thinks the Canadian contender will knock out the "Rabbit," the name Cassius gives to Patterson.

DOESN'T MIND

Chuvalo doesn't mind the "Washerwoman" nickname. "I kind of get a kick out of it. It started several years ago when he saw me fight in Louisville and he said I was too rough and tough and fought like a washerwoman with a windmill style."

But, said the 27-year-old Chuvalo, "I never saw a washerwoman who was rough and tough and could fight."

Chuvalo wants to fight Clay after Patterson and he confidently predicted that he would knock out Floyd in their scheduled 12-rounder but unlike Clay he wouldn't pick the round.

Chuvalo no longer is a windmill-style fighter. He throws short, crushing punches and his combinations are getting sharp But he is far from a "finished" product and still has trouble blocking punches to the head, and Patterson will be firing them in salvoes.

A dozen sports writers travelled to the Chuvalo training site 100 miles from New York City Tuesday and watched him box five rounds with four fast sparring partners.

AIMS FOR BODY

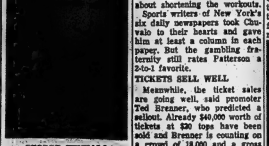
The sparring mates had an extra- heavy padding around their mid-section as Chuvalo concentrated on his body attack, throwing an occasional combination. He looked sharp and obviously is nearing the peak of his conditioning after 100 rounds of boxing at his prior training camp at Bolton, Ont.

Wednesday, Chuvalo battered a quartet of partners. In the first part of the drill, the Canadian champion worked on combinations to the head and body. In the second, he worked two rounds drilling left hooks to the body of heavyweight Cody Jones. He finished with two fast rounds against Lucky Little, a middleweight.

Trainer Theo McWhorter of Detroit said Chuvalo will continue the same routine for the rest of the week before thinking about shortening the workouts.

Sports writers of New York's six daily newspapers took Chuvalo to their hearts and gave him at least a column in each paper. But the gambling fraternity still rates Patterson a 2-to-1 favorite.

TICKETS SELL WELL



Meanwhile, the ticket sales are going well, said promoter Ted Brenner, who predicted a sellout. Already $40,000 worth of tickets at $20 tops have been sold and Brenner is counting on a crowd of 18,000 and a gross gate of $170,000, the biggest in 7½ years in the Garden.

Brenner also expects many Canadian fans will be at ringside for the fight.

Closed-circuit television will provide 250,000 seats in some 75 cities in the United States and Canada, but the New York City area will be blacked out for a 75-mile radius.

Garden officials said there possibly will be 15 to 16 Canadian outlets for closed TV ranging as far west as Winnipeg and Regina.

Patterson, the only heavyweight to win the title twice, will get 30½ per cent of the net and Chuvalo 20 per cent.

Boston Meet
Crothers Withdraws, Returns

BOSTON (AP)—Now that the controversies have been settled, officials of Saturday's Knights of Columbus track meet at Boston Garden turned their attention today to the problem of fitting all the entries into a reasonable time schedule.

BILL CROTHERS

When the National Collegiate Athletic Association voted Wednesday to put off its ban on meets sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union until March 1, seven more colleges filed intentions to enter teams in a series of mile relays.

As though the NCAA - AAU feud hasn't provided enough headaches for meet director Clarence (Ding) Dussault and company, one of the stars of Boston track meets for the last two years, Bill Crothers of Toronto, announced Wednesday night he had pulled out of the meet.

What Dussault called a misunderstanding was cleared up eventually and Crothers said he had acted hastily and would enter.

The misunderstanding arose because Crothers believed meet officials would not pay the expenses of his mates on the East York Track Club as well as himself. Actually, Dussault already had mailed a cheque to cover the expenses of the relay team, Crothers and coach Fred Foot.

Jerome Favored In Sprint

TORONTO (CP)—Harry Jerome of Vancouver, bronze medallist in the 100 metres in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, will be favored to win the sprint at the Maple Leaf Indoor Games here Jan. 23.

However, the distance he will run will be 50 yards, not considered a good distance for the Canadian star.

He faces strong competition from Paul Drayton and Mel Pender of the United States, Tom Robinson of The Bahamas and Ed Roberts of Trinidad.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Some people are a little hard to convince that out in Western Canada you'll have anywhere from a month to six weeks of sub-zero weather with the temperature varying between 25 and 40 below.

I remember one time on our farm in Saskatchewan it was 52 below early in the morning.

That's cold. You can't breathe properly. You have to carry a magazine or something in front of you if you don't have a hood, or cup your mouth with your gloved hand.

When you take them away you're all frosted around the mouth.

That's why they adopted a rule some eight or ten years ago that all games are called off if the temperature is 20 or 25 below zero.

I've had frost-bitten fingers, cheeks, and feet on a number of occasions when I was a youngster in Saskatoon.

I used to play as many as five different teams. Consequently on a Saturday I might be playing in three games on the same outdoor rink. I'd be out there for hours.

A lot of times if your feet started to freeze and you could get inside a shed and take the skates off, by running around barefoot and jumping around, it would take the frostbite and numbness out.

But when you're playing and having fun, you'd let it go to the last minute. Then probably you had about a six block skate home. The traffic used to tamp the snow on the roads down to the point where we could skate in the rute.

My mother would size up the situation. She used to start off with luke warm water and bathe the frost-bitten areas a little while. When it came out, believe me it stung like crazy.

I was lucky. A beautiful girl living near us in Saskatoon from her nose. They had to cut part of it off, marring her looks considerably.

Apple Kings Defeat Napanee 8-2

TRENTON (Special) — A five-goal explosion in the middle frame provided the Trenton Apple Kings with a convincing 8-2 OHA Eastern Junior victory over the Napanee Legion here last night.

Only about 150 fans paid their way in to the Community Centre to watch the Kings climb over Picton into the loop's third spot. Picton plays host to the league-leading Gananoque Islanders tonight.

Last night's tilt was a tight 1-0 affair, for Trenton, after one heat but the Kings led 6-1 going into the final period.

Trenton outshot the tail-end Napanee boys 30-24. Penalties, all minors, were pretty evenly divided.

Don Morrison and Tom Glover topped the Trenton attack, each with a pair of goals. Single goals were shared by Dave Johnson, Ross Quigley, Les Genereaux and Gary Stewart.

Dave Fox clicked for Napanee's first goal and Jim Stinson added the other in the third frame.

No decision has been reached yet as to whether the Apple Kings will continue to play their home games here. A council meeting, slated for next Monday night, could tell the tale.

Trenton RCAF Globetrotters will play host to the RCAF team from St. Hubert, Quebec, in exhibition hockey here Friday night. Game time is nine o'clock.

A large crowd is expected for next Wednesday's game here when the Globetrotters clash with the National Hockey League "Oldtimers." That game will start at 8:00 p.m.

FAR FROM HOME

FORD, England (CP)—Local residents were troubled by a mystery bird that flew into their district. Bird fanciers had never seen the species before—with soft white plumage and erect. Now it has been identified as a cattle egret from Africa.

"WOW! that was SOME sonic boom, wasn't it?"

$40 Handouts
Race Track Santa Claus

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—"Man, you got to be kidding me," said Ronnie Washington as he tore open the envelope and saw two $20 bills inside. "What did I have to do for this? Kill somebody?"

Ronnie had just arrived from New York City and he was almost out of money.

"Just spend it," said the nattily dressed little man who had handed Ronnie the envelope. "I hope you hit the twin double."

Santa Claus in the grey silk suit was Saul Silberman, president of Tropical Park Race Track. He handed out 50 envelopes in the clubhouse and grandstand at Tropical last Thursday and Friday, each addressed "to our $2 bettor."

Inside, beside the two 20s, was a note saying: "Thanks for being with us. Good luck."

"I don't believe it," said Dan Cassese of New York City. "Imagine having the guy who runs the race track lay $40 on you to put in action. I don't believe it."

Silberman went into action again Tuesday when he entertained a score or more wives of turf writers at dinner. He presented each with a table model gas lighter, named a race in their honor and packed them into the winner's circle for pictures with a horse called, appropriately, Listen to Reason.

Each guest was given an envelope and inside was a note which read: "Just a little token of appreciation from Mr. Silberman, for daily doubles and twin double tickets." Included was $4.

University of Toronto Blues had a close call Wednesday night but managed to maintain their undefeated record in the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Gord Cunningham scored with less than three minutes to play to give the Blues a 5-4 victory over third-place McMaster Marlins and a 7-0 won-last record.

In other league action, Laval University Rouge et Or jumped to sixth place from seventh with a 10-2 victory over eighth-place McGill University Redmen. It was McGill's fifth consecutive defeat.

Reds Slap Down Bisons, Barons Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds, tail-enders in their division ever since the American Hockey League season began, are on the prowl and the message is seeping through to the rest of the league's aliens.

The Rhode Islanders slapped down Buffalo Bisons 5-3 Wednesday night to move within four points of potential playoff territory even though they're still fifth in the five-team eastern division.

Over a 10-game span, starting just before Christmas, the Reds have collected 15 points of a possible 20 from seven victories, a tie and only two defeats. That's more points than they put together from their first 19 starts.

The only reason Providence hasn't moved up in the standings is that Springfield Indians are staging a splurge of their own. Their 4-3 victory over Hershey Bears Wednesday night was their third in a row and they haven't been beaten in five appearances since the New Year.

The victory left the Indians tied with the idle Baltimore Clippers in third place. The Clippers, too, are riding a two-game winning streak.

IT'S CATCHING

The spirit of defiance finally got through to the last and lowliest of the league's underdogs. Cleveland Barons got an overtime goal from Joe Shuex to edge Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3 and add a string of eight successive losses that have mired them deep in the western division basement.

PALACE DISSOLVED

MONTREAL (CP) — One of the main features in a park display called "The Garden of Wonders under Snow" here has appeared twice so far this winter. The display was an ice palace that failed to survive Christmastime rains and has been rebuilt.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The feud between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union in the United States over control of track and field has presented one interesting off-shoot: An influx of European athletes for indoor meets in North America.

And, conceivably, it could affect the chances of young Canadians getting to meets south of the border.

There'll be no trouble for Bill Crothers, the Markham, Ont., druggist who won the second-place silver medal in the 800 metres at the Tokyo Olympics and world-class sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver. They are natural drawing cards anywhere.

But the comparative unknowns may have a tough time getting the competition they need. The directors may not have the money available to pay their way to their meets.

"But it isn't just the NCAA-AAU fight," says Ken Twigg, director of the Jan. 29 Toronto Telegramgiple Leaf Games.

MORE AVAILABLE

"It just happens that there are more athletes available now than for the past few years. There's an increase in participation in track and field all over the world.

"Additionally, this is not a pressure year. There are no European championships, no Olympics, British Empire or Pan-American Games. So, it follows that more Europeans than ever are available for competition in North America.

"Then, it seems the AAU in the United States is taking a more active part in the sport. They are bringing in some unknown athletes from Britain, Europe and Australia and paying their travel expenses. In some cases, the AAU is absorbing the cost; in others, they bill the meet directors.

"Individual meets haven't the right to negotiate with athletes of the various countries. They can't contact an athlete or governing body directly. This is the sole requisite of the AAU.

"Then, on top of all of this, certain athletes from the NCAA colleges aren't available because of the feud with the AAU. So, it is only natural that, this year particularly when there are no major international or world-wide competitions on the calendar, Americans should go after the Europeans.

Twigg said also that this year it is possible that more women track athletes than ever will compete in indoor meets in North America.

"Generally, American women in the Tokyo Olympics didn't do well and there seems to be a move on to open more meets for them."

As a starter, he said the AAU of the U.S. for the first time in history will combine the women's and men's indoor championships. Previously, these have been separate events.

One of the features of the Jan. 29 meet in Toronto is expected to be the appearance of Mary Rand of Britain, Olympic gold medallist in the broad jump and silver medallist in the pentathlon. It is likely she also will appear in U.S. meets.

Two Habs In Running For Trophy

OTTAWA (CP)—Defencemen Jacques Laperriere and right winger Claude Larose of Montreal Canadiens are among four athletes still in the running for the Gil O. Julien Trophy, it was announced today.

The trophy, to be awarded Jan. 21, is named after a former sports editor of Le Droit, an Ottawa French - language newspaper. It goes to the best French - Canadian professional athlete in Ontario and western Quebec as chosen by a panel of sports-writers and broadcasters from Ottawa and Hull, Que.

Two Eastern Football Conference linemen still eligible for the trophy are Maurice Levesque of Montreal Alouettes and Moe Racine of Ottawa Rough Riders.

The panel also will award the Jean - Charles D'Aout Trophy for the first time this year. Named after another former Le Droit sports editor, it goes to the panel's choice as the best French - Canadian amateur athlete in the same region.

The four finalists include winger Gilles Roy, who has scored 51 goals this season for Hull Hawks of the Central Junior A Hockey League. The others are softball pitcher Jacques Chouinard of Hull, lineman Paul Desjardins of the Ottawa University football team, and Ottawa golfer Andre Nezan.

Winners in both the professional and amateur categories will receive scholarships to the University of Ottawa.

OMHA Group City Teams Win Three

Belleville won a pair of "tight ones" and trounced the opposition in another as three OMHA scheduled games were played here last night.

This century lone loss was in novice exhibition play. Trenton nipped the Belleville Ritewayz 2-0.

In the OMHA games, the Oddfellow bantams coached by Floyd Crawford, completed their schedule undefeated by edging Napanee 3-2; Oddfellow midgets shaped Napanee 2-1 and Rollins peewees whipped the hapless Wellington crew 13-0.

Napanee bantams took a 2-1 first-frame lead and it stayed that way until the third. Janitsch scored his second goal of the game to tie it for the Oddfellows and Noyes banged home the winner. Mitchell had the lone Belleville assist. Vanasline and R. Wagar were the Napanee marksmen.

The Belleville team compiled a record of 12 wins, one of them by default, and two ties during scheduled play. Five of the wins were shutouts. The team will now play exhibitions until OMHA playdowns start in February. Cobourg bantams will play an exhibition here next Wednesday, January 20.

Napanee midgets also moved ahead in their game, 1-0, in the first period on a goal by P. Hartwick. D. Jicko assisted.

Belleville Oddfellows tied it in the second when B. Carter tallied on a solo effort. L. Moore completed a play with J. Parks to give the homesters the 2-1 decision in the third frame.

The Oddfellows collected five of the game's six penalties, all in the first two periods.

Rollins walked into a 6-0 lead in the opening heat against Wellington and made it 10-0 in the second.

The Meagher brothers and Brian Cousins carried the big scoring guns. Cousins triggered five goals while Gerry and Rick Meagher each scored three times and assisted on two other goals.

Bill Buchanan chipped in a goal and two assists, Austin Wilson had two of each, Allen Neill three assists, Cliff Janitsch and Dennis Cone two helpers apiece.

In the novice exhibition Trenton scored both of the game's goals in the first frame and the Ritewayz were unable to get them back.

Armstrong from McAlpine was the first scoring play, while Don McKay fired the other goal, aided by S. McLean and Myaltrial.

Took Off Helmets, Draw Fines

QUEBEC (CP) — Two players of the American Hockey League Quebec Aces were fined by the club for removing their helmets in Tuesday night's game in Baltimore against the Clippers.

The players are defencemen Doug Harvey and rightwinger Cleland Morison. Amount of the fines was not revealed.

Quebec last month became the first Canadian professional hockey team to make the helmets compulsory. The decision followed head injuries to Quebec defencemen Jim Morrison and John Hanna.

Carlin said the helmets are no excuse for errors by the players.

Quebec lost the game 3-1.

Flyalong Winter Book Favorite

TORONTO (CP) — Flyalong was installed Wednesday as the 7-2 winter book favorite to win the 100th running of the Queen's Plate at Toronto's Woodbine Race Track June 26.

The three - year - old colt, owned by Tom Hays of Oakville and D. B. Weldon of London, Ont., was installed as favorite by oddsmaker George Duffs of The Jockey Club.

Flyalong, one-half of a $10,000 package purchase, earned $43,546 in his only year of racing.

Good Old Mort, owned by Ed Goodhouse of Toronto, was second among the 90 plate eligibles.

Conn Smythe's Greek Sak is third at 6-1, followed by Victory Myth, owned by E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm, at 10-1.

Chop - Em - Please, owned by Mrs. P. Desmarais of Westmount, Que., and Blue Mel, owned by Wilf Farr of Toronto, are rated equally as fifth choice at 15-1.

BIG CATCH

Total catch of the 10 Canadian provinces is approximately 2,000,000,000 pounds of fish annually, worth about $100,000,000.

Wild Brawl Marks Game At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — A wild brawl broke out between players and fans at a St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League game between Hull Volants and Kingston Aces Wednesday night with 10 seconds left to play in the second period.

The game was awarded to Kingston when the Hull players —who battled a number of Kingston fans in a wild stick-filled broom-swinging duel — finally skated off to their dressing room and refused to return to the ice.

The game was tied 4-4 when the brawl broke, out after lineman Jim Parfis of Kingston called an off-side against Hull seconds after assessing a game misconduct to Hull's Bob Tilley. Tilley had protested an earlier off-side call.

Mike Fennessy and Joe Seguin picked up two goals each for Hull, while Pete Robertson fired in two for the Aces and Ron Earl and Dave Jones scored once each.

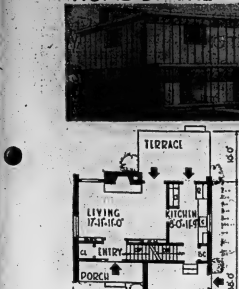
Portland Defeats Vancouver

PORTLAND (AP) — Portland Buckaroos held Vancouver Canucks to 15 shots on goal and took away a 4-2 Western Hockey League victory Wednesday night before 5,422 fans.

The win moved Buckaroos within three points of first-place Seattle and eight points ahead of third - place Canucks.



It was 1-1 after the first period on goals by Art Jones for Portland and Dave Duke for Vancouver, then Buckaroos Pat Stapleton and Andy Hebenton put away the game with goals at 5:06 and 8:16 of the second.

Billy McNeill narrowed the margin to 3-2 at 16:35 of the third period but when Canucks drew goaltender Gilles Vellemure for an extra forward, Tom McVie flipped a puck into the open net at 19:17 for Portland's insurance.

Soviet Union Doing Its Best To Tempt France Away From Atlantic Alliance

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union, sensing that a big plum may be ripe for plucking, is doing its best to tempt France away from the Atlantic alliance.

For several months now a campaign has been under way here aimed at convincing the French that they would stand to lose nothing and gain much through a closer association with Russia.

The message:

1. France's best interests are not served by its continued membership in NATO, nor in the European Common Market.

2. France's special ties with West Germany are dissolving as the Germans become more and more oriented toward the United States and side with it on foreign policy questions.

"With every passing year it is more difficult to support life in the sickly body of French-West German friendship," said the juridical science writer in the newspaper Soviet Russia Nov. 4.

2. Friendly Soviet-French relations were a prerequisite to European security.

Recent signs from Paris that France is reassuming its position in the Western community of nations have only whetted the Soviet appetite.

The Soviets probably feel that they have been in conflict with provocative statements such as contained in the Soviet Russia article, to the effect that the Common Market is "profitable above all to German monopolies."

A long article by commentator Yuri Zhukov in Pravda, timed to coincide with the recent diplomatic relations anniversary, developed further the rationale for closer French-Soviet ties.

"The historical community of the national interests of France and the Soviet Union, the need to strengthen peace in Europe, mutual interest in political, economic and cultural co-operation, imperatively demand reasonable development of contacts between our two countries."

The article welcomed de Gaulle's "pronouncement against the revision of frontiers established as a result of the Second World War"—an apparent reference to the Oder Neisse line boundary between Germany and Poland.

GERMANS 'BRASH'

It also praised de Gaulle's policy of neutralize South Viet Nam.

Arguing that West Germany has become the second NATO power after the United States Zhukov claimed that German leaders now use a "brash tone" in talking to their French colleagues.

Zhukov glossed over Franco-Soviet differences on such questions as nuclear tests and disarmament, arguing that these should not interfere with co-operation in other fields.

A few days after this article appeared, Pravda said the Soviet Union signed a five-year trade agreement covering a reported $700,000,000 worth of purchases by the U.S.S.R. France was reported to have granted Russia a seven-year credit for about $350,000,000 worth of heavy equipment included in the arrangement.

Western Song, Tragedy Theme

By JOHN LANG

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tragedy, a recurring theme of country and western music, seems to haunt the singers of the songs. Eight have died violent deaths in the last year and a half.

Shortly before singer Jim Reeves was killed in a plane crash July 31, he told an interviewer that he would prefer to stay at home but booked 100 personal appearances a year because "I like to perform before people."

"However, what I dislike most is the traveling. The main troubles are fog and danger, maybe—with tours is getting there and getting back."

Country music makers, seemingly superstitious like most, don't like to talk about deaths in their fraternity. Nevertheless, they admit they work under a combination of pressures that can be killing in one way or another.

The worst accident, a plane crash near Camden, Tenn., in March, 1961, killed Patsy Cline of four personalities from the Grand Old Opry group.

The victims: singers Patsy Cline, Hawkshaw Hawkins and Cowboy Copas and talent scout Randy Hughes. Reynolds was free from a benefit show for the family of a disc jockey killed in an accident.

EN ROUTE TO FUNERAL

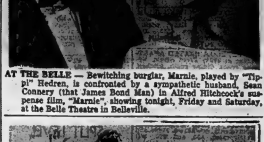
Two days later, Jack Anglin of the singing team Johnny and Jack, was killed as he drove to one of their funerals.

Reeves' booking manager, Dean Manual, died with him in the crash last July.

Texas Ruby, venerable star of country music singing, was killed last year when her house trailer caught fire, trapping her inside as she slept.

Less personally saddened by the deaths, some of the Opry plug away at new and more doleful tunes to commemorate the events, although the Opry has asked that such songs not be played and most performers and writers have agreed not to capitalize on the deaths.

Most of those who fly in light planes are being flown by other entertainers whose licences originally were intended for short trips near home. Most cannot fly by instrument and would be unequipped to do so even if they had the skill.



The crash that killed Reeves at Camden came just about an hour after Hughes, the pilot, had urged to stay on the ground because of bad weather. Similarly, the plane Reeves was flying crashed during an electrical storm.

AGREES TO SALARY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitching Juan Marichal Gianco has agreed to a $40,000 1965 contract with Los Angeles Angels, the Herald-Examiner said Wednesday. Chance started last season at a salary of $18,000. After a hassle over pay he got an increase and went on to win 20 games and the Cy Young Award as the major league's top pitcher.

AT THE BELLE — Bewitching burglar, Marnie, played by "Tippi" Hedren, is confronted by a sympathetic husband, Sean Connery (that James Bond Man) in Alfred Hitchcock's suspense film, "Marnie", showing tonight, Friday and Saturday, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Top Newscasting Teams To Cover Assorted Balls

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The three television networks will be turning out their top newscasting teams to cover next Wednesday's presidential inauguration and the assorted balls in the late evening.

NBC, it seemed, had the competitive edge in social coverage. Nancy Dickerson, a member of its Washington staff, has an almost encyclopedic acquaintance with the city's political inhabitants.

Mrs. Dickerson, a competent broadcasting journalist for some time with CBS, moved over to NBC last year. A friend and a favorite of the president and Mrs. Johnson, she has since scored a number of impressive NBC scoops.

Recently she emerged as a Washington social leader herself after the President and Mrs. Johnson attended a party she and her husband gave.

Mrs. Dickerson can be depended upon to identify the Washington higwigs and to describe the women's ball gowns on Wednesday night.

To meet the competition, CBS added Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke, wife of the former state department chief of protocol, to its inauguration night staff.

Mrs. Duke's social credentials are as impressive as Mrs. Dickerson's. She not only knows her way around political and diplomatic Washington but before her marriage to Duke was Robin Chandler, one of the panelists on Leave it to the Girls, and a fashion writer as well.

J. Edgar Hoover, the head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has finally given his consent for a television series about the G-men. ABC and Warner Brothers have been working on the untitled project for years. The series is set for a Saturday night hour next fall.

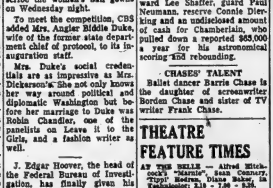
Recommended tonight:

Perry Mason, CBS 5-6 EST—Barry Sullivan pinch-hits for Raymond Burr in solving The Case of the Thermal Thief — who is played by Bettye Ackerman, usually seen in Ben Casey.

'The Stilt' Traded To Philly Club

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain, the highest-paid player in the National Basketball Association, was traded to Philadelphia 76ers by San Francisco Warriors late Wednesday night after he had played for the West in the league's all - star game.

The Warriors received forward Lee Shaffer, guard Paul Neumann, reserve Connie Dierking and an undisclosed amount of cash for Chamberlain, who pulled down a reported $65,000 a year for his astronomical scoring $50 rebounding.



CHASES' TALENT

Ballet dancer Barrie Chase is the daughter of screenwriter Borden Chase and sister of TV writer Frank Chase.

Latest Toy of Film Famous Is Steam Room in Home

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Back in the stone age of Hollywood's history, the status symbol was the tennis court. Then it became the swimming pool—the grander it was, the higher the status.

Now a recent illness have brought the private projection room, the fully-equipped soda fountain, the racket, the Palm Springs house, plus the shifting vogue in cars, ranging from custom jobs of obscure European make to the always acceptable Rolls Royce.

Another wrinkle was the car telephone. This was pioneered by Frank Sinatra, a pace-setter in the field of status symbols (private plane, ballcopter pad, etc.)

Sinatra also provided a classic example of status one-upmanship. It seems that Sammy Davis Jr., then a devout follower, had a telephone installed in his car and called Sinatra's car with the news.

"Just a minute," said Sinatra. "I've got a call on my other phone."

HAS LATEST FAD

All this is by way of introduction to the latest toy of the film fraternity—a steam room. Sinatra has one. So does Glenn Ford. Dean Martin has been considering the installation. Other actors and producers have had steam rooms installed or planned.

The cost for sweating it out, Hollywood style? It can range from $2,500 to $10,000. A bachelor with steam machine (Sauna, or Scandinavian style) to $10,000 for a sumptuous steam room like the one built by television producer William Dozier.

One of the most popular of the Beverly Hills steam rooms is owned by Tony Owens, husband of Donna Reed and producer of her television series.

The procedure is simple. The notion that the steam is good for weight reduction.

"Drink a glass of water and you've got the fluids back again," he said.

MAKES DRIVING TOUGH

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—When stopped by police, James Sinclair agreed his car did seem to be behaving oddly. One, wheel had fallen off. He was fined $50 for being impaired and his licence was suspended for three months.

Admits Part In Conspiracy

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuters) — A witness in Britain's "soccer conspiracy trial" here said Wednesday he had paid a former professional soccer player about £2,000 ($6,000) from betting winnings.

Reginald Parry, a tavern keeper, told the assizes (county court) that after talking with James Gauld, former Mansfield Town player, he placed bets for him on three league matches. He later paid Gauld somewhere in the region of 2,000 sterling."

Gauld, 35, and two other soccer players admitted Tuesday taking part in a conspiracy to "fix" league matches for betting purposes.

The judge ordered them held in custody for sentence to be passed later.

Canadians Win First Golf Round

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (CP-AP) — All the favorites and three of four foreign entries in their first - round matches Wednesday in the South Atlantic Women's amateur golf tournament.

Sandra Post, 16, of London, Ont., the 1964 Canadian junior and Ontario women's champion, downed Monica Steegman of Cologne, West Germany, 7 and 5.

Maggie Masters of Victoria, Australia, who now lives in Ottawa, defeated Mayers of Ormond Beach 3 and 6.

Germany No Issue In Khrushchev Fall

MOSCOW (CP) — Did Nikita Khrushchev's desire for a Soviet-West German understanding have anything to do with his downfall?

The consensus among Western experts now seems to be that it contributed only indirectly, if at all.

In the immediate aftermath of Khrushchev's ouster as Soviet premier and Communist party boss there was a widespread nagging suspicion that his policy toward West Germany was somehow involved.

Recently, however, such speculation has abated. Soviet spokesmen are reliably reported to have assured West German officials that the Kremlin's policy course does not mean a policy switch.

Observers noted that Leonid Brezhnev, the new first secretary, made only a mild reference to the German question in his major policy address at the Kremlin Nov. 6.

Brezhnev called for "a peaceful settlement for Germany." To ensure European security it was necessary to discard "revanchist doctrines and conceptions," and recognize the existence of two German states.

"There . . . can be no other foundation for ensuring peace in Europe."

BI-RLIN OMITTED

The statement represented no departure from what Russia has been saying all along—except that there was no mention of Berlin. A fundamental tenet of Khrushchev's policy was that a German settlement must involve making West Berlin a free, city separated from West Germany with which it now has special ties.

Whether Brezhnev's omission might signal a Soviet change of position on this point was not immediately clear.

People link generally hard line on Germany, Khrushchev was firmly identified with moves to achieve some kind of breakthrough on the long-deadlocked German issue.

At the time of his overthrow he was making plans to travel to Bonn for talks on the subject early next year with Chancellor Erhard.

After his downfall, speculation was that forces within the Soviet Union opposed to the Bonn mission had contributed p o w e r fully to Khrushchev's overthrow, if they had not actually engineered it.

Only a few weeks previously, an electronics expert attached to the West German embassy was stricken with what appeared at a shrine not far from Moscow and severely injured. This was later looked upon as the work of handiwork of the same powerful forces opposed to Soviet-West German reconciliation, seeking to force a cancellation of the Khrushchev visit.

The general tendency now is to regard the electronics expert, Horst Schwirkmann, as the victim of a cat-and-mouse game between himself and the Soviet secret police. Schwirkmann is believed to have "de-bugged" the West German Embassy of a number of Soviet-installed listening devices.

The thesis that Khrushchev's approach on Germany directly contributed to his removal is receiving less and less credence here.

Indirectly, it may have figured. Khrushchev paved the way for his visit to Bonn by sending his son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, on an advance scouting mission. Adzhubei talks there laid the groundwork for a German invitation to Khrushchev.

Entrusting such a highly sensitive mission to his son-in-law may have been one basis for the charge of nepotism believed to have been brought against Khrushchev by his political prosecutors.

Stirling

Lodges Mark Thomas Wildey Anniversary

STIRLING — Last Saturday evening approximately 200 Odd Fellows, Rebekah and friends gathered in the I.O.O.F. hall, Chariotts Street, Stirling, for the observance of the 146th anniversary in commemoration of the birth of Thomas Wildey, born January 15, 1782, the founder of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

Glanu Clarke, Noble Grand of Stirling Lodge, No. 239, welcomed the group and spoke briefly re the sponsorship of a delegate to the United Nations "Pilgrimage of Youth." Jana Svoboda of Stirling, now a student at Albert College, Belleville, was chosen in 1964 as one of the 1145 students from the United States and Canada. John had been attending the Stirling-Rawdon District High School at that time. The Odd Fellow and Rebekah Lodges of Stirling, Springbrook, Campbellford, Madoc and Tweed participated in this venture. The same plan is being followed in 1965 and congratulations for the privilege of being a delegate will be held at the high school in this area which are Campbellford, Marmora, Madoc, Tweed and Stirling. The modest winning this all-expense paid trip must have a certified standard of leadership, interest in the community welfare, concern in world affairs and above all, good health.

INTRODUCES DELEGATE

Mr. Clarke introduced the delegate, Mr. John Svoboda Jr., who voices thanks to the members of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs who had made this trip possibleand remarked that everywhere they travelled, both in Canada and the United States that they were warmly welcomed by members of both lodges.

He gave a vivid description of their trip to and fro and many interesting details. The delegates had the privilege of viewing the United Nations in action; they toured the various buildings; listened to several lectures and discussions and heard the business conducted in five languages. They also visited International House where graduate students from 80 different countries live under one roof in perfect harmony.

Following his opening remarks John gave a clear and colorful illustrated lecture which took the audience on an imaginary tour of the United Nations showing scenes in various rooms, the UN flag and special stamps issued.

The second set of the travelogue centred around vivid scenes of the Empire State Building, various hotels, the Yankee Stadium, Lincoln's memorial and scenes of interest.

The third part pictured the New York World's Fair. The different countries had arranged special displays and the various fountains and towers were most beautiful. A visit to the Kennedy Shrine and scenes of Niagara Falls closed the travelogue and John was given an ovation for his portrayal of this interesting trip.

LIFE OF FOUNDER

Bro. Charles Carter gave a glowing account of the life of Thomas Wilder. In 1804 he was initiated into an Odd Fellow Lodge in England and served with distinction for 13 years and founded a new lodge. In 1819 he and expended millions of dollars annually for the relief of distress and for education.

When the Grand Lodge of Maryland and the United States was formed Thomas Wildey was chosen its first Grand Master. Brother Carter outlined the various projects of the organization which include the C. P. and T. fund, the student loan fund, world eye bank and research and the United Nations pilgrimage.

The birthday party continued with a luncheon in the dining hall served by lodge members and this was followed with a dance hour in the hall when music was supplied by Mrs. Philip Conley, Norman Rossbush and Phil Beaudrie.

10 Quebec PC's Issue Challenge To Diefenbaker

Want National Meeting To Test Leadership

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative party's 10 - member Quebec caucus Thursday issued a direct challenge to opposition leader John Diefenbaker by asking for a national convention to test his leadership of the party.

Flanked by his nine colleagues, Quebec leader Leon Balcer told a press conference the group asking national president Dalton K. Camp to call the executive together to fix a date for a leadership convention.

The decision, made at a closed-door meeting in Montreal and announced later in Ottawa, postponed for the time being any plan by Mr. Balcer and some followers to bolt the party to sit as independents in the House of Commons.

Mr. Balcer, 47-year-old lawyer from Trois Rivieres riding, said about four weeks ago he was considering quitting the party. He had discussed this chanted with Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership because of the opposition leader's policies toward Quebec.

Mr. Camp, who met with the group following their Montreal meeting, said in Toronto he is waiting to receive a letter from the caucus.

OBTAIN VIEWS

"I then will discuss it with the principal officers of the party" to obtain their views about possible action.

On calling an executive meeting as requested, he said "there are many of discussing this matter without calling a meeting." He said it was "unprecedented" for a leadership convention to be held when the office was occupied.

Although the caucus unanimously agreed to the statement, an informant said the group was not unanimously in favor of ousting Mr. Diefenbaker. The informant said all supported the request for a leadership convention but that six of the 10 were ready to stand by him.

Mr. Diefenbaker was unavailable for comment Thursday night.

After Mr. Balcer said he was considering leaving the party, there were reports that up to three others might follow him.

Despite Mr. Camp's trip to Montreal, Mr. Balcer said he has no guarantee the leadership convention will be called.

Mr. Camp had announced he had met in Halifax earlier with Senator Wallace McCutcheon, Nova Scotia Premier Stanfield and former finance minister Donald Fleming, but declined to say what was discussed.

WANTS REPLY SOON

The caucus statement said the caucus expects a reply from Mr. Camp before Parliament resumes Feb. 16. Another meeting to "review" the situation would be held if there is no reply.

The statement said the caucus is "determined to solve with the co-operation of their colleagues from the provinces of Canada" certain "difficulties" within the party.

It also said the caucus "unanimously expressed their confidence in their Quebec leader (Mr. Balcer)."

The caucus reiterated its complete support of the party's "historic principles" exemplified by Georges-Etienne Cartier and John A. Macdonald. It

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An extremely cold air mass covered Ontario during the night and spread eastward across Quebec and into the Maritimes. In general it was below zero throughout Eastern Canada.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Many Conservatives across Canada, including young PCs in Montreal, turned thumbs down Thursday on a suggested national convention to vote on the leadership of John Diefenbaker.

Ten Quebec Conservative MPs led by Leon Balcer asked for the convention at a press conference in Ottawa, pointing to certain unspecified "difficulties" within the party.

The strongest reaction came from Montreal where Bernard Rheaume, president of the Montreal council of the young PCs, said "it's time to change the party's Quebec leader and not the one in Ottawa."

"We need a Conservative organization in Quebec that will join in the other provinces in strengthening the party nationally," said Mr. Rheaume, who is also vice-president of the Montreal provincial young PCs.

However, Mr. Balcer obtained support from Quebec in a statement by Claude Barrett, vice-president of both the Montreal and provincial young PCs.

Mr. Herart called the manoeuver of Mr. Diefenbaker as national party leader and the restoration of Mr. Balcer "to his honorable place in the Conservative party."

Mr. Rheaume said Mr. Herart's statement was not on behalf of the Montreal council.

'NO VACANCY'

In Nova Scotia, George Nowlan, finance minister in the last Conservative government, said Mr. Diefenbaker is leader of the party now, and there is no vacancy at the moment." He did not elaborate.

Campbell McLean, president of the PC Association of Manitoba, said he "doubts a request by 10 members would force the party to hold a convention."

Martin Pederson, only Conservative member in the Saskatchewan legislature and provincial party organizer, and Leslie Strand, executive secretary in front of his home, standing for hours in drizzling rain, to greet the PM as he appeared at the window of his drawing room with Lady Churchill.

Churchill's appearance in the window was the first time he had been seen by the public for many months. He appeared frail, but cheerful, and delighted in the mutual and overflowing endearments of their greetings.

News of Churchill's illness spread quickly through this capital and calls began to flood in to the newspaper offices from the public, anxious to know the latest details.

POSTPON'S CHOICE

ENUGU, Nigeria (Reuters)— The World Council of Churches' central committee has shelved until next year choice of a successor to its secretary-general, Dr. W. Visser't Hooft, of The Netherlands, it was announced here Thursday night. Dr. Visser't Hooft, who has held the post since the council was formed in 1948 and is due to retire next year.

Churchill Suffers Stroke

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill's doctors announced today that the 90-year-old statesman had suffered a stroke.

A medical bulletin signed by his personal physician, Lord Moran, and by Lord Brain, a leading British neurologist, said:

"After a cold Sir Winston Churchill has developed circulatory weakness and there has been a cerebral thrombosis."

"A further bulletin will be issued at 10 p.m. (5-p.m. EST) tonight," the medical announcement said.

A medical authority said the thrombosis meant that a blood vessel carrying blood to and from the brain had been ruptured and that there could have been a major or a minor vessel.

WEAK IN SYSTEM

Circulatory weakness was a weakness in the blood system of the body, the authority said.

Churchill's doctors, Lord Moran, himself, and Lord Brain, 69, called at his London home shortly after the arrival of the former premier and minister's son-in-law, Christopher Soames, minister of agriculture in the last Conservative government.

Disclosure that Churchill was sick came after a rumor spread that the elder statesman suffered a stroke.

A member of the British Second World War leader's staff said:

"It is true that Sir Winston is not very well. But you must remember his age. He is a man of 90 and you just cannot tell. He is in bed with a health."

He said that details of his health, if necessary, would have to come from his doctors in the form of a medical bulletin. He did not know whether a bulletin would be issued, or would be necessary.

AFTER A COLD

Churchill was understood to have become unwell following a cold.

Churchill celebrated his 90th birthday last November 30 at his house in Hyde Park Gate, in central London, with a family party.

Hundreds of well - wishers thronged the narrow street in front of his home, standing for hours in drizzling rain, to greet the PM as he appeared at the window of his drawing room with Lady Churchill.

Churchill's appearance in the window was the first time he had been seen by the public for many months. He appeared frail, but cheerful, and delighted in the mutual and overflowing endearments of their greetings.

News of Churchill's illness spread quickly through this capital and calls began to flood in to the newspaper offices from the public, anxious to know the latest details.

Rivard's Wife Cannot Recall When Loaned $60,000 Repaid

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Marie Rivard, 32-year-old wife of suspected narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard, testified today she does not remember exactly when she paid back the $60,000 she had raised as her husband's bail.

She told the Dorion inquiry also withdrew the money in $1,000 bills from the Royal Trust Company around Sept. 20 and went to Montreal's Place Ville Marie and put it in a safety deposit box in the Ville Marie Trust.

She said she went to Ste. Eustache and paid back the $15,000 she had borrowed from a bank there.

She had returned $20,000 to Ovide (Dave) Gagnon, a gatekeeper at their husband's resort. She did not have any idea when she had returned this money, because she was "so anxious" to give it back.

She had returned $17,000 to Bill Lamy, a grocer, but she did not know whether it was the same day.

She had also given $6,000 to Gerry Turenne, her husband's business partner at the Plage Idéale resort.

Mrs. Rivard said she paid interest to the bank, but she did not know what amount. She had given Lamy $200 in interest. She had paid Gagnon interest at the same rate as the bank, but she did not remember the amount.

Rivard has been in Bordeaux Jail since his arrest June 19.

Mrs. Rivard testified Thursday she raised the money in four days in June and had deposited it in the Royal Trust Company for possible use as bail.

Mrs. Rivard also testified about an evening in July at Maxime's lounge with Eddy Lechasseur, Robert Gignac and Linda Dumont.

She said Gignac, a murder suspect in another case, had given her the telephone number of Guy Masson at the Fontaine Bleau Motel in Hull, Que.

Gignac had earlier identified Masson as a Liberal party organizer who claimed to be enlisting the services of a so-called extradition expert in Ottawa to help her husband.

Mrs. Rivard said she gave this telephone number to her husband's lawyer, Raymond Daoust.

She had called Mr. Daoust again later and been told by

Diefenbaker Wins Respite From Leadership Challenge

OTTAWA (CP)—For the third time in two years, former prime minister John Diefenbaker has won a respite—brief as this may be—from challenges to his continued leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

In January, 1963, while still in power, the national party met in annual meeting and challenged his government's nuclear arms and defence policy. On Jan. 19 he won an overwhelming vote of confidence after he declared:

"In the face of changing circumstances, (I ask you) not to bind us in any way to do those things that in the light of events in the next few months may be ineffective and premature."

In February last year, at a similar meeting after a long build-up of criticism against him, he won another ovation when he declared:

"I want to know where I stand. I want to know where you stand, too."

It was at last year's party meeting that he proclaimed in response to internal party pressure that Leon Balcer, 47-year-old Trois Rivieres lawyer and former transport minister, would thenceforth be Quebec leader of the party.

On Thursday, Mr. Balcer met with his nine Quebec Conservative MP colleagues for five hours in Montreal and then came to Ottawa to announce they had unanimously agreed on a statement of their party position.

They were unanimous in support of Mr. Balcer as their Quebec leader, and they are unanimous in support of basic Conservative party principles.

But they were asking Dalton K. Camp, party president, to call an executive meeting and a national convention at which the leadership of the party would be decided, and at which party platform matters would be debated and determined.

It was, on the surface, a direct challenge to Mr. Diefenbaker's continued leadership. But it was one step removed

British Protest Proposed Sale Of Dozen Otters

Martin Says Aircraft Were for West Irian

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has halted a proposed sale of 12 Otter aircraft to West Irian, an underdeveloped island part of Indonesia, pending clarification of the purpose of the sale, External Affairs Minister Martin said today.

He denied that the planes were to have been sold directly to Indonesia and said they were to have been used only for peaceful purposes under the control of an international organization in West Irian.

An official of the external affairs department said it would be some time before the first of the aircraft would come off the assembly line of the de Havilland Aircraft Company at Downsview, Toronto.

West Irian is part of the old Dutch East Indies now being developed by a UN organization known as FUNDWI (Fund of the United Nations for Development of West Irian) The Netherlands and Indonesia.

NOT FOR HOSTILITIES

Mr. Martin said in an interview the aircraft purchase was being negotiated by FUNDWI and the understanding that they would be used only under its control in West Irian and not in hostilities between Indonesia and Malaysia.

The planes have not gone forward yet and they are being stopped until we have examined the situation," Mr. Martin said.

External affairs sources said any Otter aircraft in Indonesia at present would have been delivered prior to April 5, 1963, the expiry date of the last export permit granted by the Canadian government.

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Britain, fearing an Indonesian attack on Malaysia, has urged Canada to stop selling Otter Aircraft to the Indonesian government.

A Commonwealth official spokesman said today that so far Canada has given assurances that she would meet the British request and diplomatic exchanges on the issue are continuing.

He understood that if the issue is not resolved shortly Prime Minister Harold Wilson will discuss the representations when he meets with Prime Minister Pearson.

Wilson plans to make his second trip to Ottawa in the early part of February. The two met in Ottawa early last month.

Indonesia is reported to have received a dozen of the single-engined planes — which can carry both troops and freight—over the past nine years and is currently believed to be ready to take up an option for another dozen.

The planes are produced by the de Havilland Aircraft Company of Downsview, Toronto suburb.

USE IN JUNGLE

The British government got wind of the new negotiations just as military intelligence reports indicated that at least one of the planes is being operated by Indonesia to drop food or arms in the jungle battleground of Borneo.

A Canada House spokesman said he had no information on the British-Canadian differences but published reports here indicated that the Canadian government initially argued that Indonesia promised to use the aircraft for peaceful purposes.

The Guardian, publishing the story on its front page, describes the Canada-United Kingdom differences on the Otters as "a potentially serious diplomatic dispute."

The United States also has been supplying aircraft to Indonesia but a British official said the U.S. has halted the shipment of large transport planes.

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio said today Indonesia will continue its armed landings against Malaysia because the people of "North Kalimantan" (Malaysian North Borneo) expected it to support them.

Answering questions at a foreign correspondents luncheon here, Subandrio said Indonesia wanted a peaceful solution to the Malaysia problem but because of the expectations of the North Kalimantan people "we are forced to send forces to Malaysia."

He said psychologically this was part of the whole Malaysian problem.

In answer to another question he said Indonesia is prepared to meet Malaysia and Britain immediately, without preconditions, to try to find a solution to the peaceful settlement of the Malaysian - Indonesian dispute.

Asked if he thought the continual armed Indonesian attacks on Malaysia might lead to war, he said: "We know that. We are trying to limit that."

KEEN FOR PEACE

Earlier he said: "We want to solve this question peacefully and I think it is not too difficult to solve."

It was a matter of psychology and trust in each other, he said, and added that the unity of Malaysia in the Southeast Pacific area had not been sufficiently prepared.

Subandrio acknowledged the buildup of Indonesian troops along the border with Malaysia, but said: "We are not preparing ourselves for war. We know that the Malaysia problem cannot be solved by war."

However, past experiences had shown that Britain would use her military power to settle their differences, he said, and referred to the Sues affair in 1956.

British were building their forces in Malaysia, so that Indonesia did not face Malaysian forces, but British, he said.

New Offer Made Ford Employees

TORONTO (CP)—Ford Motor Company of Canada has again attempted to head off a strike by 10,300 Ontario workers by offering a new contract proposal but the United Auto Workers (UAW) union appeared to have come too late to be seriously considered before the 2 p.m. strike deadline.

The new Ford offer involves wage increases of at least 24 cents an hour over three years, plus pension and vacation improvements.

George Burt, UAW Canadian director, said study of the offer would take hours. It appeared doubtful the union would have enough time to consider all aspects of the proposal before the strike deadline.

"We still have not reached terms of a negotiated union standards," he said. This is a major non-economic issue in the contract dispute.

The union and company had met in an all-night session in bargaining talks for a three-year contract before the latest Ford offer was made at 7:30 a.m.

The last contract, affecting 8,200 workers at Oakville (7,3) at Windsor and others at Brantford and Welland, ended Dec. 1.

Most of the Oakville workers walked off their jobs prematurely Wednesday. But 160 employees, some of them p. sionaries, reported for work

Crisis of Confidence Grips Indian Government

NEW DELHI (AP)—A crisis of confidence grips the Indian government.

New Delhi's top leaders privately say they are unsure of the reign ahead and worried about India's internal health. Most important, their confidence in Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri has slipped.

Shastri, 60, in office eight months, is coming under fire from his political opposition—rightist as well as leftist—and the Indian press is bombarding him with charges of indecisive rule of this land of 480,000,000 people.

Six months ago, when the stunning impact of Jawaharlal Nehru's death united India's ruling elite around Shastri, he could have easily withstood all this.

Today, even-top aides in his Congress party are angry at what they call the prime minister's diplomatic ineptitude and political fumbling.

Several influential politicians quietly are campaigning for Shastri's job.

The only thing preventing an open political battle is fear among the aspirants that they lack the necessary party backing and that to challenge Shastri publicly at this time would unleash disruptive factors that could do immense harm to party and country.

This is reported by leading political and government figures who say nothing must be done to disturb India's precarious balance on the edge of economic chaos and political turmoil.

They see Shastri—a middle-roader—as the only man acceptable to the many factions of his huge Congress party. Almost all potential rivals in sight have carried leftist or rightist tags most of their political careers.

Nevertheless, political empire building is under way.

Railway Minister S. K. Patil, a pro-American conservative, is seeking support. A few months ago, he was strongly backing Shastri; Morarji Desai, an influential conservative, and V. K. Krishna Menon, a leftist, are active. Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit, who has acknowledged an ambition to be prime minister, is trying to work her way into the capital's inner circle.

Shastri, at first a reluctant hero, appears confident of his place but he must hang on to the top job. But he also is aware that contenders are lining up.

"I have to carry on this burden," he said in an interview.

"Given the time, some of the ticklish problems we are faced with at present will be resolved."

Mercury Plummets to Record Depth of 14 Below in City

Brrrrrrr, it was cold.

At least it still was cold when this was written at nine o'clock.

True to the weatherman's prediction the mercury last night plummeted to record depths for the winter, dropping to a low of 14 below zero at the pumphouse.

Pumphouse records show that the temperature dropped steadily yesterday and last night until it was 14 below at 4 o'clock. At six o'clock it was 13 below, but by eight o'clock had dropped back to 14 below.

COLDEST OF WINTER

It was by far the coldest night for the winter, the previous low being in December when the mercury got down to zero.

But local garages had a hey day this morning with every tow truck in the city doing double duty.

"We're going crazy here," the service manager of a large Station Street garage said this morning.

"We had 35 calls before midnight and another 60 this morning. I could use four more tow trucks."

And local taxi firms had the same story.

"We're running about half an hour late on calls," stated one cab despatcher. "In fact you'd be lucky to get a cab in half an hour."

Firemen Battle Garage Blaze At 12 Below

City firemen battled a blaze on St. Paul Street in 12 degree below zero temperatures last night when fire broke out in a repair garage occupied by the Interprovincial Wire Pipeline Company.

The blaze which broke out shortly before 11.00 o'clock almost destroyed the double frame-laun brick building and an adjoining office.

Cause of the blaze is as yet unknown and no estimate of damage has been set. The building, owned by the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company was used by the Interprovincial Wire Pipe Line Company for repairing their vehicles. The garage was located at 75 St. Paul Street.

Having had achance to thaw out from the St. Paul Street call, firemen received second call at 12.33 to the home of Mrs. Edward Edwards at 48 North Front Street to attend a flooded space heater.

No damage was received at the department at 1.16 a.m. to a chimney fire at 10 Univers ity Avenue at the home of Lorne MacDonald. No damage was reported.

MCF in Design Form Will Mark Highway

Measures to be taken to implement new Government policy with respect to the naming of Highway 401 as the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway, were announced today by Ontario Highways Minister Charles S. MacNaughton.

The Department is presently designing a large distinctive sign bearing the new name and its historic significance which will be placed at such principal interchange points as Windsor, Toronto, Brockville, Cornwall and the Quebec border. Signs will also be placed at service centres on the Freeway and route markers showing the initials MCF in design form will be placed at frequent intervals along the highway. Probably every third or fourth route marker along the highway will be replaced by markers bearing the MCF design before the crown and of a distinctive color.

Upon completion and approval of the design, fabrication of the same signs will proceed in order that erection of new signs and placing of new route markers can commence in the spring of 1965.

JOSEPH DANIEL DEFORGE

Former member of the RCAF with 19 years' service between 1943 and 1962, Mr. Joseph Daniel Deforge of Point Anne died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital this morning. He was in his 46th year.

Born at Quebec, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Deforge. Mr. Deforge had always called Point Anne his home and during the early 1940's was a star member of the Point Anne Tennis Club.

He had served overseas as flight sergeant with the RCAF and since his discharge two years ago worked as accountant with the Marconi Radar system. He was a member of St. Anne's Catholic Church at Point Anne.

A bachelor, he is survived by a brother Earl of Point Anne, and two sisters, Mrs. Garnet (June) Marcks of Point Anne, and Mrs. Jack (Teresa) Clark of Point Anne.

Mayor Givens Wants Public Housing Plan

TORONTO (CP)—"We mean business and we want action," Mayor Philip Givens said Thursday.

He announced he and Metropolitan Toronto Chairman William Allen will present a complete public housing program to Economics Minister Stanley Randall, who earlier replied Mr. Givens' criticisms about the government's handling of housing problems.

Mr. Givens said in an interview he and Mr. Allen will meet the minister as soon as possible.

The mayor's comments were the latest development in a dispute that started Wednesday when Mr. Givens said Ontario needs a separate ministry of housing.

Mr. Randall, whose department is responsible for public housing projects in the province said Thursday the mayor was misinformed about the function of the Ontario Housing Corporation. The mayor denied this.

IS NEVER IN

Mr. Givens said Mr. Randall "is never in his department because he's off to Japan or Europe."

"That's why we need a separate ministry."

Mr. Randall replied that the Ontario and federal governments have never been better organized to do housing jobs than at present.

Premier Robarts said Thursday at a press conference the Ontario government has no intention of setting up a separate department of housing.

"It is not necessary; the administrative facilities (of the commission) are adequate," he said.

Town, Numbed by Landslide Deaths, Goes Back to Work

By JACK BRAUCKMANN

OCEAN FALLS, B.C. (CP)—Work was back in full swing today for an isolated community numbed by one avalanche and fearful of more.

Newsprint will spin again from machines in the 1,150-man pulp and paper plant—the community's lifeblood.

In the residential area, workers will try to recover from three of seven bodies from homes tossed and broken by Wednesday's killer snowslide.

Officials and RCMP in this company town, 300 miles up the Pacific coast from Vancouver, said more snow could be loosed by stinging winds.

But lacking any measures to stop it, the 3,000 residents were sent back to their kitchens, schools, and jobs at the Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited pulp plant.

Their warning of any new trouble will be six blasts from an RCMP siren shore from town site manager's office, which maintains radio communication with all parts of the stricken community.

ROADS OUT

(The same wet weather, following unprecedented December snows, knocked out roads and rail line Thursday in widely separated areas of British Columbia.

(At midnight Thursday, only rail transportation remained between Vancouver and the rest of Canada. The Southern transprovincial highway still was blocked by Saturday's giant mountain slide which killed four persons.

(At one slide hit the Fraser Canyon, severing the other highway route through the interior. Fog closed down the Vancouver International Airport.)

The Ocean Falls avalanche, plunging in a 300 foot wide, buried two duplex homes down the steep slope of Care Marion Mountain for a printing shop, credit union office and jewelry store.

The site was described as accountant Terry McKenna, 31, as once a "pleasant hillside, with homes and now a "dirty, muddy river running through a muddy scar."

The 4,200-foot mountain stands above a narrow string of homes on both sides of the slide site. They form one arm of the horseshoe-shaped town that surrounds an inlet 40 miles from the open Pacific.

SOUNDS ALL NIGHT

Crews were in the area all night, searching under floodlights for the bodies of John Dickey, 51, his wife Ella, 52, and their son Craig, seven.

The bodies of Mrs. Reginald Hill, 45, Walter Gordon Taphe, 42, Agnes McDowell, 56, and Craig Dicker's four - year - old daughter Jean were recovered.

Doug Diggins, who lived on the edge of the main slide's path, said it grew to his bedroom, knocked in the front door, and sent debris halfway across his living room.

"My wife and son jumped 10 feet from our kitchen window and landed safely," he said. "I jumped on ice and broke my ankle."

Mary Langdale and his family were trapped for half an hour on one side of the same duplex where others died. Said his 17-year-old son Bob:

HEARD RATTLING

"I heard a tremendous rattling and I thought the roof was down, but there was no wind. The next thing I knew I was flat on the floor in the hall. Then my father and I were sitting under the attic roof, and mother a few feet away in the basement."

District Magistrate Harvey Jessop of Kitimat was here to attend preliminary hearing in a murder case. The hearing was postponed when witnesses could not be flown in because of the rain.

He had to wait for the arrival by train of special Governor of Prince Thursday morning to get home.

He said he got up from an "after-dinner snooze" to confusion all around him at the Ocean Falls hotel already preparing for evacuees.

About half the 200 families who normally moved out of their homes returned Thursday. The rest stayed on at other hotels or with friends.

Accounts Thursday morning said the Northland Prince had left with 1,000 persons aboard who had decided to quit their jobs with Crown Zellerbach and abandon the town because of the danger.

It was learned later that only 15 persons were aboard when it joined the vessel when it embarked during the morning for Kitimat and Prince Rupert.

14 Below Here, We Are Lucky, Many Are Colder

According to the Department of Lands and Forests office at Tweed, Belleville was lucky last night even though the mercury did drop to a chilly 14 below zero.

Other municipalities in the surrounding area experienced even colder temperatures.

Following is a report of area temperatures received over the emergency radio at the EMO Headquarters in Belleville from the Lands and Forests office in Tweed: Tweed and Kemptville, 22 below; White Lake and Lindsay, 20 below; Dacre, 28 below; Plevna and Palmer Rapids, 30 below; Minden and Lorne, 34 below; Bancroft, 33 below; and Gilmour and Bon Echo, a cool 35 below.

On January 14, 1957 the temperature in Tweed was recorded at 33 below and on January 12, 1964, records indicate the mercury dipped to 18 degrees below zero.

Car Drops Through Ice On Quinte Bay

TRENTON — Mr. Lyndon Terrill of Carrying Place has a problem. Yesterday, while on his way to the ice fishing area on the bay, his car dropped part way through the ice at the mouth of Crook's (Indian) Island. Mr. Terrill walked to shore. But the problem is this: who and what is going to haul his car out of its present predicament? Anything that would haul it out would presumably be heavier than the car and would need the same fate — or even worse. Police and search and rescue at RCAF say, "it's a civilian problem."

QUICKLY PUT OUT

The Trenton fire department was called out around 10.50 am. last night to the self-feral building on Front Street, where a chimney overheated, unfinished parts of the structure had caught on fire as a result of accumulating operations. The fire was quickly quelled.

Find Coffin Of Child Bride Married in 1478

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Experts confirm that a four-foot lead coffin unearthed in London's East End last month is linked with one of the bloodiest periods and greatest mysteries of English history—the murder of the princes in the Tower of London.

The London Museum announced today that the coffin, shaped like a hooded body, contains the remains of Anne Mowbray, child bride of Prince Richard, Duke of York and youngest of the two ill-fated sons of Edward IV.

Anne, daughter and heir of the Duke of Norfolk, and Richard were married Jan. 18, 1478 —467 years ago today—at a splendid gold - and - azure wedding in St. Stephens' Chapel, Westminster. The bride had just turned five and the prince was 4½.

Anne died in 1481, a month before her ninth birthday. Her husband barely survived her. With his brother Edward he died in the tower either in 1483 or 1485, allegedly by suffocation with a pillow while they lay asleep.

DIGGER FINDS IT

The coffin was discovered when a mechanical excavator working on a site in Stepney, just outside the walls of the Old City of London, ripped open a sealed vault. The building site is within the precincts of a medieval priory.

Anne was originally buried in Westminster Abbey. Her remains are believed to have been transferred to Stepney when the abbey was being rebuilt during Tudor times.

Richard's brother Edward became king at the age of 13 in 1483. But Edward V was never crowned. Instated the king and his brother were tucked away in the tower while their older relations feuded and manoeuvred for power.

Eventually their uncle, the Duke of Gloucester, seized the throne and was crowned Richard III with the claim that both young princes were illegitimate. Most historians have blamed Richard for the murders.

FEAR ACCIDENTS

TORONTO (CP) — Great Lakes seamen are more afraid of accidents than anything else in their work, the executive secretary of the Religion - Labor Council of Canada said Thursday. Rev. David Somerville released a report soon to be delivered to the board of maritime trustees shows that among the concerns of 350 seamen interviewed by the council last summer was a desire for improved safety measures in their jobs.

Rivard's Wife

him that he had talked to Masson.

Mrs. Rivard said Mr. Daoust told her that he did not trust her.

Mr. Daoust testified earlier in the hearings that Masson was leading Mrs. Rivard down the garden path and that Masson was peddling non-existent influence.

Mrs. Rivard said Mr. Daoust did not give her the telephone number of Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne at Chicoutimi, Que., where he was on holidays.

She said she didn't tell Mr. Daoust that hall had been arranged for her husband. There had been no mention of Mr. Lamontagne.

Mr. Lamontagne, acting for the United States government which is trying to have Rivard extradited to Texas to face narcotics-smuggling charges, has testified to attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aides to have him agree to bail for Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne has said he was subjected to threats of blackmail by telephone late one night in July when he was on holiday in Chicoutimi.

The inquiry's sitting Thursday was enlivened by the dramatic entrance of Mrs. Rivard, a key witness.

GOES TO ROULEAU

Mrs. Rivard testified that at her husband's suggestion she went to see Raymond Rouleau, brother of Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, to find out why Cadeau could not extradite Hal Banks, deposed SIU boss who jumped bail from the United States, yet the United States was going to extradite her husband. Both men had been charged with conspiracy.

She said this meeting occurred in the last week of July or the first week of August and she called Raymond Rouleau daily after that for about a month.

"At times he thought I was calling too often and said 'if I get any news, Mrs. Rivard, I'll call you.'

"He always told me there is nothing new, wait and be patient. . . ." She said she never got any answer from Raymond Rouleau and had never seen nor spoken to Guy Rouleau, who resigned Nov. 24 as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, saying he had made "normal" representations in the Rivard case.

NEVER TOLD HIM

At another point, Mrs. Rivard testified that during fortnightly visits to her husband in Bordeaux Jail she never told him about efforts of Masson or Gignac to get help from an extradition expert. However, she said she wasn't sure of that point.

She said she thought she had told her husband about collecting the $40,000 for his bail but could not remember that either.

"I was so upset when I went to see him and so glad to see him all I could see was my husband."

In her first hour in the witness box, she testified that she moved quickly after her husband was arrested here, last June at the request of the United States government and took these steps:

1. In four days, she easily raised $60,000 in cash and deposited the money at a downtown trust company branch so that it would be available as soon as a judge agreed to her husband's application for release on bail.

Sunken Remains of Two Old Sailing Ships Found in Area

Not many years ago battleaxe, steamships, schooners and sailing ships carried freight and passengers up the Bay of Quinte to Belleville.

Although the years of the sailing ship and steam propelled paddle-wheeler are gone forever, their history haunts the area.

Mick and Bill Tatham have found the sunken remains of two old sailing vessels.

Located 300 feet south of Elm Island the skeletons of two wooden hulled ships, both about 160 feet long and 30 feet wide, poke through the ice.

Due to this year's low water level the formerly hidden vessels can now be seen.

How the vessels got there is a mystery. Possibly they had outrun their use, were scheduled for destruction, burned in the water line, and left. Possibly they were the victims of some freak storm or accident many years ago.

Whatever their undetermined destiny, they stand as quiet reminders of Belleville's historic past.

2. She made arrangements with Liberal election organizer Guy Masson to rush to Ottawa-Hull to consult a "specialist" who would help Rivard get bail, she hoped. She says Mr. Masson $1,000 in cash to cover his "expenses and errands."

3. She received help and encouragement in her efforts to arrange bail from two "intimate friends" of her husband.

GIGNAC HELPED

They were Robert Gignac, who served three months later with capital murder in an apparent underworld execution, and Eddy Lechasseur, then facing nine charges in a $67,000 bankruptcy fraud case. (Lechasseur was freed later for lack of evidence.)

Testifying in a sitting position because her lawyer said she was under strain, Mrs. Rivard, 32, repeatedly drew derisive laughter from spectators and skeptical remarks from Quebec Chief Justice Frederic Dorion and Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins.

Mr. Justice Dorion and Mr. Desjardins said it should be explained why Mr. Masson, Gignac and Lechasseur drove to Ottawa and Hull on the night of June 23-24 to try to arrange bail for Rivard when the Canadian government had nothing to do with his case.

Rivard, 48, is wanted in Laredo, Texas, on charges of smuggling heroin for a Mafia ruled syndicate. He has been in Bordeaux Jail here since June 24, fighting extradition to the U.S. and applying insistently for release on bail and later on parole.

Gignac testified earlier that Mr. Masson met a Mr. Denis Pierre Rivard rendezvous in a Hull hotel in June to discuss Rivard's bail application.

TELLS OF OFFER

Pierre Lamontagne, U.S. government counsel seeking Rivard's extradition, has testified that Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Trembiay, offered him a $20,000 bribe July 14 to help free Rivard.

He said he rejected the bribe offer from his "excellent friend" and continued to oppose bail because he feared Rivard would skip out of the country as soon as he was released.

Mrs. Rivard provoked gales of laughter in the packed courtroom as she told how she raised $60,000 in the days following her husband's arrest. "I didn't have much difficulty," she said.

Her brother - in - law, Ovide (Dave) Gagnon, had come across with $20,000. She said he is a gate - keeper, ticket - seller and odd - job painter at the north - end Plage Idéale summer resort, owned by her husband until recently. She didn't know where Dave borrowed the $20,000.

Bill Lamy, a local grocer and friend, had loaned her $17,000.

Another $15,000 had been borrowed at three or four per cent interest from the Banque Provinciale branch at St. Eustache, Que., on the recommendation of Roger Aubin, a friend and hotelkeeper.

She said she borrowed $5,000 from Plage Idéale Incorporated and put up the remaining $8,000 from personal savings.

She decided to raise the money after Raymond Denis, Rivard's lawyer, and Mr. Masson had told her that there was no chance her husband would obtain bail, but that the amount could go as high as $50,000 or $60,000.

Mrs. Rivard, dressed elegantly and with long auburn hair, testified softly in correct French. She continues her testimony today and Mr. Justice Dorion, in a new ruling, has warned her not to discuss her testimony with anyone.

Earlier Thursday, Kenneth Candlish, an accountant with the Royal Trust Company, said Mrs. Rivard and Gignac deposited $80,000 in cash June 25 at his company's downtown branch. The money had been drawn the money in $1,000 bills Sept. 28.

BRUNETTE SHOT

The next day, Aime (Rocky) Brunette, a shady underworld figure, was shot six times in a parking lot by three men. Gignac was one of three men charged with capital murder in the killing.

Lechasseur took up most of the hearing with his second day of testimony in assuming "joual," the French - Canadian equivalent of Brooklyn English.

Renison College here Thursday, Rt. Rev. J. A. Watton, Bishop of Moosonee, Rt. Rev. G. N. Luxton, Bishop of Huron, and Rt. Rev. H. F. G. Appleyard, chancellor of the college and Bishop of Georgian Bay, dedicated the 100-bed men's residence and classroom wing.

a strong influence in Quebec and his support is essential to retain the party's representation in that province.

CALL 'SURPRISE'

W. A. McLennan, president of the British Columbia PC Association, said he is surprised at Mr. Balcer's demand for a party leadership convention. He said he does not expect Mr. Balcer to bolt the party.

Davie Fulton, leader of the B.C. Progressive Conservative party, said "Mr. Balcer has put it to the national executive and it is not going to help for individuals to comment. I hope that when the decision is taken at the national executive level, it will be such as to restore unity in the party."

Raymond O'Hurley, defence production minister in the former Diefenbaker government, said the "crisis" within the PC party could be "cured by a change of leader." He said in an interview in Quebec that he hopes the party executive will tackle the problem and settle it as quickly as possible.

Senator Jacques Flynn, Milton and technical surveys minister in the former Diefenbaker cabinet, said he hopes "the Balcer affair will open the eyes of members in the other provinces."

In Saskatoon, Robert Thompson, national Social Credit party leader, said the decision by the Quebec MPs involving "some members of the Conservative party have the courage of their convictions" is good.

He said in an interview, however, that he believes the "national Conservative hierarchy" will turn down the request.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the Conservative party in Quebec "doesn't know which way to turn."

"The people of Quebec have no confidence now in the Progressive Conservatives," he said.

Medicare Plan Coming

TORONTO (CP)—A medical health insurance plan for Ontario will be presented at the next session of the legislature, Premier Robarts told a press conference Thursday.

The plan will be on a voluntary basis operated by pri- ate carriers and will create no bar to federal legislation in the medical care field, Mr. Robarts said.

The premier also told the press conference that the provincial government has no intention of getting into the nursing home business, that an Ontario housing ministry "is not necessary" and that the provincial corporation procedures act is being studied to determine whether amendments may be necessary.

Critics of the proposed Ontario medical care bill have suggested that the provinces should wait until the federal government takes action on the Hall royal commission report which recommended a publicly-operated medical care plan for Canada.

Mr. Robarts said the Ontario legislation would have no effect on a federal plan and added that he could not say whether the province would go out of a federally - sponsored scheme since he does not know what form the federal plan will take.

WAITS FOR BILL

The premier said the government "will wait for the recommendations of the committee (the legislature's select committee on aging) before taking any steps concerning the nursing homes in the province. He said the government will "look very sympathetically" at recommendations the committee may make.

Many of the witnesses before the committee have criticized the operations of nursing homes.

Mr. Robarts indicated that the province is presently giving financial assistance toward upgrading of nursing home standards, but did not say what form this aid would take.

The question of expropriation was mentioned by the premier, a "very thorny one."

A number of Woodstock-area farmers are in protest over the proposed expropriation of their land for a $4,000,000 flood control dam across the Thames River. They contend that the government's offers have not been high enough.

The premier said Energy Resources Minister John Simonett will investigate to see whether changes are necessary in the make-up of conservation authorities to expedite the growth and development in recent years.

The western section of the province along the Lake Huron shore late Thursday was in the threat of snow late Thursday after clouds lifted and temperatures soared from 30 below to 10 above.

By late Thursday, the Ontario Motor League reported that 1,500 calls from stranded Toronto motorists in what was described as the busiest day of the season.

The department of highways said roads in most areas were covered by snow Thursday night.

Owen Sound recorded 14 below zero Thursday morning, the lowest ever for Jan. 14. But the coldest spot in the province throughout the day was Graham, 90 miles north of the Lakehead, where the thermometer dropped to 52 below zero.

Junior Graders at B.C.I. Go on 'Shift' Next Year New School Ready in 1966

With high school enrolment at an all time high and the proposed new secondary school not expected to be ready until the fall of 1966, it's going to be staggered classes for about 600 lower grade students at Belleville Collegiate next September.

Secondary schools superintendent E. A. Orr anticipates a total enrolment of 4,063 students when school resumes next September following the summer holidays.

This is up nearly 350 over this year's registration and is 613 more than can normally be accommodated at Belleville Collegiate, Moira Secondary and Quinte Secondary schools.

And with the fourth high school not to be ready for another year, something had to be done as a stop gap measure to provide temporary accommodation.

Three possible solutions to the accommodation problem were considered by the high school board but the staggered class system was felt to be the most satisfactory. Other possible solutions were rental of temporary space and purchase of portable classrooms.

The final decision has been to institute a system of staggered classes in the lower grades at Belleville Collegiate.

PLAN TWO SHIFTS

Under the plan 300 students would attend classes from 8.00 until 1.50 p.m., while another group of 300 students would come on at 11.10 and remain in class until five o'clock.

The Belleville Public School Board received six classrooms for use as satellite schools, but because of transportation problems, lack of facilities, for other reasons, such an arrangement was considered unsuitable.

For many of the same reasons and because of the high initial cost of $14,000 per fourroom unit, the idea of portable classrooms was also decided against.

Members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board at their inaugural meeting this week approved in principle the organization for a staggered class system at B.C.I., although it is expected that some changes may have to be made to make maximum use of accommodation and to reduce inconvenience.

Mr. Orr admitted that the staggered class system will involve some inconvenience for students as well as for parents but said that an earnest effort was being made to reduce this inconvenience to a minimum.

The staggered class plan approved by the board is subject to change if found necessary.

The proposed organization for the 1965-66 school year would see 1403 students registered at B.C.I., 1170 at Moira Secondary School, and 1430 at Quinte Secondary School for a total of 4063.

AREA COVERED

All grade 9 students from Belleville west of Herchimer Ave. and south of the C.N.R. and Moira Street, as well as some grade 10 students from the same area will be on an irregular class schedule.

In general, East Belleville grade 9 students will be on the early schedule (8.00 a.m. to 1.50 p.m.), while those from West Belleville will be on the late schedule (11.10 a.m. to 5 p.m.).

All grades 13, 12, 11 and most of grade 10 will remain on regular schedule. No major changes will be necessary in the schedules of students and teachers at M.S.S. and Q.S.S.

The staggered class system will require a second vice-principal at B.C.I. and also additional teaching, clerical and secretarial staff, while houses at 224 and 226 John Street, now owned by the board will be required for auxiliary space for administration, teachers, and book storage.

Object to Pension Plan

The Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association wants the Canada Pension Plan killed.

Cynics may find they are able to resist any elevation of the eyebrows at this announcement. After all the government proposes to undertake, on a wholesale scale, a task which life insurance companies are now doing at the selective retail level, at a profit. If the Canada Pension Plan goes through, this particular field of business will be closed to the life insurance firms.

There may be some surprise though, at the alternative proposed by the Life Insurance Officers Association. It wants the government to extend the old age security program by lowering the qualifying age and increasing the benefits.

Many of us can remember the day when it was first proposed that the means test for old age pensions be abolished. Some insurance men were deeply concerned. They argued this would mean that the government would pay pensions to people who did not need them, which was true. The suspicion existed, though, that the life insurance firms feared this could cost them some business. In the event, they found that when people discovered they were not going to be penalized for thrift, by being refused the same government handout given spendthrifts, they were more interested in augmenting the government pension by private plans.

Much the same thing could happen with the contributory pension scheme envisioned under the Canada Pension Plan. Life insurance firms might find that it increased, rather than diminished, the demand for the contracts they sell, although admittedly this does not seem as likely as in the case of universal old age security pensions.

The Life Insurance Officers Association has a formidable list of specific objections to the Canada Pension Plan. Some of these objections are hard to answer. Others are not. For instance, the Association dislikes the fact the plan would provide nothing for today's aged. How could any contributory plan do this? Benefits would rise with earnings. But so would contributions. The plan would push income from one generation to another. Far from being a flaw, this, it will be argued by some, is one of its greatest assets. Any realistic appraisal of pensions must recognize that the aged cannot be provided with greater benefits than the economy can produce. If productivity fails, no matter what the monetary value of pensions is the goods these aged will buy will have to be reduced. But, on the other hand, if productivity rises, are we to exclude the aged from a share in this increased prosperity? The great objection to contributory plans is that they threaten to do just this. By pushing costs forward from one generation to another the Canada Pension Plan at least reduces the depth of this pitfall.

Warning Signal

Canada's share of world trade is declining.

There is no reason to be unduly alarmed at this trend. It is inevitable if undeveloped countries are eventually to eliminate the poverty which plagues them.

Of graver significance is the fact that since 1953 we have had to export a steadily-rising amount of our goods to pay for a given volume of imports. This is because the bulk of our exports are still raw materials, the stuff from which the importing countries manufacture finished goods.

There are those who defend our dependence on the export of raw materials and contend that it is only this natural wealth which enables us to hold our own in the struggle for world markets, since high Canadian labor costs would make it impossible to provide all the funds we need for improving even the sale abroad of our manufactured products.

Nevertheless, in the final analysis if we are to obtain a fair share of the benefits to which our natural wealth entitles us, we shall have to process more of these raw materials at home, at a cost which will enable us to market the finished product abroad.

As the processing of these materials demands increasing technical skill and complicated machinery, the value imparted by manufacturing increases. Unless we reserve a share of this increased value for ourselves, we could eventually become little better than hewers of wood and drawers of water for the nations to whom we supply raw materials.

The difference between Christianity and communism is largely that Christianity takes evil seriously.—Bryan Green, British Episcopal evangelist.

Stroke Often Result of Aneurysms in the Brain

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had a stroke eight months ago.

In reply to the letter about Mrs. C. S.'s husband who had a stroke four months ago, I give my husband therapy twice a day. He also takes another exercise with a sleeve ironing board.

He was in the hospital eight weeks. When he left I was given instructions on the treatments.

Mrs. C. S. shouldn't be discouraged. The swelling isn't all gone from my husband yet, but he is improving.

The stroke affected his right arm, then his right leg, and two days later his voice. It also affected his right eye.

Now he can talk and walk, but not perfectly. He drives a car even though his right arm is not entirely well yet. We confidence in your part of the city. With more severe ones, months of steady, daily effort are necessary.

Mrs. M. W.'s letter can do a great deal of good if it not only convince others that this daily therapy, continued, will in time bring results.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Have you published a home medical book? I bought one that is anything but satisfactory, but your booklets have been a benefit to me. Just now I am very interested in Parkinson's disease, and also Buerks. — T. P.

I've never tackled a "home medical book," because nobody can write one that is complete. The problems of human health are too numerous. (That's why it takes so many years to train a qualified physician, and why in addition it is necessary for a certain proportion of doctors to become specialists.)

I have written a book called "Stay Well Every Year of Your Life," but it deals, not with everything, but with the basic rules of health, plus quite a few chapters on topics that very frequently are mentioned in letters to me. Any book store can get it for you (it is published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.)

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: In our family there is a need for a general practitioner, an eye - ear - nose - and-throat specialist, a urologist and a dermatologist. As I live in the north side of the city I would be convenient to have the general practitioner in my vicinity. Would you recommend one? — S. G.

No, I won't recommend one although I agree that you should have a doctor in your vicinity.

Phone (or write) the county medical society and ask for the names of several qualified physicians in your part of the city.

He might be a general practitioner, or he might be an internist. Either can then guide you to specialists as needed.

Choose as your regular doctor one who is affiliated with a hospital in your vicinity because, when specialized care is needed he will naturally tend to refer you to specialists on its staff.

Sees B. C. Landslide As Modern Parable

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Surely there is a modern parable contained in the story of the landslide on the Hope-Princeton Highway in B.C.

Here is a man - Mr. Stephanishin - who recognizes the warning signs and sounds of a landslide. He comes upon a group of people trying to remove a fallen tree from a convertible car. The landslide has already given warning of its own actions as boulders and trees tumble down the mountainside. Mr. Stephanishin warns the people of their danger and tells them to run back out of the path of the rocks - to leave the car and turn their lives. But they stayed. Later Mr. Stephanishin said, "They were determined to get that car free - I could hear it (the landslide) rumbling up there and knew there was more to come go I don't think they quite realized what I was talking about."

If there is any need for an interpretation of this parable, I suppose it might have something to do with losing our life because we try to hang onto our material belongings - in spite of the warning of those who see and hear the danger signals and who try to save us.

Nevertheless, "....he that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

Grandpa Croc Is a Problem

UNESCO Features

How to deal with a giant man-eating crocodile found in a swamp on the upper Daintree River in northern Queensland is a problem worrying authorities in Australia.

The animal is 30 feet long, believed to be over 300 years old, and dangerous. A neighboring family wants the police to kill it because it has already devoured a horse.

Scientists disagree. They want the old crocodile to be brought back alive for study. A live crocodile, in the centuries ago, is the kind of biological rarity usually found only on the Galapagos Islands. But the bill for capturing and transporting the animal would amount to $10,000.

Protests have been made, too, by professional crocodile hunters who object to police competition. Meanwhile, Australian scientists have asked organizations in the United States and Europe for international backing for an expedition to bring it back alive.

Cause of Good English Has Been Harmed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In a recent column, I ended a sentence with the phrase: "It turned out to be him." Dozens of letters have since arrived on my desk, all pointing out the gross solecism of not writing: "It turned out to be he."

Now, as it happens, I was perfectly aware of what I was doing. Moreover, I am a conservative and a traditionalist in grammar, and much resent the looseness of the modern school of writing.

But the trouble with conservatism in English — as with conservatism in the social and economic spheres — is that it is tries to save too much, it will lose everything.

"It turned out to be he" is a dead, unlamented corpse, though absolutely correct. What is the point of conserving it? Why not expend our forces on the really important grammatical errors — the ones that are vulgar and graceless and can cloud the meaning of a sentence?

Take the case of "whom." I think it is a lost cause, and I can see no reason to fight for it. It is a vestige from the Latin, and has no proper, logical place in the English language. The traditionalists are horrified when a "who" replaces a "whom" in a sentence — and their indignation actually weakens the cause of "correct" English.

In his recent book, "The Treasure of our Tongue" Lincoln Barnett has a fascinating 30-page chapter dealing with the modernists versus the traditionalists in English usage. I recommend that everyone interested in the controversy read it; but I think that concessions must be granted to the modernists, or else our conservative position becomes merely ridiculous, extremist and antiquated.

Our language is constantly changing; this is what makes it so vital, so flexible, so strong. To be against change is to petrify the English language; but to permit any change is to debase and weaken our expression. The test, obviously, is only what is worth conserving, not because it is old, but because it is still valuable in its present use.

Radicalism defeats itself by toppling everything in the ancient regime — whether or not it deserves to be toppled; conservatism just as often defeats itself by a blind, stubborn refusal to reform, even if the reform is sensible and needed. The dogmatists think and feels in static terms, not in realities; and, in this important sense, extremes tend to meet.

The cause of good English has been harmed as much by the proponents as by its enemies. English teachers who are prissy when only three or four errors in their pupils — and illiteracy may be as much a reaction against grammatical hair-splitting as it may be a symptom of our cultural sloppiness.

Today in History

Jan. 13, 1905 . . . .

Queen Elizabeth I of England was married many years ago — in 1559. One of three children of Henry VIII, she ascended the age of prosperity for England by cautiously using her marriageability to gain political advantage from other European crowns heads. During her reign, England's maritime might was built to a blithrio unprecedented height and in 1588 a massive force of Spanish ships was defeated by a small but ahlthf English navy. She died in 1603, having left no heirs, the Tudor line of British royalty ended.

1951—Ilse Koch, a wartime German concentration camp official, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

First World War . . . .

Fifty years ago today—In 1915 — British troops made strategic gains at La Bassee on the Western Front; the French admitted a serious setback at Soissons.

Second World War . . . .

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1940 — subscriptions to Canada's $200,000,000 war loan reached $115,000,000 on the first day of the campaign; Sweden and Norway protested submarine violations by Russian aircraft; Russia continued to bomb Finnish centres.

Railway Travel Revives

By BARRY TOOLE, in the Financial Times

The revolution in travel, wrought by the invention of the airplane, is by now as well accepted that it hardly bears discussion.

Yet yesterday in view of this, it is worth noting the first stirrings of what may be a counter-revolution, at least as far as Canada is concerned.

In 1962, after 17 years of consecutive declines, Canada's railroads began to show an increase in the number of passengers carried.

This reversal coincided with an ambitious passenger promotion program which the CNR put into effect in May, 1962.

One cheering result has been annual increases in CNR passenger revenue. This year the jump will be 18 per cent—the highest since the Second World War.

Nearly one and a half million cigarettes had been sent during the current twelve months at a cost of $4,647.75. Total cost of the cigarettes sent overseas since the inception of the fund by the local organization is $10,274.82 according to the chairman.

Cigarettes are now going from the Kinsmen Fag Fund to 789 Belleville service personnel overseas, it takes about a month to complete the cycle of names and to send all a packet of 300 cigarettes each. Since the inauguration of the fund 923 service personnel have been included on the list.

The annual meeting of the vestry of Christ Church was held in the parish hall with the rector, the Rev. G. C. Wright presiding. All the reports submitted were satisfactory and showed the parish to be making excellent progress. The rector appointed Mr. Arthur Weston as his warden and the vestry elected Mr. Charles F. Bishop as people's warden and C. H. Smith was re-elected a delegate to the diocesan synod for a term of three years. The ladies of the guild were hostess at tea and sandwiches were served by Mrs. H. Scott, and Mr. George Stokes.

Miss Julia McNabb, nurse-in-training at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, was home to spend the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gerow have left on a motor trip to Miami and Daytona Beach, Mr. Gerow will spend a month at these resorts.

The claim of J. J. B. Flint that he was in the eye witness of the carrying away of the lower bridge in the great flood of the March of 1865 some years ago is disputed by a number of Bellevillians. William Britton, Sr., was driving a horse over the bridge in a cutter at the time and seeing the danger he whipped up his horse and was able to get off the bridge. He overtook another driver, whose horse was moving at a walk, as he passed the slow driver he struck his horse which immediately broke into a run, both drivers reaching safely only a few seconds before the bridge was carried away.

Mr. Jack Hayes, an old Belleville boy, and son of Mr. Patrick Hayes of this city, has been elected president of the down-town Kiwanis Club in Toronto.

Mr. W. H. Wylie, inspector for the Children's Aid Society at Kingston, is in the city today consulting with Mr. W. Herbert Wrightmyer, local inspector for the Children's Aid.

Mr. E. P. Frederick, treasurer of the local Red Cross society, and, informs us that the sum of $300 has been obtained towards the purchase of flour to be shipped to the Belgian sufferers next Wednesday. It is expected that three hundred bags will be shipped.

Belleville Juniors defeated the speedy Frontenac of Kingston here last night and at last there is joy in hockeydom in this city. The score was 3 to 2.

omitted any direct reference to Mr. Diefenbaker.

The National executive met here in December and postponed any decision on a date for an annual meeting until next autumn.

Almost a year ago Mr. Diefenbaker won an overwhelming oral vote of confidence at the annual meeting when Mr. Balcer said a leadership convention was different because there would be other candidates.

Theogene Ricard (St. Hyacinthe-Bagot), touted in some pre-caucus speculation as successor to the Quebec leadership if Mr. Balcer quit, said the caucus had never said Mr. Diefenbaker must go.

"As Mr. Balcer said, draw your own conclusions."

Heward Grafftey (Brome-Missisquoi) said the caucus felt it could work out problems over leadership policy within the party. Georges Valade (Montreal Ste. Marie) said the caucus realizes a national party is needed and wants to avoid a split.

Mr. Balcer, who set no deadline for holding a leadership convention, said he hoped for one this year.

"But we're not going to agree to putting it off to 1967, or something like that. This is not a joke."

He said he is confident of cross-country support for the convention call.

Mr. Balcer, named Quebec lieutenant to Mr. Diefenbaker at last year's annual meeting, turned back all questions about what the Tory colleagues might do if an executive meeting is not called before . Parliament meets.

from the action that it was strictly predicted by Mr. Balcer and his immediate supporters would take.

Mr. Balcer was asked about the reports current before the caucus meeting that he and some others were prepared to bolt the party and sit as independents when the Commons resumes its winter session. The others named included Paul Martineau (Pontiac - Temiscamingue), Real Caouette (Villeneuve - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) and Gerard Girouard (Labelle).

mains to be seen.

The Quebec leader's reply was that the decision to seek a convention was the unanimous decision of his Quebec colleagues and he was prepared to go along with it. If nothing is done by Feb. 15, he and his colleagues will meet to consider their position.

Mr. Diefenbaker hadn't said a word while the new trouble brewed. He had merely noted in speeches in Kingston, Ont., Monday at celebrations of the 150th birthday of Sir John A. Macdonald, that the party's founder-and first prime minister of Canada had had his party loyalty troubles, too, and had gone on to win.

The Conservative leader was not available for comment Thursday night after Mr. Balcer's press conference.

Mr. Camp said in Toronto he would consult principal party officers before deciding what to do with the Quebec caucus request.

But for a month at least the decision can be left pending. What the month may mean in the fortunes of the Conservative party, its national leader, the Quebec wing, and its leader re-

Youth Arrested After Policeman Held at Bay

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Ont. (CP)—A 17-year-old man was arrested Thursday night after holding 15 policemen at bay with rifle and slightly wounding Police Chief Hugh Douglas.

Chief Douglas, 64, was grazed in the stomach by a .22-calibre bullet from five feet away. The chief threw a chair which deflected the bullet.

The chief, accompanied by Const. Edgar Montigny, was talking with the man at the door of his house. Const. Montigny seized the man after the chief was shot but it took four other policemen to subdue him. No charges were laid immediately.

Police said the man had been dismissed from his job and threatened his mother with a knife when he went home.

Police said they surrounded the house and waited for darkness after the man threatened them.

At 8:30 p.m., police began firing the first of 20 tear-gas bombs into the house. Forty-five minutes later, Chief Douglas went to the door and talked with the man. At 7:50 p.m., he was talking with the man again when a tear-gas bomb was thrown into the house and the man fired at the chief.

New Offer

Thursday after pickets were removed.

The remaining union members were ready to strike if agreement was not reached with the company by the 3 p.m. deadline.

The latest offer calls for a first-stage increase of 2 per cent or six cents an hour effective immediately, as well as an additional five cents an hour added to base rates. Skilled trades would also receive an additional seven cents.

Hourly base rate under the old contract was $2.23 to $3.10.

AN INCREASE LATER

A further 2¼ per cent or six cents an hour becomes effective Dec. 1, 1965, with the final 2.8 per cent or seven cents an hour effective Dec. 1, 1966.

Other terms on the offer include:

—An increase of more than 50 per cent in normal retirement benefits from the current basis of $2.50 a month for each year of credited service to $4.25 for life employees retiring after Jan. 1, 1964, plus an additional $4.25 through age 70.

—An additional week of paid vacation for eligible employees.

—A maximum vacation increase to four weeks at 15 years' service.

—The equivalent of two additional paid holidays.

HAD STRUCK GM

The union was involved in a 16-day strike against General Motors of Canada Limited which was settled Dec. 17. A total of 23,500 workers at five GM plants across Ontario were affected.

The new three-year GM contract represented 30.77 cents in direct wage increases and 18.70 cents in pension improvements.

Under the former contract, wage rates had ranged from $2.22 to $3.24 an hour.

A major issue in the strike had been the narrowing of the wage gap between GM workers in the United States and Canada.

Canada No More Bilingual In 1961 Than 30 Years Ago

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada was no more bilingual in 1961 than it was 10 years or even 30 years ago.

In its long - awaited census report on languages the bureau of statistics said Thursday that only 12.2 per cent of the population was bilingual in 1961.

More precisely, that was the percentage of, the population claiming an ability to speak both French and English.

Of those rated as bilingual, 73 per cent were of French origin. Half the others lived in Quebec.

Only 4.4 per cent of all Canadians of British Isles ethnic origin could speak French. Thirty per cent of those of French origin could speak English.

Of the country's total population, 67.4 per cent could speak English only and 19.1 per cent French only. Besides the 12.2 per cent claiming to be bilingual, the remaining 1.3 per cent comprised a group that could not speak either of the two official languages.

SLIGHT DECLINE

If anything, the amount of bilingualism may have declined in proportion to the whole population—between 1951 and 1961. The number of persons able to speak both English and French increased over the 10-year period from 2,231,172, a rise of 29.2 per cent.

But the total population rose even faster, by 30 per cent to 18,238,247 on June 1, 1961.

Thus the bilingual proportion actually slipped fractionally to 12.2 per cent from 12.3. Highest it has been since 1931 is 12.8 per cent.

Three provinces — Quebec, New Brunswick and Ontario — have 92.4 per cent of all Canadians of French origin. The same three have 87.2 per cent of all bilingual Canadians.

As expected, Quebec has the highest rate of bilingualism—25 per cent. In New Brunswick it is 19 per cent and Ontario 7.9.

Navy Is Strong Factor And Black Almost Absent From Spring Dresses

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP)—A youthful verve was one of the dominant features in the week-long spring press fashion showings just ended.

Clothes for the coming spring are definitely for the young, but there is a well-bred refining process at work which means that older women can wear the new styles with slightly longer skirts than the knee-showing models.

Even Emdi Gernreich of last summer's topless - bathing-suit fame showed a completely modest look above the waist, with high neck-cricket necklines and some cap sleeves. He did, however, go far out in wild-patterned, shapeless, knit dresses in such combinations as tobacco with magenta horizontal stripes.

Fashion writers, viewing the collections day after day, came away with a total impression of pastel prettiness. Certainly navy is a spring factor with black, which was almost left in collections, almost absent from many of the spring showings. Navy is spring, the more ladylike look takes over, in frothy pastel chiffons, pink and green in everything from wool coats to evening gowns. Yellows, often with navy, pink, are strong. Apricot, Beige, Mocha and white upstage the darker colors. Green and gold are a key shade.

NEW GIRLISH LOOK

There's a new girlish look in contrasts—a patterned weave in a jacket to offset a plain skirt, stripes mixed with checks or a bias-cut top to provide dress contrast. Geoffrey Beene effectively combined tiny polka dots in a blouse with a check suit.

This spring sees a return to the one piece dress. The trend is to short and shirtwaist sleeves. The shape is soft and, if belted, often bloused.

Prints are mostly floral and unobtrusive. But a number of designers have used bold prints in odd color combinations, such as plum with black and white, a bright blue-and-white print was most effective in Esteves's open-shouldered suit, revealing a blue shell top.

Overblouses are back after an unsuccessful attempt to again introduce the tuck-in blouse. Overblouses fit into this spring's slimmer look, as do tunics, a continued trend both in dresses and coats.

It's not a really settled season. There is a young, almost naive look in many suits with boxy-jacketed tops bordered by borders to evening gowns and matching stoles. Skirts have the unexpected angular cut silhouettes with narrow sleeves appearing on the top of winged or dolman dress sleeves.

Twenty-two Canadian fashion designers will show their creations from Montreal, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Ont., Kitchener, Ont., Hamilton, Winnipeg, Brandon, Man., Edmonton and Victoria.

Susanna's Family Fare

COUNT DOWN

Dear Susanna: Thank you for your instructions on candle making. I had the whole dining room lit up for New Year's dinner on the candles one and two with the ice cubes were particularly effective when they had turned down a little and the light began filtering through them.

I would be interested in receiving the reading readiness tests for pre-schoolers and kindergarten children.

Our young son has just started school this year. He was expected to learn his phone number, and I found the best way to teach it to him was to associate it on a paper and hang it on the kitchen wall where he could see it at meal-time.

He couldn't memorize it by my repeating it to him, but it took only a week by this method and he had it down pat. In this way he also learned to recognize and remember numbers. When it came to teaching him numbers up to ten, I printed these on cards with the equivalent number of dots opposite. He then counted the number of dots and called them by the printed number beside them.

In my experience a little boy of five is much further behind a girl of the same age and seems to need a little extra help at home. Hope this will help some of your readers. — Julia M. Charles

I'm sure it will, and when you receive the reading readiness sheets, you will note that there are rows of words, pictures, numbers and letters. In each case he is to circle the one that is different or the ones that are similar, or the pictures that start with a certain letter and so on.

Children usually find it great fun as long as we don't try to push them beyond their level or try to progress too quickly.

Once he catches on he will probably plague you to make up new sets for him using different symbols. It doesn't take long for success to go to their heads, and then they want to show off with more and more tests.

Lights put better the part of the wrap which touches the icing. You will find that the icing stays on the cake in one undisturbed piece, and does not come off on the paper. I'm sure this will be a help to all those who are faced with the problem of making lunches every day. — Mrs. Barbara Patton.

Successful Living

Romance With Married Man Ill-Advised, Ill-Fated

DEAR DORIS — My sister became quite involved with a good looking man and only found out two months later that he was married. Then she tried to break up with him.

But she could not get over him. Now she is in love with him more than ever. To make things worse, he has one daughter and another on the way. He says if she will wait for him he'll be able to marry her in two years; by then he will be free as a divorce.

My sister is only 20 and I hate to see her pine away for someone who may never marry her. — ANXIOUS SISTER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR ANXIOUS —You and me both. Has he told her his wife does not understand him? That she is unfaithful? That he never really loved anybody but your sister?

The records are full of tragic stories about single girls and phony promises. This two-timer — an expectant father, no less! — should be cut right out of your sister's life. She is wasting a lot of time on him.

The greatest tragedy will be when she comes to, several years later, to discover that all eligible males are married and her grand amour's still unfulfilled promise is sounding a little thin.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — An Indian I know in school taught me to keep the paper small when lighting a fire. Why are people (my own parents) so much out for size?

Today they lit a fire in the fireplace with a blasting load of kindling, cheap softwood and paper. Lo and behold the fire screen was pushed back and I sat a scorch'd for protection. Half the time the screen is placed off to one side for heat.

They say they lit fires before I was born. With apparently no regard for safety! I sure don't care for a spark burning the house down. Just give a fire small and a lot hotter than theirs. — FIRE BUG HATER.

• • •

DEAR FIRE — Well, don't get burned up about it. Have a talk with the firemen at your local fire station. They'll know if your parents are playing with fire, and will be glad to set them right.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO INJURED REPUTATION — If the statement about you was written down, it constitutes libel. If stated orally, action may be taken for slander. And if someone writes and repeats the statements, he or she is also liable to legal action for slander.

It is no defence that those who committed the offence did not know the statements were false. At the same time, if they can be proved true, no action will succeed.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I will be getting married shortly. My mother is dead but my father is alive. How do I word the invitations?

Is it correct to use my father's name, or do I use a female member of my family's name? — APPRECIATING HELP.

• • •

DEAR APPRECIATING — The widower-father of a bride issues the invitation.

If the invitation is a formal, printed one, the first part reads like this: (first line): Mr. Jon Doe (second line): requests the honor of your presence (third line): at the marriage of his daughter (fourth line): Jane, etc. Get a printer to show you a sample.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO UNBELIEVES — Some people would as soon grasp a red hot poker as take pen in hand, even to write to their nearest and dearest. But what good is an absent, mute boy friend?

As to whether you are too old to make love again at age 58, I'd say definitely no. We need affection and companionship all our lives long.

Moment of Truth

(1905—at Baddeck N.S., Canada—First Heavier-Than-Air Flight in The British Empire.)

Minute of magic and moment of truth,
Up from the lee of the bay;
"The Silver Dart," ungainly, uncouth,
By stream-lined standards today
Heavier - than - air, ascending higher,
First plane to fly in The British Empire!

The pilot, McCurdy, handled her well
As her solid propeller of wood
Bit into the air — and who can tell
If all pilots-to-be nearby stood?
All pilots to come, by this moment caught —
Even to the future astronaut!

Reader's Friday Column

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION:

Have wondered if you have a recipe for a Polish dish we have enjoyed, we can purchase them in the United States but cannot find anyone who knows how to make them here. They are called "Pierogies," a dough with cottage cheese filling. They sometimes fill them with shredded cabbage, prunes. The dough is the secret in making these and I have tried several ways to come to the same texture but have failed.

Mrs. E. H. E.

Dinner Menu

FRIDAY

ANSWER:

What follows is the Ukrainian method for pyroky which are almost the same as Polish Pierogies. I am more familiar with this method.

PYROKY (with cottage cheese filling)

To be served as a hearty soup accompaniment or with coffee.

1 teaspoon sugar,
¼ cup lukewarm water,
1 package granular yeast,
1 cup scalded milk,
¼ cup butter or shortening,
2 eggs, beaten,
1½ teaspoons salt,
1 tablespoon sugar,
6½ to 7 cups sifting sifted flour.

Dissolve the 1 teaspoon sugar in the lukewarm water, sprinkle the yeast over it, and let it stand for 10 minutes. To the hot scalded milk add the butter or shortening, and cool to lukewarm. Add the eggs, salt, the 1 tablespoon sugar, and yeast liquid. Mix in enough flour to make a medium soft dough for bread — about 4¼ cups. Knead on floured board until smooth and satiny. Return to bowl, cover, and let rise until double in bulk. Punch down, knead a few times in the bowl, and let rise again. Cut off small egg-sized pieces of dough and roll ⅛" thick. Place a generous portion of the cottage cheese filling in the centre, bring the edges together and press to seal securely. Cottage Cheese Filling: One lb. dry cottage cheese, 1 tablespoon thick sour cream, 2 eggs, beaten, salt, 1 tablespoon chopped dill, if desired. Press the cottage cheese through a sieve or mash it well. Add the remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Shape pyroky into an oblong with a plump centre and tapering ends. Dip them after they are filled and shaped into melted butter. Place, sealed side down, on a greased baking sheet, spacing them 1 to 1½" apart. Cover and let them rise in a warm place until light and doubled. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes, depending on their size. Remove them from the pan.

Supermarkets With No Clerks Future Shopping Possibility

NEW YORK (AP)—Imagine, housewives, shopping for groceries in a supermarket without clerks, without market baskets and with all the products behind glass.

And with an electronic device to tot up the bill and record charges in place of the usual checkout counter.

It's coming in perhaps five to 15 years the experts say. Forerunners already have appeared in France and Sweden.

"Of course, the ultimate step may be elimination of all supermarkets," said Herbert R. Brinberg, who as market research director of American Can Company studies such possibilities.

"I mean it very seriously. If people become accustomed to buying without touching, there's no reason they couldn't get used to ordering by video telephone two or three times a week."

Brinberg sees an automated supermarket as working something like this: The shopper enters a display section that occupies a fraction of the floor space now required.

WITH KEY SLOTS

Products are arrayed in customary grouping — preserves, breakfast foods, frozen concentrates, and the like—behind a transparent partition dotted with key slots.

The shopper takes a key from her purse. The key would be somewhat larger than a house key to accommodate a miniature electronic tape recording device.

Choosing her brand of coffee, the shopper inserts the key into the slot in the partition, turns and withdraws it. Then she moves on to the soups, detergents and so on, repeating the operation.

At the conclusion of her sidestouring, she inserts the key into an electronic scanner, charge-reckoning and clearing device hooked into a computer that starts things moving in a large warehousing zone of the store.

Thinks Husband Also Floats Toy Duck in Tub

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am so ashamed of my problem I can't discuss it with anyone. My husband is 40. We have three children. Every evening my husband races the kids to the bathtub and uses all the hot water. He likes to sit in the tub and let the water run in — leaving the drain open. He says he enjoys the "waves" created by the running water. I wouldn't swear to it but I think he also floats the baby's rubber duck.

ANN LANDERS

When the kids take their baths I have to heat water on the stove and carry it upstairs, which is a lot of bother. I've asked my husband to be more considerate of me and the children but he sulks and refuses to answer.

Is there a solution to this? — STUMPED.

DEAR STUMPED — You need a larger water heater—and you need it now. Put this on the top of your "must have" list and cut corners elsewhere to get it if necessary.

A 40-year-old man who is still playing with rubber ducks is not likely to approach any problem in a mature manner, so work it out alone.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have been playing bridge with a certain couple over 12 years. They are superb bridge players and so are we. The four of us are serious players and there is very little social chatter or foolishness. We have a set game every Thursday night and when we play cards we mean business. It is not uncommon for $40 or $50 dollars to change hands in an evening.

A few days ago I learned that this couple had an elegant dinner party at their club. More than 40 couples were present. My husband and I were not invited. I am deeply hurt.

Shall I tell them at our next card game that if we aren't good enough to be invited to their parties we aren't good enough to play cards with them? — GRAND SLAM.

DEAR GRAND — The answer is in your letter. You said, "When we play cards we mean business." Well, they mean business, too, and that's what the relationship means to them.

If you enjoy matching skills with this couple, continue to play cards with them but recognize the fact that you are not social friends.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Am I mentally ill or what? Whenever I see my family coming up the walk to visit me I want to run to the back of the house and hide. I know it isn't right to feel this way about a mother and two sisters but I do. My husband's family, on the other hand, is wonderful. I love them and they love me.

My childhood memories are nightmarish. There was always a fight at our dinner table. My sisters were mean to me and I hated them. They wore my clothes, took money out of my purse and made me do their work. I left home at 16 and only then did I find peace of mind.

Now that we are all grown and married, I know these feelings should be cast aside, but they still haunt me. I get physically ill when I am around these relatives. What is the solution? — B.D.F.

DEAR B.D.F. — Understanding and forgiving are marks of maturity. If you have been unable to conquer your hostility, stop pretending and stop feeling guilty.

Many people dislike their relatives — often justifiably. To feel one way and behave another is what makes people sick. See as little of the clan as possible. When you can feel more honestly with your relatives they will not make you ill.

Don "The Turk" Barclay, ex-hockey goalie, coach, manager, trainer and chaperone to a gaggle of world champions, has visions of retreading the trails he roamed in Europe during the hectic days of February, March of 1953.

Only this time he won't be chasing a couple of hundred hockey sticks over the highways and byways of Germany. The "Turk" has eyes on the next Olympics behelded championship. If Vic Emery is listening we've only bidding.

A year ago the Kingston Winter Carnival boys inaugurated a bobsled race and tossed out challenges all over the country.

"Turk" and three doughty companions including "Shaker" Baker got themselves a sled that resembled a Sherman tank and went into training. Eventually with their buttocks well-calloused they took off for the Limestone city.

The sled run is located on the Fort Henry Hill. They readied their snow-going tank with paddles and shovels and on official told me later that an outboard motor was secreted somewhere in the innards of the bulky craft.

Then it happened.

The Belleville crew huffed and puffed, snorted and wheezed and finally got the snow-boat under way. It seems the lifebelts, waterwings and other safety equipment they had stowed aboard were too much for the craft.

They took off in a cloud of snow, jeers and cheers — and for twenty-feet they were going like a scared cotton-tail.

It was reported some time later that Kingston skullduggery had planted a young mountain a few yards away from the start-point.

In any event the Belleville snow-going "Queen Mary" hit the submerged rock — and four figures flew through the air with the greatest of ease.

When they eventually got their arms and legs back in place they discovered they were disqualified. After all, the overgrown kettle-wagon they used as a sled was expected to travel more than twenty-feet before developing a bucking bronche complex.

Disqualified but not disgraced, the "Turk" decided. Like the Brooklyn Dodgers — "Wait 'Til Next Year" — and announced to all and sundry that night at the Carnival Ball that the Belleville crew would be back in 1963, this time on all corners — and walts home with the trophy bacon.

And, the Turk tells me, he intends with the help of three other husky sledders to do just that.

"We have never ran away from a Kingston crew whether it be hockey, pinochle, baseball, softball or a muscle-wrenching battle of checkers," he said, "but we have learned to do that in the streets behind heads."

And who, prithee, are the four bobbing buccaneers that form the crew? Turk was asked.

"Shaker Baker, Phil Bennett, my brother Arnold recently brought their life insurance to date, and of course, I will be at the helm on the journey to the bottom of the run."

"And how about the good ship 'Lollypop'?"

"Don't print this, but off the record we are readying the fastest thing ever seen on a sled run anywhere. We will have a topnotch vehicle available by race time. We're keeping it secret as we do not want the Olympics officials to take off with our blueprints."

However it appears the word has got around Kingston way of the plans of the Belleville Bobby-Pins and the Limestoners have announced that they will be given to ex taken from the upstarts of the Moira.

But the Turk's plumage remains unruffled. "We'll even hand tail-lights so they can follow us. Or we might offer to go down the hill backwards and toss 'em tow ropes."

The Kingston Winter Carnival Bobsled races get under way at Fort Henry Hill at 1.00 p.m. February 7th.

Canadian Curlers Lead Scots

SASKATOON (CP)—Touring Scottish rinks salvaged one win in six Strathcona Cup curling matches against Saskatoon rinks Thursday night.

Aggregate score in the six matches was 59-41 for Canada, bringing the total Canadian lead in the competition to 465-320.

The results of the matches in Saskatoon left the Scots with eight victories against 28 losses in Strathcona Cup play since their Canadian tour opened Jan. 7 at Vancouver.

They have also played in Trail, Calgary and Edmonton and move on to Moose Jaw today and Regina Saturday.

In the 50 years since 1909 in which there have been Strathcona Cup competitions, Canada has won five times and the Scots five. The cup is awarded on the basis of aggregate score.

Pulford, Provost Star ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Oliver Gets Three

Leafs Whip Habs; Bruins Bump Blues

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fifty million Frenchmen can't be wrong, the saying goes.

But the 22,478 fans, French-Canadian, New - Englander or other, who turned out to watch National Hockey League games Thursday night could be excused for thinking they were in the wrong arena.

What happened? Montreal Canadiens lost their third game in a row on home ice while Boston Bruins, perennial cellar-dwellers of the NHL, registered their third straight home-ice victory.

It was Toronto Maple Leafs, paced by centre Bobby Pulford, who sent Canadiens down to a 5-3 defeat. In Boston, N. York Rangers were on the losing end of a 5-2 score as centre Murray Oliver notched three goals to give the lowly skating their first hat trick of the season.

Leafs and Canadiens were locked in a 2-2 tie halfway through the third period when Pulford struck for his second goal of the game. Eleven seconds later, newcomer Pete Stemkowski netted his first NHL goal to put the game out of reach.

Pulford's first goal, the only one scored in the first period, came while the Leafs were shorthanded.

The game became a see-saw battle from the start of the second period.

Montreal's John Ferguson evened the score after only 39 seconds of play while Toronto was a man short. Then Jim Pappin scored from Stemkowski and Allen Stanley, and Claude Provost tied the score again, all before the three-minute mark of the period.

Stanley put Toronto ahead 3-2 near the halfway point, with Red Kelly and Stemkowski assisting, and Provost scored another at 13:13 to make the count 3-3.

The goals were Provost's 14th and 15th of the season, and moved him into fourth place in the NHL individual scoring race.

Canadiens outshot the Leafs in every period, but were unable to take advantage of their power play opportunities. Johnny Bower in the Toronto nets made 40 saves compared with 22 for Charlie Hodge, the defending Vezina Trophy champion.

The story was similar in Boston as the Bruins put the pressure on New York goalie Jacques Plante, who registered 43 saves to 21 for Boston goalie Eddie Johnston.

With his three goals, Oliver opened the scoring in the first minute of play, tied the count 2-2 in the second period and later put the Bruins ahead to stay.

Bill Knibbs and Wayne Rivers netted insurance goals in the third period.

Both New York goals came from Bob Nevin. His ninth and 10th of the season tied the score in the first period and gave the Rangers a brief 2-1 lead at 2:30 of the second.

All six teams are in action twice on the weekend. Boston visits Montreal, Detroit plays in Toronto and New York in Chicago Saturday.

Moira SS Defeats Napanee

By DAVID BRAMMER
AND BARRY CAMPBELL

Moira basketball teams trounced Napanee last night in all three games, the bantams 47-31, the juniors triumphed 72-28 and the seniors defeated Napanee 59-27.

The senior game was a runaway from the start with Moira tilting 16-2 quarter-time lead in a very fast game. The second quarter slowed down considerably and Moira upped their lead to 30-14 at half time. The third quarter slowed to a walking pace and Moira outscored Napanee 12-6 to make them a 42-17 lead at three quarter time. The last quarter was very fast with Moira outscoring Napanee 17-10 to make the final score 59-27 for Moira.

High scorer for Moira was Dunamore with 17 points. Also scoring were Rick Graham, 14 points and Bob Leckie, 7 points. Rigby led the Napanee scorers with 10 points.

In the junior game Moira completely out-played Napanee and led 30-9 at half time. The second half was a bit slow with Moira carrying a definite edge in play. The final score turned out to be 72-28 for Moira. Leading the parade of scorers was Bob Watson with 19 points, Mike "Ti" Hume had 10 points, Dave McLean had 9 points and Hal Wishart and Dave Redmond netted 8 points each.

The bantam Trojans led all the way scoring a 72-31 victory in a very well played game. Pete F. Bishop netted 16 points to lead the attack and Beresford scored 14 points. Other scorers were Bill Probert with 13 points, Bruce Larue and Pat Lee with 8 points and Richard Moffat with 7 points.

The half-time shows were highlighted by a chuckwagon race and a log-sawing contest in conjunction with pep week at Moira.

Peterborough Meets Juniors Here Tonight

Peterborough Don Eye and the Belleville B's clash in an OHA Intermediate A junior league tilt here tonight. There will be much on the line for both clubs involved.

Belleville will bid to lengthen their perfect home ice record which shows the "B's" with six wins in as many games here this season.

Peterborough will be striking for their lost of four. The Don Eye boys have met the local "B's" twice this season and are working on both occasions. Belleville won 10-6 here and 6-3 right in the Lift-lock City so tonight's visitors figure to have a couple of scores to settle.

The Petes have fared well in the Ontario Intermediate League this season, playing an inter-locking schedule. So far their own grouping with Kingston, and Belleville, the clubs across an even record.

Belleville must meet either Kingston or Peterborough in the OHA intermediate final playoffs, whichever is lower in the final standing. It's a safe bet that Gordie Bell-coached "B's" would much rather meet Peterborough on every time they beat the Petes it makes the score likely.

So fans may well be seeing a preview of the group semi-finals here tonight. Game time is nine o'clock.

The same two clubs clash again in Peterborough on Monday night. That game starts at 8.30.

Littler Tops At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Gene Littler, one of San Diego's favorite golfing sons, punctured par by eight strokes with a sensational putting performance Thursday and led the way through the first round of the $34,500 San Diego Open.

Littler rolled to a 64-33—63 over the par 71 Stardust Country Club course and a competitive record for the layout. But even so when the firing was over, he had his nearest rival, Rod Holtcher, by only two strokes.

Among the sub-par shooters were Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., with a 34-36—68, and George Knudson of Toronto, at 33-35—69.

Sued Sasky Riders
Player Collects $5,578

REGINA (CP)—Ken Bech, a lineman with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference for part of the 1963 season, Thursday was awarded $5,578 in a civil action against the Riders.

The judgment was issued in Court of Queen's Bench by Mr. Justice M. A. MacPherson.

Beck was cut from the team after playing nine games of the 1963 season. He later filed a civil action against Roughriders for the balance of his contract.

Beck told the court he sustained an injury to his right knee during a league game against B.C. Lions Sept. 9. He was cut Sept. 20.

Beck said Riders claimed he had brought the injury with him.

Bob Shaw, former Rider head coach, testified that Beck was cut from the team because of his unsatisfactory performance.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice MacPherson referred to a clause of Beck's contract which states that if a player is injured as the result of playing for a club, and the injury prevents him unfit for further play, the club must pay compensation, at least until the end of the season.

North Shore Hockey League

Proctor Silex and Melville Shorelinersm spotted the opposition three early leads but came back to gain victories in the Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League games played at Wellington last night.

The Silex crew, down 1-0 after the first period, moved into a lead in the second and wound up with an 8-1 decision over Consecon.

Bob Heffernan paced the Proctor Silex scorers with three goals while Ralph Hicks chipped in with a pair. C. Herrington had a goal and assist and the other counter went to Neil Houlding and Morris Weeks.

J. Byford triggered the lone Demorestville goal.

There were 14 penalties in the game with the losers taking the odd one. Each side drew one major.

Melville and Albury were deadlocked 2-2 at the end of one frame but Melville moved ahead 5-4 entering the third. Then Melville took over and won the day 8-4 with three unanswered goals.

Jim Dunlop had a big night for the Shorelinersm. He scored four goals. Other markers were shared by W. Cruickshank, J. Wight and Ed Ross.

Billy Genereaux topped the Albury marksmen with two goals and an assist. Pete Mitchell, Ref Eli and George Daniels completed the scoring.

Only three penalties were assessed in this game. The loser got a bench and major and the winners a major.

Quebec Aces Abandon Helmet Rule

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League announced Thursday that the team's players no longer are obliged to wear helmets on the ice.

The announcement came after defencemen Doug Harvey and centre Claude Mortson were struck by the club's skating off their helmets during a game against Baltimore Clippers.

The Aces abandoned their helmet rule following a meeting between the two players and acting general manager Frank Carlin.

Harvey complained that the helmet interfered with his vision and that this forced him to remove the head piece.

The team had visited three weeks ago that helmets would be obligatory for the Aces. The ruling followed head injuries to Jimmy Morrison and John Hanna.

It is made Quebec the first Canadian professional hockey team to restore helmets as compulsory equipment.

Harvey and Mortson were fined undisclosed amounts for removing their helmets in the third period of a Tuesday night game which the Aces lost to the Clippers 3-1.

The fines were not rescinded.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain said Thursday he's thinking about retiring at the end of the current basketball season despite the trade Wednesday that sent him from San Francisco to Philadelphia. The seven-foot-one centre said he tried to talk Philadelphia coowner Eddie Gottlieb out of making the deal. Richman is also 7ft.-22-year-old Chamberlain's personal lawyer.

Five Win 1st NHL All-Star Berths

MONTREAL (CP) — Five players won All-Star recognition for the first time in their National Hockey League careers in mid-season balloting for the official NHL All-Star teams.

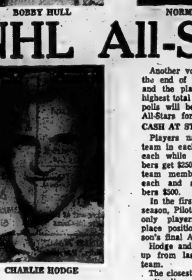
Three of them waited a long time for the honor.

Centre Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings and right-winger Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens, who made the first team, are in their 10th NHL season. Defenceman Harry Howell of New York Rangers is playing his 13th.

Howell was named to the second team, along with the other two newcomers — goaltender Roger Crozier of Detroit and right-winger Rod Gilbert of the Rangers. Crozier is a rookie and Gilbert has three NHL seasons behind him.

—Neither Toronto Maple Leafs nor Boston Bruins had a player elected to the All-Star list. There are three each from the other four teams.

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, the NHL scoring leader, received the only unanimous vote of 90 points.



TEAMS NAMED

FIRST TEAM: Goal—Charlie Hodge, Montreal (72). Defence — Jacques Laperriere, Montreal (86) and Pierre Pilote, Chicago (85). Centre—Norm Ullman, Detroit (79). Right wing—Claude Provost, Montreal (80). Left wing — Bobby Hull, Chicago (90).

SECOND TEAM: Goal — Roger Crozier, Detroit (67). Defence — Bill Gadsby, Detroit (48) and Harry Howell, New York (40). Centre—Stan Mikita, Chicago (52). Right wing—Rod Gilbert, New York (32). Left wing — Camille Henry, New York (35).

The voting, conducted among sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities, was cast on the basis of five points for a first-place vote, three for a second and one for a third.

CHARLIE HODGE

Half-Way Honors

Another vote will be held at the end of the current season and the players receiving the highest total of points from both polls will be the official NHL All-Stars for 1964-65.

CASH AT STAKE

Players named to the first team in each half receive $500 each while second-team members get $300. The over-all first-team members receive $1,000 each and second-team members $500.

In the first-half balloting this season, Pilote and Hull are the only players validating first-place positions from last season's final All-Star team.

Hodge and Laperriere moved up from last season's second team.

The closest voting was for the goaltending position and second-team defence.

Hodge won the first-team berth by five points over Crozier, and Howell had an eight-point margin over Carl Brewer of Toronto for the second-team defence position.

Apart from Hull — also a unanimous choice last season— and Pilote, few of last season's first team appeared close enough on the halfway ballot to stand a chance of repeating.

Mikita, demoted to the second team, was within striking distance of overtaking Ullman at centre but his teammate, Ken Wharram, picked up only four points at right wing and appeared out of the running.

The Horton of Toronto, Pilote's first-team defence partner last season, was in seventh place with 40 points and Glenn Hall of Chicago, last year's top goaltender, was far back with five points.

Gordie Howe of Detroit, who has been a first or second-team All-Star in the last eight years, trailed Gilbert by nine points in third place at right wing.

Dean Prentice of Boston was the closest also - ran at left wing, nine points behind Henry. The Bruins haven't achieved all-star status for the last five years.

Billy Hopkins fired the first Merchant goal, aided by Harold Haddock. Haddock reversed the play with Hopkins at 19.39 of the period.

The second-frame loner also came in the dying seconds. Bart Frederick completed a play with Jones and Hicks at 19.44.

In the third, Bob Thompson tallied on a solo play and Billy Hicks got the fifth goal, assisted by Paul Jones and Frederick.

Pete Small scored Gananoque's initial goal with Murray Bourtree helping and Dwight Hall made it 2-2, aided by Andy Wilson—but that was it.

In tonight's only replayed game, Belleville "B's" will be bidding to pass Gananoque when they play host to Peterborough.

WINS CUP MATCH

LONDON (AP) — Leicester defeated Blackburn Rovers 3-1 Thursday night in a replay of their previous third-round deadlock in the English Soccer Cup tournament.

Picton Jrs. Turn Back Gananoque

PICTON (Staff) — Building a five-goal lead before Gananoque got on the scoreboard, Picton Merchants upset the league-leading Islanders 5-3 in OHA Eastern Junior Hockey here last night.

The loss left Gananoque still on top but just one point ahead of Belleville—and the islanders have played two more games. Picton climbed back into a third-place tie with Trenton by virtue of the victory.

The Merchants led 2-0 after one period and made it 3-0 in the second. Another pair in the third upped the count to 5-0 before Gananoque potted the final pair.

Picton received most of the game's 11 minor penalties and was outshot by the visitors 31-28.

Billy Hopkins fired the first Merchant goal, aided by Harold Haddock. Haddock reversed the play with Hopkins at 19.39 of the period.

The second-frame loner also came in the dying seconds. Bart Frederick completed a play with Jones and Hicks at 19.44.

In the third, Bob Thompson tallied on a solo play and Billy Hicks got the fifth goal, assisted by Paul Jones and Frederick.

Pete Small scored Gananoque's initial goal with Murray Bourtree helping and Dwight Hall made it 2-2, aided by Andy Wilson—but that was it.

The 'Barber' Turns Down Coach Job

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox, struggling to escape the American League second division, received a major setback Thursday when Sal Maglie informed the club he could not the position of pitching coach, it's there."

Eastler in the day Maglie was appointed deputy athletic commissioner of the state of New York.

Maglie, of New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers pitching fame, had held pitching-coaching jobs with the Sox previously.

Pitching is the principal problem facing new Red Sox manager Billy Herman.

'No Thought Of Losing' Patterson Is Quietly Confident

MARLBORO, N.Y. (AP) — Floyd Patterson is characteristically quiet and matter-of-fact in assessing his chances against George Chuvalo Feb. 1.

"I have no thought of losing," said the two - time former heavyweight champion Thursday, "even though the possibil-

Floyd is similarly down-to-earth in looking beyond his Feb. 1 date with the Toronto battler at Madison Square Garden:

"If I'm fortunate enough to beat Chuvalo, and Canada Clay beats Sonny Liston again, I'd like to fight Clay. If I beat him, I'd want to fight Liston again.

"But Liston is what I want. It's a fight the public wouldn't accept.

FLOYD PATTERSON

Vivid in his memory, of course, are two devastating defeats at the hands of Liston—by first - round knockouts in 1962 and '63.

WON THREE

Patterson won his three fights in 1964, representing the most active by had in one year since he won the title the first time with a kayo over Archie Moore in 1956.

Patterson says the activity has made him sharper, and he looked sharp in Thursday's routine but brisk sessions at his camp, 70 miles up the Hudson River from New York.

He was especially effective with a left hook as he went one round each with Charley Powell, the one - time pro football player whom he knocked out in Puerto Rico last month, and the younger prizefighting Patterson, Ray.

Patterson has never seen Chuvalo fight, live or even on film. But he said that is not unusual for him — he's had several opponents he hadn't watched previously.

He likened the brawling Canadian's style, which has been described to him by manager-trainer Dan Florio, to that of other men he has fought and said he is stressing nothing in particular in preparing for the bout.

Quinte Hockey League

Big things were happening in the Quinte Hockey League's double-header at the Memorial Arena here last night.

The Wee Hawks handed SACO their first defeat of the season, a convincing 9-3 whipping.

And Horlock Electrics potted two goals in the game's final 45 seconds to damp Rosemore 5-3.

The Dauben ran up a 4-0 first-frame lead against SACO and made it 7-2 after two periods.

Hubert Pointer starred for Tee-Haar, scoring once in the first, twice in the second and making it a four-goal effort with another in the third. Al Ruttan added two goals with one each for Ron Pointer, Ron Kellar and Ron Urch. Don Moore paced the playmakers with five assists, Jack Donovan and Ruttan each claiming three, Urch two and Kellar one.

Ray Lesage and Ken Forsythe had the SACO markers, assisted by Art Deline and Don Forsythe.

Rosamore and Horlocks were tied 1-1 after two heats, each club scoring in the first frame. They traded two goals each again early in the third to make it 3-3 going into the final minute.

Don Stewart triggered the Horlock winner and Gary Little clinched it with another goal. Stewart had also scored earlier while Mike Brant and Bob Wannamaker had the other goals. Bud Hill earned three assists, Wannamaker and Leroy McBride one each.

Doug Reid, "Widge" Adams and Merv Thompson were the Rosamore goal-getters. Ron Smith, Rick Wilson and Dennis Kerruish drew assists.

Richardson Will Play For Yankees

NEW YORK (CP) — A contract for an estimated $35,000, described by general manager Ralph Houk as a "modest increase, has persuaded Bobby Richardson to forget his retirement plans and play second base for the New York Yankees again in 1965.

"I've changed my mind," Richardson said Thursday after admitting he had given serious thought to quitting the game after the 1964 season. "Father Houk changed it for me."

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Reds announced the signing of outfielders Vada Pinson and Tom Harper and pitcher Bill Henry while pitcher Milt Pappas signed with Baltimore Orioles and catcher Gus Triandos returned his signed contract to Philadelphia Phillies.

Aces Clip Clippers

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces scored three goals during a 12 minute rally in the second period Thursday night to defeat Baltimore Clippers 4-2 in an American Hockey League game.

John Blackburn sparked the rally with Aces' first two goals. Ed Hoekstra and Bill Sutherland got the others.

Marksmen for the Clippers were Ken Schinkel and Don McGregor.

The first period ended with Baltimore ahead 1-0 on Schinkel's goal. Then Blackburn scored from Doug Harvey and Bob Harmon with the second period only 27 seconds old.

He scored again on a pass from Leon Rochefort at 7:20 and Hoekstra capped the rally at 12:54.

McGregor put Baltimore back within range at 17:23, taking a pass from Ray Brunel, and the score stood at 3-2 until Sutherland put the game out of reach with his unassisted goal in the last minute of play.

Luciuk Takes Over Senior Lead

GALT (CP)—Dave Luciuk of Guelph Regals took over the scoring leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series this week.

Luciuk has 15 goals and 20 assists for 45 points and a narrow lead over linemates Don McGregor and Eddie Malo, league statistics show today.

He had been tied for first place either with McGregor or Malo each week during the last five weeks. McGregor has 14 goals and 30 assists for 44 points while Malo has 20 goals and 23 assists for 43 points. Malo leads the league in goals with five more than Luciuk, teammate Rick Dryden and Bernie Lawrence of Woodstock Athletics.

Dave Dryden of Galt Hornets jumped in front in the goaltending race displacing season-long leader Boat Hurley of Guelph. Dryden has a 2.86 goals-against average compared with 3.00 for Hurley.

Bobsledder Spills, Uninjured

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP)—Canadian bobsledder Dr. Vic Emery Thursday escaped injury in a drastic spill at the same place where his brother, Vic, was hurt Wednesday.

Vic Emery of Montreal suffered cuts and bruises when his sled turned upside down on the last bends on the St. Moritz Olympic run. He planned to resume training Friday and Monday for the forthcoming world championships.

John Emery of Toronto practised with brakeman Purvis McDougall, Montreal, who was also not hurt.

Both Emery brothers were on the four-man team that won a gold medal for Canada at last year's Winter Olympics in Austria.

"If you HAVE to bring that vaporizer to the office, would you mind aiming it somewhere else?"

Goldston Raises An Issue

HAMILTON (CP) — Ralph Goldston, a defensive halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats who was traded to Montreal Alouettes in a package deal announced Jan. 9, feels players should be given an unconditional release for any reason they care to name after serving five years with one football team.

And, he added in an interview Thursday, he would like to see the formation of a players' union that would give priority to getting a pension plan, a better financial split on playoff and Grey Cup games and better scheduling to avoid back-to-back games.

Goldston said he has "no desire to go there (to Montreal) simply as a player. I want an assistant coaching job as well."

A public school teacher when not playing football, he said he would not be able to teach in Montreal and that Ted Workman, general manager of the Als, would have to match his football and teaching salaries between $19,000 and $20,000 a year.

Undefeated Pickering In Final

CALGARY (CP)—Bob Pickering of Avonlea, Sask., won a berth in the final of the 1965 Masters' curling championship Thursday night with an 8-7 extra-end victory over Harold Worth of Delisle, Sask.

Pickering, the undefeated winner of the top section in the double - knockout tournament, will await the survivor of the lower section playoffs today.

With a loss each in the bottom section are Jim Williamson, Brandon, Man.; Hersh Lerner, Winnipeg; Hec Gervais, Edmonton; Merv Mann, Saskatoon; Ernie Richardson, Regina; Vic Wintonuk, Edmonton and Worth.

Mickey Wright Female Athlete Of The Year

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second year in a row, golfer Mickey Wright has been chosen as the Female Athlete of the Year by sports writers and broadcasters voting in The Associated Press year-end poll.

The 29-year old blonde, who has won more tournaments and more money than any other woman in pro golf, was the first choice of 118 voters on the panel of about 250.

Three Clubs Eye Soccer Loop Title

LONDON (Reuters) — After the excitement of the cup ties, it is back to the routine of league play for English soccer clubs Saturday.

Manchester United, favorite for the title although it is in third place at the moment behind Chelsea and Leeds United, welcomes back its Scottish international, Denis Law, for a road match with Nottingham Forest.

With Law taking over from 18-year-old Albert Kinsey at inside forward and no injury worries, Manchester should best Forest.

But Manchester United may not reap any advantage, for both Chelsea, visiting struggling Fulham, and Leeds, visiting Leicester, which last won a home match in October, should also win.

The title challenge now seems to rest among Chelsea, Leeds and Manchester United, for Tottenham Hotspur, the nearest club outside the leading trio, is seven points behind.

It has been a quiet week for trades. The only one of note concerned left-winger Bertie Auld, who returned to Celtic from Birmingham City for a price of £12,000 ($36,000) Auld had joined Birmingham from Celtic for £13,000 in 1961.

Boxer Died From Heart Condition

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A 17-year-old novice boxer who collapsed in the ring during a Golden Gloves match died of a heart condition, not from blows, a coroner ruled Thursday.

The coroner, Dr. David Belinsky, said a post mortem on the body of the boxer, Jerry Come Jr., "failed to reveal any evidence of traumatic death."

"From the autopsy and clinical findings and historical data it is my opinion that he died of a pre-existing cardiac condition not usually detected by routine physical examination."

County heart stopped briefly a short time after he dropped to the canvas Tuesday night, but doctors restarted it. They cut open his windpipe at hospital to aid breathing and used a machine to help maintain heart condition.

The youth died Thursday morning without regaining consciousness.

Canadian Cards Best Score

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (AP) Mrs. Phillip Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., came from behind Thursday and advanced to the semi finals of the South Atlantic women's amateur golf tournament.

Mrs. Cudone, the medallist, was two down after six holes with Ontario junior champion Sandra Post of London, Ont., but she won five of the next six and took the match 3 and 2.

Margie Masters of Ottawa, the Canadian Open champion, overwhelmed Maria Martinez of Monterrey, Mexico, 8 and 7, carding the best medal score of the day. She was one under men's par at the end of 11 holes.

TOO MUCH JUICE

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — The Okanagan fruit industry plans to manufacture non - alcoholic cider to use up an apple juice surplus.

College Grid Teams Withdraw

HALIFAX (CP) — The nine-team Atlantic Football Conference, largest football league in the Maritimes, apparently has been reduced to two teams but AFC officials indicated Thursday they hope to operate again next season.

The crisis developed last Saturday when the AFC's seven college teams voted to pull out and form an intercollegiate league of their own.

The survivors are two naval teams, Stadacona Sailors and Shearwater Flyers.

AFC spokesmen said they are trying to interest the RCAF station at Greenwood, N.S., and a civilian team from Halifax in joining the two naval teams.

'Night People' Find Solace In Minister

CHICAGO (AP) — Amid the gaudy neon lights which awaken Rush Street at dusk is a small dark lamp, illuminating a second-story window a narrow white sign: Night Pastor.

Behind it, six nights a week, sits Rev. Robert H. Owen, minister to the "night people"—the bartenders, B-girls, musicians, cabbies and cooks of the night-time world of Chicago's nearnorth side entertainment strip.

Father Owen, 49, an Episcopal (Anglican) priest with a wife and six children, describes his work as an "outbeat ministry." His comments ponting to the description:

"This guy had just been rolled of $800 and somebody referred him to me. I didn't get the $800 back but I think I made him feel a little better about losing it.

"A young couple who had been living together for six years came in the sign in the window and came up out of curiosity. Three days later I married them."

"A lot of drunks wande. in. They need to get some sevil in them before they can talk about their problems One of them, who thought I was trying to close down the street, said he didn't wish me any bad luck but he hoped I'd fall."

Father Owen emphasized that he does not want to close down the street. A "piano player of sorts" himself, he started his night pastorate as the result of his friendship with many of the Rush Street nightclub musicians.

Preview Specials Will Be Narrated by Fairbanks Jr.

By CYNTHIA LOWERY

NEW YORK (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Jr. became an actor at the age of 14 in a motion picture star at 22. Although a variety of things, including business and diplomacy, seem to fascinate him more, he has never been far away from show business.

Fairbanks, whose television appearances occur at long 18-month intervals nowaways, will soon appear as host and narrator of a series of four ABC Preview specials. They will take a backstage look at assorted show business events.

The first, on Feb. 4, follows the creative activity involved in the new Anthony Newley musical being produced for Broadway.

Fairbanks' present series came about because the company manufacturing the series was "a sort of client" of one of his business interests. He was interested because at one time, he said, he had an idea for a series similar to the present one.

Now, 55, Fairbanks and his wife maintain a New York apartment and a home in Switzerland. They spend several months each year in England, where Fairbanks has business interests.

Future include a string of European bowling alleys, a lighting cigarette now being strong. Elsewhere, hotels and motels, a ballpoint pen company.

His famous name, he said, helped him in his performing career, and has certainly been a boon in his business.

No Further Extension of Run-Throughs

WINNIPEG (CP)—D. V. Gonder, Canadian National Railways vice president for the Great Lakes region, said Thursday the railway has not made any decisions for further extensions of crew runs in the next five years.

He made the statement under cross - examination in the second day of hearings by the Freedman commission into CNR run-throughs.

The inquiry was announced by the federal government when CNR service was disrupted as about 2,500 employees from Toronto to Vancouver boocked sick or sniff for duty in protest at CNR run-throughs at Nakina, Ont., and Wainwright, Alta.

At that time the publicly-owned railway postponed the run-throughs — extended crew runs.

Under the run - throughs the CNR would have eliminated a crew change at Nakina, thus covering the 244-mile distance between Hornepayne and Armstrong. Crews with new ones instead of two.

Maurice Wright of Ottawa, counsel for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (ind.), the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC), asked Mr. Gonder how the company decides what points are to be run through.

Mr. Wright said that early in 1963 there was a suggestion that Nakina stop. Onl., would be run through.

Nakina and Armstrong are both small communities north of Lake Superior. The Oct. 25 proposal was to run engine crews of two men between Nakina and Armstrong, a distance of 244 miles.

Mr. Gonder said the CNR's departments of transportation, equipment and maintenance of way consider the factors involved in run-throughs.

The hearing continues today.

Art Linkletter's House Party On Radio, TV for 20 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They said it could never happen but this week it did. Ralph Edwards came on Art Linkletter's show and announced: "This is your life."

The one-time arch-rivals in the audience-participation show business finally made their appearance together, much to Linkletter's consternation. It was all part of the 20th birthday celebration for his House Party show. The Edwards-Linkletter summit meeting will appear on the daytime CBS series Jan. 22.

It was just 20 years ago today that Art and his partner John Guedel staged the first edition of the longest party in history. They already had a night-time radio show, but Linkletter and Art commuted weekly to San Francisco for the daytime What's Doing show.

The two men had an idea for a program about the younger generation, starring Under 21. They went to New York to sell it.

No sale, was the reply, but General Electric was looking for a five-week spot for Art and John quickly concocted House Party. It has been on ever since, television part for 13 years. It's the only program broadcast in both mediums.

KIDS' INTERVIEW POPULAR

"The only features to survive from Under 21 was interviewing young kids," said Art in his office here the other day this week. "And we're still doing it." He also got a bestselling book out of children's sayings.

Over the years Linkletter has changed—from friendly, optimistic emcee to friendly, optimistic grandfather figure. The show has changed, too.

I asked Art to list the superlatives of the two decades. He came up with these:

Most outstanding interview: Harry S. Dehlia, a couple of years before his death. "He really opened up—and this was his first appearance on the air in eight years, since he had been put off radio for refusing to allow political broadcasts."

Most poignant interview: With a Negro handyman who had put five children through college, then graduated from high school and college himself.

Biggest laugh: When a five-year-old was asked how his parents met. "I don't know," said the tyke, "but I do know they were roommates in college."

Beaver Traps Yielding Good Harvest

By WM. W. BITTLE

Tweed District trappers this season are concentrating a high level of trapping pressure on beaver, resulting in a larger catch for the past two months than for the same period last year. A total of 4,180 raw beaver pelts were sealed during November and December 1964.

Weather conditions have been favorable for trappers. Very little snow and mild weather. Actually, at the start of the season there was much concern about low water and some beaver ponds were nearly dry. However, heavy rains, then snow and warm rain again filled the streams and ponds to maximum capacity.

At this time there is very little snow on the ground. In the north bush country there is less than a six-inch average snow cover, with four to six inches in the southern farm lands. Travelling is good, but more than one trapper has reported a beaver lodge covered out onto thin ice. However, most of the lakes have eight to 10 inches of ice.

The mink harvest on the other hand is down nearly 45% from last year. As of December 31st, 567 pelts were sealed. Fisher and lynx are also down from these animals are relatively newcomers to the district and are rather scarce.

Other remain fairly constant and the take of nearly 100 is comparable to other years. One trapper near the village of Tweed caught two otter in one Conibear trap. The Conibear is a rather new trap, designed to kill instantly.

Insurance Head Against Linking Increases in Pension Plan With Cost of Living

OTTAWA (CP)—W. M. Anderson, chairman of the North American Life Assurance Company board, said it would be better to associate increased benefits in the old age security program with average earnings rather than the cost of living.

Mr. Anderson, appearing as a private individual before the joint Senate-Commons committee on the Canada Pension Plan and said there is a basic philosophical effect in linking the increases with the cost of living.

"It is saying in effect: 'You won't starve, but if productivity and earnings go up, you won't share in it'."

Under the pension plan bill, old age pensions eventually would be pegged to the cost of living.

Mr. Anderson appeared to disagree with some of the suggestions made earlier to the committee by representatives of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, who said the indexing of benefits and adjustments with the cost of living would be a factor in encouraging inflation.

ISN'T WORRIED

Mr. Anderson said the effect of the increases on inflation "doesn't worry me at all."

Later in the hearings, Robert J. Myers, chief actuary of the social security administration of the U.S. Health, Education, Welfare department said he didn't feel there should be automatic adjustments so far as the U.S. system is concerned. Mr. Myers did not discuss the Canada pension plan and his period of answer and question period was confined mainly to experience in his country.

Mr. Myers said the bill will appear before the committee again today, and a table with increment pensions should be provided through private industry for the next 25 years.

"But one problem is when you want action in the private sector you can't wait 25 years fast." And "if you are going to get fairly large benefits you have to have a private sector."

BREAKS NEW GROUND

He said Canada was breaking new ground in taking ideas from other plans, and other countries, and combining them in the Canada Pension Plan. He indicated that better results could be achieved with innovation rather than imitation.

"Surely we can think of our own ideas."

Mr. Anderson also said it is not necessary to make pension plans uniform in order for them to be portable. "It can be achieved quite independently of uniformity."

He said the Canada Pension Plan is bound to be changed over the years, having the same effect as placing contributors in a new plan. They could transfer benefits from one plan to another.

Dr. Schweitzer Acclaimed on 90th Birthday

LAMBARENE, Gabon (AP) — Albert Schweitzer turned 90 Thursday and was acclaimed by hundreds of well - wishers at his jungle hospital.

"This is the best birthday of my life," he said.

About 60 of the white staff members sang birthday songs in German. A group of children from a nearby leper colony, some with bandages on their arms and legs, sang Happy Birthday in French.

Hundreds of equatorial African tribesmen, about 200 European visitors and Americans massed at the modest hospital newsletter founded by the Quaker Nov. 16 for 90 years ago. Toair tribute to the white-haired humanitarian, explorer, musician and author was joined by President Johnson in a message from Washington saying:

"In your commitment to truth and service you have touched and enriched the lives of millions you have never met."

There were gifts — some simple and expensive — for the Nobel Peace Prize winner of 1952, whose medical work has directly touched more than 50,000 persons.

In the world, usual, looked untidy by Western standards. The sick and the injured are crowded in corrugated iron shacks.

Schweitzer defended his concept of primitive treatment for primitive patients as he observed:

"Africans themselves showed me the way.

"At first I wanted to build a hospital like those in Europe. But Africans — two simple facts — showed me I could not have the conditions are different and necessities are different in the African bush hospital for Africans."

ECONOMY EXPANDS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy expanded by 6.5 per cent in 1964 and reached a total of $622,300,000,000, the commerce department said Thursday. This gross national product figure was very close to the $623,000,000,000 predicted by President Johnson's economic advisers at the start of 1964.

Labor College of Canada Will Teach Economics to Budding Union Leaders

By RUSSELL PEDEN

MONTREAL (CP)—A bushy-haired Montreal economist who specializes in business has accepted a full-time job serving Canada's trade union movement.

Dr. Fernand Martin, 39, an economics professor at the University of Montreal, takes up new duties May 1, 1965, as the first full-time principal of the Labor College of Canada.

He will also teach economics to budding union leaders from across Canada as well as African, Asian and Caribbean countries.

Dr. Martin says it doesn't matter that his doctoral thesis in economics was "The Theory of the Firm."

"It's a matter of emphasis, not philosophy," he said in an interview. "Popular labels like capitalism and socialism don't enter into it.

"We are not teaching any doctrine, and we are not telling labor people what to think. We are teaching how people and societies, not how it should operate."

Dr. Martin feels his bicultural background, both as a student and as a lecturer, was a major factor in his selection as college principal.

STUDIED IN LONDON

A native of Lac Bracelette, Que., he studied at the French-language Academie de Quebec and at Laval University before taking economics at McGill University and the London School of Economics.

He lectured in English for three years at the universities of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, then accepted an assistant professor's post at the French-language University of Montreal in 1962.

In his first teaching job at the Labor College he summer will be handled three economics classes—two in English and one in French.

"I think the college wanted somebody at the top who understands both languages—or even more than that, both cultures."

Dr. Martin recalls that his own introduction to the English-Canadian culture, at the second-year university level, required considerable study.

"At that time, when I left Laval in Quebec City for McGill, it was quite a adventure—a venture into enemy territory, you might say."

Lectures at McGill were in English, but he was permitted to write his examinations in French.

Apart from the language problem, Dr. Martin says he finds a big difference in the family retail store in St. Hyacinthe, and commuted the 30 miles to Montreal every day.

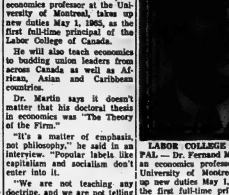
As a lecturer, he finds the Labor College students considerably more demanding than regular university classes — so much so that he likes to roll up his suit jacket and roll up his sleeves before a union audience.

DEMAND ANSWERS

"Adults are impatient. They won't let 'anything go by' if they don't understand, and they want an answer right away.

"As a result, you get a plan your lectures. Sometimes when you have explained a point a student will look up and say: 'Just a minute. I work in pulp and paper mills. We had a strike a little while ago and it didn't happen that way.' Then you have to abandon your lecture until the point has been answered satisfactorily.

"It's a lot of fun. A student misses a point, he figures he can always catch up later or get it in the textbook."



The Labor College was incorporated in 1963 through the efforts of McGill, the University of Montreal Trade Unions. It's for union leaders "who, although lacking formally completed or not meet formal university entrance standards."

It offers summer courses in economics, history, sociology, political science and trade unionism to students selected by 26 college representatives across Canada.

In its opening term in 1963, it had 56 Canadian students. Last year there were 118. Including 18 foreign students from English-speaking countries.

This year, Dr. Martin expects many more. Foreign students from French-speaking countries are to be invited for the first time.

The college is supported mainly through union contributions, although various government grants accounted for more than $32,000 of its $113,000 revenue in 1963-64.

Counsel at Dorion Inquiry Try to Get Statements on RCMP Operations in Case

MONTREAL (CP) — Counsel at the Dorion judicial inquiry into wiretapping have laid the record statements on RCMP operations which may be introduced at a later stage of the investigation into the Rivard affair.

The latest example was furnished Thursday when Rosa Drouin, counsel for the Progressive Conservative party, asked whether the Mounties got a statement from Jean-Guy Rivard, 32 - year - old wife of narcotics smuggling suspect Lucien Rivard, 44.

As has occurred previously, RCMP Counsel Norman Mathews replied that a statement wasn't sought by the police from the witness.

Mrs. Rivard pretty much the same reply about Immigration Officer Tremblay; Mrs. Jean-Gerard Lemoyne, mother-in-law of Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne; Eddie Leiderman, Rivard's close friend and possessor of a criminal record said by Mr. Drouin to include manslaughter; and Kenneth Cashlin, Royal Trust Company accountant who opened a $50,000 cash deposit from Mrs. Rivard and Robert Gignac, charged with second-degree murder in a gangland execution.

The apparent point of inquiry in the various statements to police by these witnesses is that counsel Justice Frederic Dorion is instructed among other things to examine the RCMP's handling of attempted bribery and coercion allegations in the Rivard case.

At this stage, he still is hearing witnesses in an effort to determine whether the allegations have merit or whether there is sufficient evidence.

The allegations were made last March 31 by Lamontagne, counsel for the United States government which wants to extradite Rivard to face charges of conspiracy of smuggling dope for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Mr. Lamontagne testified he was offered $20,000 July 14 by Immigration Officer Tremblay, executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay, to agree to Rivard going free on bail. He said he rejected the offer and opposed bail because he was sure Rivard would skip.

Although the score of lawyers appearing before Chief Justice Dorion have concentrated on other aspects of the inquiry, they also have been asking a few questions about the way the RCMP handled the investigation of Mr. Lamontagne's allegations when Mr. Lamontagne complained to them Aug. 11.

Witnesses who gave statements to the Mounties are handed copies of them as they start to testify — to "refresh their memories." The battery of lawyers also get copies.

When Chief Justice Dorion moves on to the question of police handling of the case, police are expected to explain their reasons for taking statements from some witnesses but not from others.

Three Members Leave Society Over Action

TORONTO (CP)—Three leading members of the Elizabeth Fry Society of Ontario have confirmed that they have resigned after the society's executive director, Mrs. Marion Hilliard, endorsed the Nov. 5 grand jury's report criticizing Mercer Reformatory for Women, in Toronto. Other charges had been investigated.

"It's like a trial," said Mrs. Hilliard, "and everybody knows has yet been proved."

Mrs. Hall-Humperson, Mrs. Willard M. Kelly and Mrs. J. A. E. Mason, were reluctant to confirm that they had resigned, because they had explained their views to the committee investigating the grand jury's allegations, of which no report is expected until next month.

Mrs. Kelly, a former vice president of the society, told a newspaper mat the superintendent of Mercer reformatory, Mrs. Jean Burrows, is "a marvellous woman—the grand jury's report was most unjust to her."

The society is an international organization established to perpetuate the aims of a 19th century British women's prison reformer.

Film Songster Dies at Age 57

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Gene Raymond makes a pleasant journey to Hollywood today with the body of his wife, Jeanette MacDonald, lovely songbird of a lilting era in American movies who died of a heart ailment in Houston Thursday. She was 57.

Her death brought an end to a brilliant stage and film career and to her 27-year-marriage—a childless one. Her last words to Raymond came in a Houston, Tex., hospital, where she had been since Tuesday in undergoing heart surgery.

"I love you," she whispered "I love you, too," he replied. She died a few minutes later.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian voters may have to wait several months before casting ballots should a federal election campaign be forced in early spring next year.

Neither federal officials who handle the ballots, nor party campaign strategists who try to win votes have been caught napping. They will be ready for a campaign for some time following the redistribution of constituency boundaries that will become law then.

The 10 provincial commissions that will carry out Canada's first independent revision of federal ridings Wednesday the new official within the next few days when they are proclaimed.

Commission reports must be submitted to Parliament within a year. Another two and one-half months are provided for protests and reconsideration. The new parliament will have in the early spring of 1966—probably mid-April.

Representation Commissioner Nelson Castonguay, his officials and federal political party planners need several months to reorganize their machinery after the new ridings become law.

WOULD BE HASTY

Therefore it is extremely likely any election forced upon the minority government by a called by Prime Minister Pearson in spring, 1966, would have to be postponed for anywhere from three to six months.

Some observers are forecasting an election in the next 12 months, meaning a campaign fought on the old boundaries. But if that government is approved wrong an election would be all but impossible between early April and late summer of next year.

One official said an election during this period would be "the most chaotic in history."

Redistribution is to alter almost every riding in the country. Saskatchewan will lose four seats, and Quebec, Manitoba and Nova Scotia each one. Ontario gains three, Alberta two, British Columbia one. The House of Commons will be reduced from 265 to 264 members.

The federal cabinet must appoint new returning officers for new constituencies or reappoint holdings given new names. Returning officers must reorganize constituency polling division arrangements and set up established principle of 200 to 300 voters for each.

Whoever possible, polls are set up so that voters have no more than a 10-mile return trip to vote—another time-consuming task.

MUST START EARLY

The same procedure also by law must start 49 days before election day in put voters on the voters' lists. Then:

These chores cannot begin until the commissions have completed their work on the boundaries and the new ridings are law. Mr. Castonguay estimates returning officers will need three months.

The two major political parties probably will require more time to reorganize, their riding associations to conform with the new boundaries.

Local associations will have to hold elections of officers in some cases, and nominate candidates.

Richard Thrasher, national director of the Progressive Conservative party, says a minimum of 100 days before election will be needed for these tasks and 180 PROBABLY.

Keith Davey, national organizer for the Liberal party, sees no great problem and thinks six or eight weeks will provide sufficient time. At first, redistribution will present a difficult problem for the returning officers, he said.

Mr. Davey welcomes the shakeup redistribution will bring because it will enable the Liberal party to overhaul any stagnating constituency associations — particularly in rural areas.

He said there is a tendency for rural associations to keep the same officers election after election, while urban associations have a large turnover that provides a younger face for each election.

Terry Grier, federal secretary of the New Democratic Party, says he and his colleagues have two plans to cope with redistribution.

One is short-term, to enable the NDP to fight an election right after redistribution, the other is a continuing effort to win more support.

Although Mr. Grier feels redistribution presents no insurmountable problem, he admits to banking on the delay that Mr. Castonguay and his officials definitely need.

Communists To Pick Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's Communists start a four - day conference here Saturday to pick a new leader and decide how to swell their meagre ranks.

About 60 delegates of the Communist party will also name a successor to Leslie Morris, who joined the party in Winnipeg in 1921 and who became leader in 1962. He died last November.

Internal big problem—one that has been plaguing the party since the war years—will be how to attract new members to fix cause. Party membership now is fewer than half the then 23,000 claimed in 1946.

Sitting in, if only in an advisory capacity, will be Tim Buck, the 74-year-old veteran who headed the party for 31 years before stepping down it in a barn near Guelph in 1621.

Addition to Present School Is Better Than New One

PICTON (Staff) — An addition to the present Collegiate and Vocational School in Picton is more suitable than the building of a new and expensive high school, Board members learned at their monthly meeting this week.

A letter from D. H. W. McLaughlin, assistant deputy minister for the Department of Education, pointed out "As the existing school could provide accommodation for 1,250, we suggest that an addition to accommodate approximately 600 pupils could be built before your Board considers building a new school."

Mr. McRae also advised the Board that a present 75 per cent grant on classical school facilities expires on March 31, 1967. To qualify for the grant any building proposal would have to be submitted to the department by November of this year."

"The School Board committee has had its invitation which has been suggested as the site for a new school if one is built.

To deal with the matter, the Board set up a building committee headed by Murray Parks of Hillier, who was returned as chairman of the Board.

In order to make sure elected heads of municipal councils are aware of all pertinent information the Board passed a suggestion that council heads be invited to attend all meetings of the present Collegiate and Vocational School in Picton where it is more suitable than the building of a new and expensive high school. Board members learned at their monthly meeting this week.

Lot of Talk About Health Of United Nations But Patient Likely to Survive

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—There's a lot of talk about the precarious state of the United Nations' health, but the prevalent prognosis at headquarters is that the patient will live.

Most UN diplomats believe that neither a U.S.-Soviet showdown on peacekeeping assessments for the withdrawal of Indonesia from the world organization will be fatal. But there may be some scars.

The United Nations was given up for dead several times in the past but made surprising recoveries.

This happened in 1950 when the Russians began a general boycott of UN meetings in an attempt to force the seating of China. It happened again in 1956 at the time of the Hungarian and Suez crises.

Other critical periods for the organization were in 1960 when Nikita Khrushchev launched his so-called "troika" plan to replace the secretary-general with a three-man executive group, and in 1961 when Dag Hammarskjold was killed in an African plane crash.

GLOOM SETTLED

Each time gloom settled over UN headquarters. Dire predictions were heard, just as now. Some of the more pessimistic are recalling remarks leading to the collapse of the League of Nations and noting certain similarities.

They could be right. But a majority of UN diplomats diagnose the ailment this way:

If the General Assembly votes to uphold the U.S. position and suspend the voting rights of the Soviet Union, France and 16 other countries, there may be walkouts and other gestures in protest. But there will be no mass withdrawal from the United Nations.

If the Russians win, the United States would be embarrassed and might even cut its financial support of the UN to some extent. It would not go so far as to wreck the organization.

One indication that the Russians do not expect the UN to collapse is the fact that they have made new contributions in the last four weeks totaling $5,000,000. They might have held off if they had been expecting to withdraw.

SHOWED STRENGTH

In some ways the organization has shown signs of strength in the midst of the current crisis. Many of its specialized agencies continue to expand and have launched ambitious plans for the future. UN membership continues to grow. Last month three new countries were admitted.

And the reaction to Indonesia's withdrawal must have been extremely disappointing to President Sukarno. With the exception of China, which itself is outside the organization, Indonesia got little support. No country showed any inclination to follow.

The crisis over peacekeeping assessments is more political than monetary. It's a case of the United States and the Soviet Union taking opposite positions on whether the assembly must suspend the voting rights of countries two years behind in paying assessments.

The financial position of the United Nations, while shaky, is not as bad as it was when the organization was pouring $10,000,000 a month into The Congo operation. That pressure decreased in part by the end of The Congo operation and by the $200,000,000 UN bond issue two years ago. The current deficit is $36,000,000 compared to $127,000,000 at the end of 1963.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

A recurring theme from the mailbag is the belief many share that it is necessary to carry a large mortgage on a home in order to make the house easily resalehble. That this is fallacious is the recurring theme we include in the answer to Mr. J. K.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have been told that it is easier to sell a house if it carries a large mortgage, because the mortgage can be transferred to a purchaser who might otherwise have difficulty in securing his own. I am prepared to make a large down payment on a house, but won't do so if it would be a disadvantage when it comes to resale. — J. K.

ANSWER: To an uninformed seller or salesman, it may appear that a large mortgage makes a house easier to sell because the purchaser will require only a small down payment.

A real estate expert will tell you, however, that the size of your mortgage makes no difference. If the new purchaser is a good credit risk, he can secure as large a mortgage as necessary. If he is irresponsible or a poor credit risk, and can't qualify for a mortgage of his own, it would be imprudent for the seller to assign this mortgage to such a person.

In sound practice, an owner should build his mortgage decision on his own savings income and prospects, and not, in anticipation of future mortgage requirements of some future purchaser.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am 67 years old, my family is grown and scattered all over the country, so I plan on moving into a retirement home. My savings, plus what I get when I sell my house, are all that I have and I don't want to run into a penury.

I am getting $17,000 for my house, and paid only $8,000 for it 17 years ago, of course. I heard somewhere that there is some tax advantage an "elder citizen" like myself can get when he sells his house. Could you straighten me out? — A. R.

ANSWER: Since the price you will receive for your home is less than $20,000, as a "senior citizen" (65 and over) you are in the favorable position of not having to pay taxes on any profit realized. Had the price exceeded $20,000 you would still have enjoyed a tax advantage — but on a pro-rata basis.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My divorce will be final in a few weeks. My fiance tells me that now that I will be living alone in my house I can get my real estate taxes reduced. What, exactly, is the procedure for doing this? — S. J.

ANSWER: This is a new one on me! If this is the kind of advice you new fiance gives, you would be well advised to think it over a little longer.

I'm afraid the, the one bargain your ex-husband had was that as far as real estate taxes are concerned, two can live as cheaply as one.

I hope other wives don't share your confusion. The divorce rate is high enough now, without a whole new wave of ex-husbands who were bounced because their wives wanted to economize on the real estate taxes.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I was thrilled when my husband gave a dish-washing machine for our 25th Anniversary. Now I'm back to doing dishes in the sink. It worked fine mechanically and does everything they said it would, except make stiff dishes clean. I read your column faithfully and wonder if this is a common complaint and if there is some solution. If not I guess I'll have to get more of dish pan hands. — Mrs. E. T.

ANSWER: Yes, it is a common complaint and no, there is a solution. In order for a dish washing machine to work effectively the water temperature should be 160 to 180 degrees Farenheit. This is much hotter than the 120-130 degrees common to most homes, and would be unpleasantly so for other uses.

If your machine is a model that will not operate, an easy solution would be to install booster heating coils on your machine.

Another solution is to install a two-way temperature valve at the hot water heater which would provide the very hot water for the dish-washer; the other side the normal temperature hot water for other uses.

A third solution to your problem (provided by my wife, and one I do not personally endorse) is to let your husband wash the dishes for the next 25 years.

Cold-Shoulder Treatment Given Wilson by de Gaulle

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister Harold Wilson is still getting the cold-shoulder treatment from Paris while Britain-Common Market talk reaches the pinnacle of its career.

De Gaulle now calls the shots in Europe. Despite all the military power of what the French president calls the Anglo-Saxon Alliance.

Only de Gaulle would have dared to defy the United States to sell gold for dollars at a time when the American treasury was losing to its allies to help stabilize the American dollar by reducing demands on the dwindling American gold stockpile.

SHATTERS MLF

And perhaps only de Gaulle could have hoped to shatter the Anglo-American plans for some form of Western nuclear force in which West Germany could participate. German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard goes to see de Gaulle Tuesday while Wilson still waits for the French leader to fix a firm date for the British-French summit.

British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker laments the fact he cannot even get French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville to fix a date for their meeting, which presumably would prepare the groundwork for a Wilson - de Gaulle conference. Wilson had hoped to see de Gaulle early January, now there is questioning when, if ever, the meeting will take place.

MEETS ERHARD

Wilson will confer with Erhard in Bonn next Thursday. Undoubtedly the success Wilson has in that meeting will be measured to some extent by what new understanding is reached between Erhard and de Gaulle.

Erhard still has his eye on Washington as his main source of military strength but his crumbling resistance against de Gaulle's demand for lower German wheat prices within the Common Market indicates he cannot ignore pressure from Paris.

De Gaulle's great talent, as he enters his sixth consecutive year as president, is his ability to translate the lessons of history into present-day realism. As one London commentator noted, de Gaulle has the satisfaction of seeing some of his predictions come true and the satisfaction of seeing world trends working in his favor.

Grand Jury Critical of Police Station

OSHAWA (CP) — The danger of cutbacks and expected ongoing exists in the Oshawa police station for both policemen and prisoners, says a report by the coll-block, an Ontario Supreme Court grand jury reported Thursday.

The odor of petroleum products was noticeable in the men's cells and appeared to be infiltrating from an adjoining police garage, separated only by a steel door, the report said.

The jury also said the cell-block, consisting of six cells for men and two for women, appeared to be poorly designed and totally inadequate for a city of more than 70,000.

TAKE OVER GUARD AT PALACE — Members of a precise, 54-man Canadian Army contingent are flanked by Grenadier Guards as they arrive to take over guard duties for a 24-hour period from the Grenadiers at Buckingham palace. It was the first time since World War II that the Canadian armed forces have taken over the guard at the Palace. The Canadian troops moved into the guards' barracks last November for a complete 12-day tour of duty, which also included guarding of the Bank of England, Tower of London and St. James' Palace: (CP Photo from National Defence)

Canada Formed First Unit From Outside U.K. Ever To Guard Monarch's Palace

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — New Zealand's claim to have made history in mounting guard at Buckingham Palace sent other Commonwealth countries in search of what is left of the record books.

It appears there is some substance to the claim, in that the New Zealanders were the first non-British unit to form a "full peacetime" guard. They moved into the guards' barracks last November for a complete 12-day tour of duty which also includes the guarding of the Bank of England, Tower of London and St. James's Palace.

But it also seems that Canada formed the first unit from outside the United Kingdom ever to guard the monarch's residence.

Army officials say most records prior to the Second World War were destroyed in a fire during the Battle of Britain, but it is known that a Canadian military delegation to the 1837 Coronation of Queen Victoria formed the guard for one day, May 9.

Recollection is that although other Commonwealth units also took over the guard duties at that time, Canada, as senior member of the Commonwealth was the first to do so.

WARTIME GUARD

During the Second World War Canadian units formed the guard at Buckingham and St. James's palaces for two weeks. Although this was a "full dress" by wartime standards, there was none of the glitter of the daily changing - of - the - guard ceremony. The Canadians wore battle - dress rather than ceremonial uniforms.

The Royal 22nd Regiment took over the guard April 17, 1940, and was relieved April 24 for another week by the Toronto Scottish.

Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Ceylon and South Africa (then a member of the Commonwealth) also mounted the palace guard for one day each during May and June, 1953, Coronation year. Canada led off on June 5.

The Royal New Zealand Artillery Armored Corps, here for a month's training late in 1964, let it be known it was anxious to mount the guard. The Queen approved, provided the New Zealanders would also undertake the full guard throughout London.

Aside from the honor, there is no extra pay for the troops. The New Zealanders, however, were on duty on Prince Charles's birthday Nov. 14 and got the customary royal handout on the occasion — 10 shillings ($1.50) for sergeants and 5 shillings (75 cents) for troops.

WINE WITH DINNER

Another custom, and the officer in charge of the Bank of England guard, or picket, is served a full dinner, including wine, by the bank and also may invite one guest to share it.

The Grenadier Guards' duties are shared by the men of the Brigade of Guards drawn from the Grenadier, Coldstream, Irish, Welsh and Scots Guards on a rotation basis.

The changing - of - the - guard ceremony takes place every morning and during the 24-hour duty the men have four two-hour periods on "sentry go" and four four-hour rest periods when they retire to the guard house to nap, eat, read, smoke, play cards or watch television.

Some of the fascination of the guards has disappeared since the Canadians were last on duty there because now they have retired 50 yards within the iron fence following an incident several years ago in which a guardsman "got fresh on contact" with a troublesome American tourist's skin. She claimed he kicked her.

An inquiry did not back up her charge and the guardsman was confined to barracks for 10 days for "irregular conduct in taking four paces forward instead of one and thereby getting unnecessarily involved with a member of the public."

First Deliveries Of New Flags Made Next Week

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's office announced Thursday that first deliveries of 16,000 new maple leaf flags will be received by the government next week but that the full order will not be completed by Canadian flag manufacturers until early February.

Plans for inauguration ceremonies and the effective date for official use of the new flag will be announced later, a statement from Mr. Pearson's office said.

Of the 16,000 flags ordered, 12,000 will be needed for federal government buildings and properties in Canada and abroad.

They are being made of nylon according to government specifications for durability.

Contracts were awarded by tender to five firms, and the flags are being made in various sizes, ranging from three to 15 feet in length.

Among firms awarded production contracts is the J. J. Turner Company of Peterborough.

APPROVED BY QUEEN

All the flags are of the design approved by the Queen on Christmas Eve and announced by the prime minister on New Year's Eve. They have an 11-point red maple leaf on a white field, with broad red bars at either end. The flag forms a square, and the over-all dimensions of the flag are twice as long as either side.

The 15-foot flag is the size flown from the Parliament Hill Peace Tower, Ottawa. Flags are used on Canadian ships.

The first shipments will go to Canada's diplomatic communities, where transportation problems are most difficult and likely to encounter delays.

The next flags shipped will be for Canada's government facilities in 66 foreign countries. The last shipments will be to locations across Canada.

Lee A. Iacocca Given High Post in Ford

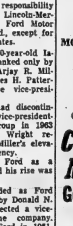
DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has promoted Lee A. Iacocca to the fourth-ranked spot in the automotive firm.

Iacocca, 40, has been a division vice-president and general manager, was named by board chairman Henry Ford II as vice-president of the car and truck group.

This gives him responability for Ford division, Lincoln-Mercury division and Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., except for its overseas affiliates.

As such, the 40-year-old Iacocca will be promoted only by Ford, President Arjay R. Miller, 48, and Charles H. Patterson, 62, executive vice-president.

The company had discontinued the post of vice-president-car and truck group in 1962 when James O. Wright resigned following Miller's elevation to the presidency.



Iacocca joined Ford as a trainee in 1946 and his rise was rapid.

He was succeeded as Ford division manager by Donald N. Frey, who was elected a vice-president of the company Frey, 42, joined Ford in 1951.

Tariff Agreement Concluded

Plan To Create Common Market For Auto Industry

Canada Gets Access To Giant U.S. Trade

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—In a radical new approach to their economic relations, the Canadian and United States governments have agreed on a sweeping tariff-elimination scheme designed to create a single, common North American market for the automobile industry.

Richest prize for Canada in this "industrial rationalization" plan announced Friday is the chance for its own auto industry, gaining free access to the Giant American market, to slash costs by getting much longer production runs and sharper efficiency and specialization.

Ultimately—no date was even suggested by government officials — Canadian consumers would benefit by the gradual whittling-away of the existing price-difference between Canadian-built and U.S.-built cars. The immediate effect on auto prices may be negligible.

Duty - free import privileges would be restricted to the manufacturers. A Canadian who buys a car in the United States would still have to pay the 17½-per-cent duty, plus taxes.

Government officials also indicated some doubt whether the main auto manufacturers in Canada, subsidiaries of the U.S. giants, would risk endangering their own Canadian output by selling American-built cars in Canada at sharply - reduced prices.

WILL SAVE MILLIONS

The manufacturers' immediate savings in the form of customs duties could be enormous — would be some $50,000,000 a year, government officials estimated. What they do with this money is their business and none of the government's.

However, there were strong indications that the manufacturers will in effect put these savings into big plant expansions. They can't reach the expected levels of production with present facilities.

Industry Minister C. M. Drury, announcing the agreement, estimated that by the end of the 1968 model year, the production of new vehicles of original parts in Canada "should be expanded by about one - third over their present level," not counting normal growth.

This will mean more jobs. No one would estimate how many.

Outlook Extremely Grave As 'Greatest Englishman' Slips Into Deeper Sleep

"Crisis Hours as the World Waits", Wife, Son, Daughters Are at Bedside

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Doctors reported today Sir Winston Churchill is holding on in his grim war against the final enemy — death.

A medical bulletin from the London home of the 90-year-old warrior-statesman said he spent a peaceful night and there was no material change in his condition.

Another bulletin was expected at approximately 9:30 p.m., 4:30 p.m. EST.

Britons — and millions of others around the world — had waited with foreboding for today's noon bulletin on the condition of the wartime prime minister who suffered a stroke Friday. He celebrated his 90th birthday November 30.

To countless admirers, the bulletin represented almost a reprieve from death for the "greatest Englishman," the man who rallied the free world against the forces of Adolph Hitler in the Second World War.

Physicians and authorities described the outlook for Sir Winston as "extremely grave" after his physician, Lord Moran, reported Friday night he was slipping into a deeper sleep and was not conscious of discomfort or pain.

A spokesman for the British Medical Association, commenting on the bulletin, said not little or no hope that Churchill can recover.

He said the former prime minister might drift along in a largely unchanged way for a week or 10 days. The implication was that when a change came it would be death.

"The crisis hours . . . as the world waits," is the headline in the London Evening News.

The Queen, like her subjects, was keeping watch on the condition of Sir Winston, who was prime minister to her father, George VI, and later to her.

The noon news from the Churchill home at Hyde Park Gate, on what is normally a quiet Kensington one-way street, sped quickly through Britain on a dreary, wet and chilly day. The bulletin did not say so, but there were indications that Churchill may be in a state of coma.

The illness dominated the front pages of newspapers not only in Britain and Canada but throughout the world.

In France, the Communist paper L'Humanite publishes a photo of a smiling, cigar-smoking Churchill on its front page and devotes much space inside to his illness.

Sir Winston's wife, son and two daughters were at his bedside or within easy call.

The "valiant spirit" he had so often praised in others carried him through the night in his latest of many illnesses and injuries that have afflicted the indomitable Churchill in his long life.

Complete Havoc After Storm

OAKVILLE (CP) — A freak storm swept into the Oakville area from Lake Ontario shortly after noon Friday, causing what police termed as "complete havoc" to transportation in a wide area between Toronto and Hamilton.

By 7 p.m., eight inches of snow had fallen over the area between Dundas, just west of Hamilton, and Port Credit in the east. Only sight snow was reported in downtown Hamilton and none had fallen in Toronto city.

The weather office forecast further snowsqualls throughout the night and snowflurries today.

One person died and countless others were injured as a result of accidents occurring throughout the day along the Queen Elizabeth Way, Highway 401 and Highway 2 in the Oakville area.

Provincial police at Port Credit said an unidentified person was killed late Friday in a two-car collision on the Queen Elizabeth Way near Port Credit.

PLUGS HIGHWAYS

The sudden snow storm plugged highways and filled the emergency ward at the Oakville - Trafalgar Memorial Hospital. Highway mishaps blocked rush-hour traffic on the major arteries.

Four persons were admitted to the Oakville vhospital with more serious injuries ranging from a broken leg to a dislocated hip. About 25 others were treated and released while still others were treated for minor cuts and bruises at police stations.

One woman employee in a plant near the Queen Elizabeth Way saw a group of drivers and passengers standing beside their wrecked cars and decided to take some coffee to them. She fell while crossing a ditch and broke her leg.

At one point shortly after the storm started, police reported more than 40 cars involved in various accidents within 30 minutes.

Ford Work Halted By Strike

TORONTO (CP)—A strike by 10,300 members of the United Auto Workers (CLC) halted Ford of Canada operations in four Ontario centres Friday.

Negotiations for a new contract were to resume today, with bargaining centered mainly on the non-economic issue of work speed.

The strike affects about 4,500 workers in Windsor, 5,200 in Oakville, 200 at a subsidiary glass factory near Welland and about 400 employees at the company's parts depot in suburban Toronto.

Picket lines were set up Friday when no settlement had been reached by the 2 p.m. strike deadline set last week. The previous contract expired Dec. 1.

Most of Ford's Oakville workers had walked off the job Wednesday without union sanction. They said the company was trying to stockpile parts for the strike.

Negotiations on monetary issues for the new contract had started only hours before the strike.

Dief Holds Ground

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker held his ground Friday in the face of a demand by Quebec Conservative MPs that he submit his leadership to a national convention of the Progressive Conservative party.

He told reporters the demand is hypothetical and he had no direct comment on it since it was not directed to him. The demand was to be conveyed to Party President Dalton K. Camp of Toronto in the form of a letter requesting an executive meeting to call the convention.

Instead, the 69-year-old conservative chieftain packed his bags to spend a week with Mrs. Diefenbaker in Saskatoon and Prince Albert, Sask., his home constituency.

Leon Balcer, the party's Quebec leader who announced the demand Thursday night worked at his desk on Parliament Hill most of Friday but made no further comment. Meanwhile, reports from party officials and spokesmen across the country emphasized a split between the anti - Diefenbaker forces.

In Toronto, Premier Roberts said he is deeply concerned with the split in the Conserva-

Pearson, Johnson Sign Pact

By ARCH McKENZIE

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (CP)— Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson sign today an agreement that ushers in a new experiment in North American economic co - operation. The signing will be the climax of an overnight meeting at the LBJ Ranch.

Continent - wide approach to production of cars and component parts is tied up in the agreement produced by negotiations started last summer. Final details were disclosed here and in Ottawa Friday.

But the pact providing a free-trade area for manufacturers was about the only formal note visible in the talks.

Pearson and his wife, ending a 10-day Florida holiday, were greeted by an informally-clad president and Lady Bird Johnson after their aircraft landed at 4 p.m. Friday.

Dorion Inquiry on Bribe Allegations Is Adjourned

MONTREAL (CP)—The Dorion judicial inquiry is adjourned until Tuesday after a gruelling week of questioning a murder suspect, a reputed suspect with a criminal record and the wife of a dope-smuggling suspect, who —the fraud suspect said—had spent a "sheltered life."

The three main witnesses were Hector Gignac, 35, charged with capital murder in the Sept. 17 shooting of a night-club doorman here; Eddy Lechasseur, 33, who has a criminal record said by only lawyer at the inquiry to be worth one or 10 convictions, including one for manslaughter, and Mrs. Lucien Rivard, 28 - year - old redhaired wife of a 48 - year - old Montrealer wanted by U.S. authorities on charges of smuggling heroin for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Lechasseur, who faces trial here March 9 on fraud charges, described Mrs. Rivard as naive and lacking in experience.

Mrs. Rivard described Lechasseur and Gignac as honest and trustworthy men.

She is expected to conclude her testimony Tuesday after which the commission will summon Guy Masson, described by Gignac as a Liberal party organiser and his some-time business partner, and by Raymond Daoust, Rivard's lawyer, as a peddler of non - existent influence.

The inquiry, headed by Chief Justice Frederic-Dorion of Quebec Superior Court is investigating allegations of a bribe offer, coercion and political pressure from Ottawa intended to effect the release on bail of Rivard, in Bordeaux Jail since his arrest here June 18.

Rivard now is trying to get out of jail through habeas corpus proceedings. He appeared in superior court here Friday but the case was adjourned to Jan. 22.

Mr. Daoust, reported by a legal associate to be on a tuberculin cruise for his health, is expected back in Montreal in early February, his office said.

Masson's counsel, Francois Chapados, gave notice Friday at the inquiry that he will contest an RCMP report of the force's questioning of Masson.

Gignac, Lechasseur and Mrs. Rivard all gave the same basic testimony that Masson claimed to know an "extradition specialist" in Ottawa who could come up with some legal points which might spring Rivard.

Mrs. Rivard said she gave Masson $1,000 the first time she met him June 22 in Gignac's office. The money was for Masson's expenses for a 120-mile trip to Hull, Que., across the Ottawa River from the capital, and "research" expenses by the "specialist." She hadn't asked Masson for a receipt or for any kind of accounting of the money.

"Mr. Masson is a very honest man," Mrs. Rivard said.

Early in July, Masson had told her that the expert was convinced Rivard could get bail.

"The expert had found new pointers in his law books," she said.

Mrs. Rivard said the $1,000 for Masson came from between $4,500 and $5,500 cash she said she had around the house.

Mr. Daoust had asked for a retainer of $1,500 but she could not remember when she had paid him. Besides this amount and the $1,000 she said she gave Masson, she had $2,000 or $3,000 — can't remember which" — in the house to put toward the $60,000 cash kitty intended as bail for her husband.

She had raised this $60,000, without ever telling her husband, in two or three days in June, she said. She had returned it in cash to the four lenders in September. She said that one time she had $20,000 on her person—but not in her purse—and was a "little nervous."

Mrs. Rivard, in the witness box for four hours Friday, said Mr. Daoust told her that bail for her husband would be higher than the $25,000 bail granted Hal Banks, ousted pres-

Big Burlesque Shows Folded Years Ago in U.S. Due to Lack of Money

CHICAGO (AP)—The stubble-faced comedian in baggy pants left the stage. A willowy blonde in silk and rhinestones walked on and the crowd yelled and whistled.

It was a crowd of less than 100 men, grouped together in the front rows of a 250-seat theatre in South State Street near downtown Chicago.

It was the Rialto Theatre on a week night, one of the two legitimate burlesque theatres in the city. But the theatrical show wasn't big-time burlesque.

The big show folded years ago across the United States because of lack of money, not because of competition or lack of interest, a veteran theatrical agent said Thursday night in an interview.

The acts were lavish, costumes dancing and comedians numerous until the end came in the late 1940s, he said.

He said there are only 20 legitimate burlesque theatres left in the U.S.

"It wasn't the competition that weakened burlesque," he said. "If you wanted to see flesh, you couldn't see it on TV. Movies may be risque, but burlesque goes beyond the risque stage."

"It was money," the agent said, asking that his name not be used.

Today's burlesque is on a vastly smaller scale, but the cast and characters haven't changed in Chicago.

The chorus line on the Rialto's tiny stage consists of three dancers.

The girls said they are used to the 14-hour days, the six- and seven-day weeks. They like the pay ($125 weekly minimum in Chicago, $3,000 a week for top performers), they like being on stage and they enjoy dancing.

Rialto director-producer John Niehl, 29, said the dancers either are — or want to be — skilled professionals and that 90 per cent of them are married.

"Most of my girls are far more moral than the girl next door," Niehl said. He added: "With the hours they work, they're too tired at quitting time to be immoral."

Churchill Marriage Has Endured 56 Years Despite Gloomy Prediction

LONDON (CP)—When Winston Churchill, a pugnacious 34-year - old politician, married Clementine Hozier in the society wedding of 1908, Lord Lord Rosebery, a family friend, commiserated: "I have had my last six months, with luck. Their marriage will fall because Winston is not the marrying kind.'

The marriage not only endured for more than 56 years, it was a triumph—in Lord Is-may's words probably "the most ideal" marriage of the century. Churchill's autobiography, My Early Life, published in 1930, ended with the words: " . . . Until September, 1908, when I married and lived happily ever afterwards."

The triumph was due almost entirely to the devotion and diplomatic tact of Clementine Churchill. Right from the start of their marriage, the shy, dignified society beauty had to plunge into the whirl of publicity and controversy in which her husband revelled.

She shared his unpopularity as home secretary before the First World War, the bitter accusations of "traitor to his class" that Tory peers hurled at Churchill when as president of the Board of trade in the Liberal government of Herbert Asquith, he attacked the House of Lords as an outmoded institution.

In 1922, when Winston was ill and unable to fight his Dundee by-election campaign, Clementine went on the hustings and faced a hostile mob who yelled. "Your husband is a warmonger' and 'how could you bring up a babrn on a shilling a week?"

But she was the only person who could handle the unpredictable Churchill; soothing tantrums, ensuring he had precious hours of relaxation during the Second World War, sometimes advising him on a controversial section or a speech, but always so tactfu' you thought the idea was his own. Often she would quietly comment as he drafted a fiery speech: "Winston, you don't say that." He usually took her advice.

She had a taxing job providing meals to meet Churchill's exacting standards. He liked plain English food best, superbly cooked, and relished fine champagne and brandy. Sometimes there were dinner-table arguments at which Clementine acted as peacemaker.

Shortly after Churchill became premier, in May, 1940, Clementine suggested he make a speech to rally the women of England to war work as he had rallied the men to battle with his famous "We will fight on the beaches. . . ."

Despite her advice and the speech he delivered in Manchester and in which than 1,000,000 women to factories to make munitions, to the land, and to dozens of other vital civilian jobs.

During the war, Clementine managed to save her husband from his own frantic energies and carelessness of personal safety. She knew the only way to get him home before nightfall on his tours of bombed-out London was to go along with him.

It was Clementine who, with the dynamic Canadian - born Lord Beaverbrook, arranged for London's subway stations to be turned into a gigantic air-raid "dormitory" during the 1940 blitz, with 1,000,000 bunks to set up along the platforms.

Today's Chuckle

When it comes to doing for others, some people will stop at nothing.

Churchill Could Take Place In History as Great Writer

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The place of Sir Winston Churchill, man of action, in history is assured but it should remain uniquely vivid because of his own prowess as a writer.

His six-volume series The Second World War was not, by his estimation, a history of that conflict but was surely a contribution in history to the life of which had never been seen before.

He had honed up his creative talents with a four-volume series on the First World War, not to mention a number of other writings, even including a novel.

The late prime minister Henry Herbert Asquith, Churchill's boss when he was first lord of the admiralty for a time in the First War, once remarked enviously the younger man had purchased a home, the now-famed Chartwell, on the proceeds from one book. That fee was later to look like chicken feed.

The Churchillian style and eloquence, with its impression of effortless composition, grew from memorable war speeches that creative composition was the most difficult of all jobs.

SEEN AS CONTINUATION

Churchill regarded his works on the second war as the continuation of his account of the first, in which he hung the chronicles and discussions of great military and political events upon the thread of the personal experience of an individual."

I am perhaps the only man who has passed through both the two supreme cataclysms of recorded history in high cabinet offices. Whereas, however, in the First World War I held responsible but subordinate posts, in the second for more than five years I bore the chief responsibility for the war policy of the British Commonwealth and Empire.

"I doubt whether any similar record exists or has ever existed of the day to day conduct of war and administration. . . . These 30 years of action and advocacy comprise, and make, my life effort and I am content to be judged upon them."

Few authors have produced as much material as Sir Winston, perhaps because few had the personal experience of an individual."

Sportsmen's Spiel Opens At Curling Club

Filled with hamburgers, relishes, excellent cheddar cheese and other goodies, the Sportsmen's Spiel was put on the road last night at the Curling Club and will continue until late this Saturday evening.

A committee of Ron Benn, chairman, Norm Priest, Earl Beare, Everett Black, Bob Lanning, Dr. McCorquodale, Jack Olaverson and Bob Smith have certainly gone all out to make this spiel one of the highlights of the club season at the club. Then have the club all to themselves and enjoy the spirit of friendship that prevails.

At noon today the curlers sat down to a full course turkey dinner with all the trimmings and served by members of the committee. Between draws the players enjoy a game of bridge, a game of "Cats" and discuss curling in all its phases as well as watching the several games going on, on the ice.

The ice is in excellent condition due to a special grooming by the iceemaker, Harold Wannamaker and the type of play so far has been of a highly competitive nature. There were some close games played in the first draw on Friday night, two of them ending in ties which are not played but each rink receives an equal number of points.

This spiel was sponsored by the late Steve Flintoff, who donated a beautiful trophy and is now in its fifth year and growing in popularity. There are 24 rinks in play and more would have been entered but time was an essence. The prizes will be distributed at the end of play this evening.

Results of the first draw on Friday night follows:

It's Cold, No Change

Maximum of 7½° degrees below!

That was the weather picture today in Belleville as the first really cold snap of the current winter continued.

Last night's low at Belleville was a chilly ten below and shortly after noon today the temperature had crawled up but two degrees.

Last night's official low of minus ten degrees was four degrees warmer than on Thursday but this morning's wind made it seem actually colder.

FEATURE REVEALED—An aeromagnetic survey has revealed the existence of a vast geological "feature" under the swamps of the James Bay lowlands which may contain a rich supply of minerals. Geologists say the irregularity may be a crack in the earth's crust which would allow the minerals to escape to the surface. A ground survey is planned this summer to determine the nature of minerals.

Plan

There now are about 41,000 employed in the Canadian automotive manufacturing industry and an additional 40,000 in the parts industry.

A key part of the over-all program was obtaining assurances from the major manufacturers that they would, as Mr. Drury described it, "be able to gain a fair and equitable share of the expanding North American market."

HELD UP PACT

This was what held up the agreement in the final weeks. The last of these assurances. The last step was the government but not made public Friday, reached Ottawa Thursday. It was announced today.

Under the agreement, the Canadian government will immediately abolish its tariffs on from 17½ to 25 per cent on both new cars and original parts, but not replacement parts. This will be done by Dec. 31 or council, taking effect Monday.

There still is a possibility the plan could be altered or defeated by opposition in the U.S. Congress or serious amendments to the agreement.

Mr. Drury indicated to reporters Friday he is confident Congress will pass the agreement without major changes, although U.S. parts manufacturers feel they will be hurt by the plan.

ARE DETERMINED

The preamble to the agreement says the two governments are "determined to strengthen the economic relations between their two countries."

In the preamble is stated the possibility that this kind of "rationalization" could be applied to other industries.

Mr. Drury said it is possible.

For Canada, one of the major problems in reaching such agreement was to make sure that production remains in Canada, and increases in the case of the manufacturers, this was accomplished through the letters of "assurance," not made public.

Mr. Drury said the guarantees of expanding industrial production are one assurance for parts in a number of continued growth in a suddenly more competitive business.

TAKE OTHER STEPS

However, these other steps were taken to give them time to "adjust" through technological improvements and better efficiency:

—In order to qualify for duty-free entry only a car manufacturer in Canada must maintain the production - to - sales ratio he achieved in this country in the 1964 model year.

—In effect, the long-standing "Canadian content" provisions are retained, but modified slightly. The manufacturers must keep the same proportion of Canadian labor, materials, and components—as well as depreciation on Canadian tooling and equipment—as in 1964.

Another provision of the agreement is aimed at preventing foreign auto producers from setting up "too primitive" assembly plants in Canada, as Mr. Drury described them, just to gain duty - free access to the huge American market.

Before U.S. duties will be waived, the Canadian manufacturer must have no more than 50 per cent of his total "content" originating from outside North America between now and 1968. After that, the percentage drops to 50.

The manufacturers already established in Canada meet this qualification, Canada said.

Government officials added that from what they know now, Quebec's General Investment Corporation also will be able to qualify when it begins next fall to produce Renault and Peugeot autos under licence from the French manufacturers.

Rivard Case Postponed to January 22

MONTREAL (CP) — The extradition case of Lucien Rivard, which figures prominently in the Dorion inquiry into allegations of attempted bribery and coercion made against federal officials, was postponed Friday to Jan. 22.

The postponement was requested by Leo-Rene Maranda, pinch - hitting for Raymond Daoust, Rivard's chief counsel. Mr. Maranda informed the court that Mr. Daoust is on a Caribbean cruiser for his health. Mr. Daoust's office said he is not expected back before early February.

Mr. Daoust has been a witness at the Dorion inquiry and a prominent figure at the hearings.

In postponing the case, Judge Francois Caron said the facts are to be argued Jan. 22 and that there will definitely be no further postponements.

Involved in the case with Rivard are Raymond Jones, 27; Julien Larson, 35, and Emile Groleau, 55.

Jones took a light swing at a photographer with his coat as he was entering and leaving the courtroom.

tive party federally, but he would not express any personal view about the leadership of Mr. Diefenbaker. The chief was to hold a convention is in the hands of the national executive.

In Kamloops, B.C., Davis Fulton, British Columbia provincial leader and former justice minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet, said the decision should be left to the party. It was a party which should work together, not a collection of individuals.

Michael Starr, labor minister in the Diefenbaker government, said at a meeting in Port Credit, Ont., the Progressive Conservative party should solve its problems from within, with no public statements and no ultimatums.

Mr. Starr, member of Parliament for Ontario riding, added, however, that since an ultimatum has been delivered by several Quebec Conservatives, it is essential the leadership question in his party be clarified.

Egan Chambers, a past president of the national Progressive Conservative Association, said in Montreal he sympathizes with a request made by Quebec party members for a leadership convention.

But he added in an interview: "For these members to have taken their stand in public seems self - defeating.

"There are a number of people all over the country, perhaps in Quebec, who feel with regret that it's time Mr. Diefenbaker stepped down from the leadership and left a clear place in the history books," said Mr. Chambers.

"The Quebec members should have written a letter to Mr. Camp and not made statements to the press,' said Mr. Chambers. "They haven't helped their own cause in this fashion."

Almost daily, new drugs appear which we are urged to offer. To reject the unproved products is just as important to this pharmacy as is the service of being alert to provide the newest and the best.
There are certain helpful guides on which we rely. Reliable pharmaceutical manufacturers, such as Parke, Davis & Company, establish quality and effectiveness with exhaustive clinical tests before a product is announced. Your Doctor is then given facts, and on his judgment we rely in making our decision.
Thus, if a preparation is in our stock, you are assured of its reliability.

Canadian Car Manufacturers Approve Trade Agreement

TORONTO (CP) — Earl K. Brownridge, president of the Canadian Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association, said Friday the association supports the objectives of the agreement between the governments of Canada and the United States concerning trade and production of automotive products.

He warned, however, that while there could be a narrowing of the cost differential between vehicles produced in the two countries, no such narrowing will be possible for some time.

He said in a statement: "The inflationary forces in current labor contracts in several industries could be felt before the economics of the agreement came into effect."

Mr. Brownridge said attaining the objectives of the agreement will require long - term plans for new and heavy capital investment by vehicle and parts manufacturers.

He said: "What changes may occur in the total vehicle market as a result of the agreement cannot be foreseen."

". . . Lower costs of vehicle production will come about only when Canadian - produced components become competitive in world markets. Time will be necessary to adjust to the new regulations respecting the industry; and a long time will be needed to reach the final objective of car and truck production at world competitive levels.

COULD RAISE OUTPUT

"However, there is no doubt that the trade agreement should lead to additional economic production in Canada of vehicles and parts, particularly as the total North American market expands."

Karl E. Scott, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, said the company supports the agreement which will help accelerate the Canadian industry's growth.

He said: "The Canadian automotive industry for 60 years has been its extended right to protective tariffs and high content requirements. This plan enables us to adapt to a North American industry.

It will take time, planning and expenditure of large sums of money to equip ourselves to take advantage of the benefits of opening up to Canadian and U.S. industry this dynamic North American market."

E. H. Walker, president of General Motors of Canada, said GM subscribes to the objectives of the agreement and will continue to operate to implement the program and make every effort to assure its success.

OBJECTIVES SET

He said: "It is recognized, of course, that this agreement calls for automotive production in Canada to meet certain objectives over the next few years. How we can accomplish these objectives cannot be stated specifically at this time."

A. A. Cumming, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said:

"This experiment in freer trade, involving as it does the entire automotive industry, including the suppliers of materials and parts, will have far-reaching implications for the whole Canadian economy.

"A first reaction to the plan is that it creates both new problems and opportunities for the Canadian automotive industry which, as a result of its flexibility and willingness to cooperate in this historic venture, should make possible a substantial upturn in the manufacture of automobiles and automotive parts in Canada. A considerable increase in both investment and employment is certainly indicated and should materially help the Canadian economy achieve the objectives recently set in the report of the economic council.

IS IMPORTANT MOVE

In Windsor, Ont., R. W. Todgham, president of Chrysler Canada Limited, described the agreement as a "most important move toward the elimination of the barriers that for so many decades have impeded the full and natural development of the automotive industries" in the United States and Canada.

"While we appreciate that it will take considerable time before the full benefits of the agreement can be realized," Mr. Todgham said in a press statement, "it is our hope that in years to come we may see an elimination of the cost differential between vehicles produced in our two countries."

O. D. Cowan, president of Ontario Steel Products of Toronto, said the Canadian automotive parts industry should reap benefits from the wider markets envisioned under the plan.

"If the plan is implemented, we and other companies like us should be in a better competitive position to do more export business," he said.

"I would hope that this new and bigger market in the U.S. would be available to our company and others like us."

Ontario Steel, with its major ownership in the U.S., produces auto parts including springs and bumpers. It employs about 1,400 workers.

DETROIT (AP)—The United States Automobile Industry praised Friday the agreement between Canada and the United States to wipe out tariffs on cars and car parts.

The U.S. Industry's "Big Three"—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expressed generally enthusiastic support to the agreement. They are the U.S. largest manufacturer.

Also praising the agreement as a tool to production growth and employment was the United Auto Workers union.

Its president, Walter P. Reuther, warned at the same time that production peaks sometimes could lead to hardship for auto workers and demanded that the U.S. legislation implementing the agreement protect such workers.

Except for the automobile industry, U.S. officials in Washington did not view the agreement as leading to a possible customs union. They said, however, that the U.S. is eager to lower trade barriers with Canada during the Kennedy round of trade negotiations in Geneva.

Lord Alexander Has High Praise For Churchill

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Earl Alexander of Tunis, who became the youngest and one of Britain's most decorated warriors, says "I owe everything" to Sir Winston Churchill, "the greatest Englishman of our generation."

The paths of the two crossed often in Britain's darkest days and out of their joint struggle towards victory in the Second World War, they built a bond of mutual respect and friendship that continued into the years of peace and retirement.

"He was a very opinionated man with whom it was often very hard to disagree," the 73-year-old Lord Alexander, former governor-general of Canada, recalled in an interview Friday.

"But once you could convince him he had been wrong and accept your own, he would back you up loyally. He was always ready to listen to advice.

WAS DIFFICULT

"He was a difficult man at times, but he also could be a very charming man with a delightful sense of humor," Alexander said. "I was proud to call him one to the four times the battle when he visited me during the war."

"We have seen each other frequently over the years since we both retired," Alexander said. "He had much with him about three or four months ago. It was always good to see him but, frankly, he was really old and frail."

Now, as Sir Winston lay stricken with cerebral thrombosis—a stroke—Alexander said of him:

"He was the greatest Englishman of our generation. I cannot compare him with other generations because I have insufficient knowledge of those generations. But of our time, I can surely say there was none to compare with him.

"I owe everything to him."

Open Pedestrian Tunnel at Trenton RCAF

Personnel at RCAF Station Trenton from this week on will have to go underground when they cross the highway to go on duty at the big air transport command base.

On Wednesday of this week the new pedestrian tunnel under No. 2 Highway went into use and it is expected about 450 personnel from living quarters on the south side of the highway will use the tunnel during an eight-hour day.

Designed by the Department of National Defence and paid for from DNP funds, the tunnel was built last summer by McNamara Construction for the Department of Highways in conjunction with widening of the highway from two to four lanes.

Dorion

ident of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.). Banks skipped bail last summer and fled to the U.S. while appealing a five-year sentence for conspiracy to maim.

Gignac, a skinny redtop, testified that he accompanied Masson to Hull June 22 and that a Mr. Denis" turned up around midnight at their motel suite after Masson had made a telephone call.

Gignac said he was unable to identify this Mr. Denis in the Chicoutimi area as Raymond Denis, until about Oct. 1 executive assistant to Immigration Minister Lucien Cardin sitting a few feet away from him.

SAID BRIBE OFFERED

Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, counsel for the U.S. justice department in its attempt to have Rivard extradited to Texas to face the dope smuggling charges, has testified that Raymond Denis offered Rivard $20,000 to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Mr. Lamontagne has also said there was a series of threatening telephone calls one evening in July while on vacation at Chicoutimi, Que.

Gignac, Lechasseur and Mrs. Rivard all testified about a get-together at the home July evening at Maxime's Bar.

All denied phoning Mr. Lamontagne.

Mrs. Rivard said she and Lechasseur met Masson one December night before Christmas as soon as they learned that the Dorion inquiry had been established by the federal government.

Lechasseur said testimony they would give at the inquiry was discussed. Mrs. Rivard said it was memorized.

MET TO APOLOGIZE

Mrs. Rivard said the purpose of the meeting was for her to apologize to Masson for "the home troubles" into which she had got him and the "specials" mentioned.

Mrs. Rivard described her husband as pouring over legal books on extradition law in his Bordeaux Jail cell.

Gignac said he has seen Rivard fairly often in Bordeaux since his own arrest for murder. He pictured Rivard as "absolutely aghast", that anyone would make a bribe offer on his behalf.

Mrs. Rivard said she was able to raise bail money quickly because "my husband is very well known and everyone likes him."

She claimed her husband was framed by a former employee of Rivard's whom Rivard had fired for stealing. Before leaving, the employee had warned Rivard "I'll get you."

Mother Wants To Buy Son From Club

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Letty Durandt flew to London from South Africa because she wants to buy her son back.

The son, Cliff, 24, plays soccer for the Charlton Athletic soccer team, which paid £15,000 for him.

Mrs. Durandt is trying to persuade Cliff to return home to the family typewriter business in Johannesburg.

She wrote Charlton Friday that she doesn't think she could obtain his release from the contract or pay a "transfer fee." Charlton wanted £9,000 from two South African teams that wanted to buy Durandt last year.

"I don't know how much we can afford. Perhaps a few thousand pounds", said Mrs. Durandt.

"If we have to pay too much to release Cliff from his contract we would put our business on the rocks."

After that date, officers and men of "B" company Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be coming to Belleville with the parade. The unit is made up of men from Tweed, Bancroft and Marmora with its nucleus from the Madoc area.

For the past ten years Major Percy Gray of Marmora has been commanding officer and will be going to Belleville with about 20 district men.

There has been no indication of what the defence department intends to do with the Madoc Armouries after its official closing.

Several Times Sir Winston Near Death From Injury, Illness

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—Sir Winston Churchill, now in the grip of his most critical illness, has a record of illness and injury from boyhood to old age that several times brought him near death.

Twice previously in the last 12 years he suffered strokes. In 1949, he had a severe attack of pneumonia.

Little more than two years ago, he underwent surgery to mend a broken hip.

He has beaten up and knocked down, suffered a bad fall from a tree and was bruised in a car crash.

Throughout his life he often has driven himself almost beyond endurance while defying all basic health rules: Smoking, drinking, keeping sluggish hours, delighting in rich food.

When Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery boasted, "I don't drink, I don't smoke, I don't lie in bed, and I am fit," Sir Winston snapped, "Well, I do drink, I do smoke and I do lie in bed —and I'm fit."

WAS PREMATURE

Churchill started life as a premature baby, and there was considerable concern for several days after his birth whether he would survive.

At age seven, he was badly hurt by a horse-drawn schoolmaster, developed double pneumonia as a result and nearly died. This left him with a weak chest.

At 19, he fell from a tree, ruptured his kidney, was unconscious for three days. But in a plane crash near London in 1919, he escaped with only bruises.

While visiting New York in 1929, he was knocked down by a taxi, suffered several broken bones and later confided that he never has been so frightened in his life.

In his most active years, as prime minister, he had no hard and fast rules for work. Often it was near dawn before he went to bed. The only routine he insisted on was his nap and two daily baths, the second after his afternoon sleep.

LIKED BED

Although he often awoke early giving orders, his great pleasure was to remain in bed until 9 a.m., or later if he could arrange it. He ate hearty meals, loved caramel custard for dessert, smoked cigars continuously and had a passion for brandy.

For 15 years or more, his wealth has been a source of worry and speculation. Churchill himself never showed much interest in the subject.

Asked, at 75, if he had any fear of death, he replied:

"I am ready to meet my Maker. Whether my Maker is prepared for the great ordeal of meeting me is another matter."

Prime Minister Of Burundi Assassinated

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Prime Minister Pierre Ngendandumwe of Burundi has been assassinated and a number of arrests have been made, Bujumbura radio reported today.

Reports in Washington and Brussels said the premier was shot in the back Friday as he was leaving a Bujumbura embassy while where his wife had just given birth.

The radio said a day of national mourning had been proclaimed in Burundi.

It said "a band of criminals" were behind the assassination.

Between announcements the radio broadcast funeral music.

In Brussels the Burundi ambassador confirmed today the premier's murder was killed Friday by a gunman.

Ambassador Bany Aka said the assassin fled after hitting the premier in the back. He died instantly.

RELEASE ART WORKS

MUNICH, West Germany (AP)—Thousands of works of art collected by Adolf Hitler and Hermann Goering, his air force chief, will be taken out of storage and distributed among German museums and public buildings, it was announced Friday. The works are either items for which no claimant has been found or which had been illegally bought by the Nazis.

Lions Hear Talk on City Of Bagdad

TRENTON — Martin Valks of the Bata Shoe Company was the guest speaker at Thursday night's meeting of the Trenton Lions' Club. Mr. Valks held his listeners on a "conducted tour" of the city of Bagdad, where he was stationed with the Bata Shoe for three years.

Mr. Valks told the club members Bata has 900 persons working in the Bagdad factory. People in this city of contrasts are either rich or poor, he said, and the slides Mr. Valks showed the Lions bore out this statement. Large elegant buildings grace the streets of Bagdad but it is not unusual to see hovels in their shadows.

Around the city, unfertile fields have been made to yield by irrigation. Some of the irrigation projects have been helped out by importing pure-bred cattle to the country, although this last experiment came to an unhappy end when most of the cattle died from dehydration in the torrid climate.

The people of Bagdad noticeably "shy" away from anything that smacks of communism; even red neckties or red dresses for women are taboo. The "foreigner" is treated with suspicion, and special permit to visit outside the city must be obtained.

Mr. Valks was thanked for his interesting address by Lions' president Earl Cruickshank.

Concert Body Notes Increase In Membership

TRENTON — The Trenton branch of the Community Concerts Association went "over the top" as regards membership last year, according to the report read at this week's annual meeting by membership chairman Robert H. Smithrim. The branch now has over 725 members and the treasurer, R. Lloyd Bond reported a balance of $500. plus.

Elections of officers for the branch were not held at this week's meeting but will be held within a week or so, Harold Keefer was the 1964 president.

At the annual meeting, Mrs. Margaret Bradley, New York representative, praised the work of the local branch and particularly the effort put forth by the executive.

A membership campaign is planned for the spring, but because of the limited space in the high school auditorium where the concerts are held, present members will be given the chance to renew their membership before the actual campaign starts.

MAKE PRESENTATION

TRENTON — At this week's meeting of the A.O.T.S. Club at King Street United Church, a presentation of a silver tray was made to Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Irwin by Harry Mawson, on behalf of the club.

Mrs. Irwin will be leaving Trenton in February for Scarboro United Church in Calgary.

Economic Planning

Remember when "economic planning" was a dirty phrase?

Now everybody, even such a dedicated "free enterprise" country as Canada, is getting into the act.

Canadians have before them the first report of the Economic Council of Canada. It provides an ambitious blueprint for Canada's expansion in the next five years or so.

There was a time when economic planning was considered practically synonymous with socialism, perhaps because the modern socialists, abandoning Marx, argued that proper planning was essential for orderly economic growth and it was obvious that only the government could be entrusted with a task on which the fate of the country depended.

Since the end of the Second Great War, though, several countries, notably West Germany and later France, have managed to integrate governmental economic planning with capitalistic enterprise. Even where such attempts were not made, in the United States and in Canada for example, the role of governments in the economy has been so expanded, through a variety of social security measures, that it has become obvious that some orderly planning is essential.

The product of this conviction in Canada was the establishment 18 months ago of the Economic Council of Canada, headed by the noted economist John J. Deutsch, whose background includes government experience as former assistant deputy minister of finance.

The tasks the Council sets Canadians are great. Some of them are the common heritage of the age in which we live, others are peculiar to Canada. For instance, "Canada is moving towards one of the highest rates of labor force expansion in its entire history." Yet, at the same time this is happening, the Council sets as a "realistic objective" the achievement of 97 per cent employment—which for practical purposes equates with the "full employment" so dear to the politician. It is generally agreed by economists that at any time at least three per cent of the labor force must be between jobs if we are to maintain that "labor mobility" which is essential to an expanding economy.
